COLMAN'S MUSTARD

BEST ON EARTH

Good News.

The quality of Tillson's Pan Dried Rolled Oats has always been kept at the highest point, yet there is constant aim to improve even on that. Out of a thousand and one buyers of our Rolled Oats, one here—one there chanced to find some black specks, or a hull or a little dirt. We have lessened the chances of even this occurring in the future. We are not infallible but we have improved on what was already "best." Clean—bright—free from dirt, hulls, and black specks. And with that rich, nutty flavor that consumers like so well.

INDIVIDUAL CREDITS.*

By James G. Cannon.

CREDIT is created by the desire to do business, and thereby secure a profit. For example: A is well and favorably known to B as a man of strict honor and integrity. He may be a producer, but without ready money. He may be desirous of buying goods. B has the commodities and wishes to sell them; therefore B finds it agreeable to supply A's wants for a consideration of profit, upon his promise of future payment. In this way credit is brought into play, and its continuance is justified by the prompt fulfilment and faithful performance of all the duties and obligations imposed by the contract, but if too easily obtained it promotes extravagance.

The question naturally arises: Upon what basis should individual credit be granted? No inflexible rule can be laid down, but the underlying principles of this form of credit that suggest themselves to me are character, ability, capital and producing power.

Individual credits properly dispensed call for the exercise of diplomacy, mature judgment and eternal vigilance, and one should be especially conservative in extending liberal credits on the luxuries of life. For instance, where a customer might, without criticism, buy a five hundred dollar house-furnishing goods bill, he might very properly be refused a credit of three hundred dollars for purchases made in the dress goods department.

The good customer, though unreasonable and unjust in his demands, must be retained. It is the man who pretends to be good and is not, who must be refused and avoided. Tact in this, as in other departments of business activity, is indispensable.

Many merchants trust out their goods indiscriminately and sustain losses that handicap them in the payment of their obligations to the wholesale dealer, and the resultant ill effects are communicated all along the line of credit, reaching finally the manufacturer and his creditor. Therefore, if we can build a better basis for individual credits, the whole commercial edifice will be strengthened with benefit to all concerned.

Notwithstanding the fact that the granting of individual credit is one of the most delicate and important questions upon which the merchant has to pass, I believe that very few retail merchants, if called upon for an opinion as to the basis of their credits, could give a specific or intelligent answer.

EDUCATION NECESSARY.

The average retailer throughout the country needs education in this and kindred lines, and he should be brought to realize that it is to his interest to follow some well-defined system of granting credits. He will often "size up" a man on the spot and sell him a bill of goods without even knowing the party's full name, or, relying, perhaps, on his supposed ability to judge something of his means or affairs because he is an acquaintance, he will trust him without any investigation as to his financial worth.

Some retailers, I find, have not taken stock for years, believing it to be unnecessary, because, as they say, all they have on their shelves belongs to them. Others do not even keep books. Careful attention to details, and a thorough system of book-keeping, are prime factors in determining a merchant's success. If he is careless in his methods he is likely to find his customers tardy in meeting their bills.

If the retail merchant would only change his method, ascertain the cost of conducting his business and the profit on his sales, keep his books in such a shape as to enable him to know at all times whether he was making headway or losing ground, he would be in a position to adopt corrective measures when necessary, and avoid the shoals and rocks that would otherwise bring disaster upon him.

Some good wholesome educational work seems to be in order, and where the jobber or wholesaler finds that a retailer to whom he is selling his goods has extended credit beyond prudent limits, compared with his own resources, although it be to persons of large means, he should confine him to the shortest possible terms, and force him into a system of making quick collections, for the nearer a retailer reaches a cash basis the better will be his position. If he pays cash for his goods he is not likely to sell them on any other terms, and when he does give credit, he will exercise more care in its extention.

If the wholesale houses will give their retail customers the benefit of their wide experience, knowledge and counsel, as to the best business methods to be adopted, it will be of mutual profit and advantage. So long as retailers pay their bills with ordinary promptness the wholesaler has no occasion to interfere, but when they become slow he is compelled to look over the situation, and in nine cases out of ten retailers will plead in extenuation of their tardiness that some of their own customers owe them large bills which they are unable to collect. How needful it is, therefore, that all unknown quantities should be eliminated, and that a painstaking investigation should determine the character, financial strength and integrity of every credit risk.

Considerable strategy must be used at times to secure information touching individuals supposed to be possessed of large means, and who are so reticent about their affairs that it is not deemed prudent to ask questions. You would be surprised to learn that some of the richest and most substantial houses in the large cities will seek for data through the instrumentality of janitors of apartments, butchers and tradespeople generally. Perhaps information thus gleaned is not always of value, but at the same time such people hear and see things of which it is important that the dispenser of individual credits should have knowledge. The question may be asked why are such methods resorted to, and the only answer that can be given is that retailers are fearful of making too many inquiries direct and driving away trade that is a source of profit to them. These practices should not be necessary, and prejudice against giving information on the part of individuals will be overcome by proper educational work, just as reluctance to give information on the part of borrowers is being removed by the requirement of signed statements.

A CAUSE OF SUFFERING.

During the past few years we have been suffering not alone from the failure of business firms and corporations, but from the straining of individual credit which in my opinion has been responsible in a large degree for the prevalent unsatisfactory condition of business affairs. Many people have been living beyond their means, and since the panic of 1890 especially, individual credit has been extended far beyond its normal limits; as a result the whole line of credit has been disturbed, and the slow undermining of the foundation has gradually weakened and finally destroyed many of our noble institutions of trade and commerce. We have been passing through an era of extravagance that has been more pronounced than at perhaps any other period in our history. The credit structure has been reared upon faith and supposition, rather than upon tangible property and financial strength.

The Reverend Charles H. Spurgeon testified:

Something should be known regarding the financial resources and character of each debtor. Information respecting business men can be secured with respective ease, but in the case of professional men, and those living on incomes, the problem is not so simple. Therefore references should be required in all cases, and they should be looked up with great care for the reason that while the first purchase may be small, the account, once opened, may increase in importance without attracting attention. If the customer is buying goods on credit from other sources, enquiry should be made as to whether his payments are satisfactory. Where real estate is owned, some specific data as to its value should be gathered. After the investigation is completed, and all the available information is at hand, a credit limit should be carefully fixed, and beyond this point the account should not be permitted to pass until it is ascertained by further research that the increased line can be safely extended.

A retail credit man should know when to say no, and should have the force of character necessary to say it; moreover, he should make the refusal in a way that will give no offence.

Many people, especially those who are wealthy, are very negligent about paying their personal bills, and tradesmen and professional men are obliged to carry them longer than should be necessary, thus entailing upon them heavy losses of interest and profit.

It is a conceded fact that frequent settlements between debtor and creditor contribute to better profits in all lines of trade; whereas laxity in making credits and collections is the direct cause of a large proportion of the failures of retail merchants throughout the country.

RICH MAN'S PANIC.

It has been truly said that the period covered by the last three years has been the "rich man's panic," and many of the wealthy people have allowed their accounts to run past due. The flagrant abuse of credit and confidence at their hands should be corrected. They think nothing of taking a trip to Europe or out of town, leaving unsettled their accounts with their butcher, grocer and tradespeople generally, who fear to bring the least pressure to bear upon them, as they usually take the greatest offence when asked to meet an obligation that may, perhaps, have been long past due.

I would lay special emphasis upon the importance of retailers rendering their bills promptly, as such a practice will undoubtedly ensure better collections, and will also have the effect of educating their customers as to proper business methods.

I have in my mind a prominent mercantile house in one of the large cities of the United States, which a few years ago became embarrassed, simply because they trusted people from whom they were not able to force collections. Their credits were loosely managed generally. They were also dilatory about sending bills for goods charged, which promoted extravagance among their customers and led the concern into a position from which they were unable to extricate themselves. Their trade was with a class of people supposed to be wealthy and fully able to meet their engagements, but it transpired that they were mistaken in their estimate of their responsibility. Systematic investigation would have revealed this weakness and saved them from ruin.

The drift in the retail line at present seems to be in the direction of closer terms, and it is now generally considered that an account that is not settled in thirty days is not desirable, whereas, years ago, retail merchants carried on their books a great many credits that ranged from six months to a year. In some quarters there is an apparent tendency to do away with the credit system entirely and reduce trade to a cash basis.

COMPETITION IN BUSINESS.

The question of competition in business is one that all departments of trade must meet, and the retailer who grants credit must recognize existing conditions and regulate his prices to meet those offered by dealers who sell for cash. Under these circumstances, unless his credits are made under a safe and well-defined system and his business is conducted on an economical basis, his success will be problematical.

To show the advantages to be derived from conducting business on a cash basis, especially in large transactions, a little article—a silverback hair-brush—owing to competition has been reduced in price to $4; from this price there is a discount of 10 per cent. for cash. The small retailer is generally unable to avail himself of this cash discount, so the brush costs him $4. An order for three thousand of these brushes was recently filled for a large department store at a net cash price of $3. The manufacturer, to be sure, did not make much, but he was able to keep his plant in operation during the dull times, with the certainty of receiving his money, which came to him all at once. The department store could retail these brushes for cash at $3.90 each and make 30 per cent. profit, and yet, you see, the brushes would be sold for less than the cost to the small retailer. They were only able to do this by handling their business on the cash basis.

This system also saves a great deal of time and annoyance to the customer in waiting for change, by making it possible to pay in one sum the bills for a considerable period of time.

SAFETY OF THE CASH MERCHANT.

The merchant who gives credit may do a very extensive business and appear to be enjoying the fruits of prosperity in good times, and he will doubtless succeed in handling a larger volume of trade than the one selling for cash, but when a panic comes and depression sets in, and the incomes of his debtors are depleted or entirely suspended, he will in many instances be forced to the wall, while the cash merchant who did not owe anything and had no one owning him, will continue his business as usual, and will probably make more money twice over than he lost by not selling on credit when times were favorable ; but even if the credit merchant succeeds in weathering the storm, his books will bear unmistakable evidence of financial wrecks left in its wake, which will be painfully apparent when he requires money to meet his maturing obligations and replenish his stock.

Judicious credits are of incalculable benefit ; but I think that in retail lines they should be carefully restricted. It seems to me that the merchant who brings his business nearest a cash basis will eventually find he is the most prosperous.

EGGS IN COOLERS.

An exact statement of the eggs stored in Chicago so far this season cannot be made, for no official figures are given out at the coolers ; but from estimates based upon opinions of buyers and others who put eggs away it can be safely said that stocks are less than they were a year ago at this time. The difference is about 20,000 cases, and the total of eggs now in the coolers here is close to 215,000 cases.

Arrivals this week were liberal. At one of the storage houses a record-breaking day was noted, more eggs having been received than during any other day of the present season.—Chicago Produce.

SUGAR AS A PROMOTER OF MUSCULAR EXERTION.

It is a fact well known to Alpine tourists, says Deutsche Zuckerindustrie, that on difficult climbing excursions an increased desire is felt for the consumption of sweets and sweetened food, and many who never touch bon-bons at home, devour large quantities of them on these tours. It is also frequently remarked how eagerly the guides appropriate any sugar that has been left over, and consume it en route. This use of saccharine substances is often purely instinctive, for even to-day many individuals are still unacquainted with the physiological fact, that the source of our muscular force is not to be sought in the albuminous substances (meat) taken into the system, but in the hydrocarbons (starch, sugar, fat), consumed. At the instigation of the Prussian war office, Schumburg and Zuntz undertook to investigate, by means of an apparatus constructed by Mosse, the question whether the consumption of small quantities of sugar rendered the tired muscles capable of renewed exertion. In order to obtain a practical result, the person who was made the subject of experiment was kept totally ignorant of the object of the experimenters. On one day a sweet liquid was administered containing 30 gr. of sugar, on the next day a similar liquid containing a sufficient amount of saccharine to render it indistinguishable from the other as regarded taste. When a very large amount of muscular work had been performed before the employment of the Mosse apparatus for further labor, it was found that on the days when sugar was administered a distinctly greater quantity of work could be got through than on the days when saccharine was given. The blood had become very poor in sugar in consequence of the severe muscular effort which had previously been gone through, and hence the administration of a comparatively small quantity of sugar had the effect of producing an increased capability of work. The result of the experiments confirms the opinion entertained by a large number of Alpine tourists that in long continued and fatiguing climbs the use of sugar and substances containing sugar is advantageous.

In No. 24 of our 1895 issue, apropos of the pamphlets written by Henri Hirschberg, we advocated the supply of sugar rations to the army, and it appears that the War Office has interested itself in the matter. It would be very advisable that the logical consequences of the favorable results, in increasing the capability of bodily exertion obtained from the use of sugar, should be drawn, and that a regular supply of sugar food should be issued to the soldiers. The introduction of sugar into the army, accustoming the young men to its regular use, would be the means of increasing the demand for sugar among the people generally, and producing a considerable and permanent advance in the consumption.

BALTIMORE TOMATOES.

A Baltimore, Md., broker writes : "It is said that history repeats itself and on that theory 3-lb. standard tomatoes may again sell at 50c. before you and we leave this terrestrial sphere, but there are no signs of it at present. In fact, this remarkable weather is not doing the crops of tomatoes and corn any good, and everybody is complaining about the condition of the tomato crop particularly. The very best that we can do on spot 3-lb. full standard tomatoes is 57½c."

PERPETUAL INJUNCTION

[COPY]

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE

Before COLIN G. SNIDER, ESQ., Local Judge of this Court at Hamilton

THURSDAY, THE 20th DAY OF MAY, A.D. 1897

Between ARCHDALE WILSON & CO., Plaintiffs
And FRANK W. MERRILL, Defendant.

Upon the application of the plaintiffs for an order to continue the Interim Injunction granted herein by Colin G. Snider, Esq., Local Judge in Chambers, on Monday, the 17th day of May, A.D. 1897, upon reading the Notice of Motion to continue the said Injunction and upon hearing what was alleged by Counsel for the Plaintiffs, and Defendant and Counsel agreeing that the said Motion should be turned into a Motion for Judgment,

THIS COURT DOTH ORDER and adjudge that the Defendant be forever restrained from manufacturing, selling or dealing in fly poison prepared in felt, pulp or paper in the shape of a square, circular, pad, octagon, mat, welt or shield, or any form whatever where the felt, pulp or paper is smaller than twelve inches square and weighs more than an eighth of a pound to the square yard, and from using boxes, labels or envelopes such as those heretofore and now used by the said Defendant, or similar in any manner to those used by the Plaintiffs.

And this Court doth further order and adjudge that the Defendant do pay to the Plaintiffs the costs of and incidental to this action forthwith after taxation thereof.

Upon motion of Mr. Thomas Hobson, of Counsel for the Plaintiffs.

By the Court.

S. H. GHENT, Deputy Clerk.

CURRANTS FROM RUSSIA.

ALTHOUGH it has been thought, and apparently with good reason, that the stocks of currants in the consuming countries other than the United Kingdom were only very moderate, it has been proved that holders in some of them could not withstand the temptation to realise which the advance in prices held out to them. Shipments of a more or less important nature have been received of fruit in bags and in barrels from Russia and from Amsterdam, and although the former package is one which has seldom been seen here and the latter is one which has gone entirely out of fashion, the fact that the fruit has been offered at prices considerably below what was demanded for similar quality imported direct from Greece, and in the smaller bulk to which the trade has lately become accustomed, has secured for it a tolerably ready sale. The theory held by some that fruit of very common quality is usually sent to the continental ports is somewhat upset by these arrivals, and although it is true that some of it is more or less inferior, it is also true that other parcels are of exceedingly good quality, and quite equal to the average of the season's shipments to our ports, and distinctly superior to the more recent arrivals. That these shipments have exercised a useful influence there can be but little doubt. There was unquestionably the fear in the minds of those who take at all a broad view of the position that, with the small landed stocks, it was more than possible holders might have driven matters too hard, and, by establishing a higher level of prices than was expedient, have thereby jeopardised the prospects of the new season. Such a course of events would have done infinitely more harm in the future than the good to be obtained by the realization of an extra shilling or two per cwt. upon landed stocks. Under the influence of these arrivals prices of all descriptions are in favor of the buyer.—Produce Markets' Review.

USEFUL RECIPES.

CURE FOR BELLIES IN TIERCES.

Twenty lbs. of salt, coarse; 6 lbs. sugar, coarse, but good (it pays in every respect to use good sugar on all meats), and 1 lb. saltpetre. If packed in other receptacle, the same formula is used, according to the weight packed. The tierces are rolled the first ten days, and overhauled, if in tubs, in the same time. We scarcely need add, fill the tierces with water when packed. When bellies are packed in tubs, of course, make a pickle and pour over the meats. Bellies or backs thus packed will cure in twenty-five to thirty-five days, according to weight. —National Provisioner.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

A Common Error.

I was told of an error this week that grocers often make, and perhaps someone will take warning if it is spoken of here. Every little while some new fancy article is put on the grocery market. Some lady will buy this and serve it up at her five o'clock tea, it will tickle the palates of some of her guests, and immediately the grocer with whom one of these guests deals is asked for this article. Well, he hasn't it in yet, but he can order it. He does order it, but, if a foolish man, he orders a case of it, thinking that because it is new there will soon be a heavy demand for it. But I have heard that nine times out of ten the rest of the case lies on his shelf, and that frequently, if his first customer has bought more than one tin, package, or whatever it may be, he is asked in a week's time to take the unused tins back, for the brand is not the same as Mrs. Smith's was. I hear that it pays far better to go and buy what you want in a large store, and risk the unlikelihood of having a chance to made a heavy sale of it.

Prefers the Credit System.

Most papers advocate the cash system for doing business. For that reason I think it is interesting to hear what arguments the men who still stick to the credit system have to advance in support of their action. In conversation with a grocer, who is in favor of the old system, this week he gave me his reasons for not being up-to-date in this particular instance. "In adopting a cash system," he says, "first of all, some valuable trade is cut off. The merchant must then attempt to gain trade to make up for this loss. He immediately looks for bargains. As soon as a merchant introduces the bargain scheme into his business he gives his business a new reputation. He is soon reported selling cheap goods and his trade vanishes." "Where," he says, "is the man who has succeeded in the cash business who has had as his competitor a man using the credit system? We have yearly big losses, but we are making money, which I don't think we would be doing if we abandoned our old system. We let good alone."

Signs.

A distinguishing mark of a modern business, carried on by a shrewd, reliable and up-to-date merchant, from that managed by a man who is behind the times is the display of advertising cards outside of the store or on the delivery wagons. Some grocers take the bottoms of pasteboard boxes and write the prices of their goods on them. These signs have a very bad appearance. They remind a person of the signs of Italian peddlers in the cities. It doesn't cost much to have the signs painted on good canvas or card-board, and these present a far more attractive appearance. Attention should also be given to signs of short sentences. I noticed a couple this week that struck me as being worth mention. On a wagon was the printed notice, "Our wagons go past your door," It is mild and not sentimental, but very expressive. In a window I saw the sign, "There has been a crash in prices, come in and see the ruins." I thought the metaphor was very striking. These two examples illustrate a couple of the best styles of signs.

Schemes.

During the last year many schemes for increasing business have had their patronage among the retail grocers. These all, of course, have been inaugurated to make it appear that the merchant who takes hold of the scheme is giving a certain discount off the price of his goods which the competing merchant, who cannot obtain the use of the scheme, does not. But lately a noticable reaction has set in, and this week I enquired for the opinions of the grocers regarding these schemes. All to whom I spoke, and I visited quite a few, were unanimous in their convictions that the schemes were entirely useless. They claim first of all that grocers cannot afford to give any discount, and that if they did so they would soon be bankrupt. If the scheme is used, therefore, it is necessary to raise the price of the goods and fool the people. Well, of course, there is nothing more noticeable to customers than the rise in price of an article, and not even the advantage of the scheme will hold them when they see the rise. The merchants say, too, that there is a certain class of customers who hold themselves aloof from such schemes and who, if they find out that their grocer is resorting to petty tactics, will immediately withdraw their custom. So it can be seen that, both theoretically and practically—for several merchants are now rueing the day that it was started in their store—the schemes now abroad will not accomplish their intended purpose. After all, isn't it a poor way to work up a business? Are such tactics liable to work a merchant's way into his customers' confidence? It appears, too, that the schemes tend to stir up a rivalry between neighboring merchants who are in the same trade. The originators offer as an inducement to the merchant to handle their schemes that he will be the only one in his line in that neighborhood who will enjoy its privileges. Now this will not arouse a friendly feeling between those merchants, and for mutual benefit in other lines this friendliness is necessary. To form associations to obtain fair prices or to close places of business early this rivalry must be prevented.

RAMBLER.

PARISIAN HAM SAUSAGE.

FOR 100 lbs. use one-third beef and two-thirds pork ham or shoulder moderately fat, and chop each separately coarsely, adding 3⅓ lbs. fine salt, 5¼ oz. cane sugar, 2⅜ oz. powdered potass. saltpetre. Mix one-third of the spicing with the beef, two-thirds with the pork, and keep each kind of meat separate; in summer for twelve hours in a cool room, in winter two or three days at about 72 deg. F. to give it a good red color. Then first chop the beef fine, add the pork and also the spicing before chopping both up together. Use 5 oz. white pepper, ground; 1 4-10 oz. fine ginger, ground; 1 4-10 oz. mace; 1¾ oz. finely ground allspice, sifted; 10 pieces of leek finely ground up with salt.

Mix the spice in a suitable dish, add to the whole mass, and now chop (continually mixing the mass) to the size of a pea, so that the whole assumes a marbled appearance. Now mix a little water to it, if required, and break open the mass several times from right to left. If the meat was not very firm and did not work well, add some 20 or 25 lbs. of meat. Fill the mass into veal bladders or in moderately wide beef guts or middle guts. Stuff airtight and firm. When stuffed allow to hang in the air in summer for six hours at about 70 degs. to give it a lasting color.

Now smoke in regular smoke at 77° F. until cherry red; boil immediately after smoking, using the water at seething point. The bladders take from three-quarters to one hour to scald, while the beef guts should boil gently for one and one-half to one and three-quarter hours, avoiding agitation as much as possible, as agitation would tear the sausage. This sausage should, therefore, never be boiled with others requiring a a stronger scalding. Always boil it alone. When cold, this sausage usually shows wrinkles; to remove them dip the sausage for ten seconds in seething water; take out and wipe dry with a cloth. Finally it is rubbed with a little olive oil to make it glossy. This sausage is very much liked and can be manufactured even at summer heat.—National Provisioner.

CALIFORNIA PRUNES.

The California Fruit Grower says in its issue of June 19th, regarding prunes: "Crop of 1896 has gone out clean so far as this state is concerned, and our reports from the east indicate light stocks at all points. A visit to the large producing sections shows the growing crop to be in a very satisfactory condition. The fruit is well advanced, and there is no doubt but that the output will be in excess of last season. Quotations are nominal in the absence of transactions."

POOR BOYS IN BUSINESS.

"OUR experience is that poor boys do better than the sons of well-to-do men; they appreciate their situation and a slight raise in wages better." Such, says American Grocer, was the remark of a well-known grocery jobber, one of the many who have worked their way from office boy to a partnership. It is often the case that boys trained in the public schools, accustomed to scanty fare and a home with the bare necessities of life, frequently distance those educated at a private school and who live luxuriously and enjoy the best social advantages. The latter lack that appreciation of the necessity of hard work and faithful service as a means of promotion that the poor boy entertains. This is not so much the fault of the well-to-do lad as it is to the wrong sort of training. Their parents seek to save their boys from hard labor or the menial work which they did when making a start in life, and therefore do not properly estimate the value of work nor pay that strict attention to details which is necessary to success in life.

Rich men's boys that have been well educated and correctly trained, we believe, stand a better chance in the race of life than the poor boy with ordinary advantages and well trained. We have an instance of this from the life of the late Theodore A. Havemeyer, whose father was many times a millionaire and whose family connections were with the oldest and best families in New York. Mr. Havemeyer often told, with pardonable pride, the story of his boyhood life. In alluding to the early training of himself and his brother Henry, he said:

"We were taught our business thoroughly. After leaving school I was sent to Europe to learn all I could concerning the business I was to follow for a livelihood. On my return, in 1859, I went into my uncle's refinery in Vandeveer street, and from there I went into the business in Williamsburg. I made up my mind from the start that whatever was worth doing at all was worth doing well. For twenty-five years I was at work at 7 a.m., and did not leave the refinery until 6 p.m. I never went to bed at night until I had gone through the whole establishment. Many times I worked all the night long. While I was a single man my expenses never exceeded $50 a month. Pilot bread and cheese made for me many a meal. A canvas suit was my daily apparel, and there was no part of the business at which I and my brothers did not work; no part we considered too dirty or too arduous or beneath us. One prerequisite in any business is a thorough mastery of its principles and a knowledge of all its details. There was no part of the manufactory or of the refining business with which we were not thoroughly familiar. I know how to fire up under the boilers; how to run the engines. I built an engine once myself. I knew how to refine sugar, and how to market it. I knew what was a fair day's work for a man, because I worked alongside of the men. Another requisite is application and alertness. We were always on the lookout for some better way to do a thing, and our success is largely owing to invention brought out by observation and experiment. Another need is integrity and promptness in business dealings. We always paid cash as we went along, but, if one has to give notes, they should be promptly met. We filled our orders always according to agreement Another rule is to keep away from liquor, and we always followed it. The practice of these rules, combined with frugality and ordinary faculties of mind, will bring commercial success to any man."

How much truth is contained in the above simple outline of a start in life? The boy that is afraid of continuous hard work, and who tires of detail, will never make much of a place for himself. One of the hardest-working men in one of the largest firms in this city won a partnership because he put his whole soul into the business. When he began with the firm he was told to be on hand at 8 a.m. Later, the senior partner asked if it would inconvenience him to be at the store at 7 a.m. and look after a parcular branch of the business. Quickly and interestedly he replied, "Not at all." And he was faithful to the new trust. Again, he was asked if he could just as well get down at 6 a.m., and once more with cheerful manner said that he would. And he did; and not only that—he did his level best at every point and demonstrated that he loved work, was not afraid of details, and could be relied upon at any place in the great business. Boys of that stamp are sure to win a partnership, whether the sons of poor or rich men. Successful business men owe it to their sons to give them the right sort of training; to teach them to honor toil and to know the value of details and dollars.

COMPETITION.

Competition is dreaded by some merchants. Twenty years ago, remarks Merchants' Review, a tumble-down, dingy and cramped grocery store stood on a certain corner in the suburbs of this city. There was not another store within half a mile. There was absolutely no competition in sight, and yet the grocer did not appear to be making money, for his place was such, in appearance, that many people would have walked more than half a mile rather than purchase there. Since then, competition has come to that lone grocery store, which, of course, is lone no longer, it being surrounded by blocks of residences. The store itself has been remodelled, enlarged, cleaned and brightened, and to-day, with an up-to-date stock, invites the most fastidious trade. The proprietor is evidently making money, but he is anything but a victim of competition, although competition forced him to at last move with the times.

MR. GRAHAM TAKES A WIFE.

Last Saturday morning at 6 o'clock Mr. C. P. Graham, the jovial manager of the Toronto branch of the Edwardsburg Starch Co., took unto himself a wife in the person of Miss Maggie Ross, daughter of Mr. S. Ross, 49 Howard street, Toronto. The ceremony was performed in Our Lady of Lourdes Church by Rev. Father Jeffcott, of Whitby, assisted by Rev. Father Walsh. It was a quiet affair, only the immediate relatives being present. The bridesmaid was Miss Jennie Ross, sister of the bride, while the groom had the aid of Mr. A. W. Cavanagh.

After partaking of a sumptuous breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, the happy couple left on the 9 o'clock train on a trip to the eastern provinces, and will probably travel for some weeks. When they do return we expect to see Mr. Graham's ever-present smile considerably broadened.

It pleases THE CANADIAN GROCER to extend its congratulations.

GROCERS' RESPONSIBILITY FOR TRASH.

There are, roughly speaking, two kinds of grocers—one, the kind who buy goods on their looks and try them first upon the public; and second, the kind that buy for intrinsic qualities and test the goods themselves. We suspect that it is owing to the supineness of the former class of dealers that the adulteration of food has gained so much headway, and that so much trash in tin cans is yearly put up.

There ought, of course, to be no such being as a grocer who buys goods because they look pretty and does not sample them. It is a fraud upon the public to inveigle them into a store that is conducted upon such principles. Consumers have at least the right to demand that the people who seek their patronage shall take pains to learn whether the apparently edible articles in their stock are fit to eat or not. The dealer who would object to the proposition is clearly unfitted for the business.

But how can one account for all the trash in grocery stores, except upon the assumption that a large number of dealers are—we will not say, unfitted—but not well equipped, for the management of a grocery store?—Merchants' Review.

TRADE CHAT.

THE local banks in Hamilton have decided to allow only 3 per cent. interest on deposits after July 15th.

Mr. Robert Heaman, a London dairyman, was struck and killed while driving across the Grand Trunk track.

About 80,000 pounds of tea brought to San Francisco since the first of May was not allowed to be imported, because it did not come up to the standard of quality established by the Secretary of the Treasury. The importers are protesting.

The following are the officers of the St. Thomas Board of Trade: President, John Campbell; vice-president, John Farley; secretary-treasurer, J. W. Stewart. Council, R. Potts, W. H. King, J. Mickleborough, A. E. Wallace, J. H. Still and F. M. Griffin. Auditors, S. H. Palmer, J. McAdam.

So great has been the trade in fruit from the St. Catharines and Niagara districts to Toronto, the Dominion Express Company have decided to establish a fruit market on the Milloy wharf. With that end in view work has been commenced on the east shed in making it suitable. The company also intend to have a siding laid from Esplanade street to the wharf so that cars can be loaded or unloaded without any difficulty or loss of time.

An agitation is starting throughout the county against hawkers and pedlars who sell their wares from house to house, working off shoddy goods at low prices undermining the trade of the old reliable business men. The matter was discussed at the County Council last week when the general opinion was that a high license should be charged hawkers and pedlars. The matter will be definitely dealt with shortly.—Lindsay Post.

FROM COUNTER TO BENCH.

It seems like a long step—from a grocery store to a magistrate's bench—but Judge Alfred C. Steers, of Brooklyn, took that same step a few years ago. Like his grandfather and his father, Judge Steers was bred to the grocery business, and he also had several brothers who received a grocer's training and later had stores of their own. While in the grocery business the judge joined the National Guard and held high rank therein. At about the same time he became a member of the Brooklyn United Retail Grocers' Association, and was soon elected first vice-president of the organization. His elevation to the bench of the police justices came as a natural consequence of the consolidation of Flatbush with Brooklyn, he having succeeded his uncle as a justice of the peace in the town a few months previously. We have watched the career of Judge Steers with great interest for years, and believe that still higher honors are in store for him. At the same time we think he has already done pretty well for a dyed-in-the-wool grocer.—Merchants' Review.

NEW CROP VALENCIAS.

The grocery trade will in all probability be in receipt of the first shipment of Valencia raisins much earlier than usual, a cable received in Toronto this week intimating to this effect.

It is expected that the first shipments will be made from Denia about the last week in July, and that the fruit will be on this market early in September.

From present indications the quality of the fruit will be good, but these may be all upset by rain during the drying season.

PUSHING JAPAN TEA.

Among the passengers on the steamer Gaelic, which arrived at San Francisco on Monday, was a party of Japanese who have come to this continent in the interest of the Japanese Government and the Central Tea Association of Japan, to establish bureaus for the regulation of the tea business in Canada and the United States.

There is now a bureau in existence in New York and other bureaus will be established at Chicago, Toronto and Montreal. Mr. Mizutany, one of the party, will be installed in charge of the Chicago bureau for a period of seven years.

The increase in the consumption of Indian and Ceylon tea which has taken place in Canada and the Unlted States is stirring up the people of Japan to look more closely after their own teas in these countries, and in addition to sending in envoys the Japanese Government has decided to spend the sum of $750,000 in advertising its teas in Canada and the United States.

HAMILTON BOARD OF TRADE.

At a meeting of the Hamilton Board of Trade on Monday, the following officers were nominated: For president, James Turnbull, Wm. Vallance and George Rutherford; for vice-president, W. F. Findlay; for secretary-treasurer, C. R. Smith; for council (eight members), John Knox, W. H. Gillard, Geo. Roach, Alex. Turner, J. J. Mason, Senator Sanford, T. H. Macpherson, M.P., and W. A. Robinson; for Board of Arbitration (four members), B. E. Charlton, J. M. Lottridge, R. A. Lucas, W. C. Breckenridge and W. H. Lambe; for auditors, John Bell and F. H. Lamb. Mr. Robinson was renominated as president, but declined, and Mr. Findlay also declined that honor. Matthew Leggatt and Wm. Hendrie were also nominated, but declined. The elections will take place by ballot next Monday.

MOME AGAIN.

Mr. Henry C. Boomer, formerly of Warren Bros. & Boomer, wholesale grocers, Toronto, returned home on Friday last after spending about thirteen months in various parts of Europe. He was warmly greeted by his friends on "the street."

Mr. Boomer told THE CANADIAN GROCER that he noticed a marked change in the sentiment in England towards Canada since he first went over there. A short time ago it was only The Times that paid any attention to Canadian affairs, while now nearly all the daily papers were doing so to a more or less extent.

DRIED POTATOES.

The opening up of a demand for potatoes, peeled, sliced and dried, like apples, promises to give a fresh impetus to potato cultivation, as decay will be prevented and freight cost lessened, remarks a contemporary. The potatoes are peeled and sliced by machinery, soaked twenty minutes in strong brine, drained and dried at a temperature of about 194 degrees. Before using the slices are soaked from twelve to fifteen hours, and then have all the freshness and flavor of new potatoes.

PROFIT ON TEA IN ENGLAND.

But even twopence (4c.) or threepence (6c.) per lb. profit on the sale of tea by grocers at the present day is by no means common. The public obtain much better value from the trade than that would imply. It would be nearer the truth to say that grocers sell tons of tea at only one halfpenny (1c.) per lb. profit, and that when they get as high as twopence (4c.) per lb. they consider that they are doing good business.—Grocers' Gazette, London, Eng.

A WARM COMFORTER.

How rich in color is her cheek,
And I have made it so,
For when with mine her lips I seek
It takes an extra glow.
Her mouth is large; it is not zest
That when 'tis full I like it best.

With her alone, when we commune
I spend a lot of time;
'Tis she can keep my heart in tune
And oft inspire a rhyme
Of comforters she's the true type,
My warmest friend—my meerschaum pipe.

REMEDY FOR TARIFF BUNGLING.

BUSINESS men in Canada are with good reason dissatisfied with tariff revisions. It does not matter whether it be Conservative or Liberal Government, a more or less bungle is made of the job. The fault, however, is due more to the lack of qualification in the framers of tariffs than to the presence of ulterior motives or dishonesty.

Practical acquaintanceship with the articles covered by a Customs tariff supplemented by business commonsense are the essentials which those who frame tariffs should possess.

But these are essentials which the framers of the present tariff, like those who framed the tariff which preceded it, did not possess, or at least only to a small degree indeed. And because they were professors of law, medicine or of politics they could not be expected to possess the desideratum.

The man of law, of medicine or of ward politics can no more be expected to be an expert in purely business matters than can the man of business be expected to be an expert in law or medicine. Although we do not, however, go to the man of business for law or medicine, we have got into the absurd habit of relegating to lawyers, doctors and other types of professional men the transaction of matters purely within the sphere of business ethics.

While we in Canada have much cause for complaint in regard to tariff tinkering, the people in the United States have more. There, not only is incompetence exhibited, but positive malfeasance of office as well, on the part of those who have the framing of the tariff laws, while to these is added months of unnecessary time spent in dilly-dallying with the tariff to the detriment of the trade of the country.

For a remedy for this state of affairs the business organizations of the United States have long been searching, and various schemes have been suggested. At this very moment there is a bill before the House of Representatives at Washington having this object in view.

This bill provides for the appointment of seven commissioners, who shall be invested with power, under certain conditions, to suspend, with the written approval of the President of the United States, any part or the whole of any tax upon imports or of any internal tax. The terms of office of the commissioners are to range from three to twenty-one years. The salary is to be $7,500 per year except in the case of the chief commissioner, and his remuneration it is proposed to make $8,000. These commissioners are to be appointed by the President subject to the approval of the Senate.

The bill has come in for a great deal of adverse criticism and it is not likely to be adopted by Congress. The New York Journal of Commerce heartily agrees with the promoter of the bill "that the people are tired of tariff legislation," but terms the scheme preposterous. Its objection is chiefly two-fold, namely, "that it is a usurpation of the legislative rights of Congress and is therefore unconstitutional, and that President McKinley could be depended upon to appoint only protectionists."

We can, however, afford to allow our cousins to the south to discuss the pros and cons for themselves. All we need to concern ourselves about is as to how a similar scheme would apply to Canada.

There are times when tariff revision is necessary. The tariff of 1894 stood in need of revision. But frequent revisions of the tariff should not be necessary. They unsettle trade. But just as often as a thing is badly done, just as often has it got to be done over again. And that is why the people of Canada, like those in the United States, are heartily tired of tariff legislation.

But while we are heartily tired of the manner in which our tariff has again and again been revised, yet there is a wrong as well as a right way in going about getting a remedy.

And were we to go about the matter after the similitude of the promoters of the bill now before the United States House of Representatives we would be wrong, simply in the first place because we would be spending our strength for naught: The duty of regulating the trade and commerce of the Dominion has been delegated to Parliament by the constitution.

What the business men of the country can do, however, is to insist that the duty of framing any and every tariff shall be delegated to a board of business men representing the various existing branches concerned.

Such a board would be guided by practical experience, not by theory. The members of the board could be nominated by the various boards of trade in the country, and appointed by the Governor-in-Council. This would reduce to a minimum the possibility of partisans being appointed thereto. The life of the board might extend from five to ten years if need be, and in addition to its duties as a tariff framer it might act as a sort of advisory board to the Controller of Customs. It need not be an expensive institution, for except when actually engaged in an extensive revision of the tariff, it would be necessary to hold but a very few meetings in a year. The remuneration might be so much per diem.

Of course, in the work of revising the tariff whatever the board did would have to be passed upon by Parliament, but the most ardent partisan would hesitate before daring to interfere with that which the board of experts had set up.

It is to be hoped that at the next session of Parliament the Government will give this matter its serious consideration.

CALIFORNIA APRICOTS LOWER.

The first offers of new crop California evaporated apricots this season were made at Montreal this week, choice "Royal" goods being quoted at a cost laid down of 9¼c. This is much lower than last season, when prices were from 2 to 2½c. higher.

The goods offered will be ready to ship the first week in July, and the low price is due to an exceptionally good crop. In fact, all lines of California fruit promise to be a large crop this year, and although no prices can yet be quoted on other lines the general expectation is for a lower price on this account.

SPELL OUT THE WORD "LIMITED."

THERE has been quite a stir among the limited liability companies operating under the Ontario "Act Respecting the Incorporation and Regulation of Joint Stock Companies" in consequence of the amendments made thereto at the last session of the Legislature. And it is chiefly due to the regulations governing the word "limited."

As is well known, the practice heretofore with most joint stock companies has been to abbreviate the word "limited" wherever it occurred.

Under the amended law this word must be spelt in full. Clause 22 of the Act which governs this matter reads as follows:

Every company shall have painted or affixed its name, with the unabbreviated word "limited" as the last word thereof, on the outside of every office, or place in which the business of the company is carried on, in a conspicuous position, in letters easily legible; and shall have its name with the said unabbreviated word in legible characters in all notices, advertisements and other official publications of the company, and in all bills of exchange promissory notes, indorsements, cheques and orders for money or goods purporting to be signed by or on behalf of such company, and in all bills of parcels, invoices and receipts of the company.

Violation of this clause entails a penalty of $20 per day on the company while such word "limited" is abbreviated, and also a like penalty on every director and manager "who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default."

But the poor director, manager, or officer of the company who uses or authorizes on any document whatsoever the use of any seal of the company in which the word "limited" is abbreviated shall incur a penalty of $200, and shall furthermore be personally liable to the holder of the bill of exchange, promissory note, cheque or order for money or goods for the amount thereof unless the same is duly paid by the company.

This is a pretty strict law, and it is not surprising that so many should be running to cover. The rubber stamp manufacturers in Toronto have been extremely busy during the last few weeks making stamps with the word "limited" upon them, and a good many documents do not present the neat appearance they formerly did, while joint stock companies with their names on signs or delivery wagons are either painting the word which is causing so much consternation out in full or having printed slips of paper pasted thereon.

It would be well for joint stock companies to see that their position in regard to the word "limited" is secure, for already some companies have been brought into court.

Anything in business that will not stand the search light should be buried—or cremated.

SALMON CONTRACTS IN MONTREAL

EXTENSIVE contracts for the future delivery of new pack canned salmon have been put through at Montreal during the past eight or ten days.

Altogether fully 14,500 packages have been placed. Most of the sales were made on the basis of $3.75 per case f.o.b. Coast, Horseshoe brand furnishing the bulk of the sales, but on Monday of this week another brand was offered for $3.50 f.o.b., and some 500 cases were taken at that price.

It is claimed that a good proportion of the above quantity of stock has been bought on speculation by a commission man who believes that the goods are a purchase at the price.

A well-known wholesaler, discussing the transactions with THE CANADIAN GROCER, admitted that the price was exceptionally low, but at the same time expressed the opinion that the future would show that the goods had cost all they were worth.

"I myself," said he, "have bought quite a fair quantity, and, of course, am asking everything possible in the way of guarantees. At the same time I will not be disappointed if goods that have been bought low down do not grade very high. At any rate, whenever there has been such a difference between the ruling price of two seasons, as at present, on any line of canned goods, I have generally found that a cheap season means an increase in the number of grades compared with a season of higher cost."

Business should be a pleasure to every man engaged in it; but it should also be a pleasure for him to get out of it for a week or two every year.

THE CURRANT MARKET.

Currants in Canada are getting scarce, and they are likely to remain so until the new crop arrives. As, however, the regulation of the Greek Government forbidding the exportation of new crop fruit until Aug. 28 has been withdrawn, shipments will probably take place fifteen or sixteen days earlier than last year.

The new crop, according to recent advices, promises to be larger than in 1896. There are signs of the peronosporos, but up to about the middle of the present month little damage had been done to the currant vines, although the wine vines had been severely injured.

Mail advices, under date of Patras, June 11, stated that stocks were then much reduced, and it was estimated that after the steamship Lesbrian had been loaded for Liverpool only about 1,500 tons of fruit would remain in Greece, while almost all that quantity was of poor quality.

An agreeable clerk is always agreeable even to a disagreeable customer.

THE LOW PRICE OF MOLASSES.

A COMPARISON of the position of Barbadoes molasses this year with last brings out forcibly the low price at which the goods are selling this year.

Last year the price at Islands, after opening at 13c. first cost, reacted from 2 to 3c., and the bulk of the early Canadian imports were made at a first cost of 10 to 11c.

This year the first cost has ruled around 6c. or 5c. below last year.

Last summer molasses cost 26½c. laid down on the wharf in Montreal. This summer it has been freely offered at 20 to 21c.

It is not surprising that these low prices have induced heavy buying by the Montreal sugar refiners, whose purchases so far run all the way from 7,000 to 8,000 puncheons, at a range of 20 to 21c. Montreal.

The quality of this season's imports also, as pointed out in a previous issue, has averaged much higher than usual. This has been another incentive to the refiners. Their molasses tests at 56 degrees and only costs 20c., which makes it a profitable raw product for yellow sugar into which the molasses will be manufactured.

This purchasing by the refiners has given the market a better tone, meaning, as it does, a considerable quantity of stock removed from the ordinary channels of consumption.

Late cable advices from the Islands also note a steadier feeling, and many holders believe the bottom has been touched. As a result they have stored their lots, believing that the present low prices cannot hold.

A VISITOR FROM CHILLIWACK.

MR. J. H. ASHWELL, of the firm of Ashwell & Sons, general merchants, Chilliwack, B.C., spent the latter part of last week in Toronto. Mr. Ashwell is a British Columbian born and bred. This is his first trip to Eastern Canada, and he proposes to make good use of it. Like a sensible man he is well covering the ground. On his way down he has taken in the Kootenay country, Winnipeg, Edmonton and other intervening points of interest. It took him about a month to do this. From Toronto he went to Montreal, and from there he goes to Quebec, St. John, Halifax, Prince Edward Island, Boston, New York. He will come back into Canada again via Niagara Falls.

"The trade outlook in our part of the country," he said in conversation, "is splendid. There is now no chance of a flood, and the outlook is good for a splendid crop of everything."

"Fruits as well as cereals?"

"Yes. We shall have fruit to ship, and one of my objects in stopping over at Winnipeg was to make arrangements for shipping fruit, principally plums, there."

Speaking of the character of the farming in the vicinity of Chilliwack he said it was largely mixed, while that part of the country itself was one of the best in the Dominion, and extended about twenty-two miles with a breadth of about six miles. "I have seen nothing to beat it down this way," he said, with some pride.

Chilliwack being on the Fraser River, I queried Mr. Ashwell regarding the prospects of the coming pack.

"The prospects," he replied, "are for a large pack, this being the big-run year."

Speaking of the lumber trade Mr. Ashwell said the local mills were busily employed, and were engaged in shipping a good deal of stuff to the mining regions.

In the immediate vicinity of Chilliwack there are no mining oprations going on. The nearest is at Harrison Lake, some twenty-five miles distant. "As these mines become developed," explained Mr. Ashwell, "business men in Chilliwack expect to derive a great deal of benefit from them."

Mr. Ashwell is a strong advocate of the building of a railroad through Crow's Nest Pass and on to the Coast. "It will be a good thing for our town," he declared, "for the railway must pass through it before it connects with the main line of the C.P.R."

Mr. Ashwell's father arrived in Toronto from England thirty-two years ago, and is now engaged in farming near Chilliwack. The business now known as Ashwell & Sons was started about twenty-two years ago.

Some of the sugar refiners in the United States have decided to roast coffee with a view to "roasting" the coffee men, with whom they are not on very good terms just now.

TORONTO COFFEE & SPICE CO.

A MEETING of the creditors of the Toronto Coffee & Spice Co., Limited, was held on Monday afternoon in the office of Mr. E. R. C. Clarkson. There was a large attendance of creditors, some thirty-five being present.

The statement presented showed direct liabilities of $12,197.18, indirect of $1,244.67, secured of $187.44, and preferred $940, a total of $14,569.26. The assets were placed at $12,478 52, leaving a nominal deficit of $2,080.74. The following is a statement of the assets in detail :

Merchandise, as per stock sheets—
Coffee, spices, extracts	$4,466 22
Labels, etc.	1 32 53
Pepper, "warehoused"	205 70
Surplus over bank's claim	490 23
Hypothecated plant—
Machinery and utensils	2,628 64
		$9,119 32
Fittings—
Office and warehouse furniture		79 50
Machinery—
Not in present use		275 00
Book accounts—
Good	2,278 81
Doubtful, $1.028.79 at 25 per cent.	257 20
Bad, $1,589
Bills receivable—
Good	42 00
Doubtful, $741.40 at 25 per cent	185 35
		2,763 36
Cash—
In trust, Bank of Hamilton		241 34
		$12 478 52

It is obvious that if the assets were placed under the hammer they would realize a great deal less than what they are computed at in the above statement. The $1,328 worth of labels, for instance, would practically realize nothing.

The most interesting feature in the statement, as far as the liabilities are concerned, is the indebtedness of $3,286.98 to bicycle and carriage firms for goods which the company had secured for its various gift enterprises. The firms thus interested were: Hyslop Bros., $1,215.40; H. A. Lozier & Co., $480; New Barnes Cycle Co., $238.88; W. Gray & Sons, $734; Canada Carriage Co., $518.70. It will thus be observed that 25 per cent. of the direct liabilities is to these firms.

During the discussion it transpired that all the stock of the company had been paid up except to the amount of $956. This was held by Mr. Watson and his mother and sister, but none of the subscribers were financially able to pay for the stock for which they had subscribed.

It also transpired that writs had been issued against the company by the Cowan Co., Limited, the Macdonald Manufacturing Co. and the Canada Carriage Co. The indebtedness to these concerns is $264.20, $208.28 and $518.70 respectively. And in consequence of these writs some of the creditors thought an immediate assignment should be made, but after some demurring those in whose interest the writs had been issued agreed to stay proceedings until a committee had examined the estate. These were appointed the committee : Mr. Cowan, of the Cowan Co., Limited; Mr. Urquhart, of Hyslop Bros.; Mr. J. Eby, of the Eby, Blain Co., Limited; Mr. Thomas, of H. A. Lozier & Co., and Mr. Lydiatt, of the Sydenham Glass Co. The committee will report at a meeting to be called by Mr. Clarkson probably on Monday next.

The three active members of the company, Messrs. Suydam, Roberts and Watson, were present, but none were prepared to make an offer. Mr. Suydam, however, stated that he was consulting his friends and would probably be in a position to make an offer at the next meeting of the creditors.

ALL CURRANTS ARE DUTIABLE.

Importers of currants into the United States who are endeavoring to obtain a ruling from their Customs officials to the effect that under the Wilson tariff all currants are free except those grown on the Island of Zante have had another set back. It seems that Zante currants are first being shipped to Patras, Greece, to escape the duty.

The term "Zante" is generally applied to currants coming from Greece, and the importers are attempting to have it applied only to the currants that come from the Island of Zante. The Board of General Appraisers first gave their ruling in favor of the importers, but have recently reversed it, and declared all currants dutiable. The decision will be appealed.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, June 30, 1897.

GROCERIES.

WHILE there is no great activity to be noted in any one line, business, generally speaking, is in a rather better condition than it was a week ago. The most interesting feature is sugar, and this is due to a decline of ⅛c. per lb., which took place shortly after we went to press last week. This has led to a little better business. Canned salmon is in rather an unsettled condition for future delivery. Canned tomatoes and peas continue strong, although even in regard to tomatoes there appears to be some cutting in price. Coffees are in much about the same condition as a week ago. Syrups and molasses are quiet. Teas are quiet, although a little more interest is being taken in Japans of new season's growth. A good business in pepper has been done during the last week or two, but the spice market generally is quiet. Currants on spot are scarce, with the demand good. There has been a little more doing in California muscatel raisins. The demand for chewing tobacco made from Canadian grown leaf exceeds the supply, and it is expected that prices will advance shortly. Some of the wholesale houses state that they are now selling seven plugs of chewing tobacco made from Canadian leaf to three plugs made from imported leaf.

CANNED GOODS.

The feeling in regard to canned salmon is somewhat unsettled in regard to futures and not much business appears to be doing. Orders seem, however, to have been pretty well placed for the leading standard brands. Sales of second-grade sockeye are reported at $3.35 f.o.b. on the Coast for future delivery. A uniform price now exists among the jobbers on "Horseshoe" salmon, both in regard to spot goods and to goods for future delivery. Canned tomatoes are being firmly held by the packers, but some of the wholesalers appear to be selling below what it would cost them to replenish their stocks. A little more cheap corn has been passing from first to second hands at 45c. per dozen. We quote: Tomatoes, 70 to 80c.; corn, 50 to 75c.; peas, 75 to 85c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.65 to $1.95, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $2 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 70 to 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $2.25; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; cohoes, $1.10 to $1.25; canned mackerel, $1.20 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.70; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.30; 2's, $2.25 to $2.40; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

Latest mail advices from London report that the East Indian crop of coffee is small this year owing to the drought, while the crop now growing promises to be still smaller. Locally the market is quiet and prices unchanged. Jobbers quote green in bags as follows: Rio, 13½ to 15½c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

This being between the seasons as far as syrups are concerned, there is naturally little or nothing doing. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

Molasses is in much about the same uninteresting condition as a week ago. We quote: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGAR.

Shortly after we went to press last week the Canadian refiners reduced prices ⅛c. per lb. on both granulated and yellows. Jobbers' prices, however, as far as the city trade is concerned, are unchanged, except on yellows. Prices in the country are of course open. Since the reduction there has been a slightly improved demand, although the refiners are selling little else but yellow sugars, jobbers still drawing their supplies of granulated from stocks held in speculators' hands. Local wholesalers' quotations are: Granulated — St. Lawrence and Redpath's, 4 7-16c. for single barrel lots and 4⅜c. for 5-barrel lots; Acadia, 4⅜c. for single barrel lots, and 4 5-16c. for 5-barrel lots; yellows, 3½ to 4⅛c. per lb.; German granulated, in 100-lb. sacks, 4⅛ to 4¼c. per lb.; Demerara crystals, 3⅞c.

SPICES.

Advices from the primary markets report ginger low and prospects favor higher prices. A fairly good business has been done in pepper from first to second hands. Pepper is slightly easier in the outside markets. We quote as follows: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 10c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 17c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 14 to 18c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

Nothing new has transpired during the week. We quote as follows: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 18 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

The conditions are much as before both in regard to business and prices. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½c.

TEAS.

The decline of prices in Japan tea is leading to a little more business on Canadian account. A cable received in Toronto this week from Japan stated that orders were being taken at last year's limit. This is particularly interesting in view of the fact that prices a few weeks ago were about 5c. per lb. above last year's figures. During the week there has been a little business doing in India, Ceylon and green teas, chiefly mediums, held in London, England, but, generally speaking, the market has ruled quiet. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

Currants are scarce on spot and prices are firm. We quote: Provincials, 5¼c. in bbls.; ditto, half-bbls., 5⅜c.; fine Filiatras, in bbls., 5½c.; do., half-bbls., 5⅝c.; Patras, 5¾ to 6c. in bbls., 5¾ to 6c. in half-bbls., and 5¾ to 6c. in cases; Vostizzas, cases, 7 to 8c.

Cables received this week from W. Rogers & Co., Denia, Spain, report crop prospects for Valencia raisins good. The fruit will be ready for shipment early, namely about the last week in July. It will probably be on the Canadian market about September. We quote: Off-stalk, 4½c.; fine off-stalk, 5½ to 6c.; selected, 6 to 6½c.; layers, 6½ to 7c.

A better demand is being experienced for California loose muscatel raisins, and stocks in first hands are about cleaned up. We quote: 3-crown, 7¼c.; 4-crown, 8 to 8¼c.

Figs are dull and unchanged. We quote: 10 oz., 7½c.; 10 lb., 9 to 10c.; 18 lb., 10 to

Dates are quiet and unchanged. We quote: 5½ to 6c. for Hallowee and 5 to 5¼c. for Kadrowee.

California evaporated fruits are experiencing a better demand in Canada than in the United States. Griffin & Skelly advise their Toronto agent that enquiries from the Eastern States for evaporated peaches are coming in faster than they can fill them. We quote: Peaches, 7 to 10½c. per lb., according to quality; apricots, 6½ to 15c.; pears, 5½ to 10½c.; egg plums, 5½ to 11c.; silver prunes, 8½ to 13½c.

Stocks of California prunes held in Canada are about exhausted and it is said there will be no further shipments here this season. We quote as follows: Bosnias, U's (110 to 113 half kilo), 6 to 6½c.; C's (85 to 90 half kilo), 7 to 7½c. per lb. California, 90 to 100's, 6½c. per lb.; 70 to 80's, 7½c.; 60 to 70's, 7½ to 8c.; 50 to 60's, 8 to 8½c.; 40 to 50's, 9½ to 10½c.; 30 to 40's, 12½ to 13c.; "Ruby" prunes, 7½ to 8c.; French, 4½ to 5c.

GREEN FRUITS.

All kinds of fruit are moving lively. The Canadian fruits are now of special interest. Canadian strawberries are reaching their lowest prices, which, owing to the abundant crop, are less than they have been in previous years. Canadian cherries are just arriving, and have chased out the Californian variety. The season for pineapples is drawing to a close. Tomatoes are arriving freely. Gooseberries are becoming plentiful. Green peas have left the domain of the fruiter, and are to be had by the bushel. The season for Valencia oranges is about over. California apricots and peaches are plentiful this week. Dealers predict a rapid advance in lemons. We quote: Oranges—Valencias, ordinary, 420's, $6 to $6.25 per case; large 420's, $7 to $7.50; Messinas, $3.25 to $4 for 200's, $3.50 to $4 for 300's, $2 for 80's, $2 to $2.25 for 100's, $2 to $2.25 for 120's, $2.25 for 150's, $2.25 to $2.50 for 180's; blood oranges, $2.50 to $3.50 per half box. Lemons, $2 to $3.50. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Onions, 3½c. per lb. for Egyptians. Bananas, $1.35 to $1.85. Pineapples, 12 to 20c. each. Strawberries, 4 to 5c. per quart. New cabbage, $1.50 for small crate and $3 for large crate. Mississippi tomatoes, $1.10 to $1.25 per case of 4 baskets. Green beans, $1.50 per basket; wax beans, $2 per basket. Watermelons, 35 to 40c. FISH.

The abundance and low price of fruit is credited as being the cause for a considerable dropping off in the consumption of fish. The receipts of fish continue liberal, and thus the market is too well supplied. There is no change in prices. We quote as follows : Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5c. per lb.; whitefish, 6c. ; trout, 6c. ; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb. ; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6¼ to 6¾c. per lb. ; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—Although the receipts of butter are large, dealers are buying. Buyers are going through the country, and the demand is such that the country merchants will not consign their goods. Dealers are therefore forced to purchase. The real demand for butter is not expected for another month, or at least for three weeks. At present the quantity coming in is only of medium grade and there is a scarcity of choice tubs. We quote : Dairy—Tub, 12c. for best, and others, 7 to 9c.; pound prints, 11 to 13c. Creamery has assumed a better tone this week. Tubs, 16c. ; prints, 16 to 17c.

CHEESE—If anything, the market is slightly weaker, in spite of the fact that exports have been exceedingly heavy. So far about 83,000 packages have left Canada this season, and if the demand continues as it has in the past, it will be a record year. We quote : Factory price, 8c., jobbing price, 8¾ to 9c.

PROVISIONS.

Demand continues good in all lines of smoked meats. A noticeable feature is the scarcity, however, some stocks being exhausted. There is no quotable change in prices.

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long clear bacon, 7¼c. for carload lots, and 7½ to 7¾c. per lb. for ton lots and cases ; backs, 8c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 11 to 11½c.; rolls, 8½c. ; hams, large, 10½ to 11c.; medium and small, 11½ to 12c.; shoulder hams, 8c.; backs, 11 to 11½c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD — Pure Canadian, tierces, 6 to 6¼c.; tubs, 6½ to 6¾c.; pails, 6¾ to 7c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $13 to $13.50 ; Canadian short-cut, $15 to $16.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS —Are almost unsalable, particularly the mixed, and prices have dropped 15c. in this line. We quote : Mixed, 30c. and hand-picked 60 to 65c.

HONEY—The season is about over and there is not much doing. We quote : 80 to 90c. per dozen for dark, and $1.50 to $1.75 for light; strained, 6½ to 7½c. per lb.

DRIED APPLES — There is scarcely any either coming forward or wanted. The idea as to price is 2 to 2¼c. f.o.b. The local jobbing price ranges from 1½c. per lb. upward.

EVAPORATED APPLES — Dull. Buyers are paying from 3¼ to 3½c. f.o.b. at outside points, and jobbers' prices are from 4 to 5c., according to quality.

EGGS—The good quality of the receipts has been increasing the consumption of eggs, but the demand is expected to be lighter on account of the abundance of fruit. The receipts have been quite sufficient for the demand, which, especially locally, has been very large. We quote for No. 1, 9½ to 10c., and for No. 2, 6½ to 7c.

POTATOES—During the week there has been no change in prices, but if potatoes are as scarce in the country as some say, prices will certainly rise. Next week, however, there will likely be an abundance of new stock arriving from the south. Price in carload lots is 30c., and out of store price is 40c. a bag. New potatoes bring from $1.30 to $1.50 per bushel.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—Trade is still brisk. Oats and peas have risen since last week. We quote : Red wheat, 70 to 71c.; white, 71½c.; oats, 24 to 25c.; peas, 45½c.

FLOUR—Business has improved slightly, but prices are lower. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto : Manitoba patents, $4.40 ; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.85 ; Ontario patents, $3.90 to $4.30 ; straight roller, $2.30 to $2.35, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS — Trade is fair. We quote as follows : Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.10 in bags and $3.20 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.60 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.15 to $2.25 ; split peas, $3 to $3.25; pot barley, $3 to $3.25.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—Cowhides : Dealers pay 8c. for No. 1, 7c. for No. 2 and 6c. for No. 3. Steerhides : 60 lbs. and up, 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS—Trade is brisk and prices are firm. No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb. ; No. 2, 8c.; Deatons, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS — We quote : Lambskins, 40c. ; pelts, 25c.

WOOL—Dealers are paying only 17c. for wool this week. In anticipation of the American duty, which goes into effect July 1, large quantities of wool were shipped to the States last week. Nearly 1,000,000 lbs. were shipped from Toronto alone.

SALT.

The pickling season makes salt very active. The demand is fully equal to that of previous seasons. Prices are unchanged. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 60c. per sack ; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl.

and 65c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

Both the state of trade and the prices are unchanged. Machine oil continues in good demand. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14½c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

Wool has dropped 2c.

Factory price of cheese is lower.

Beans (mixed) are much easier.

Oatmeal has advanced 20c. in price.

Sugar has declined ⅛c. per lb. all round.

Flour has taken a drop of from 10 to 15c. per barrel.

Pineapples are becoming scarce. Prices rose about 7c. this week.

The jobbers have decided upon a uniform price for "Horseshoe" salmon.

The City Travelers' Association of Toronto will hold a moonlight excursion about the middle of August next.

The pack of marrow peas in Baltimore is about done. The standard was finished several days since, and in a day or two the pack of seconds will be completed. There were very few good marrow peas offered to packers this year. Many fields were ploughed under by the growers rather than accept the low prices offered by the canners. —N.Y. Journal of Commerce.

Advices received from Shanghai stated that the market for new crop Pingsuey tea opened quiet, with comparatively few good grades offered.

C. Ceroni, of Patras, advise W. G. A. Lambe & Co., Toronto, that stocks of currants in Greece on June 11 were only about 1,500 tons, almost all of which was poor fruit.

W. Rogers & Co., Denia, Spain, cable J. L. Watt & Scott, Toronto, to the effect that crop prospects for Valencia raisins are good and that shipments will be made early this season.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, June 30, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE week has exhibited more life in staple groceries, especially in relation to the movement of goods from first to second hands. Notable in this connection have been the purchases of new crop early Japan teas, large contracts for the future delivery of canned salmon and extensive purchases of Barbadoes molasses. The only change in values has been the decline in granulated sugar necessitated by the lower price at the refineries. Otherwise prices are much the same, while the jobbing movement has been generally fair.

SUGAR.

The main fact in this market has been the decline in refiners' prices which went into effect Thursday evening last week. As a result refiners are offering granulated in large quantities at 4c. and yellows at 3¼ to 3¾c. at the factory. The jobbers have, of course, been compelled to follow and their price for granulated to-day, 1 to 9 barrels, is 4⅛c. and 10 barrels and over 4 1-16c. Yellows are offered at but little advance on the refiners' price, viz., 3⅜ to 3¾c., as to quantity and quality. The jobbing demand at the decline has been better, several of the wholesale houses reporting more enquiry and an increase in the size of the orders. This no doubt is due to the approach of the preserving season, retailers anticipating an increased demand on this account.

SYRUPS.

Demand for syrups has continued exceedingly slow and prices are unchanged at 1⅜ to 1⅞c., as to quality.

MOLASSES.

There has been considerable business in Barbadoes molasses from first to second hands during the past week, one of the sugar refineries being the largest purchaser in this connection at prices ranging from 20 to 21c. ex wharf for cargo lots. These figures are very low. Late cable advices from the Islands report the market unchanged but that sellers are refusing to close further contracts at current values there. In a jobbing way locally business is quiet, sellers asking 22 to 23c. for Barbadoes. Offers of Porto Rico have been made at 24c. ex wharf, but in a small way; the prime article cannot be had for less than 29c. for fancy and 25c. for choice.

RICE.

The rice market is unchanged, prices ruling steady under a fair jobbing enquiry. We quote: Crystal Japan, $4.50 to $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $4.50 to $5; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

There is a fair jobbing trade in spices, but nothing is doing in a large way, owing to the unsettled feeling at New York. Black pepper is rather easier in tone, while white is steady. We quote: Black pepper, 9c.; pure white, 14 to 17c.; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

The coffee market is dull, and the tendency of values easy in sympathy with advices from primary points. We quote: Maracaibo, 16 to 19c.; Santos, 11 to 15c.; Rio, 11 to 14c.; Mocha, 24c., and Java, 25c.

TEAS.

There has been more activity in tea from first to second hands during the past week both in Japans and black. In new early Japan teas jobbers have been buyers of from 300 to 400 packages of early tea at 18 to 20c., while business aggregating 350 packages in blocks has been done all the way from 8 to 14c. Some 200 packages of old crop Japans have also changed hands at 14c. In a jobbing way trading has been fair and prices unchanged as follows: Young Hysons, 13 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 12 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 16½ to 20c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

CANNED GOODS.

The chief feature in canned goods has been the trading in canned salmon for future delivery, large contracts being put through at a range of $3.50 to $3.75 f.o.b. Coast. Otherwise there has been little of interest in the market. We quote: Tomatoes, 80c.; corn, 50 to 80c.; peas, 80c.; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 85 to 90c.; gallons, $1.55 to $1.65; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.40 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.35; "Lion," $1.37½ to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.30, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

There has been little or no demand for Valencia raisins during the week. We quote: Ordinary off-stalk, 5¼ to 5½c.; fine, 5¾ to 6c.; selected, 6¼ to 6½c., and layers, 6¾ to 7c.

California raisins are slow and unchanged this week. We quote 6¼ to 6¾c. for 2-crown, and 7 to 7½c. for 3-crown.

Currants are quiet locally, and there is nothing new from abroad. We quote 3¾ to 4c. in bbls., 4 to 4¼c. in half bbls., and 4½ to 4¾c. in cases.

Dates range from 5 to 6c. per lb., with demand light.

Figs continue quiet as last quoted, at 8 to 12c.

Prunes are dull, and prices are nominal at 5½ to 6c. for Bosnia, 4 to 5c. for French, and 6½ to 7c. for California.

In evaporated fruit there have been offers of new crop California apricots at a very low price, but jobbers have not done any purchasing yet. We quote as before: Peaches, 10 to 11c., and prunes, 8 to 12c.

NUTS.

There has been no change in the local situation. We quote as follows: Grenoble walnuts, 10 to 11c.; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; and cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100.

SOME say that grocers don't care what stuff they sell if they get good profits; but we believe that when the actual merits of Cottams Seed are fully known, not a grocer in Canada will choose to sell the other kind for a little more profit.

Six patents secure our formulae, methods, etc., so that no other packet dare be "Like Cottams," or, "As good as Cottams." The Bird Bread in each packet is by itself worth more to any bird keeper than a pound of the rubbish usually sold as bird food.

Then, Cottams is the only packet bird food prepared from the standpoint of the experienced fancier. Others are put up solely to get as great a profit as possible, regardless of the rubbish the birds have to eat. In Cottams, the birds' requirements are supplied first. Profit is a second consideration. Such a statement may not have the orthodox commercial ring. But it's truth. And truth is bound to win.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

There is no change in these, which rule as last quoted, at 2 to 2½c., and evaporated at 3¾ to 4¼c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Business in green fruit has been quite active lately on account of the warmer weather. Lemons are firmer in price under demand from New York buyers, and oranges are also stronger. Heavy receipts of bananas have led to easiness in them, while pineapples are not so plentiful. California cherries are also in lighter supply. Heavy receipts of Canadian strawberries have contributed to offset the lighter receipts of United States fruits. We quote: Valencia oranges, $5 per case; bloods, $2.50 to $3 per half-box, and Messinas, $3 to $3.50 per box; lemons, $2.50 to $3.50 per box for choice, and $1.50 to $2.25 for common; bananas, 40c. to $1.40 per bunch; California cherries, $1.15 to $1.40 per box; apricots, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; pineapples, 10 to 15c. each; Canadian strawberries, 6½ to 9c. Egyptian onions, 2½c. per lb., and Bermuda ditto, 2½c. per lb., and $3 per crate.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—A fairly active business continues in eggs, and prices show no material change. Selected near-by stock sold at 10½ to 11c; ordinary No. 1 at 9 to 9½c., and No. 2 at 8 to 8½c. per dozen.

MAPLE PRODUCT—The supply of maple product is fair, for which the demand continues slow. We quote: Maple syrup, 4¾ to 5c. per lb., and 45 to 55c. per tin; sugar, 6 to 6½c. per lb.

HONEY — There is no change in honey. White clover comb is offering at 10c., and dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c. and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

BEANS — The market for beans is dull and about steady at 55 to 60c. in car lots, and at 65 to 70c. in a small way.

POTATOES — Receipts of potatoes are larger, and the tone of the market easier at 40 to 45c. per bag in car lots.

TALLOW—Continues quiet at 1½ to 2c. for rough and 3 to 4c. for rendered.

ASHES — Quiet and unchanged. First pots, $3 to $3.10; seconds, $2.80 to $2.85, and pearls, $4.40 per 100 lbs.

PROVISIONS.

Trade in provisions of all kinds was rather quiet, but the tone of the market is firm. We quote: Canadian pork, $13.50 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, 6¾ to 7¼c., and compound refined at 5¼ to 5½c. per

FLOUR AND MEAL.

Business in flour has been of a fairly active character during the week, Manitoba grades, both for local and export account, moving well. Ontario grades are purely nominal. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $4.25 to $4.40; straight rollers, $3.75 to $3.90, and in bags, $1.85 to $1.90. Manitoba strong bakers', choice, $4; outside brands, $3.65 to $3.75, and spring wheat patents, $4.25 to $4.40.

The demand for feed continues good and prices are firmly held at $12 for Manitoba bran, and $13 for shorts per ton, including bags.

The tone of the oatmeal market is steady at $2.90 per barrel and at $1.40 per bag for rolled oats.

BALED HAY.

Business in baled hay has ruled quiet, and values on No. 1 are rather easier than they were a week ago, at $11.50 to $12 for No. 1, while No. 2 is unchanged at $10 per ton.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

Cheese has shown a very unsettled feeling recently and the market at present is irregular with a lower tendency. Recent business in Quebec stock has been at a decline of ¼c., compared with a week ago, some 3,500 boxes changing hands at 8¼c. Ontario makes are purely nominal, but cost fully 8⅝c. laid down here in Montreal. We quote: Finest Ontario cheese, 8⅝ to 8¾c.; finest Townships cheese, 8⅜c.; finest Quebec cheese, 8¼ to 8⅜c.

Butter has ruled firm in tone and prices are higher for choice creamery than they were a week ago. No finest is obtainable this week under 17c., while seconds have sold up to 16c.

MONTREAL NOTES.

Local sugar refiners have been further heavy purchasers of Barbadoes molasses.

New crop Japan teas have left first hands to the extent of 400 packages since a week ago.

Offers of new crop evaporated California apricots have been made for the first time this week.

Canadian strawberries have now completely replaced the United States article in this market.

Contracts for new pack canned salmon on this market have been closed during the past eight days involving fully 14,500 cases.

The Wholesale Guild have fixed the jobbing price on granulated sugar for this province at 4 1-16 to 4⅛c., according to quantity.

The latest firm to get out the advertising blotting-card is The Robert Greig Co., 456 St. Paul street, Montreal. They are using it to advertise their "Crown Brand" flavoring extracts. Printed as it is in red and black, it has a nobby appearance.

Active buying of lemons on this market by New York buyers has put the price of this fruit considerably higher than it was a week ago.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June 30, 1897.

TRADE continues dull. The Jubilee celebration last week brought a great crowd of visitors to town and made the trade of bakers and retail grocers pretty lively for a few days, but the wholesalers experienced a falling off in outside orders, everybody being absorbed in the task of holiday-making. A steamer arrived from Montreal last week with a large cargo of flour and other goods. Other sailings will follow every three weeks. The inauguration of this service has caused a notable reduction in rail rates from Montreal. The London steamer which arrived last week brought considerable quantities of rice from England for city merchants. There are some changes in quotations to be noted this week.

OILS—The market for illuminating oils shows no change except an easier feeling in Canadian. We quote: Best American burning oil, 18½ to 19c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 18c.; prime, 14 to 16c.

SALT—Two vessels were landing salt last week, and it was all sold quickly. Two schooner cargoes went to Lubec, Maine, and one to St. Stephen. Stocks here are not, therefore, heavy. Another cargo is now on the way from Liverpool. The market is firm. We quote as follows: Coarse, 44 to 47c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 90c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 to $1.05 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.60 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz.

CANNED GOODS—Corn is easy. Peas have quite a wide range as to brand. Tomatoes are firm. Lobsters are in light supply, and firmly held, with a continued strong market in prospect. Canned haddies have a lower range. There is nothing of importance doing in salmon. We quote: Corn, 55 to 65c.; peas, 70 to 85c.; tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; gallon apples, $1.75 to $1.80; corned beef, Canadian, $2.20 to $2.30; American, 2-lb tins, $2.40 to $2.50; 1-lb tins, $1.30 to $1.50; oysters, 2's, $2 to $2.35; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.25 to $2.75; salmon, $1.25 to $1.40; lobsters, $2.25 to $2.50; haddies, $1.10 to $1.25; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT — Trade in this line is active, and large quantities of fruit are received by rail and steamer. Dealers here are not pleased with the duty of 1c. per lb. on pears, which will increase the price and reduce the consumption. American pears are now on the market, and their season will be over by the time Canadian pears are ready for this market. It is contended that this fruit is most wanted in the hot weather, for immediate consumption, and that as American and Canadian do not come on the market together the duty is of no advantage to the Canadian growers. New apples are also on the market now. Lemons and oranges are very firm. The consumption of bananas is very large. American strawberries are less plentiful, and the native fruit is not yet on the market in any quantity. Rhubarb is very cheap. We quote: Messina lemons, $2.50 to $3; oranges, Valencia, $5 to $5.50; Messina oranges, $2.75 to $3; blood oranges, $2 to $2.25; bananas, $1.00 to $2.25; lettuce, 25 to 30c. per doz.; pineapples, 10 to 12c.; strawberries, 12 to 15c.; rhubarb, 1c. per lb.; cucumbers, 80c. per doz.; pears, $7 to $8.50 per bbl.; new apples, $5 to $5.50 per bbl.

DRIED FRUIT—Trade in this line is quiet. About the only dried fruit coming on the market are occasional lots of currants by steamer from Boston. Dried and evaporated apples are easy. The Bermuda onions are out of the market, but Egyptians are arriving freely, chiefly via Quebec and the Liverpool steamers to that port. California 3-crown loose muscatel raisins are rather scarce and firmer. We quote: Lemons, $3.50 to $4; oranges, per case, $7; raisins, Valencias, 5¼ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5½ to 5¾c.; bbls., 5 to 5¼c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c.; prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples 2½ to 3c.; evaporated apples, 4 to 4½c.; onions, 2¾ to 3c. per lb.; cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Valencias, layers, 6 to 7c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. SUGAR—The trade here has been selling below refinery prices ever since the budget was brought down in Parliament. Some large sales on western account reduced stocks, and it was expected the market would stiffen, but since the refineries have come down ⅛c. the position is about as before, so far as this market is concerned. We quote: Granulated, 4 to 4⅛c.; yellows, 3¼ to 3⅜c.; Paris lump, 5½ to 5¾c.; powdered, 5½ to 5⅝c.

MOLASSES — Stocks of Porto Rico are light, and the market firm. Another cargo of this molasses will come on the market a a little later. Barbadoes is cheap, and stocks are ample. The advance of 1c. on the Island and further sales for refinery and other purposes will have a tendency to help the market. We quote: Barbadoes, 20 to 22c.; Porto Rico, 26 to 32c.; New Orleans, bbls., 25 to 27c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.

DAIRY PRODUCE—The supply of butter exceeds the demand, and dealers are advising farmers to turn more of their milk into cheese. Butter has declined in price, but is still above Boston prices, for the steamers get their supply of creamery there cheaper than it is offered them here. We quote: Dairy tubs, 14 to 16c.; creamery, 17 to 18c.; prints, 19 to 20c.; cheese, 9 to 9½c.; eggs, 10c. There is a lot of very cheap butter on the market.

FISH—The salmon catch all around the provincial coasts has been smaller than last year. Prices have ruled higher, and the annual Fourth of July demand from the States will have a further stiffening tendency. Fresh shad and alewives are out of the market. There have been quite large receipts of new dry fish lately and prices are easy. Pickled fish are dull and unchanged. We quote as follows: Large cod, $2.85 to $3; medium, $2.50 to $2.65; pollock, $1.10 to $1.15; bay herring, $1.25 to $1.30 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 5 to 6c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50; boneless, 2½ to 8c.; Barrington, $3 per bbl.; Shelburne, $3.25 per bbl.; lobsters, 4 to 10c. each, small; lobsters, large, 12 to 15c.; halibut, 8 to 9c. per lb.; salmon, 12 to 13c.

PROVISIONS—There has been some cutting of prices in plate beef, causing a reduction in prices. The provision market generally is quiet. We quote: Clear pork, $13 50 to $14.50; mess, $12 to $13; plate beef, $11 to $13; hams, 11½ to 12½c.; rolls, 8½ to 9c.; pure lard, 7¼ to 8c.; compound, 6½ to 7c.

FLOUR, MEAL AND FEED — The flour market is easy and lower. The advance in cornmeal reported from the west last week did not affect the market, as stocks were quite large and competition keen. One corn mill broke down last week and the other put prices up 10c., but had to get down again. Middlings and bran are dull at the decline. Hay is offering freely and is cheaper. Pot barley is firm. Seeds are nominal. We quote: Manitoba flour, $4.65 to $4.75; best Ontario, $4.30 to $4.40; medium, $4.10 to $4.15; oatmeal, $3.20 to $3.40; cornmeal, $1.70 to $1.75; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $14 to $15; bran, do, do, $13 to $13.50; hand-picked beans, 85 to 90c.; prime, 75 to 80c.; oats, 32 to 33c.; hay, $10 to $12; barley, $3.10 to $3.20; round peas, $1.15; split peas, $2.85 to $3; yellow eye beans, $1.50; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¾ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

Some provincial potatoes, both from P.E. Island and this province, have been shipped to Boston lately.

Some tea shipped from St. John was recently refused entry to the United States market and was returned to the shipper.

The unparalleled wet weather of May was succeeded by a rainy June, and with the exception of hay, the provincial farmers do not look for good crops this year.

The volume of summer travel from the States must set in heavy within the next week or two, or we shall be disappointed. Thus far the tide has been, if anything, rather smaller than usual.

There has not been as great activity in the lumber trade in this province for years. Over $1,000,000 worth of lumber has been shipped from this port alone in the last three months, the larger portion of it to the British Islands.

The Jubilee celebration on Tuesday was the most imposing demonstration in the history of St. John. The supply of small flags for decorative purposes was all bought up and dealers were unable to supply the demand during the last day of preparation.

The following are some of the products being brought here by steamer from Boston: Bananas, pineapples, watermelons, pears, apples, lemons, tomatoes, cherries, cabbage, apricots, green beans, cucumbers, strawberries, asparagus. In return the province sends fresh salmon, live and canned lobsters, mackerel and a few other fish, besides large quantities of dulse, a steamer sometimes taking thirty or forty barrels of dulse, which is brought by the half ton or ton by schooners from points down the bay.

A case of interest to western shippers was decided in a Nova Scotia court recently. Martin Bros., through their St. John broker, sold a Truro firm a car of oatmeal for delivery during a certain month, which was named, shipment to be at buyer's option. The sales note was accepted by the firm, but when the month arrived Martin Bros. could not get instructions to ship. They finally shipped to Truro. The firm declined to accept, claiming they wanted it delivered at another place. Martin Bros. offered to take the car off their hands and ship one to any place required. The firm would give no instructions. Meantime the price had been going down. After some time Martin Bros. sold the car to another party at a loss. They sued for damages, and recovered a part of what they asked, with costs. The court sustained their contention, but remarked that they should not have held the goods on a falling market, but should have sold at once when the firm refused to take delivery. This may be regarded as a test case.

ROCK CANDY DEPOSIT IN MAPLE SYRUP.

A United States exchange says: "This formation in the bottom of syrup cans is a great annoyance and its avoidance is to many a puzzling question. Thorough enquiry among leading makers of New England, New York, Ohio, etc., brings out a consensus of opinion that rock candy forms because the syrup is a trifle too thick when sealed in the packages, and that as a rule it can be avoided by making the syrup exactly eleven pounds to the gallon. The syrup should be well settled at time of canning. Place in the cans, and most makers will advise to seal while quite hot. A York State manufacturer believes 10½ to 11 pounds to the gallon is heavy enough, and will avoid this crystallization. In Ohio, Vermont and New Hampshire the standard is 11 pounds. First runs are liable to form crystals at that thickness, and are avoided by making the syrup a little thinner, say 10½ to 10¾ pounds.

"Crystallization will most readily form at a density of about eleven and one-eighth pounds. Great and frequent changes in the atmosphere after being canned may have something to do in producing these undesirable crystals. For that reason it is well to store the canned syrup in a cool, dry and even temperature. Sometimes a small amount of cream of tartar is added to the syrup, but it is doubtful if such introduction is wise, particularly as any general use would, no doubt, hurt the sale of pure maple sweets."

ADVERTISING AXIOMS.

WHEN you see a particular style of set-up that you would like to apply to your own ad, don't bother marking type. It is quicker for you and easier for the printer if you paste a bit of that style on your copy with the words, "Follow this style."

Be natural. Be honest. Be sincere. Be all these to yourself in writing your advertising. The public will recognize these qualities; they are human and touch all and will respond all the quicker.

When you set out to prepare your ad. have a mental picture of the space you are to fill. Fill this space right, with neither too many words nor too little. The organ of casuality (as phrenologists call it) is very necessary in an ad. writer.

The perceptive faculties must be well developed in an ad. writer. He ought to grasp ideas from every source, to see points that escape the average, all of which he can utilize in his profession

The advertising writer is like a sponge, he absorbs every idea within reach. If he does not use suggestions the moment they come to him, they are absorbed in his mental receptacle, to be fished out when occasion requires.

Get out around and among people. To be successful in advertising means not only the use of your head, but also of your legs and mouth, to hear and see what is going on in the great outside world of advertising affairs. The man that goes in a hole and pulls the hole in after him is soon forgotten, and he, poor fellow, becomes a victim of that dreaded disease, the desk habit.

The advertising writer must use his imagination. Imagination is the sun that lightens up dark places; it lends a charm to prosaic subjects. Bare facts are pills that are more easily digested when covered with a coating of a good writer's imagination.

Clearness, brevity and point are the triple virtues that the advertising writer must remember. Originality in expression, beauty in typography, and all-around nicety are minor virtues, yet all are good, and should somehow be squeezed in the ad.

Make your sentences short; likewise your paragraphs. Remember the egg in this; it is a small affair, but very meaty, and easily digested.

It takes time to make impressions. The first appearance of your ad. may be scarcely noticed, the second noticed but not remembered, the third may make a slight impression, but the succeeding insertions impress by present and past appearances.

Take a thought and express it quickly and easily with one sentence. Treat the second the same way before you venture upon the third. Let each idea stand by itself: never intermingle or jumble them up.

Hard horse-sense is the prime requisite of an advertising man. From the first preparation of copy till its final appearance in a newspaper, this qualification is demanded.

In the average body of the average ad. small pica lower case answers very well. It makes a clean appearance, is easily read, and is used by such good advertisers as Rogers, Peet & Co. and Brill Bros., of New York.

It is not a bad plan to once in a while go around and interview the compositor or head of the composing room where your ads are set up. An interchange of ideas is mutually advantageous and welcome, and if you happen to have an extra cigar in your pocket—so much the better.

Advertising is analysis. It is an analysis of the good points of what you have to offer. Analyze your offerings carefully, bring to light all the good points, and let the full glare of publicity shine upon them.

In preparing an ad be your reporter first and editor afterward. As reporter get all your best thoughts on the subject down on paper; as editor, trim, polish and elaborate until your ad is perfect.

To write a good ad. you must have a keen interest in the goods themselves. Handle them, fondle them, get acquainted with them—consider the richness, beauty, and many attractions—then, when you have imbibed the right sort of impressions, let them flow naturally from your pen.—By A. MacDonald, in Business.

GROCERIES, HISTORICALLY CONSIDERED.

WHO was the proprietor of the first grocery store? Where and when was it established? Is there a man anywhere who can answer these questions? Without doubt there is none, writes Clifton S. Hunsicker, in The New England Grocer. It seems a pity there are no records extant of the foundation and history of the trade—or a profession it might also be called—as important to the human kind as that of the grocer; if it were, they would certainly be fraught with vital interest for not only the almost innumerable followers of the trade to-day, but for a large majority of their patrons as well.

In the absence of any definite record, we can, therefore, only conjecture, and deduce from a few isolated facts. By this method, however, we arrive at one definite conclusion, and that is that the history of the trade extends back into the most remote past; and perhaps because it does extend back so far into the mists and shadows of antiquity is the reason its origin is so wrapped in obscurity.

But how do we know this fact? Because we know that all men must die, and in order to die they must live, and in order to live they must have food. Is it not reasonable, therefore, to assume that the first need felt by pre-historic peoples, after they first became numerous enough to form communities, was a place where they could procure articles of food in exchange for the currency of the time? And are not the grocery stores of this present event of the nineteenth century places where nearly every article of food consumed by man is kept for sale? This is dealing with abstractions, perhaps, but is not the reasoning logical and the deduction plausible?

In a somewhat similar manner we may come to the conclusion that the first grocer of whom we have definite record was Joseph, and he was a grocer by royal patent, too.

Those of you who are familiar with Biblical history will remember how after Joseph was sold to an Egyptian, and after being thrown into prison, charged with an unmentionable crime, of which he was guiltless, was afterwards released and placed high in royal favor by the skill he evinced in interpreting several curious dreams with which Pharoah had been visited. In his sleep one night he had dreamed, "there came up out of the river seven well-fed kine, and fat-fleshed," which fed in a meadow. And then there came from the river even other cattle, "ill-favored and lean-fleshed," which stood with the other kine, and which fell upon them and ate them. Then he slept again and dreamed that "seven ears of corn came up upon one stalk, rank and good," and that "seven thin ears and blasted with the east wind sprung up after them," which devoured the seven rank and full ears.

Pharoah's mind was troubled by these dreams, so Joseph was called to interpret them, and in his interpretation prophesied of the seven years of plenty and the seven years of famine which were to follow; as a reward for his cleverness, Joseph was made a ruler over the land; and when the seven years of famine came he had storehouses filled with eatables of all kinds, which he sold to the people of Egypt and the surrounding countries. Were not Joseph's storehouses, therefore, practically the same in principle as our modern grocery stores, though, of course, his stock lacked the great variety now offered to purchasers?

The modern grocery store is, without much doubt, the result of the unceasing march of civilization, which started at the dawn of creation, and has engendered in men's minds in all ages and in all climes a restlessness, a desire to visit new and strange lands, to conquer and settle them. With each band of adventurers, from the time, perhaps, of the Tower of Babel, when the first companies of pioneers, of whom we have records, set out towards all points of the compass, there have been one or more men, possessed with the trading instinct, who have carried with them supplies of the various necessities and luxuries of the home life and sold themtotheir companions when, settled at last in a strange land, their own comparatively small stock of these articles were exhausted.

The word "groceries," which forms a portion of the head of this article, is the appellation of two distinct things. It is applied to the places where food products are sold and also to the food products themselves, considered collectively.

THE SUGAR TARIFF.

Willett & Gray say, in speaking of the tariff, that the present position is as follows: The House of Representatives passed the sugar schedule, as printed by us March 25th, 1897. The Senate passed the schedule in "committee of the whole," as far as printed by us the last two weeks. The Senate, in "committee of the whole," have still to act upon the reciprocity clause and the countervailing duty clauses in the House bill, and also on an anti-trust clause coming from the Judiciary Committee, which may in some way affect the differential duty. After all this the Senate must vote on the bill as a whole and pass it or reject it. After this the Senate bill goes back to the House of Representatives, which will call for a Committee of Conference, composed of several members from each of the two Houses, who must reconcile the existing differences in the bills as they passed each branch, and report the bill back to each House for final acceptance and passable by both. After which the bill goes to the President for his signature, which will undoubtedly be attached, and the tariff bill become law. It should require until July 15th at the earliest to do all this, and many persons are now expecting August 1st as the day of taking effect of the new bill. They also state that in Cuba the receipts for the week were 3,094 tons, and the visible crop has now reached 214,500 tons, against 196,476 tons to same time last year. The exports were 11,700 tons, leaving a stock in the island of but 13,056 tons, barely sufficient, it would seem, for the home local consumption.

CORKS, AND WHERE THEY COME FROM.

THE number of persons who are able, in a practical and satisfactory if not scientific or picturesque manner, to draw a cork from a bottle without breaking either is not very large. But, small as it is, it is materially larger than the number of those who have any practical knowledge of where cork comes from or the extent of the trade in it.

The importations of cork, says The New York Sun, into the United States in a year amount, in value, to $2,000,000. The cork of commerce, so called, is divided into three classes. First, there is what is called cork wood or bark, unmanufactured, which comes into the United States free of duty for manufacture here. The value of this cork is about $1,250,000 a year, though in 1894, for the first time in recent years, it fell below the $1,000,000 figure. The second subdivision is cork bark cut into squares or cubes—that is, in part manufactured, but not a finished product. Under the McKinley bill the tariff on such cork was 10 per cent. of the value; under the Wilson bill it was raised to 25 per cent. The third division is cork imported to the United States, manufactured and ready for use—in other words, corks. The tariff on corks under the McKinley bill was 15c. a pound; under the Wilson bill it was reduced to 10c. a pound.

The country from which the largest amount of cork comes is Portugal. The gross exportations of cork from Portugal to all countries amount, in a year, to nearly $3,000,000. A considerable but not the largest part of this cork comes to the United States. The total amount of the export from Portugal to the United States in a year is $2,500,000, and the total amount of American export to Portugal in a year is about twice as much, or $5,000,000. The other countries from which cork comes are Spain, Sicily, Algeria and France. The cork tree, after it attains its growth, has a soft, porous bark, which can be removed by the simple process of trimming it off in blocks or cubes once every nine or ten years. This barking, as it is called, instead of killing the tree or retarding its growth, actually prolongs its existence as a rival in longevity with the century plant. Pieces of cork, when detached, are soaked in water, then pressed and finally dried, and are then packed for exportation. The annual product of cork in all countries amounts to 6,000 tons, and the gross value of the product is $6,000,000. It so happens —perhaps it is more than an accident—that the countries from which cork comes are all of them wine producing countries, and a large percentage—nearly half—of the cork is used at home.

The best corks used abroad are hand-made, and these are in special demand in France for champagne bottles. In consequence of the effervescing quality of the wine, champagne corks must be of great strength and durability. Corks of the best quality are used also in Spain for the higher grades of Spanish wines, which are retained in cellars for many years before being drunk, and would be spoiled by the use of improper corks. In the United States few hand-made corks are in use, the greater majority being made by improved machinery. These, however, are mostly corks of inferior grade, and are sold at a price much lower than the hand-made cork. They are used for beer, whiskey, sarsaparilla, and medicine bottles, and the trade in them is extensive. Of late years, in fact since the big brewers went into the beer-bottling business on their own account, the use of corks for beer bottles has greatly diminished, being superseded by rubber and metallic stoppers. The latter, though more expensive than the ordinary corks, can be used repeatedly. Under a law passed by the Albany Legislature a few years ago, and known as the Bottlers' Law, the title to bottles is sedulously guarded. A beer bottle may be used as many as a hundred times, and the expense attending the purchase and use of 100 corks would be much greater than is the expense of a rubber and metal stopper which can be used continuously, and which is affixed to the bottle.

The trade in cork from Portugal has been increasing in recent years as the bottling business of the world increases, though there is no corresponding increase in the area of cork-producing countries which are on or near the western end of the Mediterranean Sea.

COUPON CASE IN COURT.

Judicial notice was given to Mr. W. A. Lawson's coupon system last week, when the originator of the scheme sued Mr. Taylor, butcher, Toronto, for $25 for an alleged breach of contract. One of Lawson's agents left a book of coupons with Taylor, who, it was sworn, refused to give coupons to two customers. One of these said that Taylor's clerk told him that if he gave him a coupon, he would have to charge him a little more for his meat.

Taylor swore that he was first approached with a watch scheme, but he wouldn't go into that. He tried the coupon system, but claimed it hurt his trade, for people got the idea that he was charging more for his goods, but yet he didn't refuse to give them.

On the other hand, Mr. Crottie, a merchant in the west end of Toronto, swore that the coupons had increased his business 20 per cent.

As each party wanted another witness the case was adjourned a week. Meanwhile it is the subject of a good deal of talk around town.

DAIRY PRODUCTS OF ENGLISH COLONIES.

According to a United States consular report, under date of June 11, there were in Australasia, in 1891, 945,575 cows, producing 23,000 tons of butter and 6,700 tons of cheese; there were in Canada during the same year 1,857,112 cows, producing 51,700 tons of butter and 51,000 tons of cheese. In 1895 Australasia had 1,100,000 cows, giving 36,000 tons of butter and 11,500 tons of cheese; Canada had 1,195,000 cows, with 52,000 tons of butter and 68,000 tons of cheese. This production, remarks National Provisioner, although large, is yet not enough to supply the demand in the Mother Country, which imported, in 1896, 264,124 tons of butter and cheese, of which only 80,000 tons came from her colonies, the rest being furnished by the Continent.

WISH A DUTY ON TEA.

As stated in THE CANADIAN GROCER a few weeks ago, the United States Senate Finance Committee, in presenting its tariff bill to the Senate at Washington, proposed that an import duty of 10c. per lb. be placed on tea. No action on the proposition has as yet been taken by the Seuate, but advices from Washington seem to indicate that the legislators are of the opinion that there is too much opposition to the proposal throughout the country to warrant its adoption. Japan is also stirring up opposition.

A meeting of the tea trade of New York city was held last Friday to take some action to counteract this opposition. After a thorough discussion of the conditions, the traders came to the conclusion that it was not good policy on the part of the United States to be the only country to allow tea to come in free. A petition was ordered to be sent to the Senate to make the duty a permanent measure, and the following resolution was passed:

"That this meeting of tea merchants heartily endorses the proposal to restore the duty on tea as being a benefit to the entire country. It will greatly benefit the tea trade, whose commercial importance is very large, and enable it to recover somewhat its former prominence and prosperity.

"It will equally benefit the consumer, who will be saved by the natural laws of trade from the importation of poor tea; and will pay no more than he does now, and get genuine tea. Free tea means poor tea."

The members present claimed that a duty on tea would be a means for obtaining a large revenue, that, as tea is produced in excess of requirements, the producers must pay the major part of the duty and that it will prevent the American trade from going into foreign control. They say that Japan has for many years obtained high prices for her teas and that she has not hesitated to increase her export duties, and thus, that the United States Government would be amply justified in adopting the measure.

MEXICAN ORANGES.

The temporary loss by Florida of her prominence as a producer of oranges has afforded a golden opportunity to Jamaica and Mexico to acquire prestige in the orange market. Mexico and Jamaica have a great advantage in immunity from frost, and in most of them there exist conditions favorable to the production of superior oranges at low cost. The Mexicans now have good facilities for shipping their products by rail to the United States. Lands and labor are cheap there, and, with our low tariff on oranges, they can afford to grow oranges for the American market for less than would pay the orange-growers of California and Florida any profit.—Grocery World.

SECRET SOCIETIES FOR GROCERS.

BY the way, brother grocers, what do you think of making a secret society out of a grocers' association? Secret in the sense of the Masonic and kindred orders, having a password, grip, signs, etc. This suggestion was made to me as being a good one by a retailer some time ago. We were talking about the hardships that lie in the wake of the average association, and especially of the difficulty of holding the association together, the principal reason being the lack of interest taken by the members in the meetings. My friend thought that if an initiatory ceremony could be introduced, with all the attendant paraphernalia, a great deal more interest would be manifested. There is no doubt that if the various orders were divested of their secrecy and impressive ceremonies they would lose most of their attractiveness for the average man. For who of us don't feel a desire at times to peer into the mysterious?

At any rate, I think there is some meat in the idea.

But are grocers' associations appreciated, anyhow? I have been in towns where associations existed—please note that I say existed—and have talked with every grocer in the town about the good they were doing. Every man has found fault with the others, in a general way. Each one would say, "Oh, the association is a good thing, but they won't stick to it"; "You can't get them to attend the meetings," and complaints of a similar nature. After having gathered a consensus of the opinions of the entire trade of that town, I have come to the conclusion that here were a body of men finding fault with each other for what every one of them were individually guilty of. Finding fault with the other fellow is very easy. While you are doing that just think that perhaps the other fellow is doing the same to you for the same offence.—"The Gleaner" in Grocery World.

PACKAGE SUGAR.

Rice, flour, oatmeal, dried fruits, codfish, tea, coffee and several other articles were formerly sold to retail grocers in bulk, whereas to-day many of the dealers purchase them only as packed in cartoons. We'd like to know why all these things are bought all ready packed and sugar is placed in a class by itself. The other night, between 8 and 9 o'clock, the writer found a grocery store still open and several weary-looking clerks still weighing out and packing granulated sugar. In answer to our inquiry why they were not closed at a reasonable hour, the clerks said they had a certain quantity of sugar to pack and could not leave until the task was accomplished. The present custom of buying sugar in bulk not only entails great labor, but leaves room for waste and losses by errors in weighing out from the barrels. It has not a single merit to commend it to the most conservative grocer.—Merchants' Review.

CURIOSITIES OF FOOD.

Turks shudder at the thought of eating oysters (says E Bainbridge).

The French will eat frogs, snails, the diseased livers of geese, but draw the line at alligators. At the present time, the flesh of horses is much in vogue.

Buckland declares that the taste of boa constrictor is good, being much like that of veal.

Quaso, the fermented cabbage water of the Russians, is their popular tipple, which in taste is described as a mixture of stale fish and soap suds; yet, next to beer, it has more votaries than any other beverage. A tallow candle washed down with a draught of quaso forms a meal that it would be hard to be thankful for.

In Canton and other Chinese cities rats are sold at the rate of $2 per dozen, and the hindquarters of dogs are hung up in butchers' shops alongside of mutton and lamb, but command a higher price.

Caterpillars and spiders are much esteemed by the African bushmen.—Food and Sanitation.

THE YOUNG MAN AND THE OPPORTUNITY.

WEAK men wait for opportunities, strong men make them.

"Oh, how I wish I were rich!" exclaimed a bright, industrious drayman in Philadelphia, who had many mouths to fill at home. "Well, why don't you get rich?" asked Stephen Girard, who had overheard the remark. "I don't know how, without money," replied the drayman. "You don't need money," replied Mr. Girard. "Well, if you will tell me how to get rich without money, I won't let the grass grow before trying it."

"A ship-load of confiscated tea is to be sold at auction to-morrow at the wharf," said the millionaire. "Go down and buy it and then come to me." "But I have no money to buy a whole ship-load of tea with," protested the drayman. "You don't need any money, I tell you," said Girard sharply; "go down and bid on the whole cargo and then come to me."

The next day the auctioneer said that purchasers would have the privilege of taking one case, or the whole ship-load, buying by the pound. A retail grocer started the bidding, and the drayman at once named a higher figure, to the surprise of the large crowd present. "I'll take the whole ship-load," said he coolly, when the sale was announced. The auctioneer was astonished, but when he learned that the young bidder was Mr. Girard's drayman, his manner changed, and he said it was probably all right.

The news spread that Girard was buying tea in large quantities, and the price rose several cents per pound. "Go and sell your tea," said the great merchant the next day. The young man secured quick sales by quoting a price a trifle below the market rate, and in a few hours he was worth fifty thousand dollars. The author does not endorse this method of doing business, but tells the story merely as an example of seizing an opportunity.

There may not be one chance in a million that you will ever receive aid of this kind; but opportunities are often presented which you can improve to good advantage, if you will only act.

"You are too young," said the advertiser for a factory manager in Manchester, England, after a single glance at an applicant. "They used to object to me on that score four or five years ago," replied Robert Owen, "but I did not expect to have it brought up now." "How often do you get drunk in a week?" "I never was drunk in my life," said Owen, blushing. "What salary do you ask?" "Three hundred (pounds) a year." "Three hundred a year! Why, I have had I don't know how many after the place here this morning, and all their askings together would not come up to what you want."

"Whatever others may ask, I cannot take less. I am making three hundred a year by my own business."

The youth, who had never been in a large cotton mill, was put in charge of a factory employing 500 operatives. By studying machines, cloth, and processes at night, he mastered every detail of the business in a short time, and was soon without a superior in his line in Manchester.

"The best men," says E. H. Chapin, "are not those who have waited for chances but who have taken them; besieged the chance; conquered the chance; and made chance the servitor."

The lack of opportunity is ever the excuse of a weak, vicillating mind. Opportunities! Every life is full of them. Every lesson in school or college is an opportunity. Every examination is a chance in life. Every patient is an opportunity. Every newspaper article is an opportunity. Every client is an opportunity. Every sermon is an opportunity. Every business transaction is an opportunity—an opportunity to be polite—an opportunity to be manly—an opportunity to be honest—an opportunity to make friends. Every proof of confidence in you is a great opportunity. Every responsibility thrust upon your strength and honor is priceless. Existence is the privilege of effort, and when that privilege is met like a man, opportunities to succeed along the line of your aptitude will come faster than you can see them. If a slave like Fred Douglass can elevate himself into an orator, editor, statesman, what ought the poorest white boy to do, who is rich in opportunities compared with Douglass, who did not even own his body. —Pushing to the Front.

WHAT IS HOME?

A prize was offered recently by London Tid-Bits for the best answer to the question, "What is Home?" Here are a few of the answers which were received:

Home is the blossom of which heaven is the fruit.

A world of strife shut out, a world of love shut in.

The golden setting in which the brightest jewel is mother.

The only spot on earth where the faults and failings of humanity are hidden under a mantle of charity.

The place where the great are sometimes small and the small often great.

The father's kingdom, the children's paradise and the mother's world.

Where you are treated best and you grumble most.

A little hollow scooped out of the windy hill of the world, where we can be shielded from its cares and annoyances.

HE GOT AN ORDER.

A well-known Fourth street grocer, who has all along contended that he could not be induced to buy from any drummer unless he had previously set his mind on it, recently met his Waterloo. A very genial and talkative drummer stepped into the store and tried to effect a sale of goods. The grocer, of course, was obstinate and refused to have anything to do with the drummer.

A clerk in the store told the latter about the grocer, and the drummer said he would stay and effect a sale if it took him all night. Accordingly he set out talking at a rapid rate, and after a half hour of deliberation he got the grocer so mad that to satisfy the drummer he consented to sample some of his goods.

The drummer first started him on sweet goods, and then sour material, and then vice versa, and intermingled them so that it would take a cast iron stomach to successfully resist their action. The drummer continued to talk during the time the customer was sampling, and he had the grocer so thoroughly disgusted with himself that he readily gave a few orders. He continued to give orders as fast as he could talk, and was in a fair way to do away with a year's receipts when his wife came into the store and intervened. The drummer then withdrew with a book full of orders, after exchanging winks with the clerk. The grocer was confined to his bed for several days after the action of the dose which the drummer gave him had set in.—Exchange.

FIXED TIME FOR FRUIT SHIPMENTS.

Editor GROCER,—Can't you use your influence with the jobbers on the fruit market and get them to organize and bring the fruit all into the city at a certain hour in the morning. The grocers would each save about three hours and sometimes six hours that are now simply wasted loafing around the wharves for different boats.

Then there would not be such a vast difference in the price between morning and afternoon. The dealers would have lots of time to sort and display the fruit to the best advantage and could deliver promptly and early to all parts.

The average housekeeper does not care to start canning fruit at 4 or 5 p.m. The morning is the time for work with her. The boats, railway trains and growers would all have to make other arrangements; but it is only proper they should. The people that pay and consume are the people to please. Give it a push along, MR. GROCER, it is done in other cities.

Yours, etc.,

KICKER.

REMARKS: THE GROCER would like to receive the views of the trade in regard to this subject. Our columns are open to pointed and terse letters.—The Editor.

NEW TEA METHOD IN CHINA.

THE following is an extract from The North China Herald, of Shanghai, February 12 :

We have already referred to the attempt made by Fuchau tea men to prepare China tea with the method and machinery used in India, and we note with satisfaction that the Congou tea so mades continues to attract attention at home. A prominent Edinburgh firm of tea dealers writes : "If China sends tea as strong as this she will soon be able to compete successfully with the overwhelming flood from India and Ceylon, because there is in this sample much more of what the public consider the style and taste of tea than in the woody tasting stuff that comes from the Indian estates especially. We think that now, against India and Ceylon, such tea will pay Chinamen better than the present style, which must go out of consumption in this country."

The export of China Congou to London is now a mere dribble, and it will certainly cease altogether unless the British public get what they want. We may mention, as an illustration that, while the export of black tea to Great Britain from Shanghai up to the first week in February, 1897, was over 65,000,000 pounds, it was obvious that if something were not done China, the original home of the tea plant, would see her trade wiped out. The Customs would give no assistance, it being found impossible to convince Sir Robert Hart that a modification of the exactions to which tea is subject in China would put new life into the industry. It was reserved for people in Fuchau, threatened with extinction as a tea port, to take the bull by the horns and prepare to compete with India and Ceylon on their own ground.

If ordinary third crop Pakling leaf is susceptible of such improvement, what possibilities are in store for teas prepared according to the new method from first-crop Yangtze? It is to be hoped the Chamber of Commerce will use its influence to get the Tsungli Yamen to take up the question of making Chinese Congou by the method that has made Ceylon tea so popular.

QUICK WITTED.

A milkman was "shrieking" along one morning lately, when he saw the milk inspector in the distance evidently prowling for samples. As he came near him the milkman stumbled over a brick, "accidentally on purpose," and his can, rolling in the road, was emptied.

"Are you hurt?" said the inspector, kindly, as he helped him to rise.

"I am," he replied, "a little, but I am troubled more about the loss of my milk."

"I am sorry for you," said the inspector, for I was just going to ask for a sample, but it is no use now."

When the inspector had gone, the milkman muttered to himself that it had to be done, for the spilling of the milk had saved him from a fine of $5 and costs!—Tid-Bits.

BALANCED THE ACCOUNT.

The driver of a grocer's delivery wagon collided with a vehicle driven by a tinsmith, and while the grocer's man was not to blame, he patiently bore a great deal of abuse from the other. Finally, when the tinner threw snow in his face, the other put down the lines and calmly said :

"Have you read what the different clergymen are saying about the non-existence of a place of punishment?"

"Yes, I have!"

"And do you believe there is a lake of fire and brimstone?"

"No, I don't; and I want five dollars from you as damages."

"If I believed there was such a place I'd drive on." slowly continued the grocer's man; "but as I'm purty sure there ain't, I'll give you your dose now, and keep the books balanced!"

He did just what he said he would do, in three minutes; and as he drove on he began whistling :

"There is a happy land,
Far, far away."

CHEAP CANNED PEAS.

Peas have been bought from the growers in this section at probably lower prices than ever known before, but equally the canned peas have been sold at lower prices than have ever been known before for the quality. The wise old fossil whose doctrine is that all things will cure themselves, and there are such even in the canned goods business, may find an immense amount of comfort in the evidence given this season, that times can get so bad and the remuneration of the farmer and the wage worker so slight that machinery cannot compete with the prices that human necessity can make.

It will also give the jobber an opportunity to show his fondness for consistency. When canned goods have been put up by machine, and we maintain that the introduction of machinery into the business improved the quality of the goods, the jobbers made a point of commending the hand-packed goods as superior to the others. Here is a change now when the hand-packed goods will probably be cheaper than the others.—Trade, Baltimore, Md.

YES INDEED. . . .

That Mammoth Package of Cream Sodas has come to stay. We were a little dubious about it at first. It costs money to experiment in this sort of thing, and we were naturally anxious, but the public appreciate a good thing, and they know a good thing when they see it. If you have not had our Cream Sodas in this new 3-pound package just send us a card for a case of them. By the way, just let us ask you to watch this space every week; it will pay you to read our "ad" in THE GROCER. It is always in the same place.

MINT ... PUFF-STRAPS

RECOGNIZING the great popularity of peppermint with the sweets-loving public, we are the first to introduce to the trade Pliable Licorice containing this flavor.

The delicious quality of our Pliable Licorice is well known ; it is matchless in this respect as well as in its flavor and finish.

Our Triple Tunnel Tubes and Navy Plugs are great favorites also, and are made of the same material, although flavored differently. . . . . .

We recommend all these goods as suitable for Summer Trade; they will please the most exacting taste as wholesome, smooth and palatable confections. . . .

"But does it pay—I can make big profits on some of those things that folks don't know much about," you say. All right, but just glance at the business record of these three leaders in their lines, and then decide (turn it all over carefully in your own mind) whether it "pays" to sell highest quality, or not.

Lazenby's Soup Squares

The firm established upwards of 150 years. Never exhibited or sought for Royal patronage. Believed that highest quality would win of itself. Business grew. Nobility came. Big retail store had to be opened. And they've made money steadily ever since from these convenient—seasonable—quick little soup makers.

Fry's Cocoa

Made in the largest Factory in the world, employing 3000 people. Made pure at the start. Made pure ever since. Made on honor, through and through. This pure, wholesome, easily soluble, nutritious Fry's Cocoa has won over 100 medals, and a fortune for its makers.

Stephens' Pickles

One of Great Britain's largest pickle factories belong to the Messrs. Stephens. Their malt vinegar, filtered, purified and cleared absolutely from mucilaginous matter, is known almost from pole to pole for its purity and strength. Thus their Pickles—fresh and green and piquant, gained fame and fortune for their makers. Packed in air tight bottles. Packed by the hands of highest quality. PICKLES of highest quality.

THE ART OF WINDOW DRESSING.

THE day is undoubtedly far distant when tastefully-dressed and brilliantly-lighted shop windows will cease to attract and interest the British public. It is an agency which acts powerfully in influencing the mind bent on buying; an old truth, which is obtaining more recognition than ever, considering the increased number of artistic shop fronts in our principal thoroughfares, and the restless determination of tradesmen to be up to date. It is a form of advertising, and there is no success without advertisement. Some of the more quick-witted manufacturers of proprietary articles have lately become alive to the value of a shop window display, and have paid for the use of tradesmen's windows for short periods, in order to make an impressive show, and judging by the increased popularity of their goods, the experiment has been a great success.

To ensure a good result, much depends upon the design, construction and amplitude of the window itself. Some windows are so ill-shaped as to render it impossible to dress them well, and, in fact, difficult to make at all pleasing and presentable. The plate glass front should be in one piece, or two, at the most, whilst freshly painted framework and an artistic signboard make an excellent setting, and greatly improve the effect.

In a study of the subject there are three vitally important, viz., when, what and how goods should be displayed. The two former depend one upon the other, for goods should be shown in their season; though, of course, there are some goods which are never unseasonable—tea and sugar for example. Attention to this point is of great importance, yet it is often neglected. There are shopmen who will show particular goods solely because there is a large stock and a clean ticket on the premises, and without the least thought as to whether they are appropriate to the time of the year, and whether people are likely to want them. I saw a pile of goods ticketed "cool and luscious, 6½d.," when the weather was intensely cold and wintry, the thermometer registering 15 degrees of frost. The announcement was more likely to give people the shivers than to attract business.

Most experienced salesmen perfectly understand all that is essential in regard to seasonable goods, but your object in inviting articles on this subject is doubtless to assist the 'prentice rather than the practised hand, therefore a little enlargement under this head may not be amiss.

The advent of spring is a time which often incites the more wide-awake grocer to don his thinking-cap, look up and put into the forefront cleansing materials and utensils wanted in every sanitary household; for example: soap, soda, starch, blue, black lead, furniture cream, polishing paste, brushes, sponges, shovels, buckets, etc. You may not sell a large quantity of these goods, but if they give sasisfaction to the purchaser, it is more than probable that you will be remembered when other goods —necessaries of daily use—are required. A casual deal often leads to a permanent confidence. The foregoing, of course, is but one of many examples that could be given in regard to seasonable goods, but it is enough as a principle basis for the exercise of thought as the various seasons come and go.

PREPARATION. —The individual whose work it is to dress a window should first of all think out the best lines for bringing trade, plan in his mind how to display them, and get the necessary tickets ready. These points, if attended to, will greatly expedite the work, and the more quickly a window is dressed the better, so long as it is dressed well, for fewer customers will come in whilst the work is in progress; such, at any rate, is the writer's experience.

How should goods be displayed? As to how goods should be displayed, there exists amongst tradesmen and their assistants much difference of opinion. This is, of course, quite natural, and, in fact, as it should be. The following are some of the styles often met with:

1. Filling the window with a large and exclusive display of goods—all of one class.

2. A large variety of goods, well ticketed. The small show vessels nearest the window; larger ones at the back, nestling amongst bold, pyramid-shaped piles.

3. A limited variety, but individual quantities fairly large, and prominently displayed, with boldly lettered and striking tickets.

The above are all good styles, and should be adopted in their turn, and as occasions demand, but they by no means exhaust the list. There are any number of forms of window dressing; in fact, the variety is the life of the custom.

There is also a manner of displaying goods, which is favored by so many grocers that it has almost become a fashion. I mean those rows of tinned goods, jams, etc., arranged with precise regularity, such apparent balancing of one end to match the other. Oh! this mania for matching; why were not all things in nature made to match? I only speak for myself; but I like to see every now and then a little picturesque irregularity, and feel sure that it might be tried occasionally with advantage. The public eye must get tired of the everlasting repetition of the kind of window I have just described—the too precise and regular.

CLEANLINESS.—This is a very important point. Everything should be clean. The plate glass should be spotless, and all goods shown should be dusted and made to look as smart as possible. The tickets, too, should not be overlooked. Fresh goods may have their appearance marred by an old and dirty ticket.

MARKING THE PRICES.—Care should be taken to mark the prices on all goods in plain figures. The public are suspicious of a shopkeeper who does not ticket the price on his goods.

COMMENCE EARLY IN THE DAY.—The morning part of the day is certainly the best for dressing a window. There are fewer customers about; besides, the mind is clearer and brighter in the morning, and the limbs of the body more elastic. Under these circumstances better ideas may come forth, and a more pleasing and satisfactory result be obtained.

SHOWING GOODS THAT PAY.—It being true that a good window display is an excellent advertisement, it logically follows that goods that yield a satisfactory profit should be shown the most often. It is no use selling one article cheap in order to draw customers for another unless pains are taken to bring the article that pays well before the customers' notice. Therefore, feed the customers' eyes with frequent views of the articles you want them to buy. It will help the sale of such goods very much.

PROVISIONS, BACON, CHEESE, LARD, EGGS.—It hardly does to display these goods in a window with ordinary groceries ; to have an effective display they should be kept apart, if possible in a separate window, tastefully fitted with marble slabs. It should be carefully noted that an effective display should be made without cutting up too much, for upon the skill herein displayed often depends profit or loss. Perfect cleanliness is an absolute necessity.

WAYS TO BE AVOIDED.—There are ways of window dressing which, in my humble opinion, are very unwise. On a main road in Manchester there was a grocer who, to my knowledge, dressed his window week by week, year by year, by simply displaying three large samples of sugar at a "cut" price. Where the wisdom of this proceeding came in I am at a loss to know. There was a wood framework made to hold three large samples, and these, with three large tickets, filled the window space, thus : "Smith's 1d.; Smith's 1½d.; Smith's 2 lbs., 2½d." The shop has changed hands.

LAZINESS. — There are some shopmen who, having put in a good window, will look admiringly at it every week for several weeks, saying to themselves, "It's a good window ; it'll do another week." So it remains until the goods are thick with dust, and for no other reason he decides to dress it afresh. Such idleness is very discreditable, but, I regret to say, a good deal of it exists.

But, after all, window dressing — the manner of—belongs to the arts, and by reason of its infinite possibilities of change and variety can never be reduced to anything approaching a science. Thus, shopmen for whom window dressing has a fascination and delight will find in the occupation endless scope for the exercise of their tact and skill—tact in knowing what to show to meet the wants and please the whims and weaknesses of the public, and skill in the effective displaying of such goods.—Prize Essay in the Manchester Grocers' Review.

BEST "BLOCK" SAUSAGE.

For each 100 lbs. use 60 lbs. pork, moderately fat, from fore or hind leg or belly ; 40 lbs. lean bull beef free from sinews. First chop the beef fine, add the pork chopped to half walnut size, and then season as follows : 70½ oz. salt, 5 6-10 oz. white pepper, 4 oz. powdered cane sugar, 2¼ oz. powdered potass. saltpetre, 4 pieces best kind of garlic finely ground, 1¾ oz. cardamom, about 8 tablespoonfuls rum. Mix well in a dish, add to the mass and chop up, constantly turning the mass to about bean size. The knife should always be wiped, as with cervelat sausage, in order to insure a homogeneous appearance of the mass. The mass should not be kneaded, but only be thrown open from right to left. Now stuff firmly, using good, odorless, salted beef middle guts almost 13 inches ; let hang several hours, put into good brine for 6 hours or rub them with fine salt; put side by side upon a board and set aside for 12 hours in the cellar. Then wash roughly with cold water and wipe dry with cloth. Now allow to dry in an airy place at about 50° to 55° F. until the mass shows red through the transparent casing ; now smoke in cold smoke with beech and oak shavings mixed with a few juniper berries. This sausage should be smoked lightly to a light yellow-red. All the meat used should be from firm, heavy, well-grown animals, as with cervelat sausage. The casings should also be treated the same as they are for cervelat sausage.—National Provisioner.

LAWS FOR TERRA ALBA USERS.

The National Confectioners' Association, in its convention of 1896, authorized the collating and printing in pamphlet form of all the laws in the various states restricting the manufacture and sale of adulterated candies. This work has just come to hand.

This association is pledged by its constitution and by-laws to prosecute all persons, firms or corporations using terra alba or any other mineral substance, or any poisonous or hurtful color, flavor or ingredient, in the manufacture of confectionery, and it has for ten years offered and continues to offer to pay a reward of $100 to any person producing evidence upon which a conviction can be obtained. It tenders the services of a competent chemist and will test suspected samples of confectionery free of charge.

The association demands the enactment by each state of suitable laws forbidding the adulteration of food—specially mentioning candy and its hurtful adulterations. Already laws have been passed in 29 states of the Union, and in the nicely bound book of 186 pages are to be found extracts from these laws.

The work is intended to make known the good intentions of the organization, and, if possible, to increase its usefulness. It contains also a list of officers and members, a sketch of its organization and the results of its labors.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

Picnic Supplies.

Some of the dealers in Toronto have adopted a good scheme for obtaining the picnic supply trade. They advertise that they are willing to give estimates on supplies for picnic parties, large or small. The customer's recognition of the fact that the grocer will make prices as low as possible will win the merchant further custom. The method will help the dealer to know exactly what picnic parties need, and he will thus be able to assist in the choice of supplies more than he otherwise would. It's a scheme that can be used more freely than it is used.

Selfishness.

As a general rule, live, enterprising merchants are sociable to any person that calls on them. The other day, I visited a grocer, who had the reputation of being an up-to-date merchant. On asking permission to give any new ideas he had to the public, he answered me to the effect that that was just what he was trying not to do. It seems to me that it is just this feeling of selfishness among the grocers that will do more to ruin the grocery trade than any other action on their part. Association among the grocers is absolutely necessary. Their business, like any other trade, is vulnerable. If the only object of the Retail Grocers' Association were to promote good feeling, it would be a commendable organization. However, a few men like the one I have mentioned can do much to spoil all good attempts. Such selfishness and such jealousy cannot assist associations, and it is only by organization that the grocers can receive mutual benefit.

A Bit of History.

Grocers as a class find that farmers who sell their produce both on the market and on the street are a very heavy competition. The fact is not to be concealed that a wise housekeeper, who has the required means, can save a great deal by laying in a store every month from the wagons of these farmers. For this reason it is interesting to hear of the great change in this competition within the last 20 or 30 years, a change which was explained to me by a grocer who has been in business that length of time.

"Thirty years ago," he said, "farmers within 35 miles of Toronto brought their grain to the city markets, where better prices than their home market gave were to be obtained. Since that time, with the other great improvements, a net-work of railways has been laid, so that now it costs no more for a carload of wheat to be shipped from Newmarket to Montreal than it costs from Toronto to Montreal. The price of wheat is, accordingly, the same all over the country, and farmers no longer do their setling at the Toronto markets. I tell you it has made a vast amount of difference in our business," he said. "Farmers will not journey all the way to the city to sell their produce only, and the market is now left open to us."

A Question of Holidays.

During the last couple of weeks I have heard considerable grumbling over the frequency of holidays; but on summing up the evidence I find that complaints come only from certain classes of merchants, chief among which are the transient traders and market merchants who depend on the farmers' trade. Other stores seem to almost double their receipts on the day preceding the holiday. This causes more work, and the increase of labor is again a subject over which a few lament. But it seems to me that those few were people who could not enjoy a holiday and who could not become enthused over their business, let alone a Jubilee or Dominion Day celebration. The live business man, on the other hand, seems only too glad to take advantage of the privilege. He is not content with the number of holidays we have, but as a general rule he makes Saturday afternoon a holiday in the summer months. I don't mean to say that he is so kind and benevolent to his clerks that he is willing to lose a half day's trade; it is his contention that the clerks will appreciate the holiday and will work with more determination and vigor the rest of the week, and that the public will do their purchasing at some other time. In many cases these retailers, too, close their stores at 6 o'clock in the evening, presumably for the same purpose.

The Bargain Mania.

It is my impression that retail grocers could perhaps profit by introducing a little sensationalism into their business. The public mind seems to have been brought to a state, whether by the department store or not I can't say, that people will not buy unless they think they are getting an article at a bargain figure. Department stores have recognized the change in the public character, and all their elaborate schemes have been inaugurated to induce people to buy. The chief scheme is that of fostering sensationalism. It is very well illustrated by a purchase I saw made at an auction sale a few days ago. It was a sale of household furniture and when I was in a screen door was sold. Three men wanted that screen door at a bargain and when the hammer fell the price was 10c. higher than the price of a door equally as good in a store at which I enquired. Just as merchants' prices go down in competition, so the purchasers' prices go up. It is for this reason that the bargain counters in the department stores are a success. I think the scheme could be worked by more retailers.

RAMBLER.

"How much do these scales weigh?" he inquired of the new clerk.

"I—I don't know, sir," answered the clerk, "but if you will wait one minute I'll weigh them and tell you." —Cincinnati Enquirer.

Boy (to grocer): "Gimme a pound o' coffee." Grocer proceeds to weigh out coffee.

Boy: "No, I mean tea."

Grocer: "Look here, Mr. Crazy-on-Skates, which do you want, tea or coffee?"

Boy: "Butter."

IMITATION CHEESE.

MR. W. A. McKNIGHT, of Liverpool, who, it will be remembered, visited this continent a short time ago in regard to United Stated filled cheese, is still hammering away at the subject, as the following letter in The Liverpool Post of June 26 testifies :

"In your issue of the 1st inst. you published a letter received by the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce from the secretary of the Board of Customs, London, in reference to imitation cheese, which, if allowed to pass without comment, might be the cause of misleading many readers of your paper. One without knowledge of the subject might infer, on reading the letter, particularly the paragraph which I subjoin, that objection had been taken by the Chamber to a single omission from the Liverpool Bill of Entry.

"The Liverpool practice has also been to publish particulars of 'imitation cheese' separately from 'cheese' in the Bill of Entry, except in the case of a recent entry amended to 'imitation cheese' the correction of which entry was not at first recorded in the Bill of Entry, but this omission has since been rectified.

"Instead of complaining of a single omission I plainly state now, as I stated at the time to the Liverpool and Manchester Chambers of Commerce, that prior to my interview with the Liverpool collector of Customs on April 24th last, not a single box of 'imitation cheese' or 'filled cheese' had been entered as such or separated in any way from 'cheese' in the Liverpool Bill of Entry.

"It is a matter of common knowledge in the trade that tens of thousands of boxes of 'imitation cheese' entered Liverpool as pure cheese since 1893. Since April 24th last the under-noted lots—showing a total of 2,933 boxes—have been entered on the Liverpool Bill of Entry as 'imitation cheese': April 28th, 409 boxes ; May 3rd, 24 boxes ; May 4th, 110 boxes ; May 10th, 473 boxes ; May 14th, 441 boxes ; May 25th, 638 boxes ; and June 11th, 838 boxes.

"The secretary of Customs in his letter, also stated that in the 'annual statement of trade' cheese and 'imitation cheese' appear separately.

"The absurdity of such a red-tape item of information, in this connection, is to me plainly evident, seeing that the 'annual statement of trade' for 1896 is not yet published. In the usual way, particulars of 'imitation cheese' imported this year if included, as stated, in the 'annual statement of trade,' would not be available for the information of the trade or the public before July, 1898, which is generally the month this belated 'annual' appears.

"The secretary of Customs in a letter (copy of which is before me), dated May 25, to the Board of Trade, admits that 142 tons of 'imitation cheese' were officially known to have entered the United Kingdom during the first three months of this year. Though I do not agree with the figures given as representing the total imports, I maintain that even these particulars should be within the knowledge of the public at the end of each month instead of being buried in the archives of the London Custom House for twelve to eighteen months."

HONORING A FELLOW TRAVELER.

A general meeting of the Commercial Travelers' Association of Canada was held in their rooms at 51 Yonge street, Toronto, on Saturday evening. The special feature of the meeting, and which accounted for the representative gathering, was the presentation to Mr. Robert H. Gray, the retiring president of the association, of an illuminated address and an oil portrait of himself. Mr. Gray retired from the presidency at the general meeting in December last, after having held the office for two years. He has occupied a seat on the Executive for many years, acting in capacity of treasurer, subsequently as vice-president, and finally as president. His management of the affairs of all his offices has been most judicious, and has continually won praise from the Board of Directors. His portrait will be hung in the rooms of the association to keep in remembrance his genial personality and useful work.

THE TORONTO GROCERS' PICNIC.

Members of the teams of the retail grocers of Toronto and the city travelers that are to race from Port Hope to Cobourg on the day of the retailers' annual picnic, July 21, met for a combined practice at the Woodbine on Tuesday evening. Since this last practice the main grocery topic in Toronto has been the likely results of the bicycle race, and although practising has been going on for a few weeks, hard training is now being compelled by the captains. We hear, too, that a number of travelers have lately changed their hour for going to bed. It is claimed that never was such a moralizing force so visible among wholesale and retail stores.

The travelers are trusting in Parmenter to win the first place, while "Jack" Kelly is the star of the retailers.

The practice in baseball is steadily going on, and although a good game is likely to result, the interest is not so keen as that in the bicycle race.

CANADA'S GREATEST PROBLEM.

THE problem that Canada has to solve is the railway problem. It transcends all others. Important as is the tariff question, it is second in importance to that appertaining to the railway system of the country.

Canada's pride in her system of railways is not unpardonable. For a country of five millions of people, sixteen thousand miles of railway is something we need not be ashamed of.

But while we have no reason to be ashamed of the extent of our railways we have reason to be ashamed at the fact that our precautionary measures for the control of these railways have not kept pace with the expansion of these highways of steel.

The fact of the matter is, that while we have been congratulating ourselves, the railway people have taken the reins out of our control until they are now, to all intents and purposes, our masters instead of our servants.

How to get back what we have lost is the problem which now awaits solution. And woe be it to the business interests of the country unless we do solve it.

The subsidies which the railways have secured, and the peculiar privileges which they enjoy, came from the hands of the people of this country. These subsidies and privileges were given, not for the benefit of these railways, but for the benefit of the districts through which these railways run.

Railway corporations, it is well known, do not possess the quality of gratitude. But what gratitude would not give, justice should have demanded. But Justice has been asleep. Or rather, members of Parliament with passes in their pockets have refused to allow Justice to unsheath her sword.

And the result of this is, that to-day the two great railway systems of the Dominion are conferring favors upon foreign manufacturers at the expense of the home manufacturers.

In many instances freight will be carried from a manufacturing point in the United States five or six hundred miles away to a delivery point in Canada at several cents per hundred pounds below the figure that is demanded for carrying the same goods from a shipping point in Canada three or four hundred miles nearer.

Only a few days ago a well-known manufacturer in Canada received an order from Vancouver for a certain line of goods. As far as the quotable price was concerned, he was quite able to compete with the manufacturers of similar lines in the United States, but when he applied to the railway for a rate he found that it was so high that it precluded the possibility of his filling the order from his own factory.

Not to be outdone, the manufacturer in question placed the order with a manufacturer in Louisville, Kentucky, and getting a rate thirty-three cents lower per hundred pounds from that point to Vancouver than he could have had had he made the goods in his own factory and shipped them from Toronto.

The distance from Louisville to Vancouver we do not know, but a glance at the map shows that Toronto has the advantage of distance.

As the rate asked from Toronto was 90c. and that from Louisville 57c., it is obvious that the Canadian manufacturer in freight alone was handicapped to the extent of over 36 per cent.

This is a most disgraceful state of affairs. It cannot always go on. It must not always go on. But the end of these things will only come when the people of this country arise and say they shall no longer be.

The first essential is a permanent railway commission, composed, not of politicians, but of men known for their integrity, independence and business capability. Such a commission, backed by judicious and efficient laws, would, in time, greatly alleviate the anomalous conditions from which Canadian shippers are now so severely suffering.

CANNED SALMON SITUATION.

IT is about as difficult to fathom the salmon market as it is the Niagara River at the Suspension Bridge.

All sorts of figures are being quoted and sales at all sorts of figures are being reported.

The price at which the well-known leading brands are held is from $3.65 to $3.75 on the Coast. But there have been sales made in Toronto of sockeye fish as low as $3.35 per case on the Coast. The fish sold at this latter figure are not well-known brands; some, in fact, are new brands. But it is averred that they are of standard quality. The figure, $3.35, is the lowest on record.

The representative of one large concern, whose word we have never had occasion to doubt, states that during the past week or two sales aggregating eight thousand cases of new season's fish have been made in Toronto. Included in this quantity were cohoes as well as sockeyes. The prices at which the transactions were made were unobtainable.

The turnover of canned salmon on the Toronto market is estimated at about 30,000 cases.

Advices from the Coast state that the conditions are unsatisfactory, owing to the indiscriminate cutting of prices among the canners there.

The fishing season on the Fraser River opens about July 1, but it is usually not till two weeks later that operations become active. On the northern rivers the season opens earlier, but advices from there are said to be not satisfactory.

On the Fraser this should be what is termed one of the big run years. But as of late big and little run years have lost their significance, very little interest is taken in them. For instance, last year, according to calculations, should have seen a small pack, but instead of a small pack it was the largest on record, being 601,570 cases.

The fact of the matter is that piscatorial science, as exemplified in the artificial hatcheries, has set at naught the natural tendency to short years in salmon production.

In view of the low prices which are expected to rule wholesale houses are making a special effort to dispose of their stocks of last season's pack before the new begins to arrive, which will be about September next.

THE MINIMUM TARIFF AND NEW SOUTH WALES.

AN order-in-council was made a few days ago by the Dominion Government admitting the products of New South Wales to the privileges of the minimum tariff.

This means that until June 30, 1898, the products of the colony in question will be admitted at 12½ per cent. below the rate specified in the ordinary tariff known as schedule A, while on and after July 1, 1898, there will be a further reduction of 12½ per cent.

So far, Great Britain and New South Wales are the only countries which are deemed entitled to enjoy the privileges of the minimum or reciprocal tariff. And this is because both are practically free trade countries.

Unfortunately, the Trade Returns do not enable us to ascertain the value of our exports to, or our imports from, New South Wales. All are grouped under the word "Australasia."

Our total imports from Australasia during the fiscal year 1896 were valued at $213,536, on which duty to the amount of $5,686.87, or over 20¼ per cent., was paid. Our exports aggregated $517,258. Of the total imports from Australasia $26,586 were dutiable and $186,950 free.

On the principle that low tariffs tend to stimulate international trade, the result of the admission of New South Wales to the privileges of the minimum tariff should be an increase in trade between the Dominion and that part of the British Empire.

New South Wales' imports average in round numbers over $100,000,000 annually, inclusive of imports overland, which of late years have run from eight to twenty-two million dollars annually. These overland imports are largely, of course, from the other Australian colonies. The total exports of New South Wales run from about $100,000,000 to $126,000,000 annually.

New South Wales' chief exports, according to the latest returns we have to hand, are: Coal and coke, $3,968,450; gold, $10,233,552; hides and skins, $2,751,278; unmanufactured leather, $1,176,993; horses, $470,412; cattle, $699,564; sheep, $1,487,730; preserved meats, $1,069,112; frozen meats, $942,965; raw sugar, $684,501; ingot tin, $1,242,679; wool, $46,856,865.

The result of the trade between Canada and New South Wales under the new conditions will be awaited with a great deal of interest. For ourselves, we are free to confess that we do not expect to witness much of an expansion.

A dull merchant will always find trade dull.

ANOTHER ADVANCE IN TOBACCO.

A week or two ago THE CANADIAN GROCER intimated that a further advance in the price of tobacco made from domestic leaf was probable.

This intimation has been realized, the Joliette Tobacco Co. having advanced its figures two cents per pound, a total gain of five cents per pound since the new tariff went into force, as against fourteen cents per pound on tobaccos made from imported leaf.

As already stated more than once, the demand for the native tobacco plug has exceeded the capacity of the two factories in Canada to supply, but the direct cause of the present advance appears to be due to the appreciation in the leaf, those holding it asking, in some instances at least, what are termed fabulous prices.

This hot weather should take the starch out of the grocer's store as well as out of his linen.

FRUIT INSPECTOR WANTED.

The Montreal Grocers' Association met at the Monument Nationale Friday evening, July 2nd. It was decided to ask the Government to appoint an official inspector of fruit for Montreal. With this object a requisition will be circulated among the grocers and fruit dealers for signature. It is desired to prevent fruit which is unfit for use from being placed upon the market. The fruit will be inspected in the vessel or elsewhere, and such lots as are unfit for sale marked, in order that merchants will not be deceived in making purchases.

There is just as much need for a fruit inspector as there is for milk, meat, etc.; and the Grocers' Association is to be commended for thus trying to gain protection for the public from unscrupulous pedlars.

A LAW FOR SHOPKEEPERS.

AN Act of some interest to business men was passed during the recent session of the Ontario Legislature. It is entitled "An Act Respecting Shops and Places other than Factories."

The purpose of the Act is to regulate child and female labor in shops. The word "shop" is defined as "any building or portion of a building, booth, stall, or place where goods are handled, or exposed or offered for sale, and any such building, portion of a building, booth, stall or place where good are manufactured, and to which the Ontario Factories Act does not apply."

All the provisions of the Act it is not our purpose to give. Our purpose is merely to refer to those provisions which are of most interest to the mercantile community.

The employment of children under ten years of age is prohibited, while no child, young girl or woman shall be employed in or about any shop before the hour of seven in the morning and after six o'clock in the evening, except on Saturdays or the day before a statutory holiday, and from the 14th to the 24th day of December inclusive. For female employes the Act declares that seats shall be provided.

Clause 13 stipulates that shop owners shall, if the inspector so determines, provide eating rooms for their employes, and clause 14 provides for ventilation and sanitation of the shops.

The penalty for contravention of the Act in the particulars mentioned ranges from $10 to $25.

These are times when governments are becoming more and more solicitous for the well-being of employes, and it is quite proper they should. But it is to be hoped they will not forget that there are also employers who have interests to be safeguarded. Such a thing is quite within the range of possibility, however.

DESTRUCTION OF MATCHES.

During the last few months there has been an extraordinary consumption of matches in Canada. It was not due to the ordinary method of friction. It was caused by conflagrations, four large fires in different parts of the country having consumed large quantities.

What effect these fires may have upon prices THE CANADIAN GROCER cannot positively say, but we have heard enough to prevent our being surprised should an advance take place.

MANITOBA THE ARBITER.

ALTHOUGH commercially or in point of population not as important as many other provinces composing the Dominion, Manitoba has come to be looked upon as, to a great extent, the arbiter of the trade of the country.

"If the crops in Manitoba fail woe be to us," is the cry of the business men in Canada, and especially those in Ontario.

And while the importance thus given to Manitoba may be greater than is warranted, yet the prosperity of the Dominion depends a great deal upon the prosperity of that province.

It is quite reasonable, therefore, that business men in the east should watch with a great deal of interest the development of the crops and the dairying and stock-raising industries of that province.

As far as the present outlook is concerned the conditions are assuring. The crop area is from 10 to 20 per cent. larger than a year ago, and not only is the area larger, but the weather has so far been of a most favorable character. Then, as to the cattle trade, it is expected to show an increase. The same is to be said of the dairying industry. The fact, too, that a market for Manitoba flour is being opened up in Australasia and China is not by any means to be treated lightly. Then there is the benefits which are to be derived from the extension of the cold storage system. This must eventually prove a great boon to the Prairie Province.

Aside altogether from the agricultural conditions of the province, there are the healthier business methods which obtain. The business men in Manitoba have learned by experience the evils of both long credits and reckless buying, and are gradually turning their footsteps into the pathway which they have learned to be the right one.

If it be true that Manitoba be the trade arbiter of the Dominion, it is evident better times are in store for us.

SULTANA RAISINS.

The position of the Sultana raisin market is a strong one.

In the country of production there is no fruit obtainable. The little held in London is too high for importation. Stocks in New York are decidedly light, some houses there, which, as a rule, have thousands of boxes of Sultana raisins in stock having now only a few hundred in stock.

In Canada stocks are light and a scarcity is looked for. The fact that the tariff bill now before the United States Senate imposes a duty of 2c. per pound, an increase of half a cent per pound over the old tariff, tends to strengthen the Canadian as well as the United States market, for it is in New York our wholesalers have for some months been getting a great deal of their supplies of Sultana raisins.

THE SLUMP IN CHEESE.

THOSE cheese operators who sold June make short have now the pleasure of witnessing a heavy slump in values immediately that their short contracts were filled.

These contracts were made on the basis of 8 to 8¼c. Montreal, but the goods cost the shorts all the way from 8¼ to 8½c. in the country, or, in other words, they lost ¼c. per pound on their June deal this year.

It is questionable, however, whether the lesson will prevent similar transactions in future, as the operators in question will now try to even up on the balance of the season.

The farmers have every reason to thank the shorts this year, for had the interest been smaller they would have realized a much lower average price for their June cheese than they did. In fact, it is safe to say that the short contracts put from ⅛ to ¼c. per pound more into the pockets of the farmers than they would have otherwise received. The promptitude with which the market fell off last week fully testifies to this fact.

Once the sustaining influence was withdrawn, prices fell almost the full cent, and that inside of the week, and present appearances point to an even lower level.

The enormous shipments that have gone forward, and the large make so far and at present in progress, have been two influences powerful for a lower range of values.

To date, since the first of May, the exports from Montreal exceed those of last season by 100,000 boxes, while the receipts in the same period at the port have been over 150,000 boxes in excess of last year.

ABNORMAL SCARCITY OF LOBSTERS.

ADVICES received this week amply confirm previous reports regarding an exceptionally short pack of canned lobsters this season.

In fact, to use the expression of a well-known Montreal commission man the other day, "lobsters promise to be as scarce as hens' teeth during the coming season."

A letter received from the Maritime Provinces this week stated that recent storms in the Gulf and elsewhere down there had been very disastrous to the traps, and that the damage could not be repaired in time to make up for the losses. "Talls," especially, will be very scarce this season, as packers have replied that they positively cannot duplicate orders; indeed, in some cases wholesale grocers will have to be content with one-third the quantity that they originally ordered.

As a result, prices asked on goods in stock are firmly held, and jobbers in Montreal who have them have refused bids of $10 for lots, and are likely to ask $12 in a jobbing way ere long if conditions continue as they are at present.

ACTIVITY IN SUGAR.

THE recent decline in sugar values has created a genuine activity in the staple during the past week.

Ever since the pre-tariff buying boom in sugar speculators and jobbers have been working off stocks accumulated then.

This week a leading wholesaler in Montreal told THE GROCER that his firm had closed out the last lots of old stock of sugar, and that the demand from retailers continued so active that they had been compelled to order freely from the refineries.

The latter corroborated this, stating that the enquiry was becoming general.

The retailers no doubt consider that prices are low, and that it is a good time to anticipate the consuming demand for preserving wants. In addition to the demand for domestic refined several good sized lots of foreign refined yellows have been placed here recently, both with wholesale grocers and wholesale confectioners. The exact figure is not known, but as the wholesale grocers who bought it have been offering yellows down pretty low, it is surmised that it cost in the vicinity of 3c.

The fact has had no influence on local refiners' prices, and 3¼c. nett is the inside price asked for yellow sugars this week at the factory.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, July 8, 1897.

GROCERIES.

BUSINESS during the past week has developed a great deal more activity, and a healthier tone generally prevails. This is particularly noticeable in regard to sugar, which is selling much more briskly than it was a week ago, Refiners, as well as wholesalers, are enjoying the increased business. Canned vegetables are meeting with a good demand, but fruits are inactive. The demand is good for canned salmon. Canners' prices for future delivery are, however, unsettled. Coffees, syrups, molasses and spices are all quiet. There is a good deal of rice going out. The same may be said of currants. Teas are quiet.

CANNED GOODS.

Canned peas are about exhausted. The demand is good, and there appears to be now nothing obtainable under 75c. Tomatoes continue strong, with the demand good. Some wholesalers are holding for higher prices, now quoting 77c. as their lowest figure, instead of 75c. as a week or so ago. We hear of one wholesale house selling to a packer at 77c. The demand for corn has fallen off a little, but prices are much as before. In canned salmon there is a fairly good movement of spot goods, but the market for futures is unsettled owing to the cutting which is going on among the packers. Lobsters are in fair demand and dearer. Stocks of canned meats are getting light and higher prices are lookd for. We quote: Tomatoes, 75 to 80c.; corn, 50 to 75c.; peas, 75 to 85c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.65 to $1.95, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $2 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 70 to 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $2.25; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; cohoes, $1.10 to $1.25; canned mackerel, $1.20 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.70; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.30; 2's, $2.25 to $2.40; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

Stocks in Brazil are heavy, and the European markets easy. Locally the market is quiet and unchanged. Jobbers quote green in bags as follows: Rio, 13½ to 15½c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

The situation is without change, business still being dull. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

There is no demand, and the possibility of business being transacted is precluded by the hot weather, which prevents shipments being made. We quote: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGAR.

A much better state of affairs prevails in the sugar market. Since the reduction in price not only have the wholesalers been doing more business, but the refineries have been in receipt of a great many more orders. Granulated they have also been selling, which is something they have not been doing for several weeks. The outside markets are steady. We quote for Toronto as follows: Granulated—St. Lawrence and Redpath's, 4 7-16c. for single barrel lots and 4⅜c. for 5-barrel lots; Acadia, 4⅜c. for single barrel lots, and 4 5-16c. for 5-barrel lots; yellows, 3½ to 4⅛c. per lb.; German granulated, in 100-lb. sacks, 4⅛ to 4¼c. per lb.; Demerara crystals, 3⅞c.

SPICES.

Trade is quiet and featureless. We quote as follows: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 10c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes

NUTS.

Business is quiet and featureless. We quote: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 18 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

Some big orders have been placed during the past week or two for imported rice, both fancy and medium grades. Local wholesalers report the demand for rice good. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¾ to 4½c.; sago, 3½c.

TEAS.

There is very little to note. A few more Japans are offering, but business in this line is singularly quiet for this time of the year. Another week or two will doubtless see a material improvement, however. The local tea market is at the moment about as uninteresting as it well could be. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

Filiatra and Provincial currants are scarce on spot, and those that have them are holding them at firm figures. It appears that there is nothing now on the market under 5⅜c. per lb. The demand is good. We quote: Provincials, 5⅜ to 5½c. in bbls.; ditto, half-bbls., 5⅜ to 5½c.; fine Filiatras, in bbls., 5½ to 5⅝c.; do., half-bbls., 5½ to 5⅝c.; Patras, 5¾ to 6c. in bbls., 5¾ to 6c. in half-bbls., and 6 to 6⅛c. in cases; Vostizzas, cases, 7 to 8c.

Nothing new has developed in regard to Valencia raisins. We quote: Off-stalk, 4¾ to 5½c.; fine off-stalk, 5½ to 6c.; selected, 6 to 6½c.; layers, 6½ to 7c.

Sultana raisins are strong, with demand good. There are none in the country of production, and stocks on spot are light.

California loose muscatels are without feature as far as the local market is concerned. The outside markets are dull and unsettled. We quote: 3-crown, 7¼c.; 4-crown, 8 to 8¼c.

Figs are dull and unchanged. We quote: 10 oz., 7½c.; 10 lb., 9 to 10c.; 18 lb., 10 to 12c.; 28 lb., 11 to 13c.; taps, 3¼ to 3½c. net; natural, 4½c. in bags, and 6 to 6½c. in boxes.

Dates are quiet and unchanged. We quote: 5½ to 6c. for Hallowee and 5 to 5¼c. for Kadrowee.

California evaporated fruits are dull and unchanged. We quote: Peaches, 7 to 10½c. per lb., according to quality; apricots, 6½ to 15c.; pears, 5½ to 10½c.; egg plums, 5½ to 11c.; silver prunes, 8½ to 13½c.

Prunes of all kinds are dull, and holders are anxious to dispose of their stocks. We quote as follows: Bosnias, U's (110 to 113 half kilo), 6 to 6½c.; C's (85 to 90 half kilo), 7 to 7½c. per lb. California, 90 to 100's, 6½c. per lb.; 70 to 80's, 7½c.; 60 to 70's, 7½ to 8c.; 50 to 60's, 8 to 8½c.; 40 to 50's, 9½ to 10½c.; 30 to 40's, 12½ to 13c.; "Ruby" prunes, 7½ to 8c.; French, 4½ to 5c.

GREEN FRUITS.

The fruit trade continues to be exceedingly active. More lines of Canadian fruit have arrived this week, red currants and raspberries having been added to the list. Cherries are almost as important a feature in the market as strawberries; the demand is heavy. Large quantities of tomatoes are being disposed of; several carloads are arriving weekly. The heavy demand in lemons, caused by the hot weather, has induced a stiffening in price. It is likely that the crop of strawberries will be finished quickly by the hot weather. Some dealers say that the supply will cease this week. The quality is now much inferior to that at the beginning of the season. We quote pineapples lower, but it is the size that has decreased. Watermelons are 5c. lower. California fruits are gradually giving way to home-grown varieties. We quote: Oranges—Sorrentos, 200's and 300's, $3.50 to $3.75 per box; 180's, $2.50 to $2.75, three-quarter boxes. Lemons, $2.75 to $3.50. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Onions, 3½c. per lb. for Egyptians. Bananas, $1.25 to $1.75. Pineapples, 7 to 10c. each. Strawberries, 5 to 6c. per quart. New cabbage, $1.75 to $2 per bbl. Mississippi tomatoes, $1.10 to $1.25 per case of 4 baskets. Green beans, 60 to 75c. per basket. Watermelons, 30 to 35c. California peaches, $1.75 to $2 per box; Canadian gooseberries, 30 to 75c. per 12-quart basket; Canadian cherries, 60 to 85c. per basket. Red currants, 65 to 75c. per basket; raspberries, 17 to 18c. per quart.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—Receipts continue fairly large. A good many lots coming forward are arriving in bad condition owing to the hot weather. Some dealers think that the production of butter is considerably larger this season than it was last year up to this time. We notice in The Produce Price Current, New York, that receipts are 12 per cent. in advance of those of last year. The stocks in cold storage in that city are estimated at about 150,000 packages. There is a little better demand for creamery for export trade, but dairy has not improved. In fact, it looks as if the day for exporting dairy butter is gone. There is practically no change from last quotations. We quote: Dairy—Tub, 12c. for best, and others, 7 to 9c.; pound prints, 11 to 13c. Creamery—The supply has fallen off considerably, and as a consequence prices are firm. Tubs, 16c.; prints, 16 to 17c.

CHEESE—The feeling continues easy with a further downward tendency. Local trade is quiet, as is also the export demand, as makers have been tardy in accepting lower prices. It looks, however, as if prices had gone too high and as if lower values would prevail. We quote: Factory price, 8c., jobbing price, 8¾ to 9c.

SALT.

The hot weather has caused an increased demand for salt, so that trade is now brisk. Prices are unchanged. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 60c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl. and 65c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

FISH.

The trade in fish is dull, the hot weather having completely spoiled the demand. We quote: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5c. per lb.; whitefish, 6c.; trout, 6c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

PROVISIONS.

The market has been strong and demand active. Packers have been taxed to their utmost to get orders filled. Everything points to firmer prices. The dealers have had offers at lower prices than those quoted, but in this line there is no shading of prices. Packers will not accept these offers as they know that stocks are light and will all be required. The prices of lard have, however, fallen ½c this week.

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long clear bacon, 7¼c. for carload lots, and 7½ to 7¾c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 8c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 11 to 11½c.; rolls, 8½c.; hams, large, 10½ to 11c.; medium and small, 11½ to 12c.; shoulder hams, 8c.; backs, 11 to 11½c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD—Pure Canadian, tierces, 5¾c.; tubs, 6 to 6¼c.; pails, 6¼ to 6½c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $13 to $13.50; Canadian short-cut, $15 to $16.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—Trade is still brisk. Prices are considerably lower, however. We quote: Red wheat, 65c.; white, 66c.; oats, 22½c.; peas, 41c.

FLOUR—Trade is fair, with no change in prices. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $4.40; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.85; Ontario patents, $3.90 to $4.30; straight roller, $2.30 to $2.35, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS — Trade is moderate, with the price of cornmeal higher. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.10 in bags and $3.20 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.60 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.25 to $2.30; split peas, $3 to $3.25; pot barley, $3 to $3.25.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS — Are unsalable. We quote: Mixed, 30c. and hand-picked 60 to 65c.

HONEY — Dull. We quote: 80 to 90c. per dozen for dark, and $1.50 to $1.75 for light; strained, 6½ to 7½c. per lb.

DRIED APPLES —Still quiet and featureless. The idea as to price is 2 to 2¼c. f.o.b. The local jobbing price ranges from 1½c. per lb. upward.

EVAPORATED APPLES — Dull. Buyers are paying from 3¼ to 3½c. f.o.b. at outside points, and jobbers' prices are from 4 to 5c., according to quality.

EGGS—The hot weather has considerably affected the consumptive demand for eggs, and although prices have not changed materially, there is much pressure to sell, and prices are shaded. For No. 1 current price is 9¼ to 9½c., with single case lots a little higher; for No. 2, 6½ to 7c. We learn of some eggs having been exported, but prices obtained showed considerable loss.

POTATOES—The trade in old potatoes has been very dull, as everybody is enquiring for the new variety. New potatoes are just arriving from the south in quantity, and dealers are selling at $3.50 per large barrel. A few Canadians are coming forward, but they are not as ripe as the southern variety. Old potatoes are worth 25c. by the carload, and price out of store is 30 to 35c.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3. Steerhides: 60 lbs. and up, 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS—Trade is brisk and prices are firm. No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Deatons, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS — We quote: Lambskins, 50c.; pelts, 25c.

WOOL—The price of wool has at last settled, and dealers are now paying 19 to 20c. There is a lull in trade after the large exports of last week.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

Oil dealers have prepared for the annual trade in harvest machine oils. The hay cutting is just about to start, and, from now on, the demand for lubricating oils will be heavy. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14½c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

Lard has dropped ½c. all round.

Wool is 2 to 3c. higher this week.

Hides have risen ½c. and lambskins 10c.

Cornmeal is quoted 5 to 10c. higher this week.

Mr. P. C. Larkin has received an order from Lipton, of London, Eng., for one of his "Ideal" tea packers.

Owing to the demand for oats for export, the price of oatmeal is likely to advance still further. There is a strong feeling in oats and prices of the meal are firm.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, July 8, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THERE has been no radical change in the grocery situation during the past week, except possibly in the active demand noted for sugar from second hands. This enquiry has been more than sufficient to work off all the old stocks of sugar bought during the pre-tariff boom, and as a result the refiners have experienced more demand from jobbers this week. Advices on molasses from the Islands continue steady and previous reports regarding an exceptionally light pack of canned lobsters have been more than confirmed this week, "talls" being reported as especially scarce. Reports regarding California dried fruit are of a conflicting character, but the balance of evidence seems to be in favor of a good yield. Canned salmon are still offered f.o.b. Coast at low prices, so low in fact that a sudden recovery would surprise nobody. Other lines were without feature.

SUGAR.

The decline in prices has contributed to a better demand for refined sugar and besides the preserving demand will soon be on and retailers are stocking up in anticipation of it. As a result there has been quite an active business in sugar during the current week from second to third hands, and stocks of old sugar in the hands of the former will be pretty well cleaned up this week, rendering supplies from the refineries an absolute necessity. Values are steady in a jobbing way as last quoted: Granulated, 1 to 9 barrels, 4⅛c. and 10 barrels and over 4 1-16c., while yellows range all the way fom 3⅜ to 3¾c., as to quantity and quality.

SYRUPS.

There has been a moderate demand for syrups during the past week, and prices continue steady at 1⅜ to 1⅞c., as to quality.

MOLASSES.

The steadier tendency in molasses at primary markets noted recently continues, and wholesale grocers here who tried to get at quotations on Barbadoes at the Islands this week were unable to do so. From this it is argued that the stock remaining in first hands at the Islands has been pretty well absorbed. It is worthy of note in this connection that supplies in jobbers' hands are not by any means excessive. We quote: Barbadoes, 22 to 23c. and Porto Rico, 25 to 29c., according to grade.

RICE.

There has been no change in the rice market, business continuing quiet. We quote: Crystal Japan, $4.50 to $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $4.50 to $5; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

All advices on spices from abroad continue firm on all staple lines. Local business is of a hand-to-mouth character. We quote as follows: Black pepper, 9c.; pure white, 14 to 17c.; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

The coffee market remains very quiet, with jobbing demand dull, and only a few lots of Maracaibo moved in a round way from first hands. Values are unchanged as follows: Maracaibo, 16 to 19c.; Santos, 11 to 15c.; Rio, 11 to 14c.; Mocha, 24c., and Java, 25c.

TEAS.

The tea market has ruled rather quieter this week, only a few 100-package lots of high-grade new crop Japans leaving first hands since last report. In a jobbing way trading is not especially brisk. We quote as follows: Young Hysons, 13 to

18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 12 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 16½ to 20c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

CANNED GOODS.

Business in canned goods has not been especially active during the week. Further low offers of $3.35 to $3.75 f.o.b. Coast have been made on salmon, but jobbers are not eager buyers, though all admit that the price is exceptionally low. Scarcity of lobsters promises to be the striking fact of the canned goods season, and wholesale men here find it absolutely impossible to duplicate orders for talls, which are held very firm. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80c.; corn, 50 to 80c.; peas, 80c.; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 85 to 90c.; gallons, $1.55 to $1.65; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.40 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.35; "Lion," $1.37½ to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.30, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

The Valencia raisin market is a purely nominal one here. Advices from Spain continue favorable regarding the crop. We quote: Ordinary off-stalk, 5¼ to 5½c.; fine, 5¾ to 6c.; selected, 6¼ to 6½c., and layers, 6¾ to 7c.

There has been little change in California raisins. We quote 6¼ to 6¾c. for 2-crown, and 7 to 7½c. for 3-crown.

There has been little change in currants, which we quote at a range of 4 to 4¾c., according to package and quality.

Dates are quiet at 5 to 6c., and figs at 8 to 12c.

Prunes continue featureless at 5½ to 6c. for Bosnia; 4 to 5c. for French, and 6½ to 7c. for California.

NUTS.

Business quiet with nothing new to report. We quote as follows: Grenoble walnuts, 10 to 11c.; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; and cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100.

DRIED APPLES.

Business quiet and prices steady at 2 to 2¼c. for dried, and 3¾ to 4¼c. for evaporated.

GREEN FRUIT.

Business in green fruit has been quite active owing to the excessive heat, and both receivers and distributors of green fruits of all kinds have transacted a large volume of business. Lemons have been in good request, and prices are firm. There has been a good demand for oranges, which are firmly held at figures last quoted. Pineapples are rather easier under increased receipts, but demand is active. Receipts of strawberries have been very heavy, and prices are low in consequence. California peaches and plums are now offering, and more liberal receipts of all kinds of fresh California fruit may be expected from now on. We quote: Valencia oranges, $5 per case; bloods, $2.50 to $3 per half-box, and Messinas, $3 to $3.50 per box; lemons, $2.50 to $3.50 per box for choice, and $1.50 to $2.25 for common; bananas, 40c. to $1.40 per bunch; California cherries, $1.15 to $1.40 per box; apricots, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; pineapples, 10 to 15c. each; Canadian strawberries, 4 to 8c. Egyptian onions, 2½c. per lb., and Bermuda ditto, 2½c. per lb., and $3 per crate; California peaches, $1.50 to $1.75, do. plums, $1.75 to $2.25.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—A fairly active trade was done in eggs to-day, and prices show no change. Selected near-by stock sold at 10½ to 11c; ordinary No. 1 at 9 to 9½c., and No. 2 at 8 to 8½c. per dozen.

MAPLE PRODUCT—The market for maple product is dull and without change. We quote: Maple syrup, 4¾ to 5c. per lb., and 45 to 55c. per tin; sugar, 6 to 6½c. per lb.

HONEY — The demand for honey is exceedingly slow. White clover comb is offering at 10c., and dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c., and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

BEANS — There is no change in beans, sales being slow at 55 to 60c. in car lots, and at 65 to 70c. in a jobbing way.

POTATOES—The demand for potatoes is limited, and prices rule easy at 30 to 40c. in car lots, and at 35 to 45c. in a jobbing way.

A PACKET OF SEED is valuable only when it provides nourishment for birds. To sell the stuff often marketed as bird seed is worse than selling bad bread. With the bread the customer soon sees the bad value. With the seed his bird sickens and dies before the bad value is known. It may take longer in some cases than others, but such seed eventually gets in its work. Lump sugar with rat poison would be more merciful. Then the bird's suffering would not be prolonged.

An honest packet of bird food cannot allow the profit of the other kind. But it pays better in the end. Customers find birds easier to keep. They don't have to buy a bird every few months. They keep more birds. They buy more seed. The grocer makes up on extra sales the legitimate reduction of profit. Makes it up twenty times over. And wonders what becomes of all the Cottams Seed he sells.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

developed a firmer feeling in pork, which we quote 50c. higher than last week. We quote: Canadian pork, $14 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, 6¾ to 7¼c., and compound refined at 5¼ to 5½c. per lb.; hams, 11 to 13c., and bacon, 11 to 12c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

In Manitoba grades of flour millers report a good local business doing, but Ontario dealers state that trade is only of a jobbing character, and, in order to make sales, they have been obliged to reduce prices 10 to 15c. per bbl. on winter patent and straight rollers. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $4 to $4.25; straight rollers, $3.65 to $3.80, and in bags, $1.75 to $1.85. Manitoba strong bakers', choice, $3.85 to $4; outside brands, $3.65 to $3.75, and spring wheat patents, $4.10 to $4.25.

The demand for feed is good, and the market is active and firm at $12 for Manitoba bran, and $13 for shorts per ton, including bags.

The market for rolled oats was stronger to-day, and prices advanced 5 to 10c. per barrel, with sales at $3 per barrel and at $1.45 per bag.

BALED HAY.

There has been an advance in baled hay since last report and prices are $1 per ton higher than they were under light stocks on spot and an active demand. We quote: No. 1, $13 to $13.50 and No. 2, $11 to $11.50.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

The cheese market has been demoralized since last report and prices have slumped off almost one full cent per pound, an extreme bid to-day for Western June cheese being 8c., while Eastern makes are quoted all the way from 7¼ to 7½c. Enormous shipments and an increased make is the direct reason for the slump.

The butter market during the latter days of last week and up till a day or so ago exhibited a firmer feeling. Latterly, however, enquiry has fallen off, but prices are quotably higher than they were last week as follows: Finest creamery 17¼ to 17½c.; seconds, 15¼ to 15½c.; dairy butter, 12c.

MONTREAL NOTES.

Pork has advanced 50c. per barrel during the past week.

salmon, except that some brands are offering at $3.35 f.o.b., which is perhaps the lowest price on record.

Advices from the lobster packing districts state that tall tins are almost impossible to get.

The hot weather has created a regular boom in the green fruit market, and a large volume of business was put through.

All the old stocks of sugar in second hands are practically cleaned out, and this has led to freer orders at the refineries.

Wholesale grocers in Montreal who tried to get quotations at the Islands this week for fresh shipments of Barbadoes molasses were unable to do so, and it is concluded that the stock of prime goods is practically cleaned up.

Advices from the Coast regarding the pack of California dried fruit are contradictory. Some positively assert that it will be lighter than last year, while others assert the direct opposite. The balance of evidence appears to be in favor of the latter, that the crop will be fully up to, if not in excess of, the average.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., July 8, 1897.

THE half year that has gone has been somewhat of a disappointment to merchants. The grocers were disappointed regarding the duties, particularly tea and sugar, and the latter, since the tariff was brought down, has not shown even the strength it possessed before. The half year has, however, had some pleasant sides. The increased value of Porto Rico molasses has been a surprise, and many look with pleasure on their large stocks of tobacco. The increased firmness in canned goods is a matter of satisfaction to some, and it will be to all if it puts the canned goods business on a better basis. The last season has seen little if any money made in these lines, which now form so large a part of a grocer's stock.

OILS—The demand for burning oil continues, as is expected at this season, light. Even lubricating oil at the present is dull. In cod oil, which is brought quite freely by the fishermen to this market, the stock is low, and the new, which will come in shortly, will find it bare. No high prices are, however, expected, as the price in the States is low. We quote: Best American burning oil, 18½ to 19c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 18c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 16c.

SALT—The market continues to absorb a large quantity of salt. It is really a matter of surprise where it all goes. There is a fair stock here, and some fine, via Boston, is daily expected. A cargo of coarse is due from England. Buyers would do well to note that prices are much less ex vessel than ex store. One of our salt merchants is now putting English dairy salt in 10 and 20-lb. wood boxes to compete with the Canadian, which has so long held the market here in that style of package. We quote: Coarse, 44 to 47c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 90c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 to $1.05 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.60 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz.

CANNED GOODS—There continues to be a good deal of interest in these lines by wholesale dealers. Quite a few have bought their salmon. The price is almost $1 below last year. Dealers are buying lightly. There are quite a few of last year's fish still here. In corn dealers have bought quite freely of last season's pack. New is expected to be quite a little higher, but our dealers will be pretty well supplied. One firm to-day bought 1,000 cases, a fair stock for our market. Packers are still backward about quoting for future. In peas and tomatoes market will likely be bare before the new pack comes in. Owing to the fact that quite large stocks were bought last year and no money made, many say they will buy very lightly this year. It is too early to tell if they will stick to that idea. New canned haddies arrive quite freely, meeting fair sales. Lobsters are scarce. We quote as follows: Corn, 55 to 65c.; peas, 70 to 85c.; tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; gallon apples, $1.75 to $1.80; corned beef, Canadian, $2.20 to $2.30; American, 2-lb tins, $2.30 to $2.50; 1-lb tins, $1.30 to $1.50; oysters, 2's, $2 to $2.35; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.25 to $2.75; salmon, $1.25 to $1.40; lobsters, $2.25 to $2.50; haddies, $1.10 to $1.25; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT — Business continues active, particularly in small fruits. In oranges the supply is light and prices rather higher. This is the off season. Lemons are marked up. The new apples so far received are poor. Better fruit is expected next week. In strawberries, the market is now being supplied from Nova Scotia. New Brunswick berries are rather later. Florida tomatoes find a fair sale. Melons are being largely received, and prices are lower. Cucumbers, being more largely received, are lower in price. Rhubarb receipts are falling off. In California fruits sales are limited. We quote: Lemons, $3 to $3.50; oranges, $3.50 to $4; bananas, $1.50 to $2.25; lettuce, 25 to 30c. per doz.; pineapples, 10 to 12c.; strawberries, 12 to 15c.; rhubarb, 1 to 1¼c. per lb.; cucumbers, 60c. per doz.; green apples, $4; Florida tomatoes, $2 to $2.50; California apricots, $2; California cherries, $1.50; cabbage, $2.50 to $2.75; California peaches, $2.

DRIED FRUIT—Stocks of raisins are light and small lots continue to arrive from New York. Prices are easy. Currants keep high. Such demand as there is is for cleaned. Demand for prunes is about over for the season. Sales this year have been light. The feeling in evaporated fruits continues to gain in strength. There is no advance here yet, but with improved demand they will be higher. Peanuts are also on the list for higher prices. They have been particularly low during the past season. We quote as follows: Lemons, $3.50 to $4; oranges, per case, $7; raisins, Valencias, 5¼ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5½ to 5¾c.; bbls., 5 to 5¼c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c.; prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples 2½ to 3c.; evaporated apples, 4 to 4½c.; onions, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.; cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Valencias, layers, 6 to 7c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.

SUGAR—There is no change It is hoped the increased demand usual at this season will help the situation, as stocks are still large, chiefly in granulated. A stronger market would be much appreciated. We quote: Granulated, 4⅛ to 4¼c.; yel-

MOLASSES — The market is rather better, supplies being lighter than was expected. Barbadoes is very low and has but limited sale. Porto Rico holders are firmer. There is still some to arrive, but it is thought prices will still go higher. Some St. Croix here on consignment would be sold low. We quote: Barbadoes, 20 to 22c.; Porto Rico, 26 to 28c.; New Orleans, bbls., 25 to 27c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Eggs continue to have a ready sale. There is very little complaint so far this season about quality. Price shows no change. In creamery butter demand is lighter owing to the large supply of dairy butter, much of which is now good and price low. In cheese our province factories are making more small cheese, running about thirty to thirty-five pounds, than usual. Prices tend easier. Quotations in the West Indies are lower owing to the low New York prices. We quote: Dairy butter, 13 to 16c.; creamery, 17 to 18c.; prints, 19 to 20c.; cheese, 9½ to 10c.; eggs, 9½ to 10c.

FISH—Business is less active. Salmon is about the only thing of real interest. The catch has been light during the past week. There is a good demand and prices are held firm, being much higher than last season at this time. Halibut are in lighter receipt and price is rather higher. Lobsters are out of the market. The business in fresh lobster has been light here this year. Fresh gaspereaux are out of the market. The fishermen are now anxious to sell their alewives, prices of which do not seem to improve. There is but light movement in dry fish, pollock being very dull. In pickled fish, there is no business at all. Smoked herring show no improvement. There is a rather better demand for boneless fish. New pickled shad are offering. We quote as follows: Large cod, $2.85 to $3; medium, $2.50 to $2.60; pollock, $1.15 to $1.25; bay herring, $1.25 to $1.30 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 5 to 6c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50; boneless, 2½ to 8c.; Barrington, $3 per bbl.; Shelburne, $3.25 per bbl.; halibut, 9 to 10c. per lb.; salmon, 11 to 12c.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.

PROVISIONS—There continues to be a light demand, with prices easy. Lard is rather lower. The market never was as low as it now is. Smoked meats keep firm. The chief demand has been for export. The local demand has not been large, but is keeping up better than usual. We quote: Clear pork, $13 50 to $14.50; mess, $12 to $13; plate beef, $11.50 to $13; hams 12½ to 13c.; rolls, 8½ to 9c.; pure lard, 7 to 7¼c.; compound, 6½ to 7c.

FLOUR, MEAL AND FEED — The easy feeling in the flour market continues. This somewhat affects the demand. In middlings, while there is but fair sale, the supply is limited, and the price keeps high. Bran, on the other hand, has dropped off, both in demand and price. The past week, however, shows little change. Oats and oatmeal are both higher and firmly held. Hay is in better demand, and brings a fair price. The crop outlook is but fair. Beans show no change. Price is low. We quote: Manitoba flour, $4.65 to $4.75; best Ontario, $4.25 to $4.35; medium, $3.80 to $4; oatmeal, $3.20 to $3.40; cornmeal, $1.70 to $1.75; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $14 to $15; bran, do, do, $13 to $14; hand-picked beans, 85 to 90c.; prime, 75 to 80c.; oats, 33 to 34c.; hay, $12.50 to $13.50; barley, $2.75 to $3; round peas, $1.15; split peas, $2.85 to $3; yellow eye beans, $1.50; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¾ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

Customs revenue shows a decline for June as compared with June of last year, and also when comparing the past year just ended with the previous one. Receipts for June, 1897, $40,579, and for June, 1896, $57,988, a decrease of over $8,000. Receipts for year 1896-97 were $756,000, while for 1895-96 they were $797,000, which shows a decrease of over $40,000.

Cheap bottled pickles show a very large sale, one wholesale dealer selling 1,200 dozen Canadian pickles in two months.

The rice demand is now for English milled rather than Rangoon, as it is expected it will be allowed the 12½c. rebate in duty.

Mr. Barton Gandy is now packing English dairy and table salt in 10 and 20-pound wood boxes. This is the first time English salt has been so offered.

There are a good many mackerel being caught at Richibucto, some boats taking as many as 500 in a night. The fish are chiefly shipped to Boston in ice.

The arrangements for the fall exhibition are being rapidly pushed forward. This year no entrance fee will be charged, but a small price per square foot of space will be asked.

The lobster canning factory of Burnham Morrell, at Grand Manan, has finished packing for the season. The pack amounted to 1,800 cases, which is rather under that of last year.

The English demand for Prince Edward Island oats continues large. The steamer Nampira cleared from Charlottetown this week with 114,000 bushels. She was loaded by Carvell Bros.

Heinz's pickles and sauces are already known here. It is the intention of the manufacturers to push these goods in this province. Their sale in the other provinces of Canada is already large.

The Woodstock canning factory is being fitted up with the most modern machinery. Beside the regular lines the company intend to can rhubarb, grate horseradish and manufacture fruit syrups and jellies of all kinds.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, July 8, 1897.

TRADE generally is very fair, but little change has taken place in either prices or amount of sales during the past week. Sugar is slightly easier. Cheese has taken a drop, which was expected. Some lines of green fruit are a little higher, noticeably bananas, but this is supposed to be due to 4th of July trade on the American side and is not expected to continue. The warm rains of the past two weeks have advanced vegetation wonderfully, and throughout the province the outlook is encouraging.

BUTTER — Creamery from 23,000 to 25,000 lbs. per week is being manufactured; the price is 14½ to 15c., and 16c. for some choice lots. The tendency to hold for higher prices continues, and in fact is stronger than last week.

CHEESE—Supply is not so very large, but price is low. It is reported that some purchases were made on Saturday as low as 6¾c., but the general price is 7 to 7½c.

EGGS—On Wednesday there was an advance of 1c. per doz. on eggs. Dealers pay 10c. and sell to jobbers, after candling, at 12c.

GREEN FRUITS — This market is now supplied with a good variety and the sales are large. Winnipeg gets the reputation of consuming an enormous quantity of fruit considering the population, and that in view of the fact that almost all fruit is imported. The supply of vegetables from local market gardens is very good; no part of the Dominion can show finer vegetables than the Red River Valley. Prices for this market are as follows: California late Valencia oranges, $6 to $6.50 box; Mediterranean sweets, $4.50 per box; St. Michaels, $5.25 per box; Messina lemons, $5.50 to $6; bananas, $2 to $2.75 per bunch; pineapples, $3 to $3.75 per dozen; pie plant, 1½c. per pound; strawberries, $4 to $4.50 per case of 24 baskets; tomatoes, $1.75 per crate of 4 baskets; California cherries, $1.50 to $1.75 per box; apricots, $2 box; California plums, $2.50 box; California peaches, $2.25 to $2.50 box; onions, $4 per 100 lbs; new cabbage, $3.50 to $4 per 100 lbs.; dates, 6½ to 7c. per lb.; layer figs, 12½ to 15c. lb.; asparagus, local, 40c. doz.; cucumbers, 75c. to $1 doz.; watermelons, $8.50 to $9 per doz.

CANNED GOODS—This market is unchanged. Strawberries are getting rather scarce, but the new pack is expected almost immediately. In other lines no move is apparent at present.

COFFEE—Rios remain at last week's figure, 13½c.; Javas, 28c., and Mocha 37c.

TEA—Nothing is being done in this market at present.

CURED MEATS—Trade is steady in this line and markets range as follows: Prices are: Hams, assorted, 10½ to 11c.; breakfast bacon, bellies, 10½ to 11c.; do., backs, 9½ to 10c.; short spiced rolls, 7½ to 8c.; shoulders, 6 to 6½c.; smoked long clear, 8½ to 9c.; fancy clear, 8 to 8½c. Dry salt meats are quoted: Long clear bacon, 7 to 7½c. per lb.; shoulders, 5¼ to 5¾c.; boneless shoulders, 6½ to 7c.; backs, 7¾ to 8¼c.; extra charge of ½c. for canvassed meats; barrel pork, clear mess, $13 to $13.50; short cut, $15.50 to $16; rolled shoulders, $13 to $13.50 per barrel.

POULTRY—A few spring chickens have come in, and brought 30c. per pair. Chickens are rather firmer. Chickens, live, 50 to 55c. per pair, or 10c. per lb. dressed; turkeys, 9½ to 10c. per lb., live weight; ducks, 50 to 60c. per pair.

LARD—Prices are: Pure, $1.70 to $1.75 for 20-lb. pails, and $4.25 for 50-lb. pails; pure leaf lard in 3, 5 and 10-lb. tins, quoted at $6 per case of 60 pounds; tierces, 8 to 8¼c.

CEREALS—Rolled oatmeal, 80-lb. sacks, $1.50 per sack; granulated, 98 lbs., $1.75; standard, 98 lbs., $1.75; rolled wheat, 80 lbs., $1.75 sack; pot barley, 98 lbs., $1.75; pearl barley, 98 lbs., $3.25 sack.

THE MAN AND THE OPPORTUNITY.

A BOY in England had been run over by the cars, and the bright blood spurted from a severed artery. No one seemed to know what to do until another boy, Astley Cooper, took his handkerchief and stopped the bleeding by pressure above the wound. The praise which Astley received for thus saving the boy's life encouraged him to become a surgeon, the foremost of his day.

"The time comes to the young surgeon," says Arnold, "when, after long waiting, and patient study and experiment, he is suddenly confronted with his first critical operation. The great surgeon is away. Time is pressing. Life and death hang in the balance. Is he equal to the emergency? Can he fill the great surgeon's place, and do his work? If he can, he is the one of all others who is wanted. His opportunity confronts him. He and it are face to face. Shall he confess his ignorance and inability, or step into fame and fortune? It is for him to say."

Are you prepared for a great opportunity?

"Hawthorne dined one day with Longfellow," said James T. Fields, "and brought a friend with him from Salem. After dinner the friend said 'I have been trying to persuade Hawthorne to write a story based upon a legend of Acadia, and still current there—the legend of a girl who, in the dispersion of the Acadians, was separated from her lover, and passed her life in waiting and seeking for him, and only found him dying in a hospital when both were old.' Longfellow wondered that the legend did not strike the fancy of Hawthorne, and he said to him, 'If you have really made up your mind not to use it for a story, will you let me have it for a poem?' To this Hawthorne consented, and promised, moreover, not to treat the subject in prose till Longfellow had seen what he could do with it in verse. Longfellow seized his opportunity and gave to the world 'Evangeline, or the Exile of the Acadians.'"

Of what value was the old story of Shylock and his pound of flesh (contained in a dozen lines) till Shakespeare touched it with his magic pen and transformed it into a realistic drama?

Open eyes will discover opportunities everywhere; open ears will never fail to detect the cries of those who are perishing for assistance; open hearts will never want for worthy objects upon which to bestow their gifts; open hands will never lack for noble work to do.

Everybody had noticed the overflow when a solid is immersed in a vessel filled with water, although no one had made use of his knowledge that the body displaces its exact bulk of liquid; but when Archimedes observed the fact, he perceived therein an easy method of finding the cubical contents of objects, however irregular in shape. Everybody knew how steadily a suspended weight, when moved, sways back and forth until friction and the resistance of the air bring it to rest, yet no one considered this information of the slightest practical importance; but the boy Galileo, as he watched a lamp left swinging by accident in the cathedral at Pisa, saw in the regularity of those oscillations the useful principle of the pendulum. Even the iron doors of a prison were not enough to shut him out from research, for he experimented with the straw of his cell, and learned valuable lessons about the relative strength of tubes and rods of equal diameters. For ages astronomers had been familiar with the rings of Saturn, and regarded them merely as curious exceptions to the supposed law of planetary formation; but Laplace saw that, instead of being exceptions, they are the sole remaining visible evidences of certain stages in the invariable process of star manufacture, and from their mute testimony he added a valuable chapter to the scientific history of creation. There

"Let's Liven Up Stock"

"All right—go ahead, but get something that will sell—no room for anything but staples."

So replied the grocer to his wide awake clerk.

Clerk sat right down and ordered a line of Boeckh's Household Brushes—got 'em from Boeckh's illustrated catalogue. He didn't forget that a 40 years experience meant something to his employer.

was not a sailor in Europe who had not wondered what might lie beyond the Western Ocean, but it remained for Columbus to steer boldly out into an unknown sea and discover a new world. Innumerable apples had fallen from trees, often hitting heedless men on the head as if to set them thinking, but not before Newton did anyone realize that they fell to the earth by the same law which holds the planets in their courses and prevents the momentum of all the atoms in the universe from hurling them wildly back to chaos. Lightning had dazzled the eyes and thunder had jarred the ears of men since the days of Adam in the vain attempt to call their attention to the all-pervading and tremendous energy of electricity, but the discharges of heaven's artillery were seen and heard only by the eye and ear of terror until Franklin, by a simple experiment, proved that lightning is but one manifestation of a resistless yet controllable force, abundant as air and water.

Like many others, these men are considered great, simply because they improved opportunities common to the whole human race. Read the story of any successful man and mark its moral, told thousands of years ago by Solomon: "Seest thou a man diligent in his business? He shall stand before kings." This proverb is well illustrated by the career of the industrious Franklin, for he stood before five kings and dined with two.—"Pushing to the Front."

SHELLFISH AND SPONGES IN THE ARCTIC.

It is evident, according to Nansen, that the waters of the polar sea are far from being deserted by living creatures, says The Journal des Debats. Wherever the sea is open, or partly so, seals, narwhals and birds abound, and on the heaps of ice near the edge of the water the bears are numerous. Under the ice marine animals are not wanting. The explorers found in abundance little crustaceans, whose discovery was the result of an accident. One day the cook sunk a piece of meat in a hole which he had cut in the ice with a view of thawing it out. That method is often resorted to for the purpose of sparing the fuel. Forty-eight hours afterward, while taking out the meat, the cook was astonished to find an immense number of little animals that dropped from the surface of the ice and commenced to jump like fleas.

Nansen, who is a professor of zoology, had no trouble in recognizing these little crustaceans, which may be seen jumping on the sand, and which are called sand fleas. He was delighted at the discovery, because the creatures are good to eat, although they contain but little nourishment. A few months later on, when in 78 or 80 degrees north latitude, in October, that is to say, at the beginning of the long winter night, he fished up in a little net with close meshes a quantity of little crustaceans. This proves that life is by no means suspended under the ice; on the contrary, it is very active. In the mud of the bottom, where the water is shallow, there are numerous starfish, mollusks, worms, sponges and several species of crustacea.

THE CLERK SLEPT.

Last week a friend of mine, a grocer from the West Side, invited me to go along with him in the afternoon to look at his store. I expected I would see the store cleaned up; fruits and vegetables taken out of the sun, and the clerks busy putting up goods in packages ready for the busy parts of the day, or the next day, or arranging the goods on the shelves.

What did I see?

The head clerk behind the boxes taking a nap; he had not expected that his boss would come back so soon. The salad, spinach and strawberries in a pitiful condition in the hot sun; the floor of the store unswept and covered with scraps of paper and vegetable leaves, and the little greenhorn trying to wait upon a customer. I was surprised. I ought to blame the boss, but in his absence I thought the head clerk ought to be blamed as much, especially as he was laying in the back of the store sleeping. I told my friend so. The next day the head clerk received his walking papers and a new one was put in his place. Wonder if this one will do any better?—Merchants' Review.

CONDENSED MILK.

NOT long since several Canadian dairies were seized by the authorities, on account of the impure milk sold. It is believed that this is one agency that has bred the prevalent scarlet fever. So dangerous has the evil become in Toronto, that the medical health officer has issued a notice requesting the public to boil its milk before using. On account of the fear engendered by these actions of the authorities, it would seem a very appropriate time for the grocers to push the sale of condensed milk, not only for the benefit of families of children, but also for campers who find it inconvenient to procure the original article.

During the past eight or nine months the extent and importance of the condensed milk trade has become a subject for study in the province of Nova Scotia. The essential features for producing an article of this character are an abundance of pure water, rigid inspection of the milk, and a knowledge of the delicate manipulation of its treatment. The residents of the province claim that all these requirements are to be found in Nova Scotia. Being a maritime province its climate is cool; by the results of the analysis of the Dominion inspector its waters are pure, and since the province has long had the reputation for being a good cattle grazing district, the residents must have a thorough knowledge of the treatment of milk.

The Canadian Milk Condensing Co. is the style under which the organizers of one of the few plants of Nova Scotia are known. This company claims that its new plant is particularly well adapted for the successful prosecution of the industry, and that as it is situated in the Antigonish district, its products are the best. The company proposes to manufacture a brand that will sell for less money and yet be a better quality than the imported milk. The "Owl Brand," as it is called, is manufactured from full-cream milk, is guaranteed to be perfectly soluble and thus have no waste, and to have sugar of milk at the bottom of each tin, a positive proof of its purity.

HAMILTON BOARD OF TRADE.

The annual meeting of the Hamilton Board of Trade was held on Saturday afternoon, President W. A. Robinson in the chair, and a small attendance of members. The president read the Council's annual report, which stated that the board is getting out of debt. The citizens were congratulated on the city's increased railway facilities, the extension of the H., G. & B. Railway to Beamsville, and the completion of the Radial Electric Railway. The outlook for the year was regarded as hopeful, especially in reference to the crops. The financial statement showed receipts to have been $1,076.67, and expenditures $1,319.51, of which $375 was payment of an old debt.

Officers were elected as follows: Mr. W. F. Findlay, president; Mr. Samuel Barker, vice-president; Mr. C. R. Smith, secretary-treasurer. Council—Messrs. John Knox, W. H. Gillard, Geo. Roach, W. A. Robinson, M.P. Board of Arbitration—Messrs. B. E. Charlton, J. M. Lottridge, F. H. Lamb and W. C. Breckenridge. Mr. H. N. Kittson gave notice of motion to have the date of the annual meeting changed from July to January. The retiring president was given a vote of thanks on motion of Messrs. H. N. Kittson and John Knox.

A PRACTICAL JOKER.

It was one drummer discussing another of the craft. "I see that Bob's in trouble at last. There's the greatest practical joker that ever lived, bar nobody."

"He's a peach."

"A peach? He's the whole Delaware crop in season without any spring frosts. He'll have fun regardless of expense. Over in San Francisco he gave the tailor and the barber carte blanche on a banana peddler, took him to a swell hotel, had it whispered about that he was an Italian prince and turned things inside out. The waiters were looking after no one but the prince. The ladies would sit in the dining room all day but what they would see his royal 'nibs.'

"The clerk was so puffed up that he lost his job and even the proprietor put on a few extra frills. It wound up by Bob having the 'prince' identified while he was hilarious guest of honor with the swagger boys at a fashionable club.

"Bob once hired a band to play 'God Save the Queen' in front of a hall in which there was a Fenian meeting, and the police force had no time to eat or sleep for three days."

"But what's the trouble now?"

"Got up an Indian riot on the reservation. Taught a few bucks and squaws how to ride a bicycle. Of course the craze spread and then Bob sent out a notice that a wheel would be given out in exchange for each pony brought to the agency. There was a grand rush, the agent fled for his life, and pretty much everything was demolished in the wild search for bicycles. Now Bob will be in the toils till Uncle Sam decides what to do with him."—Detroit Free Press.

ST. JOHN GROCERS' PICNIC.

The Retail Grocers' Association of St. John, N.B., are holding their annual picnic this year on August 18. They are always credited with having a good time and a successful day's sport, and we feel sure that this year will be no exception. We hope so, anyway.

TRADE CHAT.

ARTHUR WATERMAN, formerly a porter at Fitzgerald & Scandrett's grocery, London, was up for trial on three charges of stealing from the firm which employed him. The goods taken were chiefly tobacco and cigarettes, valued at $61.94. Waterman pleaded guilty, and attributed his trouble to expenses connected with his wedding. He was remanded for sentence.

For some years past a number of the people of Miscouche, P.E.I., have grown tobacco on a small scale successfully. A quantity of home-grown has been sent to a Charlottetown tobacconist to be experimented with. If the experiment proves that it can be successfully manufactured either by itself or mixed with imported stock the culture of tobacco will be more extensively undertaken by the people who are now growing small plots of it for their own use only.—Halifax Herald.

E. E. Adams, of Leamington, J. D. Wigle, Wellington Wigle, and L. C. Palmer, of Kingsville, have all made heavy shipments of strawberries this season to Ottawa and Montreal. This is the first time that early fruit has been shipped to these places from that district, and the fruit growers have had to depend on the Detroit market. The cause of this departure on the part of growers is the refrigerator cars that have been constructed. Consignees speak in very flattering terms of the quick and direct service given.

CHEESE MAKING.

The process of making cheese, says an exchange, may be briefly described as follows: The milk is heated to eighty-six degrees and rennet added at the rate of two ounces to 1,000 pounds of milk. It is gently stirred until it begins to coagulate. In about an hour, when it breaks clean over the finger, it is cut into pieces about one-half to one-quarter of an inch in diameter. It is then heated slowly to about ninety-eight degrees and allowed to stand until the acidity has sufficiently developed. If a double handful pressed together will fall apart it is about right. It is then placed on a rack covered with cheese cloth and allowed to drain, being stirred a little at first to facilitate the separation of the whey. After this it is left a few minutes until the curd mats, when it is cut into blocks about ten inches square. These are turned occasionally until the curd assumes a meaty texture like the breast of a chicken, when it is cut into small pieces. The pieces are stirred every little while for about an hour and a half, when it is salted and pressed. After being pressed, the cheese should be placed in a curing room for at least three months.

IN THE HANDS OF AN ARTIST.

THE following was handed THE CANADIAN GROCER by a well-known wholesaler. It is from the pen of Tom Swalwell, and was first published some years ago in a Toronto daily: A story was told the other night by a grocery traveler, while coming down on the train, that may interest the hundreds of commercial men who are laid up in town this week. Mr. Groceryman had just returned from Port Arthur. He said:

Boys, I had the conceit washed clean out of me one day this trip. It was like this: I met an old friend away out west, Mr. Herbert Montague, who is now selling safes. He asked me to put a good word in for him with my customers. After selling one man a bill I said: "If you want a safe now is your chance; there's a friend of mine in town representing the best safe works in Canada." He told me he did not want a safe: had no use for one, and the man did not live that could talk him into buying a safe; times were too hard, and he would not think of it for a moment. Who should walk in at that moment but Montague. There were several men in the store. I introduced him to the merchant; at the same time I knew it was no use in him talking safes in that camp. He began by talking about the romantic scenery and gradually got round to talking about the danger of fires: He said: "Gentlemen, I have not slept for two weeks; I have been haunted night after night; when I was over in Manitoulin Island I saw a fire sweep away the savings of a man's lifetime; at ten o'clock he was in comfortable circumstances; midnight found him a beggar without a dollar to bless himself; having no safe his books, papers and deeds were swept away like chaff before the wind; his little relics and family treasures were burnt; birthday and Christmas presents; the photographs of his little children laid away in the churchyard—all were swept away before his eyes. Ah, gentlemen, I have not slept since; I see that poor fellow wringing his hands and crying like a child, moaning, 'I'm ruined! ruined! ruined!' May heaven spare me from ever seeing the like again. The other merchant who was burnt out at the same time came and shook me by the hand, 'Montague, I am under an obligation to you which I can never repay; I am, indeed, thankful; if it had not been for the safe you got me to buy last summer I would have been a ruined man; my books are saved, my papers, deeds—insurance policies are all right. Although the fire blazed and hissed around the safe for over an hour it stood the test nobly, and I'm saved.'"

As Montague told this touching story I noticed the tears were trickling down the merchant's face, in fact there was hardly a dry eye in the house. Montague did not offer to sell the merchant a safe, but as he was preparing to leave the storekeeper called him to one side and said: "I guess I'd better have a safe and I want it shipped at once. I'm afraid I will not be able to sleep till I get it—hurry it along that's a good fellow." The deal was soon made. As we walked back to the hotel I said, "That man told me he would not buy a safe at any price?" "My dear boy, any fool can sell molasses, but it requires an artist to handle safes."

CHAT WITH A NOVA SCOTIAN.

While at Niagara Falls a few days ago THE CANADIAN GROCER ran against Mr. J. C. Harlow, an Amherst, N.S., manufacturer.

Mr. Harlow is a pleasant gentleman, who has great admiration for the Maritime Provinces. "Nova Scotia," he declared with emphasis, "is the best part of the Dominion." And then he began to enlarge upon its climate, its fisheries, its lumber, coal, iron and gold mining industries.

As to trade prospects, he was sanguine about them, feeling confident the country was now on the road to better times.

A GROWING BUSINESS.

THE CANADIAN GROCER while in Fort William recently called on the Hudson Bay Company and noticed that they had made extensive alterations in their store, which gives them separate departments for their dry goods, carpets, boots and shoes, crockery, groceries and liquors; in fact, their establishment presents quite a departmental store appearance. The local manager, Mr. H. Marlatt, reports business as being good, and the prospects for Fort William as being second to none of any town in Canada. THE CANADIAN GROCER and Dry Goods Review are welcome guests in their establishment.

MARRIAGE OF A GROCER.

A few days ago, at 147 Christie street, Toronto, Mr. Peter J. Mitchell, grocer, Gladstone avenue, was married to Miss Bertha Pippie, of 147 Christie street. Rev. C. O. Johnston officiated. The groomsman was Mr. Marcus D. Mitchell, brother of the bridegroom, and bridesmaid Miss Pippie, the bride's sister. After the reception and wedding dinner, the newly-married couple left for Niagara and Buffalo. The presents were numerous and useful.

AN ENTERPRISING FIRM.

The "Salada" Ceylon Tea Co., besides doing business in every city, town, village and hamlet in Canada, from Cape Breton to Victoria, have also branches in Buffalo, Pittsburg, Boston, Detroit, Rochester, Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Youngstown, O., Washington, and are doing business all through the districts that are tributary to those cities. It is good to see a Canadian firm with enterprise enough to spread in this way.

R. J. GRAHAM - BELLEVILLE, ONT.

SUGAR REFINERS AND FOREIGN BOUNTIES.

THE depressed condition of the English sugar refining business was recently brought prominently before the Council of the Bristol Chamber of Commerce, in consequence of a deputation of Bristol sugar refiners waiting upon that body to introduce the question. Mr. H. J. Mirehouse (who was accompanied by Messrs. F. Moline, T. G. Matthews and R. F. Miles) first pointed out that Bristol had been for 200 years a sugar refining centre, and more than this, it was the chief port for West Indian sugar. But of all the West Indian merchants and importers not one existed now, and no cane sugar has been brought into Bristol of late years, unless small quantities from London and Liverpool. Yet Bristol from its situation should refine about 60,000 or 70,000 tons per year, and as an inland port ought to cover the ground to Birmingham, Oxford, Exeter, and South Wales. In the matter of corn distribution it did cover this area, but in the article sugar it did not, and the Bristol docks lost in consequence, and there was great loss also to the labor market. The Bristol docks authorities had supplied him with statistics showing that in 1874, of 89,597 tons of sugar Bristol supplied, 81,819 was refined in the city and 7,778 tons abroad. In 1896 out of 75,859 tons which Bristol distributed, 19,363 tons only were refined in Bristol and 56,497 abroad. The effect of this importation of foreign refined was that, whereas his company a few years ago built up a very considerable reserve fund, that had gone, and a large part of their subscribed capital had been further lost, and the loss continued although expenses had been cut to the lowest point. Refiners had no interest in sugar being dear; all they wished was to have a fair margin between the cost of raw material and the refined article, and this was now made impossible by the bounties on foreign refined. The small additional cost to the consumer would scarcely be felt; the jam trade would not be lessened, the confectionery trade had not much increased of late years. In the discussion which followed the statement on behalf of the deputation, Mr. J. Howell, a member of the Chamber, spoke sympathetically with the refiners, deploring that an important industry was practically in almost its last gasp. When the West Indian supply was destroyed, and the English refineries crushed they would have to pay the price of their folly in the fancy prices French and German houses would exact. Mr. C. Mardon spoke to the same effect, and desired joint action between the Chambers of Commerce of Bristol, Liverpool, Greenock and London, with a view to formulating a scheme to lay before Parliament. Mr. B. Perry also trusted that a practical result would be reached, and hoped that the Chamber might strengthen the hands of those who approached members of the Government. Both Mr. Howell and Mr. Perry regarded a countervailing duty as the only remedy, and Mr. Mirehouse said that was the view of the sugar refiners although they were ultra free traders. A countervailing duty would be in accord with the principles of free trade. Mr. G. H. Perrin thought it would open a big question, and agriculture would claim protection; and Mr. J. Holman, the chairman of the Chamber, also thought it would resolve itself into a form of protection. Mr. Mirehouse explained, in reply to questions, that as a preliminary movement, the refiners' association did not wish action on a contentious subject taken before the Jubilee, but when the proper time came he hoped the Chamber would support representations made to the Government, and would point out what was lost to Bristol trade by the decline of home refining.— London Grocers' Gazette.

The express companies have made reduced rates to fruit growers in Essex County. The reduction is from 5 to 20 per cent., and it now places the Essex fruit growers on the same basis with those from the Niagara district.

ADVERTISING TIP.

Some merchants think, it's very clear,
That advertising is a nut,
A very hard one, too, they fear,
It may, in time, be opened, but—
May be the meat will not be good.
They try a little ad —one line,
Then if returns are not immense,
"I told you so · the words were mine,
'Twas nothing but a fool expense,
I always said 't would do no good."

BIG RUN ON STURGEON.

Nearly every man at Southampton, L. I., is working from daylight till dark catching sturgeon, and nearly all the women are canning the roes and smoking the rest of the fish, says The New York Sun. This is the first good sturgeon fishing along the coast of Long Island in many years. It is a sight to stand on the shore and watch the men net the beautifully colored fish. One end of the net is fastened to the shore, while the other is towed out to sea several hundred yards. The sturgeon, which are sporting and jumping about in the sea, become entangled in the nets, and when several are seen to be fast the net is pulled ashore. Men, women and children pull on the net with a will, and soon several of the handsome "trout of the sea" are lying helpless on the sand. A man with big muscles heads each party. He often thrusts a lance into the fish because they are too slow in dying.

The sturgeon, weighing anywhere from ten to three hundred pounds, are skinned almost before they are dead. The minute a female sturgeon has been cut open the women carry the roes away in pans. They are carefully canned; the remainder of the fish is smoked in barrels turned into miniature smokehouses. Nearly every yard has a dozen or more of these barrel smokehouses.

There are mortgages now in the town that will be raised, and there are debts that look doubtful to creditors that they will now be able to collect if the sturgeon continue to sport and play off Westhampton beach. One woman, who stood in wet shoes and stockings, her arms sunburned to the elbows, said that she and her husband had put away, as nearly as she could tell, about $800 worth of canned roes and smoked sturgeon. If the good fishing continues two weeks longer they hope to save between $1,200 and $1,500 worth of marketable sturgeon.

By mutual consent the men and women have agreed to stop fishing over Sunday.

YES INDEED. . . .

That Mammoth Package of Cream Sodas has come to stay. We were a little dubious about it at first. It costs money to experiment in this sort of thing, and we were naturally anxious, but the public appreciate a good thing, and they know a good thing when they see it. If you have not had our Cream Sodas in this new 3-pound package just send us a card for a case of them. By the way, just let us ask you to watch this space every week; it will pay you to read our "ad" in THE GROCER. It is always in the same place.

MINT ... PUFF-STRAPS

RECOGNIZING the great popularity of peppermint with the sweets-loving public, we are the first to introduce to the trade Pliable Licorice containing this flavor.

The delicious quality of our Pliable Licorice is well known; it is matchless in this respect as well as in its flavor and finish.

Our Triple Tunnel Tubes and Navy Plugs are great favorites also, and are made of the same material, although flavored differently. . . . . .

We recommend all these goods as suitable for Summer Trade; they will please the most exacting taste as wholesome, smooth and palatable confections. . . .

Seasonable Goods!

Trade tonics for the "dull season." Business builders. Here they are——.

Stower's Lime Juice

The most economical for your customers because 20 per cent. stronger than any other. Absolutely pure Lime Juice—purified twice over! A money-maker and a "customer-keeper." A quick, seasonable seller for now!

Stower's Lime Juice Cordial

Absolutely no musty flavor so common in similar preparations. Not a drop of alcohol in it. Used by the Queen and both Houses of Parliament. The highest quality made anywhere by anybody. Good profits for you in handling it.

Fry's Cocoas and Chocolates

Pure Cocoa—Pure Chocolate. No purer made than "Fry's." Hence they go farthest in the household. You please your customers in this economical way and give them highest quality too. 100 medals awarded to the House of Fry. Think of that!

"Thistle" Brand of Finnan Haddies

The new pack is in. The brand that's cured, packed, canned, and sealed "on honor." Its strong selling points—freshness, delicate flavor, cleanliness. Nothing but real Finnan Haddies inside the can. Despite fierce competition they have led all other brands in point of quality, for over fourteen years.

A BALLAD OF THE RANKS.

(Adapted from A. Conan Doyle.)

Who carries the Gun ?
A lad from over the Tweed.
What's he got in his bag ?
Eddy's Matches of which we read.
Then let him go, for well we know
He comes of a soldier breed.
So drink together to rock and heather,
Out where the red deer run,
And stands aside for Scotland's pride,
The lad that carries the gun.

Chorus.—For the colonel rides before,
The major 's on the flank,
The captains and the adjutants
Are in the foremost rank.
But, when it's "Action front !"
And fighting's to be done,
'Baccy and pipe and Eddy's Matches
They for the moment shun,
Come one, come all, you stand or fall
By the man who holds the gun.

Who carries the gun ?
A lad from a Yorkshire dale,
He's provided with Eddy's Flamer Match
That won't go out in a gale.
Then let him go, for well we know
The heart that never will fail.
Here's to the fire of Lancashire,
And here's to her soldier son ;
For the hard-bit North has sent him forth,
The lad that carries the gun.

Who carries the gun ?
A lad from a Midland shire.
What kind of matches does he use ?
Eddy's when he wants sure fire.
Then let him go, for well we know
He comes of an English sire.
Here's a glass to a Midland lass,
And each can choose the one,
But east and west we claim the best
For the lad that carries the gun.

Who carries the gun ?
A lad from the hills of Wales.
He too uses Eddy's Matches
The kind that never fails.
Then let him go, for well we know
That Taffy is hard as nails.
There are several ll's in the place he dwells,
And of w's more than one,
With a "Lan" and "Pen," but it breeds good men,
And it's they who carry the gun.

Who carries the gun ?
A lad from the Windy West,
His kit includes a box of Eddy's
They're known to be the best.
We'll let him go, for well we know
That he is one of the best.
There's Bristol rough and Gloucester tough,
And Devon yields to none,
Or you may get in Somerset
A lad to carry the gun.

PRINCIPLES IN FINANCE—BARTER.

Henry Douglas Parmelee in Business.

THAT there has been a gradually increasing desire on the part of many to obtain a general idea of the science of economics has been recently in great evidence. It was pointed out, some months ago, that the campaign of 1896 had given rise to this desire on the part of all men who wished to be well informed upon subjects of vital importance to the nation. The currency literature of that campaign went far beyond monetary science, and encroached upon the subjects of labor, capital, immigration and many allied subjects.

Intelligent inquiries in regard to these subjects, and those related to them, have been constantly received by the newspapers and financial journals throughout the country. These alone furnish one of the best evidences of the growing popularity of economics.

There is much which is contained in the science of economics which is well known to practical business men, and which arises in their every-day transactions. They may not know the multitudinous relations which these subjects have, but for all practical purposes they are often contented and satisfied with their knowledge. The broad-minded business man is not content with a circumscribed knowledge of economics, and he will always be ready to learn anything which will help him in his daily business. The following advice, which was given not long ago by one of the retired merchants of New York City, is an encouraging evidence of the love of knowledge fostered by a business life and a realization of the value of all study.

A young man in his sophomore year in one of our large universities had occasion to visit the above-mentioned retired merchant and found him reading in his library. During a conversation, which was mainly in regard to the young man's studies at the university, the gentleman asked: "Do you study economics?" and upon being told that that was a subject which did not come until the junior year, the gentleman said:

"When I first entered business, many years ago, as a clerk in one of the large shipping houses in New York City, my education was exceedingly limited. I was under continual embarrassment in regard to many things which are ordinarily known to-day by boys much younger than I was at that time. My mortification was occasionally aroused when I was faced with some practical question in regard to international commerce and problems relating to it.

"From that day to this I had an extreme desire to become acquainted with all literature upon the subject of economics. Naturally, during the years of my business life it was not possible for me to study what I wanted of that very important science, but now that I have retired from business, and have given myself up to a quiet life, like Cato, in my old age, I am taking up the studies of youth. You see, I have volumes of Ricardo and Mill on my desk, and I am keeping in touch with recent economic literature contained in the English and American journals.

"My advice to you is, by all means make a careful and searching study of economics, for nothing will be more valuable to you in your life work, or more satisfying in its results than an adequate knowof this great subject."

I have given the substance of the conversation, for the reason that I believe it is an indication of just what men who have been through the practical experiences of life advise to all who are preparing themselves for those experiences. It is true that there is a great deal which cannot be learned from textbooks or from study. Most of our knowledge must be gained by a worldly experience. It cannot be bought or handed down to us. At the same time, it is possible to minimize the mistakes and embarrassments which are sure to come up in a business life, if we thoroughly master certain of the fundamental principles and theories of that life.

Occasionally men are found who, ignorant themselves, ridicule or decry a study of economics, saying that it is not a practical subject, but theoretical, and for that reason useless. This is rather wholesale condemnation of a science which is founded upon past experiences, and from which general conclusions are drawn, which serve to guide men in their transactions and at the same time offer a mental exercise for those who are enough interested to exert their minds in solving intricate problems.

I shall attempt to give, in a series of articles upon finance, a brief and concise presentation of certain subjects which are included under that department of economics. No originality will be claimed for the articles in question, as they will deal with subjects so fundamental in their character that there will be no necessity of theorizing or making original comments. The articles will cover the subjects of barter, money, capital, credit, interest, exchange and price.

Many of these subjects are so well known to the readers of Business that they may easily be passed over, but it is my hope that the presentation which will be given will serve not only to raise new interest in the subject, but to recall to those already familiar with it certain principles which they are always glad to review.

It is well known that the best method of study is that of repetition, and if these articles serve to fix more firmly in mind elementary subjects, the author will consider that he has accomplished his purpose.

The first subject to which I shall call attention is that of barter. Before money, or the medium of exchange, as it is called, was used, men's wants had to be satisfied by barter. This was a system of exchange, and its relation to the trade of the world to-day is analogous to the relation of the barter of childhood to the business of middle age.

The familiar sight of two boys bartering, or to use their own expression, "swapping," articles at school is well known. The analogy, however, serves its purpose here, for it was in the early stages of man's existence that barter was resorted to. The desire for variety created the demand for articles produced by others. It was not long before the inconveniences which arose in barter did away with its practice, or, more correctly, brought into existence a medium of exchange.

If A is a maker of hats, and B a maker of shoes, and A is desirous of a pair of shoes and goes to B, who desires a hat, for an exchange, he may find that the value of one hat is only equal to the value of half a pair of shoes ; yet B does not care for two hats. Here the question arises immediately : How shall an equitable division be made? The exact equivalency between the two articles cannot be made, but if, by a mutual agreement, A and B decide that they will exchange their articles of manufacture for some one commodity which they both need and are using, such as wheat, for example, the difficulty disappears, and a vast amount of labor which would be incurred in the intricacies of barter is done away with. It was in this way that the medium of exchange became necessary, and such a medium has been termed "money."

The transactions, one of which has been described, have become fewer as civilization has advanced, yet all trade and commerce finds as its basis the relative values of commodities to each other, as determined by barter.

When barter was confined to individuals in a small community, it is likely that the article which was most generally used there was taken as the medium by which things were gauged. This is a statement which has some historical interest. For example, among certain ancient tribes in biblical times, sheep were used as a medium of exchange. Our word pecuniary comes from the Latin word pecus, meaning flock. In the agricultural stage, where cereals were mainly produced, grain was used as a medium of exchange. A local measure of value was sufficient, but as the commerce of the world began to increase, and trade went beyond the confines of the small community and sought other tribes and other countries, a more complicated system was the result. It was then that a more generally accepted standard of value was agreed upon.

MR. LIPTON IN AMERICA.

Thomas J. Lipton, the London multi-millionaire tea merchant, who gave anonymously $125,000 to the Prince of Wales' Jubilee Fund for the poor of London, arrived here last night on Cunard liner Campania.

Mr. Lipton is very tall, with a florid face, and wears a moustache and goatee. If it were not for his distinctively English pronunciation he would be accepted as a Westerner. He is about 40 years old and ascribes his fortune to his own efforts.

Mr. Lipton was accompanied by his secretary. He will spend a few days in his New York office at No. 80 Front street and then will go to Chicago, where he has large interests.—New York Herald.

FILBERT CROP.

A letter from Messina states that the new crop of filberts is backward, and that consequently higher prices for first half of October shipment are expected. The output in Messina districts is expected to be between 45,000 and 50,000 bags, and in the Catania districts 20,000 to 25,000 bags. There is said to remain in Sicily about 8,000 bags of 1896 crop, but it is not urged for sale, as the consuming demand is expected to absorb it.

WINNIPEG CATERERS.

THE first meeting of the caterers of Winnipeg for this season was held in the Council chamber on 6th inst., the president, J. T. Spiers, in the chair. There was a large and representative gathering of the grocers, butchers, bakers and milling interests of the city. The usual good-natured banter and wordy warfare showed all present were "up and at it." The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows :

B. J. Holman, president; H. G. Spurgeon, vice-president ; E. Tugwell, secretary; K. J. Johnston, treasurer; J. W. Horne, marshall for the procession.

Committees — Finance and Transport — W. Hunter, chairman ; H. Kobold, W. F. Ross, J.T. Spiers, R. R. Scott, J. A. McKerchar.

Location Committee—Composed of the Attractions and Sports Committees, and the president, vice-president and secretary.

Printing—John Horne, chairman ; K. J. Johnston, E. Turnbull, A. R. Christie, D. McDonald.

Mr. John Mouat, upon motion, was appointed to act as special reporter for THE CANADIAN GROCER.

It was decided to hold the picnic on Thursday, August 19. The secretary was instructed to correspond with the following towns with a view of ascertaining what inducements each could offer for the picnic going to such place : Portage la Prairie, Selkirk, Rat Portage, Carberry, Miami and Morden.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the retiring chairman, Mr. J. T. Spiers, for his past services.

Estimates.

A grocer on whom I called the other day took exception to my statement of last week to the effect that it was a wise thing for grocers to give estimates on supplies for picnic parties. To explain himself he went to a shelf and took down two bottles of Worcester sauce. "One of these," he said, "is generally sold at 9c., the other at 33c. They are the same size, and yet the man who sells the 9c. bottle will make about twice as much as the man who sells the 33c. bottle. Everything is the same," he added. "There is more than one grade in tapioca, in tea, in coffee, or in whatever the grocer handles. It is, on this account, impossible for a grocer who handles good merchandise to do justice to his trade by giving estimates. It isn't like the building of a house; in that case the whole facts of the case are laid before the intending builder. He orders the kind of wood he wants, and even decides whether he will have cut or wire nails used. But with the purchaser of groceries it is different. The customer is not acquainted with the different classes of groceries and generally cannot distinguish by sight the inferior from the better brands, and cannot order the kind she wants. Thus, you see, a merchant will give either high or low estimates, according as he keeps a high or low-grade stock, and if the low-priced tender gets the contracts, we, who keep good stocks, are placed at a great disadvantage, the contracts going to the trashiest bargain counters in the town or city concerned. Now, as these places of bargains should not be encouraged, I don't think that the system of estimates should be advocated."

The gentlemen's reasoning was certainly very clear, and, doubtless, the scheme has its disadvantages. If the estimates are asked for only to allow customers to let the contracts to the lowest tenderer I certainly would not approve of their being given, for, as this gentleman says, the low-grade stores would receive the patronage—only temporarily, however, for the cheapness of their goods would be recognized. But I advocated the scheme more for the reason that it would assist the excursionist in picking out the required goods. I still think it could be employed advantageously by the retailer who has an established business with customers who are confident that they will never be duped by that grocer. I hear that the business in summer goods is much better than it ever has been, and the scheme merits consideration.

Knowledge of Goods.

Do grocers take full advantage of the fact that they have the opportunity of recommending their goods? I don't mean to raise the doubt whether they talk enough about their goods and say how nice they are, but rather whether they enquire thoroughly enough into relative values of their goods and can conscientiously tell their customers what they know about their good and bad qualities. For instance, there are many kinds of cocoa, but there are only a few kinds of pure cocoa. Any cocoa that retails at less than 60c. a pound or thereabouts is not pure cocoa, but is starch and sugar colored to taste with cocoa. Now then, if grocers knew facts like these and would tell their customers of the trash that they give them when they sell them cheap stuff, I think they could sell a great deal more of the goods that are higher-priced and thus make more money. The customers, too, would appreciate the warning and thus two birds are killed with the one stone. Cocoa adulterated with starch and sugar is heating, too, while pure cocoa is refreshing and cooling, so that if the pure cocoa were sold once to customers who had hitherto used the adulterated variety, it would in all probability be used more freely. This is only one of the many instances where valuable information can be obtained from the travelers, and once obtained it should be used as often as possible. The travelers are, as a rule, well informed as to the quality of the goods they handle. They know why an article is good and why bad, and will supply the retailer with much information if it is only asked for. Often the retailer is questioned upon such subjects, and it is a great convenience and satisfaction to him to be able to give the desired information.

Keeping Canned Goods.

Grocers ought by this time to know all about the treatment of canned goods; but if the conclusions I have drawn from some observations made this week are correct they do not. It is a common thing for merchants to fill up their windows with canned goods. Unless the grocer is favored by a good location, or is very careful with his awning, the heat of the sun on warm summer days raises the contents of the cans to a high temperature. At night they cool, and thus the continual heating and cooling goes on from day to day. Now, this is not likely to add to the flavor or benefit the condition of the canned goods, and as it is dangerous to sell spoiled merchandise of this sort the bad results ought to be prevented. It is certainly a hard thing to dress a grocer's window so as to have no perishable goods in it, and consequently attention ought to be paid to the possession of a good awning and blind. Sometimes the sun shines on windows in the morning before a clerk arrives to put the awning down. In that case it is necessary to have blinds to keep out the morning rays. There are other sources of trouble in connection with canned goods that will bear mentioning. As these lines are staple, grocers are sometimes induced to lay in a large supply, perhaps to obtain a discount on quantity and perhaps to fill up empty shelves. When large stocks are kept up there are likely to be some goods on hand a long time, and the last that are sold are certainly not fresh, if perchance they are not unfit for use. If the store has too much shelf room, tear some of it down, or make or enlarge the store-room at the rear and diminish the size of the store. A store-room in a grocery shop is a necessity. Then keep only part of each kind of goods on the shelf and lay the rest that you have on hand in a cool place in the store-room. At this stage comes another habit that I hear is a source of evil. The grocers do not use the goods on the shelf, but rather run to the store-room for the goods whenever a customer comes in, or else replace them after he goes out, wishing always to keep the shelf filled up. The shelf thus never is emptied, and there are at last some stale goods on hand, which, when sold, will disagree with somebody's powers of digestion. It is contended, of course, that the appearance of a store is spoiled by having some shelves almost empty, others half-filled and others filled completely. Quite true, but if grocers wish to preserve a uniform appearance they should, I think, have only a couple of rows of cans on the shelf, so that they can, without much difficulty and with a little care, keep the fresh stock replenished. An incident which I know to be true, and which bears on this subject, came under my notice a few days ago. A can of one of the best brands of salmon, retailed at 18c., was used at the table of a friend of mine—well, I won't tell the whole of it, but the head of the house told me next day that he would return the other can he had bought and that he would buy no more canned goods at that store. Too many precautions against the serious danger of selling spoiled canned goods cannot be taken.

THE LOBSTER SEASON EXTENDED.

The season for taking lobsters in the western part of the Maritime Provinces expired on the 1st of July. In the eastern part, including Eastern Nova Scotia, Cape Breton, Prince Edward Island and part of New Brunswick, the date for closing is July 15. Applications for the extension of the season were considered by Sir Louis Davies before his departure for England and refused. Since that time very urgent representations have been made to the Department to the effect that storms have done great damage in the eastern waters, that the fishermen have had but a small chance to pursue their calling and that much distress would be caused to them by the enforcement of the regulation requiring the closing of the fishing on the 15th inst. Having ascertained by careful enquiry that these representations were well founded, Hon. W. S. Fielding, acting Minister of Marine and Fisheries, has extended the lobster season in the district referred to for a period of nine days, from the 15th till the 24th of July.

which he resides. He is also one of the best known business men in the Maritime Provinces, and has always been a faithful and warm supporter of any measure tending to advance the trade interests of the Dominion. There is nothing narrow or provincial in his ideas. While he naturally desires to see his native city and province prosper, he has always looked upon trade questions in their broadest sense, having the well being of the whole of Canada at heart. He was one of the strongest advocates of the fast line of Atlantic steamers, and naturally feels proud to-day to see his ideas taking practical shape. Mr. Troop has served as president of the Board of Trade on former occasions. He has been a delegate to Ottawa on almost every important trade mission, and at the present time is deeply interested in the proposed cable extension to the West India Islands. He is a member of the firm of Black Bros. & Co.

NEW BRUNSWICK FOR TOURISTS.

THE varied attractions of the picturesque province of New Brunswick have long rendered it celebrated among summer tourists who have always found that refreshment of mind and body so grateful to the toilers in towns or cities. Not a little of the celebrity of the province is due to its beautiful capital, St. John, a city which, with its central position, its unrivalled climate, its healthy breezes, and its proud position of gateway to a sportsman's paradise, renders it the hub of the Maritime Provinces.

By a glance at the map it will be seen that St. John is easy of access, and is in fact the distributing point of the Maritime Provinces. Here will be found the terminus of the C.P.R., and out of the same station which forms this terminus run the trains of the Intercolonial Railway, a line, which skirting as it does three-fourths of the coas line of New Brunswick, touches at innumerable points of interest to the tourist and sportsman. In the steamship service it is also an important point.

The chief attraction for the pleasure-seeker is the River St. John, which the inhabitants of the province claim has no equal in the world as a place for yachtsmen and scenery-admirers.

Along the river are many farm houses where the "summer boarder" is made welcome, and where a comfortable home may be found at a reasonable price. Here the simple and wholesome fare, the walks, the boating, the bathing, the flowers and all the requisites of a good summer resort are to be had without the least trouble.

If the traveler prefers a hotel and city life by the seaside there is abundant accommodation ; it is sufficient here to mention the Royal, the Dufferin and the Clifton as the leading hotels of the city.

The city is not only healthy in its supply of pure water and breezes, but it also affords opportunities of every kind of pleasure to the tourists. The opera house is open all summer. The public park, covering about 128 acres, is the pride of the city. The drives and views to be obtained are varied and beautiful. Should an out-of-town resort be desired a quiet, cosy nook will be found at Duck Cove, about three miles from the city and reached by the street cars.

The climate of St. John at this season of the year is a most delightful one and offers every inducement to seekers of health and pleasure. On the warmest days the heat is tempered by refreshing breezes from the bay, while sultry and sleep-banishing nights are unknown. Neither mosquitos, black flies, or insects are to be found.

In fact, "the stranger in St. John finds a busy, prosperous and beautiful place—a city to be proud of and a people who are proud of it."

TORONTO BOARD OF TRADE.

A SPECIAL meeting of the Toronto Board of Trade was held on the afternoon of July 12. In compliance with the constitution, President Gurney in opening the meeting read a report referring to various matters which had been before the Council since the preceding general meeting.

In this report Mr. Gurney dealt with the actions the Council had taken to have the Canadian Commissioner to Mexico appointed. It has always been the policy of the Council to extend Canadian markets, and so when the possibility of the opening up of trade on the Pacific Coast with Mexico and Central America was impressed on the members by Capt. Yates, a delegate from the British Columbia Board of Trade, it was decided to send Capt. Yates on to Ottawa to advise the Government in the matter. The Government acted on the suggestion, and Mr. E. E. Sheppard is now in Mexico investigating the question.

Mr. Gurney pointed out how, in changing the screen used in determining the value to be attached to coal screenings, the Government had placed an onerous tax on ordinary coal, and how a readjustment of the rules was secured at the suggestion of the representative of the Council who was sent to Ottawa.

In regard to the finances of the board, Mr. Gurney pointed out that Council had arranged with the New York Life Insurance Co. for a still further reduction in the rate of interest—the whole reduction meaning a saving of about $6,000 a year. In consideration of this, the second and third debenture holders have consented to a suspension of interest during a period of ten years. This, it is calculated, will enable the board to pay off its floating inbebtedness in three years, notwithstanding the reduction of fees which it is proposed to make.

After Mr. Gurney had read his report, a notice of motion was made by Mr. A. E. Kemp, to the effect that resident members' fees should be $12 and outside members' fees $10 per annum. Originally the fees were $10 a year, but they had been raised to $15 and finally $17. It was considered by those present on Monday that the present membership could not be sustained at the fee of $17, but that, if the proposed reduction were made, additional members could be added to put the finances on a sound basis.

Although the members were unanimous as to the advisability of the reduction, it was impossible to vote on it, as the constitution states that there must be two meetings before they could pass on the matter.

ADVANTAGE OF AN EXPORT TRADE

THE most valuable trade for any nation to cultivate is its home trade. Just as it is the tendency of water to run down hill, so it is the tendency of trade to follow along the line of least resistance.

In the home trade there are no adverse Customs tariffs to obstruct the way and distances are as a rule less, although it is true railway discriminations often minimize the latter advantage.

But while the home market is doubtless the best market, it is by no means the only one which a nation should cultivate in order to the establishment of its commercial permanency. There is the export trade to be looked after.

Commerce is the foundation of national greatness. A nation may conquer its enemies and acquire their territory. But unless the arts of commerce as well as the arts of war are cultivated that nation must before a great while decay.

The merchant who has a dozen customers for a certain article is naturally, all things else being equal, in a better position than he who has only one. If the buying capacity of the latter's customer decreases or ceases altogether it is obvious that his difficulties are greater than would be those of the former if the buying power of one of his customers decreased or ceased altogether.

The same law applies to nations as to individuals: The more numerous and diversified a nation's customers the less likely will it feel the burden of hard times which roll over the commercial world in cycles.

Great Britain stands out as an unmistakable proof of that. Britain's commercial field is the world. Every nation on the globe, uncivilized and civilized, buys more or less goods from her. She thus has always customers in some part or other of the world where trade is at least in a normally healthy condition.

Take, for instance, the past couple of years. Everyone knows that while on this side of the Atlantic there has been the minimum of inactivity, in Great Britain there has been the maximum of activity.

No country can live, move and have its being within itself. It must have intercourse with other nations. It must buy from and sell to other nations.

The United States, by hostile legislation, has declared it does not believe in this doctrine. But while with one movement it has closed its front door to all nations and kindreds, with the next it has stated its willingness, under reciprocal conditions, to open its back door to at least the majority of these nations and kindreds. As one of the leading trade journals in the United States put it a short time ago: "Reciprocal trade with foreign nations has become a necessity to American prosperity. We must export to prosper."

The chief business of a country is to cultivate business. And that means in the foreign as well as in the home market.

Canada, while solicitous for the home trade, and rightly so, has not been as solicitous for that with foreign countries as she might or should have been. And while this has been chiefly due to the paucity of practical business men in Parliament and in the Federal Cabinets of the country, yet the business men themselves are not without blame.

For many years Canadians thought that the Promised Land for their exports was the United States. And when the McKinley tariff was levied against us in 1890 a good many imagined that back into the wilderness we would have to wander with some of our chief products.

But the blow that practically drove many of our products out of the United States directed our footsteps towards the British market.

It is curious to note that the greatest development in our aggregate export trade began with Uncle Sam's rebuff. Compared with 1890 it is 25 per cent. larger, and that increase is more than due to the growth of our trade with Great Britain.

But although our export trade has developed so satisfactorily during the past few years, to say that it has assumed satisfactory proportions would be far from the truth. Taking into consideration the natural resources and possibilities of the country, they are by no means what they might or should be.

Our exports per head of population are less than twenty-four dollars, which is a great deal below the average of any of the other self-governing British colonies.

It is obvious, therefore, that, while doing our best to cultivate the home market, we should inaugurate a more vigorous export policy than we have at present. The Government can do a great deal in the premises, but business men themselves must also be active.

Just as there are a variety of peculiarities among customers in the home market, so is there among the importing foreign countries. What these peculiarities are it is the duty of exporters in Canada to study. Until they have learned what these are they will necessarily be handicapped in their efforts to expand their trade with foreign countries.

It is not necessary for a business man to shut his eyes in order to be asleep.

EXPORT DEMAND FOR EGGS.

During the past week Montreal commission men have received considerable enquiries from abroad for pickled eggs for fall shipment, and a number of large contracts have been made.

Dealers complain, however, that they have been obliged to accept lower prices than last year, as the English buyers lost money on last season purchases.

The basis of these contracts is 6s. 3d. to 6s. 4d. for October and November shipment.

The exports, it will be remembered, showed a substantial increase last year, but this year they are still greater.

From the first of May to the 10th July the exports of eggs from Montreal were 3,789 cases, against 3,343 for the same period last year.

CHEAP COCOAS.

ON THE CANADIAN GROCER'S enquiring of a prominent cocoa man of Toronto as to his summer business, he remarked: "We have reason to regard this season's sales as satisfactory, for our output of cheap cocoas is 25 per cent. less than last year."

Thinking that his statements were rather contradictory, THE GROCER requested an explanation.

"Well," he responded, "when our firm first started business we manufactured nothing but the purest and best of cocoas. As we were among the first in business our trade grew satisfactorily. By-and-bye, however, so many cocoa men opened manufactories that our competitors devised schemes to increase their trade, and thus cheap cocoas were introduced on the market. At first we did not follow in the track of these competitors, in spite of the fact that we knew we could make up these cheap brands to sell at a lower price than those who had introduced them, both because we thought that the schemes would wear themselves out and because we did not wish to ruin our reputation for selling only the purest of cocoas. But instead of the expected decrease in consumption, the cheap brands became more popular, until we were at last forced to manufacture them, and to-day ten tons of this trash to one of the pure cocoa go out of our doors."

"Well, have you found that it has injured your reputation?"

"No, I can't say that we have," he answered, "but we attribute the lack of injury to the course we have pursued. We have never advertised the good qualities of our cheap cocoas, but have rather denounced them, not because we do not make money on them, for we make a large per cent. of profit, but because we hate to see a barrel of this inferior stuff go out of our manufactory. We have always advised our travelers to tell our customers that the cheap grades are not cocoa but starch and sugar, colored with a very little of the pure material."

"Well, are these brands injurious to the drinker?" was the next question.

"No, any starch we put in is the finest starch we can buy, and we also use the best quality of sugar purchasable."

"But what surprises me," he continued, "is the foolishness of the public. How can they imagine that pure cocoa can be roasted, ground, treated and packed for 9 to 15c. a pound? A little common sense ought to tell them that the price of cocoa cannot range from 15 to 75c. per pound. The situation is really disgusting to us," he said in a disdainful tone.

"Well, you are reaping the fruits of your labors now, are you not, if the trade in cheap cocoas is diminishing?" said THE GROCER.

"Yes," he said. "Frequent testimonials arrive, too, thanking us for being so frank in our advertisements, and informing us of persons' conversion. If this trade in cheap brands goes entirely out of existence it will greatly benefit the cocoa business."

OFFERS OF NEW CALIFORNIA RAISINS.

FIRST offers of new crop California raisins were made to the jobbing trade in Montreal last week. The prices in question were for October delivery, and were from ½ to ¾c. above the figures at the corresponding period last year.

The offers this year, duty paid, are equivalent to 5¼c. on 2-crown; 6¼c. on 3-crown, and 7¼c. on 4-crown loose muscatel raisins.

Last year the September shipments were filled at 4½, 5½ and 6½c., respectively. The first shipments were the cheapest purchases as there was a rising market from the opening, the aggregate advance being almost 2c. per pound.

The offers above mentioned have not attracted any demand as yet, as jobbers are disposed to await later and more definite intelligence.

Speaking of the prospects The California Fruit Grower says: "There has been a change in the general condition of the growing crop. The sudden change of the weather from hot to cold, and the damage from vine hoppers have caused the grapes to drop heavily in some sections. Clusters and layers will not be abundant, while loose and seedless will be in heavy supply. The crop as a whole does not promise to be as heavy as a few weeks back, but there will be enough for all demands."

CANNED SALMON.

THE canned salmon situation has not improved during the past week. On the contrary the general feeling appears to be weaker.

Representatives in Toronto of well-known brands are this week accepting $3.35 f.o.b. on the Coast where they last week were standing out for $3.65.

Why the market should be weaker is somewhat difficult to understand. Advices from the Coast state that the run of fish so far on the Fraser is light. This being early in the season, there is, of course, yet plenty of time for the run to assume larger proportions, but what should be, naturally, a bullish factor is the fact that the Indians, Chinese and others engaged in catching fish are on strike, demanding, we understand, 15 cents per fish.

We notice from an interview of The New York Journal of Commerce with a Seattle man that the outlook on the Fraser is uncertain. Referring to the strike, he stated that if it was not quickly settled it would have the effect of materially curtailing the pack, as the run lasts only 30 days. "On the American side," he said, "the total quantity packed does not exceed one-third of the requirements of the British trade, which amounts annually to about 600,000 cases of sockeyes."

In spite of the low offers which are being made, the Toronto representative of a large syndicate on the Coast received a telegram a few days ago to discontinue selling at previous figures all Fraser River fish and to only submit offers.

During the past week in Toronto there have been a few transactions in futures recorded, but the business has not been as brisk as a week ago on account of the unsettled feeling which obtains.

THE LEMON MARKET.

This year the lemon trade has had much to affect it, and, as a consequence, not only any probable change in prices, but also the condition of the lemons, has had to be watched very closely by the fruit dealers.

The continued cold spell at the commencement of the season compelled the importers to sell the fruit at a figure much below the price at which they purchased it. This year, too, it was a peculiar characteristic of the imported lemons that they were thin skinned, and although it improved their quality for immediate use, it made them very wasty; in some cases a repacking was necessary. Owing to this condition it was impossible for the dealers to speculate by holding their lemons and waiting for warm weather, and, as a result, the fruit was sold for whatever it would bring.

Now, however, that the warm weather has come on, the demand cannot be supplied. Dealers say that they never had such a number of orders come rushing in upon them. As a consequence the price rose at the rate of 50c. a day, and now, those that were fortunate enough to have some boxes on hand are making up the losses sustained at the beginning of the season.

Boxes that in May and the most of June sold at from $1.50 to $2 are now worth $6 to $7, and those who know predict that a box of lemons will soon bring $10.

A UNIQUE DEPARTURE.

FOR unique or striking departures departmental stores on the American continent do not enjoy a monopoly. Their confreres in Great Britain are seemingly well up to them.

For instance, one of the largest of the department stores in London has an insurance department.

There is life insurance, children's insurance, partnership insurance, contingent policies, payable in case one life die before another, and many other kinds of insurance. But the most unique plan of the many systems of insurance which this particular departmental store has in force is that known as No 10, which is to "issue assurances to cover the risk of issue being born and so defeating the inheritance of property." For example, A has property which, when he dies, will go to B, provided he (A) has no issue. The object of plan No. 10 is to provide against such an eventuality.

If this is not a unique departure for even a departmental store THE CANADIAN GROCER would like to know what it is.

One of the chief peculiarities of the department store is that it is ever devising new schemes to promote business, and herein does it impart a lesson to merchants of all classes and conditions.

In these days of keen competition it is essential, in order to succeed, that merchants should be ever devising new ways and means of catching trade. Business does not come in these days. It must be sought. And the merchant who does not industriously seek it will not find it.

THE TORONTO COFFEE AND SPICE CO.

THE report of the gentlemen appointed to investigate the estate of the Toronto Coffee and Spice Co., Limited, reveals a somewhat extraordinary state of affairs. It shows that since the formation of the company some three years ago it has been working with next to no capital.

Mr. Suydam, the reputed moneyed man of the company, not only put no mone into the concern, but during the three years of his connection with the firm he had overdrawn his account to the extent of fifteen hundred dollars. When he entered the company it is reputed he did loan it eleven hundred dollars, but that sum was withdrawn a few months afterwards.

As far as can be learned, practically the only money which had been put into the business was that put in by a recent new acquisition to the company.

How the company could have existed so long without seeking the assistance of their creditors is a wonder even in these days of "kite flying" and kindred schemes.

As the company has secured the necessary assistance to pay the 35c. on the dollar in cash, which the creditors demanded, it is likely to get a settlement.

NEW PACK VEGETABLES.

Early last spring packers of canned vegetables were quoting the jobbing trade on new pack for the season of 1896, and before this quite a few contracts had been closed.

This week a Montreal wholesaler remarked to THE CANADIAN GROCER that he had not received a single quotation this season on vegetables. He attributed it to the fact that the vegetable packers had been hit pretty hard last season, and especially on their earlier contracts. For this reason they were not in such a hurry to book orders ahead as they were last, preferring to wait until the position of raw supplies can be gauged with more accuracy.

THE CHINA TEA MARKET.

SO much intererest has of late been evinced in the Japan tea market that other growths have been almost forgotten. And this, in spite of the fact that the conditions obtaining elsewhere are surrounded with much that is interesting.

We have China teas particularly in mind at the moment.

The crop of Congou tea, we are told, will be from 30 to 40 per cent. less than last year, while Pingsuey teas show a decrease of about 33 per cent., the crop being estimated at 100,000 half-chests against 150,000 last year.

Northern China black teas, up to the close of May, the Russians were buying freely of, and prices were steadily held. During June they have done but little, and London buyers were able to operate at comparatively safe prices. According to advices from the primary market fine teas of all descriptions have been in strong demand there, while the head chops, which proved exceptionally good quality, sold readily at 13 taels advance over last season. In Hankow good grades have been in active demand, but mediums were rather slow of sale. The yield of the first crop promises to be 125,000 half-chests less than last year.

As far as Northern China teas are concerned little interest is elicited in them in Canada. These teas Russia has practically an option upon, for all other nations have to depend, in getting them, upon the courtesy of that country.

TORONTO GROCERS' PICNIC.

On Wednesday next, the 21st inst., the members of the Toronto Grocers' Association and their friends will hold their annual excursion. They go to Cobourg by the steamer Garden City.

It is to be hoped that every grocer in Toronto will close up his store on that day and will allow himself and his clerks to join the excursionists.

A fruitful cause of many of the evils which exist in the grocers' trade is due to a lack of good fellowship among the members thereof. It is obvious, therefore, that had a bettter acquaintanceship with each other existed many of these evils would be minimized or removed altogether.

To secure this acquaintanceship one with the other there is no better remedy than social intercourse, and there is no better way in which this social intercourse can be brought about than on such an occasion as that which is afforded for Wednesday next.

Grocers, take your wife or best girl, and of course your clerks, and hie yourself away to the retail grocers' picnic to Cobourg on Wednesday next.

See This?

GROCERS everywhere find they must have it.

In consequence we are working day and night to keep all supplied. Our capacity, however, is not exhausted, so all orders can be promptly filled.

Housekeepers all over the country are saying, "the Best I ever used."

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, July 15, 1897.

GROCERIES.

WHILE business during the past week shows a slight falling off, there is still a good trade doing for this time of the year. Business for the first week of July seems to have been unusually brisk, the wholesalers being taxed to fill orders. In canned vegetables the market is still strong, being particularly so in tomatoes, which some houses are quoting higher than a week ago. About the only futures that seem to be offering in canned goods are strawberries. The canned salmon market is in rather a more unsettled condition than a week ago, as far as futures are concerned. For spot goods the demand is active. Currants are still tending upwards. Local wholesalers have further advanced their prices. There has been a good deal of buying of both old and new currants for future shipment. The demand for sugars has fallen off during the week, although fair quantities are still going out. In spices the features are an opening up of the demand for pickling spices and a stronger feeling in Jamaica ginger. Teas are attracting very little attention, either on the part of wholesalers or retailers. An active demand is being experienced for rice.

CANNED GOODS.

There has been a little more business done during the week in canned salmon for future delivery, and that at lower prices than a week ago, $3.35 on the Coast seemingly now being the ruling price at which sales have been made, in spite of the fact that the representative of one large concern on the Coast has received telegraphic instructions to hold for higher prices. The demand for salmon on spot is active, the season now being on when this article is most wanted. Canned corn is getting into a smaller compass, and 55c. appears to be the lowest price at which any can be got from the packers. Tomatoes are in fair demand and firm. New packed are expected to be on the market in about two weeks. New season's canned strawberries are being offered for future shipment. The price asked is about the same as last year, namely, $1.50 to $1.60. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80 to 85c.; corn, 55 to 75c.; peas, 75c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.65 to $1.95, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $2 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 70 to 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $2.25; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; cohoes, $1.10 to $1.25; canned mackerel, $1.20 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.70; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.30; 2's, $2.25 to $2.40; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

There is really nothing new to report, trade still being quiet and prices about the same as last week. Jobbers quote green in bags as follows: Rio, 9½ to 13c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

The syrup market is still quiet and featureless. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

Molasses is still neglected and quotations are unchanged. We quote: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGARS.

The market has not materially changed since a week ago, prices being the same. The demand, while not as brisk as it was last week, is still of fair proportions, and a good many carload lots are changing hands. The New York market advanced ⅛c. on raws early in the week and the London market is steady. We quote for Toronto as follows: Granulated—St. Lawrence

SPICES.

The demand is beginning to open out for pickling spices at from about 13 to 16c. per lb. Jamaica ginger is scarce and higher in the primary market, but there has been no change made locally as yet. We quote as follows: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 10c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 17c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

There is still no feature to note and business is quiet. We quote as follows: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 18 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

The demand for rice is brisk. Tapioca and sago are in fair demand. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½c.

TEAS.

A few lines of China blacks have changed hands during the week. In new season's Japans there has been little doing at from 15½ to 16c. per lb., but the market lacks snap: Not much improvement is anticipated for some weeks. Advices state that Congou teas will be about 30 to 40 per cent. less than last year. Pingsuey teas are expected to yield about 50,000 half chests less than last year. Up to the time of last mail advices settlements of Japan tea were only 5,000 piculs more than last year at the same time, in spite of the extraordinary demand that has been experienced from the United States. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

Currants are gradually getting into smaller compass on the spot. As far as can be learned only one house has anything like a decent stock, and it is supplying other firms on the street. A good many orders have been placed by the wholesale houses at open figures for future shipment for new season's fruit. Several orders have also been placed during the last week or two for old season's fruit which is still to be had in the primary markets. Advices from shippers in the primary market do not pin much faith in the reports that the growing crop is being badly damaged by milldew, etc. We quote: Provincials, 5⅜ to 5½c. in bbls.; ditto, half-bbls., 5⅜ to 5½c.; fine Filiatras, in bbls., 5½ to 5⅝c.; do., half-bbls., 5½ to 5⅝c.; Patras, 5¾ to 6c. in bbls., 5¾ to 6c. in half-bbls., and 6 to 6⅛c. in cases; Vostizzas, cases, 7 to 8c.

In regard to Valencia raisins the reports confirm what has heretofore been said as to the satisfactory development of the new crop. One shipper says that the crop will be larger than last year, and that when the market settles down moderate prices

The Sultana raisin crop, according to latest advices, is still doing well. The crop will not only be abundant, but the fruit will be fat owing to the continued rains of last winter. One correspondent says: "I cannot say anything about the color, as it will depend upon the weather during the drying of the fruit. The taking in of the new crop will begin early in August if the weather holds out."

A few transactions in California loose muscatel raisins are reported, but business on the whole is dull. We quote: 3-crown, 7¼c.; 4-crown, 8 to 8¼c.

The first quotations of new season's Smyrna figs for August and September shipment have been received on the Toronto market. Prices are a little higher than last year. We quote spot goods: 10 oz., 7½c.; 10 lb., 9 to 10c.; 18 lb., 10 to 12c.; 28 lb., 11 to 13c.; taps, 3¼ to 3½c. net; natural, 4½c. in bags, and 6 to 6½c. in boxes.

California evaporated fruits are still neglected. We quote: Peaches, 7 to 10½c. per lb., according to quality; apricots, 6½ to 15c.; pears, 5½ to 10½c.; egg plums, 5½ to 11c.; silver prunes, 8½ to 13½c.

Prunes are moving a little better and some houses have found it necessary to bring on a few lots from Chicago in order to fill their orders. We quote: Bosnias, U's (110 to 113 half kilo), 6 to 6½c.; C's (85 to 90 half kilo), 7 to 7½c. per lb. California, 90 to 100's, 6½c. per lb.; 70 to 80's, 7½c.; 60 to 70's, 7½ to 8c.; 50 to 60's, 8 to 8½c.; 40 to 50's, 9½ to 10½c.; 30 to 40's, 12½ to 13c.; "Ruby" prunes, 7½ to 8c.; French, 4½ to 5c.

Dates are neglected. We quote: 5½ to 6c. for Hallowee and 5 to 5¼c. for Kadrowee.

GREEN FRUITS.

Trade is brisk in all lines. Markets are patronized all day long, and as quickly as one line of fruit is exhausted another variety takes its place. The demand for lemons in the hot weather was enormous, in fact dealers say that they never experienced such large sales. Lemons are advancing rapidly and will continue to do so. Strawberries are still on the market, but will not be long; the prices are stationary. Pineapples are about out of the market. Sales of watermelons are heavy. Raspberries are selling rapidly at lower figures.

Onions, 2½ to 3c. per lb. for Egyptians. Bananas, $1.25 to $1.75. Strawberries, 5 to 8c. per quart. New cabbage, $1.25 to $1.50 per bbl. Mississippi tomatoes, $1.10 to $1.25 per case of 4 baskets. Green beans, 40 to 60c. per basket. Watermelons, 30 to 35c. California peaches, $1.75 to $2 per box; Canadian gooseberries, 30 to 50c. per 12-quart basket; Canadian cherries, $1 to $1.25 per basket. Red currants, 35 to 45c. per basket; raspberries, 8 to 10c. per quart; California plums, $2 to $2.50 box; California peas, $3 to $3.50 per box.

FISH.

The weather has entirely demoralized the demand, and trade is at a standstill. We quote: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5c. per lb.; whitefish, 6c.; trout, 6c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

SALT.

Trade is brisk. The hot weather has caused an increased demand in all lines. Prices are unchanged. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 60c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl. and 65c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

PROVISIONS.

An observer of the market sees a firm tone prevailing in all lines this week. Owing to the stocks being about exhausted, an advance has been made in the prices of rolls, shoulder hams, breakfast bacon and backs. Other prices are unchanged.

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long clear bacon, 7¼c. for carload lots, and 7½ to 7¾c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 8c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 11½ to 12c.; rolls, 9 to ½c.; hams, large, 11 to 11½c.; 12 to 12½c. for small and 11 to 12c. for medium; shoulder hams, 8½c.; backs, 11 to 11½c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD — Pure Canadian, tierces, 5¾c.; tubs, 6 to 6¼c.; pails, 6¼ to 6½c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $13 to $13.50; Canadian short-cut, $16.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—The hot weather has had an injurious effect on the butter trade, as the quality of the arrivals has been unsatisfactory except where it was carried in refrigerator cars. There is a fair demand for good quality, trade preferring the earlier shipments. There is no demand for dairy for export purposes owing to the quality not being satisfactory for British markets. As we have pointed out before, the majority of dairy butter has been bought on speculation, and has been put into cold storage. We quote: Dairy—Tub, 12c. for best, and others, 7 to 9c.; pound prints, 11 to 13c. Creamery—Prices are firmer owing to an increased export demand. Tubs, 16½ to 17½c.; prints, 17 to 18½c.

CHEESE—There is really nothing new to report. The market continues dull, with no special movements. The export demand is light, and exporters are very careful in their selection, as they find considerable cheese affected by the hot weather. There is no quotable change from the lower prices of last week. Factory price, 8c.; jobbing price, 8¾ to 9c.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—Trade is less active than it has been. We quote: Red wheat, 65c.; white, 66c.; oats, 24c.; peas, 43c.

FLOUR—Trade is fair, with some slight reductions in prices. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $4.35; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.85; Ontario patents, $3.90 to $4.30; straight roller, $3.30 to $3.40, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—Trade is moderate. Cornmeal has advanced another notch in price. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.10 in bags and $3.20 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.60 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.30 to $2.40; split peas, $3 to $3.25; pot barley, $3 to $3.25.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3. Steerhides: 60 lbs. and up, 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS—Trade is brisk and prices are firm. No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Deatons, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS — We quote: Lambskins, 50c.; pelts, 25c.

WOOL—The trade in wool is now dull, owing to all of the cut having gone out of the country to the States. There is almost nothing doing. The dealers are now paying 19 to 20c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—The weather has had considerable effect on the egg trade, and the loss has been serious, for even the best eggs procurable were not palatable during and after the hot spell, so that the consumptive demand was spoiled entirely. In order to keep decks cleared up dealers have been shading prices a little, 9c. being the prevailing figure and 9½c. for better stock. The export demand has not increased for the British market has not improved.

POTATOES—New potatoes are now passing through the dealers' hands in large quantities. The Canadian variety is plentiful and of good quality. To retailers they are worth about $2 per large barrel. Old potatoes are almost unsalable, and are now quoted at 15c. by the car load and 25c. out of store.

BEANS — Are unsalable. We quote: Mixed, 30c. and hand-picked 60 to 65c.

HONEY — Dull. We quote: 80 to 90c. per dozen for dark, and $1.50 to $1.75 for light; strained, 6½ to 7½c. per lb.

DRIED APPLES —Still quiet and featureless. The idea as to price is 2 to 2¼c. f.o.b. The local jobbing price ranges from 1½c. per lb. upward.

EVAPORATED APPLES — Dull. Buyers are paying from 3¼ to 3½c. f.o.b. at outside points, and jobbers' prices are from 4 to 5c., according to quality.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

The demand for lubricating oils continues on the increase, in spite of the fact that stocks were well filled. The trade in petroleum has now assumed its summer dull tone. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14½c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

Rose & Laflamme, Montreal, have made arrangements with A. F. MacLaren & Co. to cover the whole territory from Toronto to Quebec for the sale of "Imperial" cheese.

Cornmeal keeps advancing in price.

Smoked meats are ½c. higher this week.

Higher prices are anticipated for lemons.

Creamery butter has advanced 1c. in price.

The prices of new potatoes are beginning to be reasonable.

An advance of 3-16c. per lb. is announced in the price of glucose.

Canadian tomatoes are expected to arrive the latter end of this week.

The demand for chewing tobacco made from Canadian leaf still exceeds the supply.

Trade during the past week or two has shown a great deal of improvement in flavoring extracts.

Advices from the primary market announce higher prices in Jamaica ginger. This article is fully 4c. per lb. dearer than it was a year ago at this time.

The first quotations on Smyrna figs, August and September shipment, were received in Toronto a few days ago. They are a little higher than the opening quotations of last year.

C. M. Bernard, Toronto, has been advised by cable from Japan that the market continues firm, and that prices for medium and low grades will rule considerably higher than last season.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, July 15, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE general grocery market has displayed a fair degree of activity during the week. Sugar has been notable in this connection, the increased demand noted last week being fully maintained. Canned salmon for future delivery has received fair attention, but jobbers do not seem to be urgent buyers, despite the low prices ruling. In other canned goods there is little to report, except the receipt of first offers on new crop strawberries, which are referred to in the report appended. Offers of new California dried raisins have also been made for October delivery. Teas, coffees, syrups and molasses have furnished a fair jobbing trade.

SUGAR.

The improved demand noted for sugar last week is maintained, and it is evident that both jobbers and retailers require fresh supplies, as the movement into second and third hands has been quite brisk. Both granulated and yellows have shared in the activity. Advices from Europe regarding beet have been very bearish, values last week touching the low-water mark. Some traders argue from this that it cannot go much lower. We quote refined sugars in a jobbing way: Granulated, 1 to 9 barrels, 4⅛c. and 10 barrels and over 4 1-16c., and yellows, 3⅜ to 3¾c., as to quantity and quality.

SYRUPS.

Demand for syrups is slow, and the market rules dull and unchanged at 1⅜ to 1⅞c. per lb., as to quality.

MOLASSES.

The molasses market is without change. Advices from Barbadoes indicate that the market at the Islands is virtually over for the season. Cargo lots have offered here during the week all the way from 20 to 21c. ex wharf, and in a jobbing way values range from 22 to 23c. Porto Rico is quoted ex wharf at 24c. and is held in a jobbing way at 29c. for fancy, 25c. for choice and 22c. for prime.

RICE.

There has been little change in the rice market here, jobbers reporting a fair enquiry. We quote: Crystal Japan, $4.50 to $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $4.50 to $5; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

Business in spices continues quiet and values are unchanged. Advices from primary markets maintain their firm tone. We quote as follows: Black pepper, 9c.; pure white, 14 to 17c.; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

The market generally has an easy tone. Jobbing demand was light during the week, and, aside from a few lots of Maracaibo and Rio at 15½ to 19c. and 12 to 16c. respectively, there was nothing doing in round lots from first hands. We quote: Maracaibo, 16 to 19c.; Santos, 12 to 15c.; Rio, 12 to 16c.; Mocha, 24c., and Java, 25c.

TEAS.

The demand for tea, both from first and second hands, was light during the past week. From first hands a few medium-sized lots of new Japans have changed hands at 18 to 25c. We quote: Young Hysons, 13 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 12 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 16½ to 20c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

CANNED GOODS.

The market does not furnish any strikingly new feature. Business in canned salmon for future delivery is proceeding very quietly indeed, considering the low prices prevailing. No offers on new pack canned vegetables are noted yet. This is different from previous years, when offers had been made long before this. In fruit the only offers on new pack for future delivery have been strawberries at $1.45 per dozen. We quote: Tomatoes, 80c.; corn, 50 to 80c.; peas, 80c.; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 85 to 90c.; gallons, $1.55 to $1.65; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.40 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.35; "Lion," $1.37½ to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.30, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

There has been nothing new in Valencia raisins during the past week. We quote: Ordinary off-stalk, 5¼ to 5½c.; fine, 5¾ to 6c.; selected, 6¼ to 6½c., and layers, 6¾ to 7c.

California raisins continue quiet on spot, but offers of new crop for October delivery have been made. In a jobbing way standard brands 2-crown are quoted 6¼ to 6¾c., 3-crown 7 to 7½c., and 4-crown 8 to 8¼c.

Currants rule firm abroad, but there is little doing on spot. We quote 4 to 4¾c., as to quality and package.

Dates are nominally unchanged at 5 to 6c., and figs at 8 to 12c.

Prunes remain as last reported: 5½ to 6c. for Bosnia; 4 to 5c. for French, and 6½ to 7c. for California, as to grade, etc.

NUTS.

Business in nuts quiet with values unchanged. We quote as follows: Grenoble walnuts, 10 to 11c.; Brazils, 11c.; al-

A PACKET OF SEED is valuable only when it provides nourishment for birds. To sell the stuff often marketed as bird seed is worse than selling bad bread. With the bread the customer soon sees the bad value. With the seed his bird sickens and dies before the bad value is known. It may take longer in some cases than others, but such seed eventually gets in its work. Lump sugar with rat poison would be more merciful. Then the bird's suffering would not be prolonged.

An honest packet of bird food cannot allow the profit of the other kind. But it pays better in the end. Customers find birds easier to keep. They don't have to buy a bird every few months. They keep more birds. They buy more seed. The grocer makes up on extra sales the legitimate reduction of profit. Makes it up twenty times over. And wonders what becomes of all the Cottams Seed he sells.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

GREEN FRUIT.

The hot spell resulted in continued activity in all kinds of green fruit, and the different auction sales were well cleaned up each day. Lemons had a regular boom, dealers being hardly able to supply the demand. Messina and other oranges were in active request, and bananas were scarce throughout the week. Receipts of Canadian cherries were liberal, but all met with a ready sale. Arrivals of all kinds of California fresh fruit have been large, but there was no difficulty in disposing of all that arrived. Values, however, are lower than they were on these goods. Pineapples have been plentiful, chiefly from Florida. Receipts of strawberries were very heavy and the quality of the offerings wide in its range, some lots selling down to 1c. per box. We quote: Valencia oranges, $6 per case; bloods, $2.50 to $3 per half-box, and Messinas, $3 to $3.50 per box; lemons, $3.75 to $4.50 per box for choice, and $2.75 to $3.50 for common; bananas, $1.25 to $1.65 per bunch; California cherries, $1.15 to $1.40 per box; Canadian cherries, 40 to 75c. per basket; apricots, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; California peaches, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; do plums, $1.40 to $2 per box; pineapples, 10 to 15c. each; Canadian strawberries, 2 to 6c. Egyptian onions, 4c. per lb., and Bermuda ditto, 3c. per lb., and $3 per crate.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—There is no change in the situation of the egg market, prices being steady, with a fair demand. Selected near-by stock sold at 10½ to 11c.; ordinary No. 1 at 9 to 9½c., and No. 2 at 8 to 8½c. per dozen.

MAPLE STOCK—The demand for maple product is exceedingly slow. We quote: Maple syrup, 4¾ to 5c. per lb., and 45 to 55c. per tin; sugar, 6 to 6½c. per lb.

HONEY — Honey is neglected and prices are nominal. White clover comb is offering at 10c., and dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c., and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

BEANS — Business in beans is dull, at 55 to 60c. in car lots, and at 65 to 70c. in a jobbing way.

POTATOES—There is very little demand for old potatoes, and car lots are offering at 30 to 35c. per bag.

PROVISIONS.

There continues to be a strong feeling in the local provision market for Canadian short cut pork, and packers have again advanced prices 50c. to $1 per bbl., which is due chiefly to the small stock held. In lard there is no change. Hams and bacon are very firm, and as the market for these is good, an active trade is reported. We quote: Canadian pork, $14.50 to $15 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, 6¾ to 7¼c., and compound refined at 5¼ to 5½c. per lb.; hams, 11 to 13c., and bacon, 11 to 12c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

There has been no change in the flour market during the week. Demand for Manitoba goods has been of a moderate jobbing kind, and prices are steady. Ontario brands have been little asked for, and values are more or less nominal. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $4 to $4.25; straight rollers, $3.65 to $3.80, and in bags, $1.75 to $1.85. Manitoba strong bakers', choice, $3.85 to $4; outside brands, $3.65 to $3.75, and spring wheat patents, $4.10 to $4.25.

The feed market was fairly active at $13 for Manitoba bran, and at $13 for shorts per ton, including bags.

Business in rolled oats was quiet and prices are unchanged at $3 per barrel and at $1.40 per bag.

BALED HAY.

Values on baled hay in consequence of increased supplies are 50c. lower than they were, but rule steady at the decline under a good demand. We quote: No. 1, $13, and No. 2, $11 to $11.50 car lots on track here.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

The cheese market has ruled rather steadier since the decline that set in at the beginning of last week. The check to the falling tendency was again furnished by the shorts, who had to have June cheese for July shipment. Last week's offerings were the wind up of the June make. Accordingly buyers had to have them, and this demand steadied values materially. We quote finest Ontario makes 8⅛ to 8¼c. and finest Quebec 7½ to 7¾c., some 10,000 of the latter selling on spot Monday within the above range. Further buying in the country by exporters also helped to steady the price of creamery butter, which last week gave symptoms of easing off. As high as 17½c. has been paid at the factory, and of course this tended to make factorymen firmer in their views. We quote: 17¼ to 17¾c. for finest creamery.

MONTREAL NOTES.

Advices from Barbadoes state that the molasses market there is virtually over for the season.

There have been no offers on new pack canned vegetables in this market. Last year's offers were received much earlier than this.

The only trading in teas has been the turnover of 200 packages or so of new crop Japan from first hands at 18 to 25c., as to grade.

First offers on new pack canned strawberries were made to the jobbing trade here this week. The price asked is $1.45 per dozen.

The Laing Packing and Provision Co., Limited, 839 and 841 St. Catharine street, have issued a new single sheet price list of all their products.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., July 15, 1897.

As a summer city St. John has few equals. While other American and Canadian cities are suffering from heat we here are beautifully cool. If one wants warmer weather, however, he has to go but five or ten miles out of the city to get it. No more delightful summer sail can be taken than up our beautiful river, or across the Bay of Fundy to that delightful spot, Digby. The tourists are beginning to come in freely, but chiefly from the American cities. We would be particularly pleased to see more of our Canadian friends. We feel sure if more knew the advantages of our city and province as a summer resort many more would come this way for their outing. Business is rather quiet. The fresh fish business, which has been so active, is about over, and there is nothing of particular movement except it might be small fruit. Butter is dull, being very plentiful and price low.

OILS—There is but light business in all lines. Cod oil is beginning to come in more freely, but finds only fair demand. Price is low. In burning oil there is no change in price. We quote: Best American burning oil, 18½ to 19c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 18c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 16c.

SALT—A cargo of coarse arrived this week from Liverpool. While landing the price was rather lower than quotation. It found a fair demand, but the larger part was put in store. There was about 7,000 bags in the cargo. There was also about forty tons of rock salt. The demand for this salt is much less than it used to be. In Canadian salt, there is a rather easier feeling in some style of packages, but there has been no change made here in price. We quote as follows: Coarse, 44 to 47c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 90c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 to $1.05 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.60 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS—There seems to be this season a lack of interest in this line, both on the side of the dealers and packers. Futures are not generally quoted. Packers feel firm. All goods will be late in being packed. Old corn, which has been bought freely here, has been advanced by the packers and higher prices are looked for. In almost all other lines our market is quite bare. The new self-opening tin is in demand by many of the dealers, and most of the packers offer their goods in them. It is a great improvement over the old style opener. A shipment of lobsters for the States, not having the Government stamp, was seized this week. Haddies are easy. Sardines show a good demand. Oysters tend higher and are having a better sale. Some Baltimore packers are getting short of stocks. Canned meats show improved sale. We quote as follows: Corn, 60 to 65c.; peas, 75 to 85c.; tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; gallon apples, $1.75 to $1.80; corned beef, Canadian, $2.20 to $2.30; American, 2-lb tins, $2.30 to $2.50; 1-lb tins, $1.30 to $1.50; oysters, 2's, $2 to $2.35; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.25 to $2.75; salmon, $1.25 to $1.40; lobsters, $2.25 to $2.50; haddies, $1.10 to $1.25; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

DRIED FRUIT—Stocks are light and business dull. Very little buying for future has yet been done. The feeling in loose muscatels is rather firmer. Quotations on new goods are being looked for already. New California prunes are quoted, but at this season no business is done here. At best the sale is light. While evaporated apples tend higher, demand is light and price shows no change. Dried are dull. Currants are scarce and high with light sale. Onions have fair sale; they hold high. Peanuts are higher. We quote as follows: Raisins, Valencias, 5¼ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5½ to 5¾c.; bbls., 5 to 5¼c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c.; prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples 2½ to 3c.; evaporated apples, 4¼ to 4½c.; onions, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.; cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Valencias, layers, 6 to 7c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.

GREEN FRUIT— Business is active, particularly in small fruits. In oranges, prices are rather higher. Stock is light and best quality is difficult to get. Some Valencias are daily expected. It is very late in the season for them. Lemons tend higher with good sale. Pineapples sell freely. They are low and show no change in price. The warmer weather brings a better demand for melons, but this is not a large market for them. Strawberries are low. New Brunswick berries are preferred. Both wild and cultivated berries are being shipped freely to the States. The California plums to hand are fine. There are only a few apricots on the market. Pears, both California and other grades, are being received. It is still early for best quality. Cucumbers are plentiful, but as yet there are no native grown. Prices are lower. Apples are showing better quality, but have small sale as yet. Rhubarb is about out of season. We quote: Lemons, $3 to $4; oranges, $3.50 to $4; bananas, $1.50 to $2.25; lettuce, 25 to 30c. per doz.; pineapples, 10 to 12c.; strawberries, 8 to 10c.; cucumbers, 60c. per doz.; green apples, $4; Florida tomatoes, $3.50 per 50 lbs.; California peaches, $1.75 to $2; California plums, $2; melons, 30 to 50c.; California pears, $3 to $3.50; others, $2.50 to $3.

SUGAR — The market gains but little strength, although the refineries are rather firmer in their views, but are doing little business here. Local merchants are still selling below refiners' prices, this being chiefly true in regard to granulated. Powdered and Paris lump are quoted rather lower. We quote: Granulated, 4⅜ to 4¼c.; yellows, 3¼ to 3⅜c.; Paris lump, 5¼ to 5½c.; powdered, 5 to 5¼c.

MOLASSES—The general feeling is firmer though there is no change in price. There is still some old molasses in this market that could be bought very low. Barbadoes molasses is the dull feature, but even in that the feeling, if anything, is a little better. We quote: Barbadoes, 22 to 23c.; Porto Rico, 26 to 30c.; New Orleans, bbls., 25 to 27c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Butter is coming in freely, and a great deal of it is fair quality. Eggs hold their price and show a good steady sale. Cheese is being offered more freely and prices are easier. Demand is chiefly for smaller sizes. We quote: Dairy butter, 13 to 16c.; creamery, 17 to 18c.; prints, 19 to 20c.; cheese, 9½ to 10c.; eggs, 9½ to 10c.

FISH—Business is quiet. Salmon have had a very successful season. They are becoming scarce and price tends higher. Smoked herring are scarce at present and will be for some time, but price shows little prospect of advance. Dry fish hold their price. There is a light demand, particularly for pollock. New dry fish continue to arrive. Pickled fish are very dull. Fresh lobsters and halibut are now out of the market. We quote as follows: Large cod, $3 to $3.25; medium, $2.60 to $2.75; pollock, $1.05 to $1.25; bay herring, $1.25 to $1.30 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 6 to 6½c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50; boneless, 2½ to 8c.; Barrington, $3 per bbl.; Shelburne, $3.25 per bbl.; salmon, 13 to 15c.

PROVISIONS — The picnic season has caused quite a demand for hams, while other lines of smoked meats are dull. It is getting too hot for business in this line. Lard is, if anything, easier. It is very low. Pork and beef are quiet. We quote: Clear pork, $13 50 to $14.50; mess, $12 to $13; plate beef, $11.50 to $13; hams 12½ to 13c.; rolls, 9 to 9½c.; pure lard, 7 to 7¼c.; compound, 6½ to 7c.

FLOUR, MEAL AND FEED — The easy feeling continues in flour. There is no change in price. The fight in rates between the direct steamer from Montreal and the railway tends to upset the market somewhat in all lines coming from the west. Middlings and bran remain scarce and tend higher. The local demand is not large. In oatmeal, millers' prices are higher, but there is little change here. In some cases the local prices are below the millers' rates. Oats are rather higher. Cornmeal keeps low, and has a large sale. Beans are quiet and there is little hope of profit to holders for prices are still very low. We quote: Manitoba flour, $4.60 to $4.70; best Ontario, $4.25 to $4.30; medium, $4 to $4.15; oatmeal, $3.25 to $3.40; cornmeal, $1.75 to $1.80; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $15 to $16; bran, do, do, $14 to $14.50; hand-picked beans, 85 to 90c.; prime, 75 to 80c.; oats, 33 to 34c.; hay, $12.50 to $13.50; barley, $2.75 to $3; round peas, $1.15; split peas, $2.85 to $3; yellow eye beans, $1.50; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¾ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

Joseph Finley this week received a shipment of Schepp's cocoanut. During the hot weather particularly there is a good demand for the 5c. packages.

Shipments of oats from P.E. Island have continued large during the week. A cargo of 25,400 bushels cleared from Summerside for Trinidad and two cargoes of some 53,400 bushels for the British Channel.

Two seizures of American tobacco which had not paid duty were made near Fredericton this week, one amounting to 700 pounds, the other to 60. The amount of smuggling along the line is much less than it used to be.

It is now thought the work of construction on the Restigouche and Western Railway, to run from Campbellton across the province to St. Leonards, and from there tap the Bangor and Woodstock, will very shortly be commenced.

The Intercolonial Railway is now giving weekly cold storage service between Quebec and St. John via Moncton. They carry the freight at the ordinary rates. The cars are painted white and labelled "Government Cold Storage Line." Goods are picked up at all stations.

The quantity of cheese made in these lower provinces is much larger than last year. In the factory at Cornwall, P.E. Island, upwards of 17,000 pounds of milk is taken in daily, making the output of cheese about 50 tons per week. Already two shipments have been made to England.

The large amount of export business from St. John done during the winter months has led our city to expend a great deal of money in providing increased accommodation. During the past two winters the business has been well handled, but there will be much better and larger facilities this season.

While the shipments of live lobsters from Yarmouth, N.S., were not as large as those of last year, the increased price obtained went far to make up the difference in receipts. The shipments last year amounted to 29,586 crates, while for the present season they amounted to only 21,810 crates. The value of the shipments last year was $245,086, and for this year $225,390.

LATE RICHARD M'SHANE.

Montreal has been deprived of another well-known figure in its commercial life by the death Tuesday morning of Mr. Richard McShane, the well-known grocer and provision merchant. The deceased had only been confined to his residence, 660 Palace street, three weeks. He was attended in his last illness by Hon. Dr. Guerin, who did all that could be done to prolong his life, but in vain.

His early commercial career was in the grocery and provision business with his father, and he eventually succeeded to a well-established trade. Since then his career has been one of steady and uniform success. He was especially identified with the supply of provisions and groceries to the various shipping lines that visit this port. He was a member of the Board of Trade for many years, and was well known for his charity and kindheartedness.

Another lot of Sicilian lemonade, orange phosphate, and strawberry tablets are to hand with Lucas, Steele & Bristol. They are packed 1 doz. bottles in box and retail at 10c.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, July 15, 1897.

WEATHER continues fine and warm. Preparations are going actively forward for the Industrial Exhibition, which opens next week. The largest attendance since the opening of the summer exhibition is expected this year. One of the features which, no doubt, will attract great attention is the mining exhibit. It seems a far cry from grocery and produce prices to mining, and still they are nearly allied in interest for the Manitoba farmer. The development of the mineral regions, both in Western Ontario and British Columbia, means increased markets for our food stuffs, and if any Manitoba farmer is not interested in the mining region he is unquestionably a back number. Prices have not varied much during the week. The fresh pack of strawberries has been offered by eastern factories, and it is expected that peas will be on the market in about 10 days. Tomatoes are very good stock and the prices are firm. Cured meats show a slight advance owing to the high price of hogs.

CURED MEATS—Hams, assorted, 11 to 11½c.; breakfast bellies, 11½c.; do, backs, 7 to 9½c.; rolls, 7½c.; shoulders, 6 to 6½c.; long dry salt, 7c. All canvassed meats are ½c. per lb. extra.

LARD—Pure, in 20-lb. pails, $1.50 to $1.60; cases, $5.25.

BUTTER—Creamery plentiful; general price, 15c. f.o.b. at factories. Dairy is slightly better, dealers paying from 10 to 11c.

CHEESE—Prices: 6½ to 7c. Dealers buying here are storing and not shipping at present. The supply is not large.

EGGS—Dealers are this week paying 10c. and selling for 12 to 13c. after candling.

CANNED GOODS — Strawberries, new packs, are being offered freely by eastern factories at $1.35 to $1.45 per case, according to brand. Some sales have been effected at these figures. New peas are not yet on the market. Tomatoes seem scarce and are ruling much higher than at this date last year. Quoted at $2.25 per case. The stock of corn is still heavy and price remains same, $1.40 to $1.60, according to pack.

SUGAR—Market is about the same as last week and does not look strong, although usually at this season there is an advance owing to the preserving season being on, and the canning factories being in operation. From present indications there does not seem any likelihood of a change. Granulated, 4⅞c.; yellows, 4 to 4⅛c.

COFFEE—There is no change in this market. Rios, still dull at 13½c.; Javas, 28c., and Mochas, 37c.

CEREALS—Rolled oatmeal, 80-lb. sacks, $1.50 per sack; granulated, 98 lbs., $1.75; standard, 98 lbs., $1.75; rolled wheat, 80 lbs., $1.75 sack; pot barley, 98 lbs., $1.75; pearl barley, 98 lbs., $3.25 sack.

GREEN FRUIT—Foreign strawberries are out of the market, but some very fine Manitoba grown berries are being offered. The supply, however, is limited. The quality of the fruit is superior to any imported this year. It was all disposed of to local dealers at from 20 to 25c. per box. Lemons have advanced 50c. per case. The general importation of California fruit is large, and the indications are that prices will rule lower than last year. Prices are: California late Valencia oranges, $6 to $6.50 box; Mediterranean sweets, $4.50 per box; St. Michaels, $5.25 per box; Messina lemons, $6 to $6.50; bananas, $2 to $2.75 per bunch; pineapples, $2.50 to $3 per dozen; pie plant, 1½c. per pound; tomatoes, $1.75 per crate of 4 baskets; California cherries, $1.50 to $1.75 per box; apricots, $2 box; California plums, $2.25 to $2.50 box; California peaches, $2.25 to $2.50 box; California pears $3.50 to $4 per box; onions, $4 per 100 lbs; new cabbage, $3.50 to $4 per 100 lbs.; dates, 6½ to 7c. per lb.; layer figs, 12½ to 15c. lb.; cucumbers, 75c. to $1 doz.; water melons $6 per doz.

PICNIC POSTPONED.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather the picnic of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association was postponed until Thursday, the 29th July. The grounds at St. Rose are as nice as any pleasure resort in Canada, and the association hope to have the largest crowd there, on the above date, that has ever attended this ever-popular picnic.

The new Japan teas offering by Lucas, Steele & Bristol are equal to anything sold last year. Their travelers have samples.

The ½-lb. "Star" lobsters offering by Lucas, Steele & Bristol from the Portland Packing Co. are said to be extra quality. The firm has Noble's "XX" and "XXX" lobsters as well.

THE PRUNE CROP.

THE following is a translation of a report regarding the prune crop received by Rose & Laflamme, of Montreal, from Anton Strass, of Budapest. It bears date of June 15:

"The estimates of the crop of 1896 given in my report of the past year have proved to be correct, as there have been about 1,410 cars (of 10,000 kilos) exported from Servia, and about 3,000 cars from Bosnia.

"For about two months there have been no prunes on the market, and consequently a number of orders remain unfilled owing to the want of merchandise. Soon the grocers will be sold out.

"Accordingly we enter the season of 1897 without the least stock on hand, and as a result there is not a little interest attached to the expectations of the new crop, upon which I would like to enlighten my friends by giving them some certain information which I have obtained from the different producing districts.

"BOSNIA—Although the large number of blossoms in the spring gave us much hope for a large crop, it could be seen later that a great number of the blossoms were not buds of fruit. Only those countries which had a small crop last year will this year have more than an average yield, while the orchards which last year gave a good production cannot be depended on this year for much fruit. Taking into consideration these facts, Bosnia will likely not have much fruit for export.

"SERVIA had a small yield last year, but this year a better production is expected. In certain districts an exceedingly good crop is looked for, and Servia's production will likely be double what it was in 1896.

"BOHEMIA—Here also there was a favorable prospect at the beginning of the season, but now we have complaints to the effect that the demand for the consumption of fresh prunes will hardly be satisfied, and that very few will be dried.

"FRANCE—From France comes the intelligence that the cool and wet weather has injured the fruit, and as a consequence the yield will be of medium size.

"It will be seen from the preceding that Servia and Bosnia will together have a production little smaller than that of 1896, while the expectations regarding the other countries, outside of stocks, do not let us hope for quite as good a crop as they had last year. If, however, the actual prices of new prunes are from 15 to 25 per cent. less than the prices of the yield last year, that reduction will be removed during the time that the fresh prunes are selling and just as soon as the real demand comes on."

"Lastly, I wish to remark that the curing of prunes during the last year has improved, for in accordance with the wishes of the dealers here and in England the governments in Bosnia and in Servia are exercising a stricter restraint in prohibiting badly cured prunes from getting out of the country."

PEPPER.

"For peppers grown callous almost to disease,
Who peppers the highest is surest to please."
—Goldsmith.

Black pepper grows on a beautiful vine (not a tree) which, incapable of supporting itself, twines round poles prepared for it, writes W. D. Bennett in an exchange. The pepper vine produces fruit in two seasons of the year. In the latter end of December the berries begin to ripen, and are gathered in January. The flowers of the second crop appear in March and April, and the fruit is gathered in July or August, each vine producing one half pound pepper. The gathering of the crop takes place while the berries are still green, before they are ripe, and they are dried in the sun, which turns them black, therefore it is called black pepper. White pepper is produced by cooking the berries in water till the outer skin peels of, in Singapore. The Straits Settlements are a part of the colonial possessions of Great Britain, and include Malacca, Penang and Singapore, the latter being the capital and the seat of government. It has become easily and naturally the centre of the commerce of the Malayan Archipelago, the Eastern Peninsula and China; and since 1875 the trade has increased 50 per cent. Its chief articles of export are tea, sago, tapioca, black and white pepper, tortoise-shell, nutmeg, gutta percha, camphor, coffee and rattan; but of these only sago, pepper and nutmeg are produced on the island in any quantity, the rest being imported from other quarters. The lowest grade of white pepper is grown and prepared in Penang, while the pepper hulls or shells are shipped in large quantities to the U.S.A. direct via London. Anyone can at once see for himself the difference between white pepper made from being soaked in cold water, and white made or decorticated by "chlorine" by splitting a grain or berry of Singapore black pepper and a grain or berry of white. They are of the same color, whereas the grain bleached with chlorine is brittle and very mild, the essential properties being destroyed. The genuine pepper contains starch, malic, a volatile oil, and a peculiar substance called pipirena. The finest white pepper is grown on the Malayan coast, Alappy and T'llicheny.

This department has become so popular that many more notices than there is space for are received every week. In future only important items of information will be inserted. Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.]

THE CANADIAN SPECIALTY CO. have been appointed Canadian agents for "Kis-me" gum.

Clemes Bros. received two cars of tomatoes this week.

Keopff's family gelatine is in stock with John Sloan & Co., Toronto.

Robert Greig & Co. are shipping large quantities of French mustard these days.

New season's Japan teas are arriving this week for the Davidson & Hay, Limited.

Noble's XXX Scripture lobsters, tall tins, are in stock with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Warren Bros. & Co. are in receipt of a sample of Rangoon rice which shows fine quality.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol have just received a shipment of the celebrated "Tryphosa" jelly powder.

The Cowan Co., Limited, have just put in a fine freezing apparatus to facilitate their increasing business.

Robert Greig & Co. are offering bargains in Buchanan's Glasgow jams and marmalades—new season's fruits.

T. A. Lytle & Co., vinegar manufacturers, Richmond street west, Toronto, report business good throughout the country.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, have a car of cohoes and white salmon to hand, which they offer at tempting prices.

Clemes Bros. and McWilliam & Everist are receiving a car of California fruit this week, including plums, peaches, apricots and pears.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, report large sales of Gillard's pickles during the past two weeks. This firm are the wholesale agents in Toronto for these goods.

The F. F. Dalley Co., Limited, say that their trade for package spices, corn starch and package sodas has more than pleased them since being placed on the market.

Robert Greig & Co. report an unprecedented demand for their "Crown" flavoring extracts. Their factory has been working at night lately to keep up with the orders.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have, within the past week, received from the Lower Provinces repeat orders for several hundred cases of New York ginger ale. One large retailer there says that it is fully equal to, if not better than, any imported ginger ale he has seen, and follows up his remarks by an order for 25 cases.

The Canadian Specialty Co. report that they are handling peanuts in a new shape. They are being put up in Norfolk, Virginia, in paste-board boxes, the inside of which is lined with parchment paper. This process preserves their freshness for months. A prize is given in each box. The pint retails at 5c. The Canadian agents claim that they have already sold 150 boxes, 3 dozen in a box.

COCOA DURING HOT WEATHER.

People have the idea that cocoa is very heating and not good in hot weather. This is incorrect, the reverse of true, in regard to fine cocoa. Cocoas like Cowan's "Hygienic" and "Perfection," being pure, are not only free from the heating properties commonly attributed indiscriminately to cocoa, but they are refreshing and strengthening and peculiarly adapted to counteract the enervating effects of this hot weather. People should avoid cheap cocoas, which are mainly starch and sugar, with a little cocoa. Cowan's "Hygienic" and "Perfection" cocoas are put up and sold in tins only.

TORONTO GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held Monday night in St. George's Hall, Elm street, with President J. S. Bond in the chair. Among those present were: Messrs. D. W. Clark, A. White, Frank Johnson, J. Brazill, J. Nolan, P. Clark, — Johnson, David Bell, W. J. Sykes, W. J. McCleary, A. G. Booth, J. Kelly, J. G. Gibson, F. S. Roberts, Robt. Mills, — Squires, J. Davis, J. T. Scholes, R. Vanloon.

J. G. Walker, 886 King street east, was proposed for membership by Mr. W. J. Sykes, and the usual motion admitting him to membership was passed.

The following letter from the Salada Tea Co. was read by President Bond:

J. S. Bond, Esq., City:

Dear Sir,—Hearing that there was a combination among the wholesale grocers of Toronto to keep up the price of granulated sugar in this city, I have made some enquiries, and find that extra standard granulated sugar can be purchased for 4⅛c.

As I understand, this combine, which declares that it is working on ⅛c., is really extracting from the grocer considerably more. As this places the retail grocer of Toronto in the position that he is unable to compete with his competitors a few miles out of the city, where granulated is being sold to-day for 4⅛c., I have made arrangements, and am prepared to offer to your association extra standard granulated sugar, in 25 barrel lots or more, at 4⅛c.; and my suggestion is that the association should distribute it among their members according to their requirements.

I shall be pleased if you will convey my proposal to the members of your association at the earliest convenient moment.

Yours truly,

"Salada" Tea Co.

"Now, gentlemen," remarked the president, as he concluded the letter, "what is your pleasure?"

Mr. J. G. Gibson: "I for one never objected to the combination on sugar. I think the grocers of Toronto or anywhere else are fools to sell sugar without a profit, but when the wholesale grocers say that our money is not as good as that of a merchant's in the country, and sell to him at a lower price than they do to us, I must object. I think the wholesale grocers of Toronto took a wrong step when they undertook to make tools of us."

Mr. Frank Johnson: "I know of a brother grocer who had a customer who wanted a barrel of granulated sugar. The customer lived outside the city. Not having a barrel of granulated in stock that he could spare, the merchant gave the customer an order on a wholesale house in Toronto. The customer on getting the sugar was told that as he lived outside the city he could buy at ⅛c. less from them than from the merchant who had supplied him with the order."

This created quite a sensation, and a number of members demanded the name of the wholesaler, but Mr. Johnson refused to give it. After some further discussion it was moved by Mr. Kelly that the thanks of the association be tendered the Salada Tea Co., and that its offer be accepted.

Mr. Sykes objected to the resolution, saying that it was unnecessary on the ground that the Salada Tea Co. was trying to get a good advertisement for its tea. "There are others," said Mr. Sykes, "who are willing to offer granulated sugar below the combination price."

Mr. Gibson said that there was not a wholesale house in Toronto that would supply granulated sugar below the combination figure.

Mr. Sykes: "I did not say it was a wholesale grocer."

After some further discussion Mr. Kelly's motion, being seconded by Mr. McCleary, was carried.

The greater part of the evening was taken up in discussing the coming excursion to Cobourg on the 21st inst. The committee reported that the Mayor of Cobourg had promised to proclaim a half-holiday on the 21st, while various organizations in the town had offered to co-operate in perfecting arrangements.

Mr. A. White reported that a band of nine pieces had been secured at a cost of $36. At a latter stage of the meeting the committee was authorized to expend a further sum of $15 for music on board the boat.

The following programme of games was adopted:

Bicycle team race between travelers and retail grocers; 10 men to each team; 7 prizes and trophy.

One-mile open bicycle race, handicap, 3 prizes. Entrance fee, 25c.

Foot race; open to the merchants of Cobourg.

Fat men's race, 75 yards; open to grocers 35 years of age and over and weighing not less than 200 lbs.

One hundred yards foot race; open to members of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association.

Throwing ball; open to the ladies of Cobourg.

Half-mile walking race between Toronto and Cobourg grocers.

Baseball match between teams representing travelers and grocers.

The sum of ten dollars was voted to the baseball club for expenses.

The grocers will select their team for the bicycle race from the following: Manning, Manley, Molland, Richardson, Hopper, J. Barron, F. Davidson, B. Parmenter, N. Brown, R. Davies, D. Bell, D. Kelly, R. Mills, F. S. Roberts, J. Robinson.

These are the names of the travelers for the road race: Percy Parmenter, of J. A. McLean; E. H. Bolton, P. McIntosh & Son; Chas. Shields, Davidson & Hay, Limited; Lou Kemp, D. Gunn, Bros. & Co.; Jerry Burns, W. Wilson; H. W. Cowan, the Cowan Co.; J. Farewell, Toronto Pharmacal Co.; E. H. Wilson, Todhunter, Mitchell & Co.; John Tattle, A. H. Canning; J. C. Pearson, T. Kinnear & Co.; D. J. Ferguson, P. Barclay & Co.; C. H. Collins, G. F. & J. Galt.

CHERRIES ROTTING.

LAST week we quoted Canadian cherries at 60 to 85c. per basket and this week at 75c. to $1.25 per basket. On enquiring as to the cause of a rise in the middle of the cherry season, I received answers to the following effect:

Thus far the crop of Canadian cherries arriving in Toronto have come from the Niagara district, where until last week a good crop of cherries was expected. The extremely hot weather, however, has had such an effect on this fruit that over half the English variety of cherries on the trees are, on a close examination, found to be rotten and not worth the picking. Still, the proprietors of the orchards thought it would be all right to ship the half that, seemingly, was not spoiled by the heat, but when this fruit was kept in the city a few hours it was found to be in just as spoiled a condition as that on the trees. No more English cherries are now being shipped.

The common red varieiy of Canadian cherries is not affected so, and it is this kind that is now bearing the brunt of the attack of the demand; consequently prices have been raised.

It is not probable that, when the cherries on the Toronto side of the lake are ripe, which will be soon, the supply from these orchards will be sufficient to lower the price, as this supply will not come on before the others are about out of the market.

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

[The following items arrived too late for insertion in the regular advertising space. Reading notices inserted in this column at 5c. per word.]

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, have a shipment of "Tiger" pepsin gum in stock.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. report that their "Maple Leaf" brand of lard put up in 3, 5 and 10-lb. tins is in great demand for summer use.

"Tanglefoot" flypaper is catching on at a surprising rate with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited. If you want to catch your customers' good opinion offer them "Tanglefoot."

"This is great weather for Stower's lime juice," said the Eby, Blain Co., Limited. "Our sales are going up rapidly; people are beginning to appreciate this excellent summer beverage."

CALIFORNIA FRUIT OUTLOOK.

ALD. J. McBRIDE, of the firm of Vipond, McBride & Co., has just returned to Montreal from the California fruit belt. He made an extensive tour of the district, and told THE CANADIAN GROCER that the crop of fruit of all kinds promised to be a large one. It had been marketing very fast, and at the time he was on the spot was fetching very good prices. When he left about a week or ten days ago, however, there were fears of a glut. During the first week of July 182 cars had left California for the east. All these had had to be side-tracked owing to the Christian Endeavor traffic, and some of the fruit will certainly be injured, but the great danger lay in a glut of the eastern market when this fruit arrives, as it is likely to come in in a body, including as many more cars which were sent east during the second week of July. The danger is that this glut will demoralize prices on California fruit so badly that they may not recover during the season. The only way to avoid it will be to use judgment in distribution on the different eastern markets so that one won't get too much and another too little.

"Trade out there is in an unfavorable state," said Mr. McBride, "and the present unsatisfactory state of affairs is due in a great measure to the fact that the Union Pacific Railway, which has a monopoly of the carrying trade, is grinding the life out of that rich and fruitful state. I discussed the causes of the present depression with the merchants and farmers, and in fact all classes of people, and the story was always the same. Here is what I mean: The rate per carload from the fruit-producing centres of California to either Boston, New York or Montreal is $360, while the refrigerating charges and ice foot up to from $150 to $170 more, so you see that from $510 to $550 per carload have to be paid before the farmer or producer can touch a cent, and, as far as their Canadian trade is concerned, there are likewise the duty and selling charges to be added.

"Is there no possible competition?"

"None whatever, the Union Pacific's monopoly is absolute, and this is what is ruining the people of the state of California."

"For the most part," Ald. McBride added, "the farms are heavily mortgaged and their owners are living along from hand to mouth."

"And is there no possible remedy?"

"I do not think there is, although a strong agitation has sprung up favoring the ownership of the railways by the Government. In fact this movement is stronger than one would suppose; for the people say it is the only way out of their very grave difficulty."

The London Grocers' Association have changed the date of their picnic from the 21st to the 28th of July, so as to avoid clashing with the St. Andrew's Society picnic on July 20.

THE SUMMER STORE.

THE summer store should present an appearance in marked contrast to the store in winter, says The American Grocer. Everything about the window displays, the counters and stock should remind one of the season. The general effect should be to impress customers that the store is clean, cool and captivating. The stock should appeal to capricious appetites, invite indulgence in dainty delicacies and summer beverages. "It always makes me hungry to come into your store," remarked a woman to Grocer B. What greater compliment could be paid a purveyor of food?

A few handsome palms and rubber trees may be made very effective in giving the store a cool look. Keep a current of fresh air circulating in the store and in the cellar. It robs the room of that oppressive odor which comes from food kept in a close room with a high temperature, and which takes away the appetite.

Show windows should be neatly and artistically arranged with summer delicacies—olives, capers, olive oil, pickles, lime juice, sauces, sardines, lobster, clams, shrimp, pickled lambs' tongue, potted meats and poultry, curried fowl, luncheon beef, catsups and scores of other articles more in favor in July than January. Do not place maple syrup in a show window in July, for it reminds one of pancakes and winter diet. Rather have all the things which enter into salad-making and such as are suggestive of dishes adapted to hot weather. Canned vegetables and fruits in the season when fresh fruits and vegetables are abundant and cheap should be made an effective background until October, when they should change places with the summer specialties.

Summer beverages ought to be in every grocer's stock. A neat display of the various summer drinks can be very effectively arranged inside the store and near the entrance. And let there be a reminder of iced tea and coffee, even if you have to serve the same free to customers as an object lesson of how much comfort can be had at trifling expense.

Cereals and crackers are in favor, the former to be served hot as a summer breakfast dish with berries or other fruits, and cold for luncheon or supper. Crackers are in request for luncheons and for outing parties, and should be prominently displayed in great variety. The stock should be kept fresh—i.e., crisp. Avoid giving prominence to sticky cakes or such sort of biscuits as are identified with oyster suppers or other winter pastimes.

Hams and tongues are in favor in July and August, and therefore they should have a special setting, such as will tend to make the observer long for a sandwich and a bottle of ginger ale or root beer. Have everything about the summer meats clean and appetizing.

The floor ought to be kept as clean and bright as the deck of a man-of-war, and the windows sparkling and spotless. Fly-specks, cobwebs, sticky scales or untidy counters are appetite-killers. Flies can be kept out of a store if they are persistently fought. Drive them out and keep them out, even though screen doors are required.

When the store presents a seasonable and alluring appearance, then advertise in a cool and breezy fashion. Let the colors and the type used in your circulars, billheads, cards, signs, etc., be suggestive of a cool retreat, where physical comforts are to be freely had. There are what are designated "warm" colors, such as are suggestive of a log fire, instead of an ocean breeze or a cool grove. Be fertile in hints likely to prove acceptable to summer pleasure seekers and to all who seek comfort at the table. Remember that eternal vigilance is the price of a profitable summer trade.

Now tired, business-weary men
Their play-times are beginning:
We've reached the summer season when
The outing has its inning.

HARDER TO BUY THAN SELL.

A traveling salesman made this rather singular remark the other day, says an exchange: "If I could buy goods as readily as I could sell them, I would go off the road and set myself up in business as a broker." What he meant to be understood by this was that it is easier to sell goods than to buy them, because the exercise of judgment in all respects is not so necessary. He is undoubtedly right, unorthodox as the statement may seem, although it is merely another way of saying that goods well bought are half sold. It is not always so much the character of the goods to be bought that perplexes the buyer as is the question of quantity and time. Goods may sell, yet never buy themselves, and when they are to be bought the degree of acute judgment is certainly more pronounced than is required when the same goods are sold over the retail counters."

MINT ... PUFF-STRAPS

RECOGNIZING the great popularity of peppermint with the sweets-loving public, we are the first to introduce to the trade Pliable Licorice containing this flavor.

The delicious quality of our Pliable Licorice is well known; it is matchless in this respect as well as in its flavor and finish.

Our Triple Tunnel Tubes and Navy Plugs are great favorites also, and are made of the same material, although flavored differently. . . . . .

We recommend all these goods as suitable for Summer Trade; they will please the most exacting taste as wholesome, smooth and palatable confections. . . .

A Retail Grocer's Customer

says "You see it's this way. I believed my grocer. I bought a certain brand of Rolled Oats because he advised me to: said they were 'just as good as Tillson's.' He's out of business now. I read your advertisements a little while ago, and bought some of your Pan Dried Rolled Oats. They were cleaner and better flavored than any I ever ate."

THAT customer won't go back to the old grocer if the grocer goes into business again. Any customer of any grocer anywhere is likely to do just this same thing—try our Oats. If some grocer somewhere gets caught napping on this "just as good as Tillson's" remark, that grocer's going to lose some trade, sure.

A BALLAD OF THE RANKS.

(Adapted from A. Conan Doyle.)

Who carries the Gun ?
A lad from over the Tweed,
What's he got in his bag ?
Eddy's Matches of which we read.
Then let him go, for well we know
He comes of a soldier breed.
So drink together to rock and heather,
Out where the red deer run,
And stands aside for Scotland's pride,
The lad that carries the gun.

Chorus.—For the colonel rides before,
The major 's on the flank,
The captains and the adjutants
Are in the foremost rank.
But, when it's "Action front !"
And fighting's to be done,
'Baccy and pipe and Eddy's Matches
They for the moment shun,
Come one, come all, you stand or fall
By the man who holds the gun.

Who carries the gun ?
A lad from a Yorkshire dale,
He's provided with Eddy's Flamer Match
That won't go out in a gale.
Then let him go, for well we know
The heart that never will fail.
Here's to the fire of Lancashire,
And here's to her soldier son ;
For the hard-bit North has sent him forth,
The lad that carries the gun.

Who carries the gun ?
A lad from a Midland shire.
What kind of matches does he use ?
Eddy's when he wants sure fire.
Then let him go, for well we know
He comes of an English sire.
Here's a glass to a Midland lass,
And each can choose the one,
But east and west we claim the best
For the lad that carries the gun.

Who carries the gun ?
A lad from the hills of Wales.
He too uses Eddy's Matches
The kind that never fails.
Then let him go, for well we know
That Taffy is hard as nails.
There are several ll's in the place he dwells,
And of w's more than one,
With a "Lan" and "Pen," but it breeds good men,
And it's they who carry the gun.

Who carries the gun ?
A lad from the Windy West,
His kit includes a box of Eddy's
They're known to be the best.
We'll let him go, for well we know
That he is one of the best.
There's Bristol rough and Gloucester tough,
And Devon yields to none,
Or you may get in Somerset
A lad to carry the gun.

THE CANADIAN GROCER

Vol. XI. (Published Weekly) MONTREAL AND TORONTO, JULY 23, 1897 ($2.00 per Year) No. 30

A GLANCE INTO THE FUTURE.

A PICTURE OF THE GROCERY BUSINESS AS IT WILL BE HALF A CENTURY HENCE.

THE grocer sat at the back of his store, and as the weather was warm and business very dull (he did not believe in advertising) it was not long before he fell into a sound sleep. While he slept he dreamed.

He dreamed that he was brought suddenly face to face with one of the successors of the grocers of to-day—a loquacious and genial fellow who first saw the light of day about 1930, and who, in the middle of the twentieth century, was running a grocery store in a large trade centre.

The grocer's strange visitor was very communicative and passed various opinions upon the interior of the store, the fittings and stock. He appeared to find many differences in store methods, etc., of to day and those of his own times.

Spying several sugar barrels with their contents exposed, he exclaimed: "Why, we twentieth-century grocers gave up selling sugar in that form long ago. We handle it exclusively in packages, but the call is mostly for the concentrated kind, a pound of which goes further than several barrels of the old-fashioned refined. In like manner, most of the coffee and tea we sell is so prepared that a small pellet, about as large as a common homœopathic pilule and containing the proper quantity of milk and sugar, will make sufficient liquor for a large family. This reduction of bulk in many articles greatly relieves the grocer's shelves and makes the labor of delivering goods much lighter.

"I notice you have a delivery wagon outside your store. Now, we twentieth-century dealers have long discarded the horse and substituted the electric wagon of light construction and great speed, which admits of the delivery of goods regularly on hourly trips. When extreme dispatch is necessary we use the air line. We have, however, very few customers who regularly visit the store in person. The telephone system, without wires, admits of cheap and easy communication between the store and consumer. Every house in town has the telephone system.

"With this system of ordering by telephone we twentieth-century grocers have simply to deliver the goods and collect the money. Weekly collections are the rule, although nearly one-half of the consumers prefer to pay in advance in order to secure a discount for cash. A certain sum agreed upon is paid over weekly, fortnightly or monthly, and the goods delivered against the credit as they are ordered, until the sum is wiped out, and then another payment is made.

"The old grievance against so many jobbing houses and transportation companies —delay in delivery of goods—has been wiped out by the introduction of our air-ship transportation at any speed desired, and also by the erection of whole blocks of buildings as wholesale warerooms, with revolving pillars and other sorts of new-fangled elevators, and half a dozen sets of tracks for terrestial electric roads, air-line roads, etc., running through the centre of the shipping departments. As is the case with many consumers, a large number of retail grocers prefer to pay in advance for their supplies, and the plan greatly simplifies the business of the wholesaler and reduces his expenses for bookkeeping.

"By the way, your store is anything but inviting. Why, we have floral decorations in the show windows, and a showy fountain in the centre of the store, with climbing plants and vines, among which are hung cages containing singing birds of various kinds; we have to make things pleasant in order to get the customers into the store.

"Department stores? Oh, no; that plan of distributing goods became unpopular, and in my time the specialist has the call. But the specialist must prove himself fit for his business, before he can obtain permission to start in his own name. A grocer, for example, must obtain a certificate of competency from the local grocers' association, which is empowered by the national association to grant certificates to competent clerks who wish to become owners of stores, and in case of certain offences, the certificate is rescinded and the guilty person must retire from business.

"The same organization has full powers as regards the adulteration of foods. By law it can establish standards of purity, investigate all suspicious cases and punish by fines. No manufacturer can market a new article unless the official seal of the association has been placed upon its wrapper as a guarantee of purity, etc.

"The same organization has control of the receipts of fresh vegetables and fruits by water and railroad, and also of the licensing of pedlars. No pedlar is allowed to purchase fruits or vegetables until a certain hour of the day, after the grocers' wants have been satisfied at the various depots, and thus by giving the grocers the advantage of quality and by placing the peddling tax at a reasonable level, the pedlar is no longer a bugbear to the grocers.

"How about bad debts? We have none, or very few. The aforesaid association requires a daily report from each grocer of the new credits and regarding the state of old accounts, and a consumer who owes one dealer cannot get credit from another, but, indeed, can be forced to pay the original debt in instalments, whenever the creditor makes application to the courts, who, upon a refusal, will imprison the obstinate debtor for contempt of court.

"Cutting of prices? Done away with years ago. The slaughter of profits always raises doubts of a dealer's sanity, and the suspected person is immediately hauled before the grocer's own tribunal, and if he cannot prove his innocence is pretty sure to be consigned to the county lunatic asylum for an indefinite period.

"The trade in labor-saving groceries has been well developed between 1900 and 1950. Few women nowadays care to bother with butchers' bills and a high-priced cook. They buy dishes for ordinary meals or elaborate banquets from the grocer, who sells them in a condensed and concentrated form, in cans and glass, and with the addition of water and heat they make a palatable and wholesome meal, which is also much cheaper than a home-cooked meal of the same kind would be, and is prepared with very little trouble to the housewife. A NEW TAPIOCA.

Fred E. and Charles B. Grout, of Orange, Mass., are just placing on the Canadian market a tapioca on whose preparation they have been working for a considerable length of time. It is called "Lightning" tapioca, and it is claimed derives its good qualities mainly from the rapidity with which it is prepared. Grout & Grout have patented a machine that weighs out three-fourths of a pound of tapioca, packs it in a pasteboard covering, and seals the package, all in 30 seconds. They claim that the rapidity of the packing, combined with advantages in other stages of its preparation, renders it healthful and nourishing, as well as delicious. Its most commendable property, however, is that by which it needs no soaking before it is used, as most brands of tapioca require.

The Canadian Specialty Co., 38 Front street east, Toronto, are the Canadian agents, and they report that they already have had large sales. It retails at 10c. a package. Samples will cheerfully be forwarded on application.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

This department has become so popular that many more notices than there is space for are received every week. In future only important items of information will be inserted. Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.]

THE Canadian Specialty Co. have just received the Canadian agency for Frank H. Fleer & Co.'s gums. This variety of gum is called the "Guru-Kola," as it is deliciously flavored by Guru or Kola nuts. It is done up in boxes of 20 5c. packages, which are being sold at 68c. a box. Or they may be obtained in large glass flasks, which contain 100 5c. packages, for $3.40.

The John Hillock Co. are putting in a second refrigerator for Christie, Brown & Co. It is to be 24 x 9 x 18.

Rutherford, Marshall & Co. are finding a good export demand for tub butter, both medium and choice grades. They advise immediate shipment.

"Something sweet," a high-class syrup in 2-lb. tins, packed 50 in a case, is for sale by Lucas, Steele & Bristol. It can be retailed at 3 for 25c.

The "Empire" coffee just put on the market by Lucas, Steele & Bristol is very handsomely labeled. It is packed in 25 and 50-lb. air-tight cans.

W. H. Gillard & Co; report the sale of over five hundred cases of New York ginger ale during the past week. "It makes a good summer beverage," they say.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, have received a stock of drained lemon and citron peels. These goods are invariably preferred by the best bakers and confectioners owing to their superior quality and entire freedom from loss in weight through excess of sugar.

"Yes," say Lucas, Steele & Bristol, "we expect to fill all our Japan tea orders at as low, or lower, prices than last season—from stock. We are prepared to substantiate this."

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

[The following items arrived too late for insertion in the regular advertising space. Reading notices inserted in this column at 5c. per word.]

W. H. Gillard & Co. state that this week they are offering some particularly good values in teas.

"We deliver 5-case lots of Challond & Jenks' ginger ale, lemon sour, club soda, etc." So say Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

"We have received another shipment of currants, and our cleaned fruit is in active and constant demand," say the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

NOT THAT KIND OF A GUN.

In a corner grocery in the western part of the city the other day, a boy was buying shot and getting ready to go hunting. His old gun was lying around rather loose, and the grocer nervously remarked:

"Boy, I wish you'd take care of that gun; I'm afraid of an accident."

The boy stood it up against a barrel, and went on telling how many rabbits he meant to pepper, and pretty soon it came near falling to the floor.

"I tell you that infernal thing will hurt some of us yet!" exclaimed the grocer as he jumped aside, and the boy leaned it against the counter, and said he'd never take a back seat for a bear—never. As he reached over to look at some buckshot, down tumbled the gun and off went the charge, sending about forty duck shot into a ten-gallon oil can in range.

"There she goes—there she goes!" yelled the grocer, as he danced around. "Didn't I tell you that infernal gun would go off?"

"And did I deny it?" promptly retorted the boy. "Do you s'pose I'm fool 'nuff to go out to hunt rabbits with brass knuckles or a bean shooter?"—Detroit Free Press.

THE HEAVY PRODUCTION OF PETROLEUM.

THE OIL CITY DERRICK, in its June Pipe Line report, says :

The runs of Pennsylvania oil for June are the largest that have been recorded since the height of the McDonald excitement, and greater than that of any previous June since the early days of the Bradford field. The shipments were heavier than those of May or April, but lower than those of March, and the increase in the net stocks is the heaviest, with the exception of February, of any month of the present year.

The June Pipe Line runs were nearly 6,000 barrels a day in excess of May, while May was nearly a thousand barrels a day behind April. The production of Pennsylvania oils the past month was over 12,500 barrels a day in excess of the consumption, and the stocks were increased over 385,000 barrels. The big wells of the Southwest were numerous the past month, as shown in the June report of drilling operations, and the West Virginia fields now exceed in daily output any other section of the producing region.

The total production of Pennsylvania oils for the first six months of the present year, as shown by the Pipe Line runs, was 16,801,179 barrels, or a daily average of 92,826 barrels. For the entire year 1896 the average was 91,000 barrels a day. The oil production of the United States for 1897 will probably exceed that of any previous year.

The net stocks at the close of the old year footed up 9,550,583 barrels. During January there was a gain of 159,409 barrels ; for the month of February there was an increase of 399,586 barrels, during March a gain of 111,473 barrels, during April an increase of 335,797 barrels, during May a gain of 306,204 barrels, and in June an increase of 385,659 barrels, bringing the net stocks on June 30 up to 11,248,710 barrels. The stocks have been on the increase since June, 1894. On June 30, 1896, they amounted to 7,601,666, and on June 30, 1895, to 4,109,788 barrels. At the present time they are over a million barrels more than they were on the last of June, 1894.

Stocks reached their lowest ebb at the close of June, 1895, when they were but 4,109,788 barrels. There has been a gain nearly every month since that time. The heaviest increase during 1896 was that of June, when a gain of 618,214 barrels was recorded. The total increase in the net stocks since the average production begun to show an advance over the average consumption has been 7,138,923 barrels.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

Canned Goods.

I have been asked by a retailer to warn the grocers in canned meats, particularly, in regard to the danger they are running in keeping canned meats in stock too long. He says that there is an idea prevalent among grocers that canned meats such as corned beef will never spoil, even after five or six years' standing on the shelves of a grocer's shop. Sometimes they will stand the strain, he says, but generally they will not. He cited an instance where he opened some canned pineapples which he had had in store for a few years, and when he found that they had a most delicious taste. The whole contents of the can, he said, was permeated with that delicate pineapple flavor. But the same grocer told me that he thought he was one of a very few who tried to keep rid of old goods. "Occasionally," he said, "you will find your stock improved by time, but generally it is rendered unfit to sell." The only way, seemingly, to keep the stock fresh is to make a slight reduction in price when you find you have had something long enough, a season, say, and that cut will do the rest. To follow out this plan a man must be careful, energetic and attentive to every line of his business, but to make a success in these days a merchant must possess these qualities, so that these rules should be adopted by every grocer who hopes to be prosperous.

Learn and Be Wise.

An important art which grocers ought to cultivate, but which, on account of the length of time that is necessary to acquire it, is generally neglected, is that of knowing how to buy tea. Every grocer knows what an important branch of his business the tea trade is, and doubtless most retailers can pick out extremely good or extremely bad teas, but as a rule they cannot by their means of testing determine the exact quality of the brand. Every little while a new grade of tea is being put on the market, and with the new brand is generally some new scheme for advertising or for selling, which induces the merchant to lay in a supply. In many cases these new brands are common, cheap grades put up by a new pressing machine or done up in different ways by new methods. The new brand may be widely advertised, too, in the newspapers by the proprietors of the enterprise, and the merchant may think he is forced to keep a supply on hand to meet the demand of those customers that try everything that comes along. True, he is compelled to do so, but if he keeps only a small stock he is not compelled to recommend what he knows is a cheap grade. If he does keep recommending these cheap grades his business in the tea trade is soon ruined. But it is not easy to guard against this by picking out poor qualities without a great deal of experience. However, to an experienced man it is as easy as to estimate the value of a piece of cloth. The method generally adopted is the simple one of going through the process of drawing it, but I hear there are a number of methods. It is necessary, however, to always keep to the one to obtain the real taste ; some can tell whether a tea is good by simply eating some of the sample. The point cannot be too strongly impressed on the young grocers that it is necessary to always use the one method. Adopt one way and stick to it. Mistakes during the first few years will certainly be frequent, but the distinguishing faculty will come by virtue of these errors.

OUTLOOK ON RAISINS.

ADVICES regarding California raisins for future delivery continue of a conflicting character. Last week reference was made to some offers for October shipment which were higher than similar offers made last year. Since then offers for earliest shipment have been made at a considerable modification on the prices quoted for October contracts. These figures instead of being higher are ½c. per pound lower than the corresponding prices for last year, being 2½, 2¾ and 3¼c. for 2, 3 and 4-crown fruit f.o.b. Fresno. But on July 19, however, telegrams were received advancing figures ¼c. per pound, which still leaves them ¼c. per pound below 1896. Careful observers of the situation are inclined to doubt the possibility of any greater advance, owing to the low prices advised from Denia, and the prospects of an increased output in California. Valencia cables quoting fine off-stalk have been received here this week, offering at 16s. 9d. c.i.f., for first half August shipment, 14s. 9d. for second half August and 12s. 9d. for October. A few carloads of California for forward delivery have, it is understood, been placed at the figures quoted above, but nothing has as yet transpired in Denia. As a matter of fact, buyers have not made up their minds as yet. The New York Journal of Commerce, referring to California stock, says:

"Conflicting reports as to the probable output have caused an unsettled feeling here, and the competition among Coast commission houses does not appear to be so keen as it was, as everybody seems to be uncertain as to the outlook. Somewhat contradictory reports as to the probable results of the crop have been received here and buyers do not exactly know what to expect. The prices named last week brought out a considerable number of orders, as they were held to be low, even on an average crop, but almost immediately the prices were withdrawn, and, so far as we have been able to learn, few, if any, sales were made on the basis of 2¼c. for two-crowns.

"Reports from the Coast furnish no definite information to buyers as to what they may expect. Some say that there will be a short crop of raisins, while others claim that there will probably be a good output, but none give positive reasons for their belief. All, however, seem to agree that it is too early yet to form any definite opinion, and the principal handlers of raisins here are informed by their correspondents on the Coast that nothing positive can be stated as to the extent of the crop until next month, when buying will begin. Everything from this time forward, these correspondents say, will depend upon the weather.

"All this would be of no particular significance at the present time, but for the effect it has upon the buyer. In connection with the depressed condition of business, these unsatisfactory and conflicting statements prevent speculation in raisins, it is said, and reduce business to the simple question of supplying actual demands of consumption. In other words, with the future so uncertain buyers will not, it is believed, be inclined to contract for more than their past experience teaches them will be actually required by their trade, and in view of the expectation encouraged by reports of a prospective large crop to the present time, they are disposed to hold out for lower prices.

"Those who are inclined to look upon the situation as encouraging contend that at the best crop this year is not likely to exceed that of 1896, which was some 10,000,000 lbs. short of that of the previous year, or say about 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 lbs. While the 1895 stock went out clean, there was a considerable stock left on hand at the end of the following season and offerings of this surplus during the dull peoiod kept the market unsettled and resulted in a gradual shrinkage in spot values.

"The chief element of uncertainty in the market, handlers of raisins here say, is the difficulty of obtaining accurate statistics as to the California crop from year to year. With definite information as to the extent of the output each season and the quantity of stock carried on the Coast, it is claimed that they would be in a much better position to work for the advantage of all concerned."

THE U. S. TARIFF.

THE new tariff of the United States was reported by Conference Committee on Monday.

In the sugar schedule of the tariff bill the conference inserted the words "ninety-five one hundredths of" in line 13 before the words "one cent," so that it will read: "one and ninety-five one hundredths of one cent per pound," and struck out the words "three one hundredths" in line 15, and inserted the words "thirty-five one thousandths."

The rating makes the duty begin at 95-100 of a cent a pound on sugar testing 75 degrees according to the polariscope, and makes polariscopic graduation of 35-1000 of a cent, or 3½-100 on each additional degree.

Hides of cattle, raw or uncured, whether dry salted or pickled, 15 per cent. ad valorem: provided, that upon all leather exported, made from imported hides, there shall be allowed a drawback equal to the amount of duty paid on such hides to be paid under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe.

The paragraph in relation to sugar in full follows:

Sugars not above No. 16 Dutch standard in color tank bottoms, syrups of cane juice, melada, concentrated melada, concrete and concentrated molasses testing by the polariscope not above 75 degrees 95.100 per pound and for every additional degree shown by the polariscope test 35-1000 of one cent per pound additional and fractions of a degree in proportion; and sugar above No. 16 Dutch standard in color and on all sugar which has gone through a process of refining, one cent and 95-100 of one cent per pound; molasses testing above 40 degrees and not above 56 degrees, three cents per gallon; testing 56 degrees and above, 6 cents per gallon.

Sugar drainings and sugar sweepings shall be subject to duty as molasses or sugar, as the case may be, according to polariscopic test. Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to abrogate or in any manner impair or affect the provisions of the treaty of commercial reciprocity concluded between the United States and the King of the Hawaiian Islands on January 30, 1875, or the provisions of any Act of Congress heretofore passed for the execution of the same.

The conference restored the House rate of 20 per cent. on sugar cane. Saccharine is made $1.50 per pound and 10 per cent. ad valorem.

The confectionery paragraph is changed to read as follows: "Sugar candy and all confectionery not specially provided for in this Act, valued at 15c. per pound or less, and on sugars after being refined when tinctured, colored, or in any way adulterated, 4c. per pound and 15 per cent. ad valorem; valued at more than 15c. per pound, 50 per cent. ad valorem. The weight and the value of the immediate coverings, other than the outer packing case or other covering, shall be included in the dutiable weight and the value of the merchandise."

The N.Y. Journal of Commerce in commenting upon the report says: "Public opinion has won a notable victory in the settlement of the sugar schedule. Senators found they could not afford to stand out for excessive benefactions to the refiners, and members of the House were encouraged to indicate that they would not assent to the sugar duties as arranged by the refiners, even if the bill should fail. Senator Aldrich, who has been devoted to the interests of the refiners, is justified in claiming that the Senate conferrees compromised and did not surrender, but they gave up most of what they had struggled for. The refiners' margin is very little wider than it was in the House bill, and is much narrower than it was in the bill passed by the Senate, and, of course, narrower in a greater degree than the margin Senator Aldrich commended to the Senate. * * * It is a little curious that the gentleman who has been trying to secure for the refiners a margin far wider than the House voted was three years ago taunting the Democratic Senators for their subserviency to the Sugar Trust."

GROCERS' PICNIC.

THE Retail Grocers' Association of Toronto were favored with the most beautiful weather on Wednesday last for their annual excursion, which this year was to Cobourg. Although some of the six hundred excursionists showed some impatience at passing eleven to twelve hours on the lake most of them thoroughly enjoyed the sea breezes as well as the entertainment afforded by the good people of Cobourg, and not a few were of the opinion that it was the finest view of scenery that they ever witnessed.

Shortly after 7 o'clock the Garden City steamed out of Toronto harbor with the merry crowd on board. All the way down to Cobourg it skirted the shore, giving the sight-seers a fine view of that stretch of country which is acknowledged to be one of the finest in the province. Stopping at Port Hope to allow the racers to disembark with their "road-carts," the boat arrived at Cobourg about 1 o'clock, where they were welcomed by some of the citizens of Cobourg and the town band of that place.

The excursionists immediately went up to the central corner of the town to witness the final spurts of the race between the travelers and grocers of Toronto from Port Hope to Cobourg, a distance of about seven miles. The keenest rivalry had existed, and by Wednesday the interest had grown intense. Each side had some "stars," but conditions were not favorable for fast time. The road was very dusty and the riders, when they got into the city, were well begrimed with dirt, and besides there was a heavy head wind. As will be seen by the result below, the grocers won by 10 points.

Time—25.15.

By first arrangements it had been decided to race 10 men aside, but owing to accidents to both sides only 8 men a side were started. No serious mishaps occurred on the road, although there was a bad spill about a mile and a half out of Port Hope.

After dinner the other events on the programme were run off in Donegan Park with the following results :

One mile open handicap bicycle race—J. Robertson, Toronto (120 yards), won; R. Johnston, Port Hope (scratch), second; — Tait, Cobourg, third. Time, 5.57 2-5.

Two mile bicycle race, open to grocers of Toronto and Cobourg—Blaycock, Toronto, won; Manning, Toronto, second; Foote, Cobourg, third. Time, 2.32 3-5.

100 yard foot race for Cobourg grocers—Tyres won, Lenty second, Featherstone third. Time, 12 2-5 secs.

Half mile walking race for merchants over 40 years old—C. Shields won; T. Nolan, second; T. Dowswell, third.

Fat man's race, 75 yards, 200 lbs. and over, for all grocers—W. J. Sykes, won; A. White, second; W. R. Stewart, third.

100 yards, for members of Toronto Association—T. Nolan, won; J. T. Walker, second; B. Ponter, third. Time, 12 seconds.

Throwing ball, open to Cobourg ladies—Lottie Fox, won; Eva Moffat, second; Flossie Tinning, third.

The baseball match between teams representing Toronto travelers and grocers was closed at the end of the third innings, when the score stood 33 to 8 in favor of the grocers. At present it looks as if the grocers will win two out of the three matches for the cup that is offered; they certainly have a good enough team.

During the afternoon the Cobourg band rendered pleasing selections; in fact, Cobourg showed itself to be hospitality itself. A half holiday was declared by the Mayor, free use of Donegan Park was granted by the generous proprietor, and the citizens turned out in large numbers to the sports. The beautiful town, with its well-paved streets, its well-kept lawns, and its well-built dwellings, is to be congratulated on the liberal hospitality it showered upon its visitors.

The trip home was enjoyed by all in spite of the length of the ride. King's orchestra pleased all on board with their selections. The boat arrived at Geddes' wharf at a little after 11 p.m., and the most successful excursion in the history of the association was over.

Owing to the accident to the Garden City last week some were apprehensive of danger on Wednesday, but the steamer has certainly won back her reputation, for not a mishap occurred in the entire 150-mile trip. The manager on board the boat was noticeably very attentive to the wants of the excursionists, and the Excursion Committee showed their appreciation of his hospitality by giving him a testimonial to that effect.

Rusty Rufus : "Dis here paper says work ain't what kills men."

Weary Waggles : "Dat's right, too. 'Taint a loaded gun what shoots folks ; 'taint pisen what pisens of 'em ; and 'taint work what kills 'em. It's not knowin' enough to let them things alone — dat's what."—Truth.

A RECORD-MAKING TRADE YEAR.

THE official figures giving the foreign trade of the Dominion for the fiscal year ending 30th of June last are not yet to hand, nor are they likely to be for some months to come, but enough is known to establish reasons for gratification in regard thereto.

In regard to both the exports and the aggregate trade, based on exports and imports for home consumption, records have been won.

The aggregate trade is, in round numbers, $244,000,000. This is about $13,000,000, or over 5 per cent., larger than in 1896. Compared with any previous year, the advantage in favor of 1897 is about $4,000,000.

It is, however, from the exports that the most gratification is obtained. These are, approximately, over $133,500,000, which is nearly $12,000,000, or about 10 per cent., in excess of last year. And 1896, it will be remembered, was a record-breaking year in this respect.

Our imports were not so gratifying as the other phases of our foreign trade just noted. But they, nevertheless, were by no means unsatisfactory. They aggregated $111,231,000, which is over $600,000 larger than the imports of 1896. Were it not for the revision of the tariff the increase would, no doubt, have been much larger.

Besides the records which the above figures establish, they declare what is still more gratifying: They declare that an unmistaken revival of trade is being experienced in Canada.

But these are not the only evidences of this fact. The railway earnings, the clearing house returns, the movement of merchandise, the improvement of payments, all indicate the same thing.

The fact of the matter is, trade for some time has been a great deal better than most people were ready to acknowledge it was.

Trade in Canada, as well as that in the United States, is passing through new economical conditions. In conforming ourselves to these conditions inconvenience rather than pleasure is induced. And instead of recognizing what these influences really are, we conclude they are the bag and baggage of Hard Times, when in reality they are the forerunner of Better Times.

For instance, the day when long credits ruled is gone. The day of buying in large quantities is following it. This is a natural corollary. Long credits and large buying are the Siamese twins of the old business regime, and the departure of the one naturally means the exit of the other. But while people who sell willingly allow the one to go, the other a good many of them mourn over because they cannot retain.

Canada's foreign trade for 1897 is certainly a matter for congratulation, and while pleasing to us at the moment should stimulate us to greater energy for the future.

Canada is a goodly country, but the development of its resources depends upon the measure of energy and enterprise exhibited by her citizens.

PECULIAR TACTICS IN CHEESE.

IT has been a surprise to many of the cheese exporters in Montreal how competitors could quote from 1 to 2s. under what the market cost warranted on Brockville, Napanee and other Eastern Ontario cheese and do business. Facts came to light last week showing how the trick was done. There was quite a boom in Quebec cheese during last week at Montreal, and while cable offers from the other side only permitted the payment of from 7¾ to 7½c. it was no secret that the ruling spot price in Montreal for the same goods was 7¾ to 8c. There was a gentleman of color somewhere, but no one could locate him at first until the steamers commenced to leave port about the middle of the week. Then it was found out, singularly enough, that although there had been apparently urgent purchases of from 5,000 to 8,000 boxes of Quebec cheese and the great bulk of the regular cable business in them also, the big majority of the week's shipments were classed as Ontario make.

It is the old trouble of short contracts over again. As has been pointed out before, the operations on short account this season have been very extensive. When the first half June contracts were filled, traders who were not warned by the lesson given in this case believed that the market was bound to decline on account of the large shipments and heavy make. Accordingly they sold short heavily on the last half of June Ontario make on the basis of 8 to 8¼c. Montreal. The offerings of the last two weeks were the balance of the June output, and they were eagerly bought in at Brockville and elsewhere. Those who could not fill their wants had either to pay very fancy prices, make good to the British buyers, or try and smuggle in something else as finest Ontario. They selected the Quebec make as the substitute, paid advanced prices for it, and the possibility of trouble when some of the recent shipments reach the other side is certain. It is estimated that from 5,000 to 8,000 boxes Quebec stock went out last week with the original brands scraped off the boxes and "Best Ontario" substituted.

If it came to a question of actual quality the goods in question are possibly quite equal, and in some cases superior, to Ontario make, but that does not alter the fact that they were sold for what they were not. Besides, it will give the Britishers who are ever prompt with complaints a big peg to hang one on this time. Those who shipped also in the belief that they could keep the matter dark must be very simple, for no sooner had shippers received answers that they had been under quoted, than they smelt a rat. They kept close watch of the purchases on this side, and the approximate sales on the other. As soon as the void was discovered, the secret was out, and last week's flurry in Quebec goods completed the chapter of revelations. The Butter and Cheese Association of Montreal should take the matter up. The onus rests on the association as a body and they should take steps to remove it and show up the actual offenders.

OUTLOOK ON JAPAN TEA.

IT IS hard to believe that the growth and output of a great staple product like tea can be regulated. What makes it all the harder for a North American to admit the facts is the circumstances governing the production of our own great staple—wheat. Anyone who would propose a scheme to regulate its output would be laughed at. There were three short, slim, dark and nervous gentlemen in Montreal last week, who said that it had been accomplished in regard to the growth of tea in Japan. Someone said that Japanese are the English of the east, and the three gentlemen in question, if they are fair samples of what Japanese merchants are, bear testimony to the truth of the assertion, that the Island Empire is destined to play a big part in the future commercial history of the Orient.

Mr. Shiroji Mitsuhashi is the special commissioner of the Japan Tea Traders' Association, president of the Shizuoka Prefectural Assembly and also president of one of the leading native Japanese banks. Accompanying him is Mr. Juemon Ohara, member of the House of Commons in the Imperial Diet. They have been all over the continent, from the Pacific to Atlantic.

The New York representative of the Japan Tea Traders' Association, Mr. Tokenosuke Furuya, accompanied his two countrymen to this city. The latter gentleman is a fluent English speaker, and he chatted interestingly on the trade prospects between Canada and Japan.

These tea commissions make yearly visits to North America, which is the chief foreign consumer of Japan teas, and Mr. Furuya said that the present season was a strong demonstration of their necessity. It is well known that the conditions of the tea market on this continent at present are peculiar. People in the trade know that importers in the United States have been heavy operators in tea for many months past. They were active buyers not only in Japan, but elsewhere, having cleaned up the Canadian market of the great bulk of their stock of old crop tea this spring. Their purchases were made also at comparatively high values, sellers in Canada, for instance, netting advances of from 1 to 3c. per pound in many instances.

This active speculation by United States dealers was due to general belief held in the States that Congress would put a duty on tea. It now turns out that Congress has not done anything of the kind, and the outlook for the United States speculators, loaded up, so to speak, to the nozzle with a stock of high-priced goods, is not promising.

This is where the Japan tea commission comes in, for Mr. Furuya has a word of comfort for the speculators across the lines. His association watches the relation of supply to demand very closely, for a glutted market they recognize is severely injurious to their interests. The Japanese Association last year contributed to the relief of a congested market by reducing the output 7,000,000. The trip of the commissioners this season has convinced them that the market again needs blood-letting, and accordingly they will report on their return to Japan against harvesting the third crop. This, it is approximately estimated, will reduce the exports of Japan tea to this continent about 2,000,000 pounds.

This third crop tea is of the lowest grade, and in this connection the visitors from Japan informed THE CANADIAN GROCER that it was their wish to reduce these exports of low-grade teas if it was at all possible. The exporters in Japan recognized the fact that their quality did not contribute to the general reputation of Japan tea, but the demand existed in Canada for these low grades, and they were afraid if it was not supplied that the consumer would take to drinking something else, coffee for instance, the consumption of cheap grades of which had enormously increased in the United States. Mr. Furuya believed that if Canadians could only be educated to drink tea as the Japanese did, they would want no low-grade teas. He expressed his abhorrence of the idea of milk and sugar in tea with a gesture eloquent of disgust. These two ingredients desecrated the tea, making it thoroughly impossible to taste the delicate bouquet possessed by the higher qualities. His receipt for a proper brew of tea was water boiling hot poured over the leaf to the proportion of one teaspoonful for every two cups, and slowly sipped, as only the residents of the Mikado's Empire know how to do it. If Canadians took their tea after this fashion, the liquid given off by the cheaper grades would prove distasteful to them. At present its unpalatableness was disguised by the large quantity of milk and sugar used.

The writer being curious as to how the tea farmers were controlled in Japan, was informed that the Government had strict regulations governing the growth and production of tea. The Tea Association was delegated full power to act as it saw fit in matters of this nature, and any farmer who refused to obey its mandates was subject to heavy penalties. An annual convention was held every year, one delegate from each of the sixty tea-producing districts of the empire attending. This was the Tea Parliament of Japan, and it was to it that the commissioners would make their report. It was certain, therefore, that the association would take such action as would give the holders of tea on this continent a chance to work off the large stocks of tea which they had on hand.

The gentlemen from Japan were surprised that Canadian merchants and trading associations did not investigate the possibilities of the Japanese market. Their own commissions had resulted in increased business with Canada and the United States in their products. They now bought largely from the United States such materials as cotton, flour, oils and machinery.

When they learned that the Government was sending a commissioner to examine and report on the nature of the Japanese market they said that the move was a good one. There was certainly a field in Japan for the enterprise of Canadian merchants, if the latter were only wise enough to inform themselves as to the wants of that market, and consult these wants.

This hot weather may put color on the peach but it will put pallor on the cheek of the merchant who refuses to take a needed rest.

PRICES WITHDRAWN ON SALMON.

Advices received this week in Montreal regarding canned salmon are of a firmer nature. Telegrams from the Coast on Tuesday to agents of some of the leading canneries indicated that the pack so far has been disappointing. Some agents also received instructions by wire to discontinue selling until the receipt of further advices.

TRADE AND WORSHIP.

THE International Convention of the Epworth League, which met in Toronto last week, will have done one good and important service if it has brought home more fully the lesson that nations ought to dwell together in good business relationship as well as in Christian fellowship.

For many years it has been conceived by the great majority of people living within both Canada and the United States that a Customs tariff is necessary to the existence of the respective countries. As to the wisdom or otherwise of this doctrine we have nothing to say. We can with good grace leave the question to Free-traders and Protectionists for consideration.

But while the political economists of the various schools are dealing with the question, all commonsense business men will agree that at present, yes, and for some time to come at least, the fiscal conditions now obtaining will continue to exist. It would be utter folly to think anything else.

But while Customs tariffs may exist, it by no means follows that tariff warfare should. A nation can protect itself without striving in every conceivable way to maim and injure its neighbor.

It is the business of a government to promote international amity as well as international trade; but this is a tenet in the code of national manners of which the United States appears to have no knowledge whatever. It is possible, of course, that the explanation is to be found in evil intent and not in ignorance.

We are again and again reminded that the people of the United States are rich in estimable qualities. And the more we are brought into contact with them the more apparent does this become.

In every movement to defeat the forces of evil and advance the cause of religion they are ever ready to join their forces with those of Canada. Last week's convention in Toronto is only one of the many instances of that.

But let the subject for consideration appertain to the trade and commerce of the two countries; and what a difference!

Instead of extending to Canada the glad hand it is the cold shoulder the United States turns toward her, while, whenever it is engaged in remodelling its tariff it is certain to deliberately train its guns on some Canadian industry with a view to accomplishing its destruction.

We are told that this is largely the work of the politicians. May be it is. But it is passingly strange that while the men placed at the guns at one election may be changed at another the desire to throw shot and shell at Canadian trade still remains.

Among the speakers at last week's convention was one who urged that the Leaguers, as individuals, should take a lively interest in political and economical questions. The advice was well given. And it is to be hoped its fruition will be seen in greater concentrated effort to elect to Congress and to Parliament more honest men, possessed of business commonsense, and fewer dishonest and unbusinesslike men than are now to be found within these representative institutions.

Where the spirit of international worship is there should also be the spirit of international trade.

LOOK YE OUT BUSINESS MEN.

BEFORE a great while Ontario will be in the throes of another general election, and it is time the business men in the province were bestirring themselves.

As in the House of Commons so in the Ontario Legislature, we want men who can look at each and every question which comes up for consideration from a practical, business standpoint.

It does not matter one iota whether an applicant for legislative honors be raised on the sincere milk of Conservatism or of Reform, but it does matter a great deal whether or no he has been schooled in the school of practical business commonsense.

Of course unqualified as well as qualified men will aspire to the honor. But the duty of the business men of the province is to try and separate the chaff from the wheat. And the winnowing should not be left to election day. It should begin now. At the party nomination it should be actively carried on, and thereafter every day until the ballots have been cast.

The political power of the average merchant cannot be estimated by his ballot, but being more intelligent and possessing a broader knowledge of the questions of the day than most classes of voters, he naturally must possess the additional factor of influence.

It is to the exercise of this influence, as well as their vote in the interest of commonsense business men for the Legislature of Ontario, that THE CANADIAN GROCER calls the attention of the merchants of Ontario. They owe it as a duty not only to themselve, but to the business interests of the province as well.

The next Legislature must be cleared of the Patrons. That is one thing upon which business men must centre their energies. The Patrons were conceived in illusion and cradled in selfishness. The sooner they are dead and buried as a political and commercial organization the better.

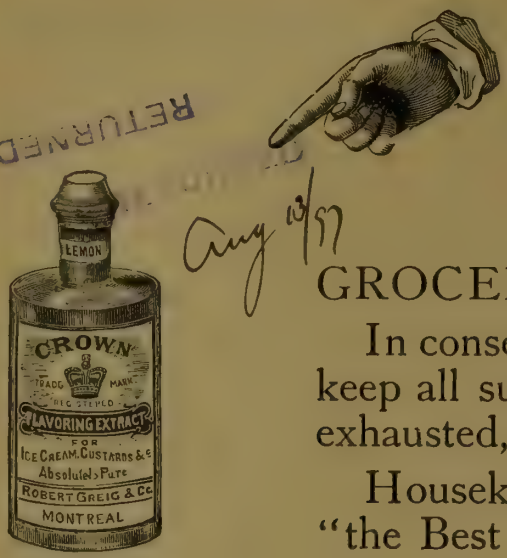
We do not want a business men's Legislature. That would be a class Legislature. And that is something to which THE CANADIAN GROCER is strongly opposed.

What is wanted is a sufficient number of business men in the Legislature to ensure business commonsense in its proceedings and business commonsense in the construction of its measures.

In other words, we want business men for business, and the onus of securing them is upon the mercantile interests of the country.

CHEESE SHIPPED TOO GREEN.

It is well known that cheese this season has been shipped altogether too green. This fact possibly has some influence in keeping prices down on the other side, and advices received by the last mail strengthen this belief. Weddel's circular, under date London the 9th, says: "Old Canadian cheese is making better prices than a month ago; well-kept parcels realize 55s. to 56s. This rise of 4s. per cwt. is due mainly to the small quantity of this class of goods left on hand. The market for new Canadian and States cheese has somewhat disappointed shippers, owing to the condition in which the goods have arrived. In many cases the cheese has been shipped too young, and consequently it has not stood transit so well as older cheese. There is considerable variation in values just now, some shippers accepting as low as 41s. per cwt., London terms, while others are holding for 43s. to 44s., and cables which have come to hand during the last few days have asked 6d. to 1s. advance upon these prices. New Zealand cheese is pretty well cleared up at 47s. to 48s. per cwt., white having the advantage over colored of from sixpence to a shilling."



See This?

GROCERS everywhere find they must have it.

In consequence we are working day and night to keep all supplied. Our capacity, however, is not exhausted, so all orders can be promptly filled.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, July 22, 1897.

GROCERIES.

AS a whole, business has not materially changed during the past week. The reduction in the price of sugar a few weeks ago continues to cause an increased output. There is a fairly good demand for canned goods, and dealers are looking for an increased business in this line. Teas are exceedingly quiet; Japan teas will be on the market soon, as dealers here have notice of shipments. Rice is going out at a lively rate. Canners' prices for future delivery of canned salmon have not yet settled. The hot weather has considerably affected the butter and cheese that has been shipped to dealers for export. The fruit marts are the busiest of places these days.

CANNED GOODS.

No further developments are visible in the market this week. Business continues to be exceptionally quiet. Canned corn is still firm, 55c. being the lowest price. Tomatoes are in good demand at 80 to 85c. Horseshoe salmon, tall, for present delivery is very scarce. Canned peas are not on the market yet. Strawberries are moving actively. The price asked is about the same as last year, namely, $1.50 to $1.60. Canadian canned beefs are advanced 5c. a dozen for 1's and 10c. for 2's, owing to the hot weather. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80 to 85c.; corn, 55 to 75c.; peas, 75c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.65 to $1.95, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $2 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 70 to 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $2.25; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; cohoes, $1.10 to $1.25; canned mackerel, $1.20 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.70; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.25 to $1.35; 2's, $2.30 to $2.45; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

Everything in this line remains about as quiet as it was a week ago. Jobbers quote green in bags as follows: Rio, 9½ to 13c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

The syrup market is still quiet and featureless. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

Molasses is still neglected and quotations are unchanged. We quote: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGARS.

The market has not materially changed. The demand is rather brisk, but there are no exceptionally large purchases. We quote for Toronto as follows: Granulated—St. Lawrence and Redpath's, 4 7-16c. for single barrel lots and 4⅜c. for 5-barrel lots; Acadia, 4⅜c. for single barrel lots, and 4 5-16c. for 5-barrel lots; yellows, 3½ to 4⅜c. per lb.; German granulated, in 100-lb. sacks, 4⅛ to 4¼c. per lb.; Demerara crystals, 3⅞c.

SPICES.

The demand has opened up for pickling spices, but orders are all small. We quote as follows: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 10c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 17c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

There is still no feature to note and business is quiet. We quote as follows: Bra-

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

The demand for rice is brisk. Tapioca and sago are in fair demand. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½c.

TEAS.

The complete indifference of buyers of Japan teas to the exceptional values offered in London is commencing to give way and the street seems to be again taking interest in anything attractive offered. The large stocks that were laid in in anticipation of a new tariff have been almost entirely reduced by consumption itself. The time cannot be far distant when normal conditions will prevail, as there is no surplus stock; all the Canadian surplus having gone to the United States in anticipation of a new tariff there. Consignments of Japan which, agents are advised, will be sent on the Empress of India, leaving Yokohama on July 9, and of which samples will arrive by the next mail, will represent the grade on which the bulk of the season's Japan business will be done, as values in Japan were very favorable for exportation at time of shipment. In the other varieties there is no change. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

As mentioned last week, the stock of currants is becoming wonderfully low, and, as a result, prices have advanced and are now firm and high. The new crop will be a fortnight earlier than during the last few years, not because the crop is earlier, but because the regulations in Greece prohibiting shipments before August 30 have been withdrawn. This removal will be received favorably all over the world, inasmuch as the old stocks are exhausted and everybody is looking for the arrival of the new fruit. Latest reports from Mr. Den Schisas, Patras, are not nearly so favorable as to the growing crop. In a letter dated the 29th June, he says the continual rains and comparatively low temperature have propagated the vine diseases, especially the milldew, and that complaints are coming in from all districts. He points out that growers always exaggerate, and he doubts whether the damage is as serious as reported, but certainly the crop has been injured to some extent but not sufficient to materially affect the probability of a good yield. We quote as follows: Provincials, 5½ to 5⅜c. in bbls.; ditto, half-bbls., 5½ to 5⅝c.; fine Filiatras, in bbls., 5⅝ to 5¾c.; do., half-bbls., 5⅝ to 5¾c.; Patras, 5⅞ to 6⅛c. in bbls., 5⅞ to 6⅛c. in half-bbls., and 6⅛ to 6¼c. in cases; Vostizzas, cases, 7 to 8c.

Valencia raisins will this year be the first on the market. They are exceptionally early. The fact that the shipments are to be made in the last week of July knows no precedent. We quote: Off-stalk, 4¾ to 5½c.; fine off-stalk, 5½ to 6c.; selected, 6 to 6½c.; layers, 6½ to 7c.

Sultana raisins have been moving rapidly lately. There is a good local demand. Prices are firm.

A few transactions in California loose muscatel raisins are reported, but business on the whole is dull. We quote: 3-crown, 7¼c.; 4-crown, 8 to 8¼c.

California evaporated fruits are expected soon. As yet they are neglected. We quote: Peaches, 7 to 10½c. per lb., according to quality; apricots, 6½ to 15c.; pears, 5½ to 10½c.; egg plums, 5½ to 11c.; silver prunes, 8½ to 13½c.

The presence of an abundance of Canadian new fruits has demoralized the prune demand. We quote: Bosnias, U's (110 to 113 half kilo), 6 to 6½c.; C's (85 to 90 half kilo), 7 to 7½c. per lb. California, 90 to 100's, 6½c. per lb.; 70 to 80's, 7½c.; 60 to 70's, 7½ to 8c.; 50 to 60's, 8 to 8½c.; 40 to 50's, 9½ to 10½c.; 30 to 40's, 12½ to 13c.; "Ruby" prunes, 7½ to 8c.; French, 4½ to 5c.

Dates are neglected. We quote: 5½ to 6c. for Hallowee and 5 to 5¼c. for Kadrowee.

GREEN FRUITS.

The hot weather has caused fruit to move exceedingly rapidly. This week we quote Valencia oranges, which are again on the market. The stocks of lemons are running very light, but it is not likely prices will go above seven or eight dollars. Bananas are having an enormous sale, several carloads being disposed of weekly. Canadian cherries have dropped a little in price. There are large quantities on the market. Red currants are plentiful. Some sales have been made at figures which paid barely for the expense of picking, shipping and boxing. Raspberries are the principal feature in the trade this week. Both black and red crops are large and prices are low. California is arriving in large quantities. Muskmelons are obtainable now. Oranges —Valencias, $6.50 per case; Sorrentos, 200's and 300's, $4.25 to $4.50 per box; 180's, $2.75 to $3, three-quarter boxes. Lemons, $5 to $5.50 per case. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Onions, 2½ to 3c. per lb. for Egyptians. Bananas, $1.25 to $1.75. Strawberries, 5 to 8c. per quart. New cabbage, $1.25 to $1.50 per bbl. Mississippi tomatoes, $1.10 to $1.25 per case of 4 baskets. Green beans, 25 to 30c. per basket. Watermelons, 30c. California peaches, $1.75 to $2 per box; Canadian gooseberries, 30 to 50c. per 12-quart basket; Canadian cherries, 75c. to $1. per basket; red currants, 35 to 45c. per basket; California plums, $1.75 to $2 box; California pears, $3 to $3.50 per box ; muskmelons, $3 to $3.50 per crate of 2 doz.; cucumbers, 70 to 80c. per 12-quart basket; black raspberries, 3½ to 4½c. per quart; red do., 4½ to 5½c. per quart.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—The receipts of butter continue to show the effect of the hot weather. Many of the lots coming forward are much off condition; consequently buyers are much more particular in their selections. There is no export demand for dairy butter, and the enquiry for creamery is not quite so brisk this week. There is no material change in prices. We quote: Dairy—Tub, 12c. for best, and others, 7 to 9c.; pound prints, 11 to 13c. Creamery—Prices are firmer owing to an increased export demand. Tubs, 16½ to 17½c.; prints, 17 to 18½c.

CHEESE—Local trade has been very light and exporters are not eager buyers. The weather has been almost too warm for shipping, nearly all the cheese changing hands at present being put into cold storage. Prices remain nominally about the same as last week's quotations. We quote: Factory price, 8c.; jobbing price, 8¾ to 9c.

SALT.

Trade is brisk. The hot weather has caused an increased demand in all lines. Prices are unchanged. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 60c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl. and 65c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

FISH.

Despite the warm weather and the abundance of fruit, there has not been enough fish to supply the demand. As a result the prices of white fish, trout and pike have each risen ½c. We quote: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 6½c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

PROVISIONS.

A very firm market still continues. The export demand is active. Live hogs have advanced from one-eighth to one-quarter of a dollar a hundred, being now about $5.87½. This is a remarkable advantage to Canadian farmers, as the price is about $2 per hundred higher than is being paid on American markets. This is largely due to the quality of Canadian meats, peas being used as the fodder, while the people of the United States feed corn. There is no change from last week.

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long clear bacon, 7¼c. for carload lots, and 7½ to 7¾c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 8½c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 11½ to 12c.; rolls, 9 to 10c.; hams, large, 11 to 11½c.; 12 to 12½c. for small and 11½ to 12c. for medium; shoulder hams, 9c.; backs, 11 to 11½c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD — Pure Canadian, tierces, 5¾c.; tubs, 6 to 6¼c.; pails, 6¼ to 6½c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $13 to $13.50; Canadian short-cut, $16.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—We quote: Red wheat, 68c.; white, 68½c.; oats, 23 to 24c.; peas, 43 to 44c.

FLOUR—Trade is fair. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $4.35; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.85; Ontario patents, $3.90 to $4.30; straight roller, $3.30 to $3.40, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—Trade is moderate. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.10 in bags and $3.20 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.60 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.30 to $2.40; split peas, $3 to $3.25; pot barley, $3 to $3.25.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—The egg trade has not materially changed from last week. The quality arriving is inferior and the quantity limited, both conditions owing to hot weather. The shading of prices continues. We quote 9 to 9½c. The conditions are no more favorable for export.

POTATOES—The trade in new potatoes is very active. Most of the growth is being sold out by the bushel. The quality is improving, and the quantity coming forward is steadily increasing. We quote to jobbers, 75c.; to retailers, 90c. a bush., and to consumers 30c. a peck.

HONEY — Dull. We quote: 80 to 90c. per dozen for dark, and $1.50 to $1.75 for light; strained, 6½ to 7½c. per lb.

DRIED APPLES—There are considerably more enquiries, although not much improvement in price. Probably ¼c. advance could be obtained. The idea now as to price is 2 to 2¼c. f.o.b. The local jobbing price ranges from 1½c. upward.

EVAPORATED APPLES —Have shown a marked advance. Buyers are paying 3¼ to 4c. f.o.b. Jobbers are selling at 4½ to 5c.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—Trade is quite brisk. Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3. Steerhides: 60 lbs. and up, 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS—Trade is brisk and prices are firm. No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS — We quote: Lambskins, 50c.; pelts, 30c.

WOOL—The trade in wool is now dull, owing to all of the clip having gone out of the country to the States. There is almost nothing doing. The dealers are now paying 19 to 20c.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

The demand for lubricating oils continues on the increase, in spite of the fact that stocks were well filled. The trade in petroleum has now assumed its summer dull tone. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots,

MARKET NOTES.

Smoked meats are higher.

The scarcity of currants has caused prices to be raised ½c.

Raspberries are very low; blacks are going out of the dealers' hands at 4c. and reds at 5c.

Trout, whitefish and pike have advanced ½c. per lb. The supply suddenly became insufficient this week.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, July 22, 1897.

GROCERIES.

A GOOD fair business for the season has been transacted in general groceries during the past week. Business for forward shipment in many lines is very active also. This is especially the case in sugar, demand being good both for prompt and future shipment. This is a pretty good indication that supplies in country retailers' hands are light. Molasses is firmer at primary markets, but unchanged on spot. Rice furnishes a good trade, while coffee and spices rule quiet. Tea remains steady, and in canned goods advices on salmon are of a firmer character than they were. Offers on new crop Valencia raisins have been made, but no business done, while a few carloads of California loose muscatels have been placed for forward delivery. Other lines are without feature.

SUGAR.

Sugar has exhibited quite a marked degree of activity during the past week both from first and second hands, while values are steadily held as last quoted. Both yellows and granulated have shared to an equal degree in the attention of retailers, and reports from many sections indicate pretty plainly that stocks are small in third hands. For this reason a good, steady movement is expected for some time to come. We quote: Granulated steady, at 4⅛c. for 1 to 9 barrels and 4 1-16c. for 10 barrels and over, with yellows ranging from 3⅜ to 3¾c., as to quality.

SYRUPS.

The syrup market is absolutely without motion, while prices continue nominally the same at 1⅜ to 1⅞c. per lb., as to quality.

MOLASSES.

Advices from primary centres continue firm on molasses, cables this week stating that the first cost price had advanced 1c. at the Island owing to the crop being exhausted. On spot, however, there is no change, though the tone is steadier under a fair enquiry. Barbadoes in round lots are offering at 20 to 21c. and 22 to 23c. in a jobbing way. Porto Rico is quoted at 24c. for round lots and in a jobbing way at 29c. for fancy, 25c. for choice and 22c. for prime.

RICE.

This line continues fairly active, while prices show no change. We quote as follows: Crystal Japan, $4.50 to $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $4.50 to $5; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

Demand for spices is slow and there is nothing to report. We quote: Black pepper, 9c.; pure white, 14 to 17c.; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

There is nothing to report in coffee, the easy feeling prevalent for over a month now still ruling the market. Actual demand is slow and values are more or less nominal. We quote: Maracaibo, 16 to 19c.; Santos, 12 to 15c.; Rio, 12 to 16c.; Mocha, 24c., and Java, 25c.

TEAS.

Tea has furnished a fair degree of activity on the whole, although many buyers are disposed to hold off at present. Business has been done in new crop Japan teas from 16 to 19c. for some 300 packages or so since last report, and higher grades are held at 22 to 25c. Arrivals of stock ex Empress of China will arrive next week. Several thousand boxes of her cargo are for Montreal, one firm controlling 1,800 packages. We quote as follows: Young Hysons, 13 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 12 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 16½ to 20c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

CANNED GOODS.

Advices from the Coast are firmer on salmon, though no actual figures have been quoted. It is significant, however, that agents for leading brands here have been directed to discontinue selling until further orders are received. In other lines, such as canned vegetables, etc., there is nothing special to report. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80c.; corn, 50 to 80c.; peas, 80c.; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 85 to 90c.; gallons, $1.55 to $1.65; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.40 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.35; "Lion," $1.37½ to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.30, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

The Valencia raisin market has opened much earlier than last year, the first shipments to England having already been made from Denia. Here, offers 16s. 9d. c.i.f. for first half August, 14s. 9d. for second half, and 12s. 9d. for October shipments have been received, but nothing has been done so far. These figures are about on a par with last year. On spot we quote: Ordinary off-stalk, 5¼ to 5½c.; fine, 5¾ to 6c.; selected, 6¼ to 6½c., and layers, 6¾ to 7c.

California raisins for forward shipment have been subject to frequent fluctuation. Offers this week were on the basis of 2¼, 2¾ and 3¼c. for 2, 3 and 4-crown fruit, f.o.b. Fresno. But later agents were wired an advance of ¼c. per pound on these figures. A few carloads have been placed here at these figures. For stocks on spot we quote: 2-crown 6¼ to 6¾c.; 3-crown, 7 to 7½c., and 4-crown 8 to 8¼c.

Advices from Patras state that the currant crop is slightly damaged by rain and will be late. Spot quotations are unchanged at 4 to 4¾c., as to quality and package.

Dates continue quiet at 5 to 6c., and figs at 8 to 12c.

Prunes are unchanged: 5½ to 6c. for Bosnia; 4 to 5c. for French, and 6½ to 7c. for California, as to grade, etc.

NUTS.

There is still nothing to report in nuts. We quote as follows: Grenoble walnuts, 10 to 11c.; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; and cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100.

DRIED APPLES.

Dried apples remain unchanged at 2 to 2½c., and evaporated 3¾ to 4¼c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Business in green fruit was of a more normal character during the past week owing to the moderated temperature, and although trade was not so active, the volume was, nevertheless, quite large. Lemons have maintained the advance made and the same applies to oranges. Bananas continue steady under light supplies. Receipts of California cherries have ceased, but there are liberal offerings of the domestic fruit. Pineapples are in small supply. Offerings of strawberries are decreasing steadily, while raspberries are in heavy supply and the first receipts of blueberries from the Lake St. John country have arrived and are selling at $1 per box. We quote as follows: Valencia oranges, $6 per case; bloods, $2.50 to $3 per half-box, and Messinas, $3 to $3.50 per box; lemons, $3.75 to $4.50 per box for choice, and $2.75 to $3.50 for common; bananas, $1.25 to $1.65 per bunch; Canadian cherries, 40 to 75c. per basket; apricots, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; California peaches, $1 to $1.25 per box; do plums, $1.25 per box; pineapples, 10c. each; Canadian strawberries, 7 to 10c.; raspberries, 5½ to 10c.; blueberries, $1 per box. Egyptian onions, 4c. per lb., and Bermuda ditto, 3c. per lb., and $3 per crate.

A PACKET OF SEED is valuable only when it provides nourishment for birds. To sell the stuff often marketed as bird seed is worse than selling bad bread. With the bread the customer soon sees the bad value. With the seed his bird sickens and dies before the bad value is known. It may take longer in some cases than others, but such seed eventually gets in its work. Lump sugar with rat poison would be more merciful. Then the bird's suffering would not be prolonged.

An honest packet of bird food cannot allow the profit of the other kind. But it pays better in the end. Customers find birds easier to keep. They don't have to buy a bird every few months. They keep more birds. They buy more seed. The grocer makes up on extra sales the legitimate reduction of profit. Makes it up twenty times over. And wonders what becomes of all the Cottams Seed he sells.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

ately active and firm. Selected near-by stock sold at 10½ to 11c.; ordinary No. 1 at 9 to 9½c., and No. 2 at 8 to 8½c. per dozen.

MAPLE PRODUCT—In maple product business continues dull, and prices unchanged. We quote: Maple syrup, 4¾ to 5c. per lb., and 45 to 55c. per tin; sugar, 6 to 6½c. per lb.

HONEY — The demand for honey is almost nil. White clover comb is offering at 10c., and dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c., and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

BEANS — Business in beans is exceedingly slow at 55 to 60c. in car lots, and at 65 to 70c. in a small way.

PROVISIONS.

With the warm weather demand for smoked meats is quite brisk, while pork is firmly held at the recent advance, and lard is quiet. We quote as follows: Canadian pork, $14.50 to $15 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, 6¾ to 7¼c., and compound refined at 5¼ to 5½c. per lb.; hams, 11 to 13c., and bacon, 11 to 12c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

There was a decided improvement in the demand for hard wheat flour, especially from the local and Maritime Provinces buyers, and quite an active business with sales reported of 36 carloads on the latter account, and 20 carloads and 4,000 bags on the former on Tuesday. There was also a good enquiry from abroad for Manitoba grades, and sales were made of 2,000 sacks on Glasgow, and 2,000 sacks on London account. The stock of Manitoba flour has been pretty much disposed of, and the mills generally are shutting down now waiting for the new crop of wheat. The tone of the market is firm. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $4 to $4.25; straight rollers, $3.65 to $3.80, and in bags, $1.75 to $1.85. Manitoba strong bakers', choice, $3.95; outside brands, $3.55 to $3.65, and spring wheat patents, $4.15.

The demand for feed is fair, and millers quote Manitoba bran, $13 to $13.50, and shorts at $14 to $14.50 per ton, including bags.

There was no change in the oatmeal market, prices being maintained at $3.75 to $3.85 per barrel and at $1.80 to $1.85 per bag for rolled oats, and at $3.60 to $3.70 per barrel, and $1.75 to $1.80 per bag for standard oatmeal.

BALED HAY.

Baled hay is unchanged at the decline noted last week, business ruling quiet. We quote: No. 1, $13, and No. 2, $11 to $11.50 car lots on track here.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

The cheese market is as difficult to understand as ever. The public cable came unchanged Tuesday and private advices did not warrant higher prices, yet the fact remains that, in addition to the full figures paid in the country on Saturday, higher prices were realized at the wharf Monday morning on French cheese than the week before. Altogether, by boat and rail, the receipts aggregated 5,000 boxes. Only 1,000 of these were actually for sale, the balance being sold to arrive at a fraction above the ruling price, it is understood. Values on the 1,000 boxes ranged from 7½ to 7¾c. The outside, however, was only made on a small quantity, and a fair ruling price was 7⅝c. Judging, generally, from the way prices on this side are holding up, it would seem as though the short interest extended into July make. It is difficult to explain the firmness in any other way. Finest Ontario cheese, 8¼ to 8½c.; finest Townships cheese, 7⅝ to 7¾c.; finest Quebec cheese, 7⅛ to 7⅜c.

The butter market continues steady and values are unchanged. Exporters find it difficult to do business in any large way at the current figures on Canadian creamery. Three correspondents on the other side prefer to take northern New York creamery, which is being bought around 15½c. at the factory, in that section. Local jobbers are still buyers of the domestic article at full prices, which maintains the steadiness of values. Finest creamery, 17¼ to 17½c.; seconds, 15¼ to 15½c.; dairy butter, 12 to 12½.

MONTREAL NOTES.

Advices from Patras state that the currant crop is slightly damaged and that the market will be late in opening.

The first receipts of new province of Quebec blueberries have been received. They are jobbing out at $1 per box.

Cables received from Barbadoes this week state that an advance of 1c. has taken place in first cost of molasses at the islands.

First offers on new Valencia raisins for August shipment have been received. So far nothing has been done for forward account yet.

Agents here for leading salmon canneries in British Columbia have been instructed to discontinue sales of salmon until the receipt of further orders.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., July 22, 1897.

THERE has been but a fair business doing during the week in groceries. The dry goods people also have found the wholesale business lighter than last year for the spring and early summer trade. Of course, last year was a very heavy one. Still, at least in dry goods lines, this season has not been up to the average The busy people still continue to be those shipping lumber, both here and at up-bay ports. The prices on the other side are rather lower, but the present large quantities going forward are to fill contracts made earlier. The weather here continues cool, to the great pleasure of those fortunate enough to be here and the great envy of those who are not. In grocery lines markets are rather better, showing in many cases upward tendency. Even flour seems to have turned its face upward. The many picnic excursions and tourists in town very much aid the retail business, which, owing to the large number of our own people out of the city, needs it.

OILS—Little can be said at this season. There is a rather better demand for burning oil, and that for lubricating continues to hold good. This season has seen a large demand. In cod oil small quantities continue to arrive. Stocks are light, but there is little life to the market and prices keep low. We quote: Best American burning oil, 18½ to 19c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 18c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 16c.

SALT—The chief business of the week has been deliveries from the cargo spoken of last week. It finds but a fair sale. Prices show no change. There are ample stocks and prices are easy. An English table and dairy salt, in wood boxes, packed here, is finding some sale. The sale of English table salt, in glass, is confined almost altogether to the retail trade, and shows a great falling off as compared with past years. In dairy salt the Canadian has the large part of the trade. We quote as follows: Coarse, 44 to 47c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 90c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 to $1.05 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.60 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS—There is more life; quite a quantity of old goods continues to arrive. The quantity of corn bought has been large, and at the price is good stock, particularly when compared with the prices the packers talk of getting latter. Quite a few old tomatoes have also been brought in. New peas and strawberries are both here. Oysters are higher, and some packers are all sold out. Salmon easier, the quantity of new bought not large. In no lines have new goods been largely bought, as compared with last year. Except in salmon and haddies the tendency of the market is upward. Lobsters are hard to get even at the advanced prices. We quote as follows: Corn, 60 to 65c.; peas, 75 to 85c.; tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; gallon apples, $1.75 to $1.80; corned beef, Canadian, $2.20 to $2.30; American, 2-lb tins, $2.40 to $2.50; 1-lb tins, $1.30 to $1.50; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.25; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.25 to $2.75; salmon, $1.25 to $1.40; lobsters, $2.25 to $2.50; haddies, $1 to $1.15; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT — Small fruits still have the chief attention. Strawberries from Nova Scotia are over and the New Brunswick berries are in full swing. While the New Brunswick box is smaller than those received from Nova Scotia the berry is harder and better. The price has been well maintained, except where berries have been soft. The shipment of wild berries to the American market for manufacturing purposes is not as large as last year. Raspberries are beginning to arrive. Plums, it is said, will be a very small crop; last year it was very large. Cherries will also be light this year. Rhubarb is out of the market. Oranges—light business; a few Valencias were received this week; it is late for them. Lemons are much higher and have good demand. A car of melons, the first full car to be brought here, is daily expected. Pears of good quality are now coming in and continue to find improved sale. Apples are also better quality and sale; price lower. Tomatoes are lower; they have but fair sale. Cucumbers are lower, with good demand. In pineapples there is no change. We quote as follows: California plums, $2 to $2.25; California pears, $3.50 to $4; Lemons, $4.50 to $6; oranges, Valencia, $7.50 to $8; Messina oranges, $3.75 to $4.50; bananas, $1.50 to $2.25; lettuce, 25 to 30c. per doz.; pineapples, 10 to 14c.; strawberries, 8 to 12c.; cucumbers, 35c. per doz.; pears, $5 to $7 per bbl.; new apples, $4.50 to $5 per bbl.; tomatoes, $1.50 to $2.

DRIED FRUIT—This is still the dull line. New California raisins are quoted and open lower than last year. The feeling in the market is reported firm. These goods will have the market this year unless Valencias should be very low. Valencias, as a fruit, are not to be compared with the others, but their price would affect the market here. In prunes, the opening prices in California are also lower than last year; the outlook is that more California prunes will be brought to this market if price keeps low. The foreign prunes have the advantage of the rebate in duty. Some grades are opening high. Onions hold their price and have a good sale. Evaporated apples are rather higher, but not much doing. There is no life in dried apples. Currants are high and stocks light. Stocks of raisins light. There is very little doing. We quote as follows: Raisins, Valencias, 5¼ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c.; prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples 2½ to 3c.; evaporated apples, 4¼ to 4½c.; onions, 2¾ to 3c. per lb.; cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Valencias, layers, 6 to 7c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.

SUGAR—There is a firmer feeling, and stocks are getting worked down. This is the time of demand, and a fair business is doing. There is little if any change in price yet made here. The effect of foreign sugar quotations is being more felt. Some English yellows are expected here, and German granulated is offered low. We quote: Granulated, 4 to 4¼c.; yellows, 3¼ to 3⅝c.; Paris lump, 5¼ to 5½c.; powdered, 5 to 5¼c.

MOLASSES—The market is rather firmer. In Porto Rico a cargo is to hand this week. The importers are holding price firm, and rather higher than was expected. There is a large demand for this grade, and the present outlook is that stocks will be light. In Barbadoes the market is low and dull; holders, however, seem less anxious to sell than they did; the stock is not large. The outlook is better than it was, much better than it was thought it would be early in the season. We quote: Barbadoes, 22 to 23c.; Porto Rico, 26 to 30c.; New Orleans, bbls., 25 to 27c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.

DAIRY PRODUCE—In eggs the sale is becoming dull, prices easy, but no change. Butter rather lower and coming in very freely. For best grade there is good sale. In cheese the price tends lower; buyers begin to hold off for later-made cheese. The large number of factories through the country which supply the stores near to hand have very much affected the demand from city dealers. West India market dull. The local demand is for a cheese weighing about 50 lbs. We quote: Dairy butter, 13 to 16c.; creamery, 17 to 18c.; prints, 19 to 20c.; cheese, 9½ to 10c.; eggs, 9½ to 10c.

FISH—Salmon are getting scarce and price moving upward. Fresh shad are more plentiful; those caught now are extra quality and are called salmon shad. The catch is not a large one and they are chiefly sold fresh. Smoked herrings, light stock with prices still low. There is little or no sale here for hard, dry bloaters. Some new pickled bay herring are being received, but demand is dull. In dry cod, large are now low and are likely to move up soon. There is but fair sale in dry fish. The hot weather is affecting the curing, and receipts are light. We quote as follows: Large cod, $2.75 to $2.85; medium, $2.60 to $2.75; pollock, $1.05 to $1.25; bay herring, $1.25 to $1.30 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 5½ to 6½c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50; boneless, 2½ to 8c.; Barrington, $3 per bbl.; Shelburne, $3.25 per bbl.; halibut, 9 to 10c. per lb.; salmon, 15 to 18c.; bonoless, 3½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.; fresh shad, 20 to 25c.

PROVISIONS—There is little sale for pork. Beef shows a fair demand. No change in price. Canadian hams have had an active demand. The local curers being out of stock. The price, which has been high, has been further advanced, which will somewhat affect the sale. Demand for bacon small. Lard keeps very low. We quote: Clear pork, $13 50 to $14.50; mess, $12 to $13; plate beef, $11.50 to $13; hams 13 to 13½c.; rolls, 9 to 9½c.; pure lard, 6¾ to 7¼c.; compound, 6¼ to 6½c.

FLOUR, MEAL AND FEED—Flour has at last taken an upward turn. There is no change in prices here, but rather higher prices are looked for. Feed, particularly middlings, is high and very hard to get. Oats are the same. They have a good demand though buyers are offish at the price. Cornmeal rather firmer. In beans the market is still low; there is but light sale. Oatmeal is also on the upward move; prices show quite a range. There is a better feeling in this branch of the market, and improved business is looked for. We quote: Manitoba flour, $4.60 to $4.70; best Ontario, $4.25 to $4.30; medium, $4 to $4.15; oatmeal, $3.30 to $3.50; cornmeal, $1.75 to $1.80; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $15 to $16; bran, do, do, $13.50 to $14.50; hand-picked beans, 85 to 90c.; prime, 75 to 80c.; oats, 33 to 34c.; hay, $12.50 to $13.50; barley, $2.75 to $3; round peas, $1.15; split peas, $2.85 to $3; yellow eye beans, $1.50;

ST. JOHN NOTES.

A cargo of 5,500 boxes bloaters cleared from Grand Manan this week for Boston.

Messrs. Baird & Peters are landing a cargo of very fine Porto Rico molasses this week.

Tourists are coming into our city to enjoy our cool climate in very large numbers. One day this week the International Steamship Co. landed upwards of 450.

The Laing Packing & Provision Co., of Montreal, have had a very large sale for hams here during the past few weeks. They are represented by Mr. I. C. Bowman.

James Dillon, wholesale grocer and commission merchant, who left the city some time ago without making any arrangements to meet his liabilities, has made an assignment.

Large quantities of New Brunswick cultivated strawberries have been shipped west. In some places the crop has been large, one grower getting upward of 6,000 boxes from an acre.

Mr. Magor, of Messrs. Frank Magor & Co., Montreal, was in the city this week in the interest of Keen's mustard, Robinson's barley and Cadbury's chocolate, etc. He reports a good business, particularly in Cadbury's Christmas goods. An increase is also noticed in the sale of Robinson's barley. West, Mr. Magor says, he has been pleasantly surprised at the increased sale in this line.

THE GROCER extends its congratulation to Mr. David E. Loomer, of the well-known firm of McAfee & Loomer, who was this week married to Miss Mary Bigelow, of Spencer's Island.

The time for catching lobsters in the Maritime Provinces has been extended to July 24, that is nine days. This does not include the Bay of Fundy and the west and south coast of Nova Scotia, where the close season began July 1.

A number of Maritime commercial travelers presented Mr. T. H. Foster, late on the road for the Eastern Oil Co., with a well-filled purse of gold. Mr. Foster was very popular. THE GROCER regrets to learn that his health is very poor.

TRADE CHAT.

A large addition is being built to the storehouse at the starch factory in Port Credit, Ont.

A bold robbery was committed in J. & R. Robson's feed store, Brantford, the other day. A man entered the store and ordered a quantity of horse-feed. While the person in charge of the store was out upon the street having the visitor show where to take the feed another man entered the store and robbed the till of $75. The thieves got away with the booty.

On the 1st of July the law by which the interest on post office savings bank deposits was lowered from 3½ per cent. to 3 per cent. took effect, and since then some notice has been taken of the returns as they come in at Guelph to ascertain whether the change will have any effect in decreasing the deposits. So far it does not appear to have operated there in that way at all.

On account of the scarcity of apples in the neighborhood of Norwich, Mr. C. K. Graham of that place is desirous of moving his plant to St. Thomas. Last week he sent a letter to the Council of the latter place asking for a free building and boiler, and for help in moving his machinery. He promised, while in the city, to employ 40 men and 25 girls. He would spend $500 a week in apples, and the same amount in wages. Although the proposal was given rather a "frosty" reception by the Council, it was referred to a special committee composed of the Clerk, the Mayor, and the chairman of No. 1 Committee.

L. M. Schenck, St. Catharines, is offering early summer cabbage at a very low rate. He quotes it at 75c. per barrel f.o.b. St. Catharines.

MR. SEYLER BECOMES A BROKER.

MR. W. H. SEYLER, sample-room manager of the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, has just severed his connection with that firm. Mr. Seyler's genial face will not, however, be missed from wholesale grocery circles in Toronto. He leaves his old company to engage in the commission and brokerage business, handling foreign and domestic goods appertaining to the grocery trade. He already has secured a number of excellent agencies and will have a good many more on his list before long. He is now making a tour of New York, Boston and other commercial centres in the United States partly with that end in view, but as it is two or three years since Mr. Seyler enjoyed a holiday, he will also devote some of his time to pleasure as well as to business.

Mr. Seyler is one of the best known and most popular men in the wholesale grocery trade of Toronto. To his friends he is always genial and ready to crack a joke; to his customers, whether they be small or large, he is attentiveness itself.

He has been with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited, for 11½ years, during the past four of which he has been sample-room manager. A couple of years ago, when the firm was turned into a joint stock company, Mr. Seyler became a shareholder and also one of the directors.

As an evidence of the high esteem in which he was held inside the warehouse, he was on Tuesday last presented with a handsome suite of office furniture, including a desk and a revolving chair, while this was further supplemented by the many well-wishes for his welfare given utterance to by employers and fellow employes.

Mr. Seyler is in the full vigor of manhood, has a thorough knowledge of the grocery trade, and, besides, he is what is known as a well-read man. Thus fortified, he should make his new venture a success, and THE CANADIAN GROCER expects he will.

APPLE SHIPPERS' ASSOCIATION.

The third annual meeting of the National Apple Shippers' Association for the election of officers and the transaction of any other business will be held at Hotel Iroquois, Buffalo, N.Y., August 5th, and continue in session through the 6th and 7th.

As there will likely be several Canadian dealers attend the meeting, we might mention that arrangements have been made for reduced railway fare on the certificate plan, which means to pay full fare going, and obtain a certificate of same from the agent selling the ticket, on presentation of which at Buffalo the return fare will be one-third single fare.

Hotel arrangements have been made at the Iroquois House. On Friday afternoon it is intended to run an electric railway excursion to Niagara Falls and along the gorge of the Niagara River to Lewiston.

LUMBER BOOM IN ST. JOHN.

THERE is a decided boom in the lumber business in this port; in fact, there has been nothing like it known in the city before. The port is alive with vessels, and every available man is busy stowing them with lumber. Whether this rush is due to the fact that the winters have demonstrated St. John to be a great centre for freight or not, the fact is the vessels are coming here, and are being supplied with cargoes. While the cause of the boom may not be easily explained, yet anyone who visits the wharves will admit that there is a decided rush.

There were in port yesterday 15 ocean steamships, totalling 25,655 tons, and 16 sailing ships, totalling 13,582 tons—in all 39,247 tons, loading for the English and continental market.

It is estimated that the quantity of spruce which these vessels will take away will be not less than 25,000 standards, or in round figures 50,000,000 superficial feet. This, in addition to 6,000,000 already shipped this month, will make the shipments for July the largest for any one month on record, and will come within a few millions of being half as much as shipped during the previous half year, viz.: 106,000,000 superficial feet. The total for July in the two past years was:

1895—18 millions.

This list does not include the vessels loading for the United States market.

Many are watching the action of the United States senators and their tariff tinkering. The law which has been in effect across the line for the past few years allowed all lumber cut on American soil and sawn by American mill owners here to pass into the United States free of duty, while no matter whether the lumber cut by Canadian mill owners was taken from American soil or not, the Canadians would have to pay the duty.

In the vicinity of this city there are 15 saw mills. Four of these have Canadian owners, while the other 11 are owned by Americans. The Canadian mills above the falls are Messrs. Randolph & Baker's, at Randolph; George Barnhill's mill at Pleasant Point, W. H. Murray's mill at Marble Cove; and below the falls is Messrs. Hilyard Bros'. mill on the Strait Shore.

The new clause of the Dingley bill says that to have lumber admitted to the United States free it must be the product of American labor, that is sawn by American workmen.

Out of about 700 workmen who are engaged in the 11 American mills here there are, as far as can be learned, only 25 American workmen, while the rest are staunch Canadians.

A prominent millman told a Telegraph reporter yesterday that the idea of importing American labor to escape paying duty could not be thought of, for if such a thing did come to pass Canadian millmen would be out of work, and this would not be tolerated. It comes to this, the mills would have to shut down or pay a duty to get their lumber into the American market, where it is now free.

When the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill went into effect in the United States it reduced the duty on shingles 30c. per thousand. The mill owners did not lose or gain anything on the change, but the American consumer got his material 30c. per thousand (or four bunches) cheaper than before. Now, when the new clause of the Dingley bill goes into effect (if it does so) the duty on shingles will again increase 30c. per thousand. To meet this duty the mill owners will raise the price on the shingles.

The shingle mills in St. John are Mr. Charles Miller's mill with nine machines; Charles F. Woodman with 14 machines and Mr. S. T. King's, two machines. The demand for shingles at present is said to be good.

Nearly all of the American mills are at present cutting deal for the English market, and are all being kept very busy.—Telegraph, St. John, N.B.

It is said the Retail Grocers' Association will attach a private car to one of their excursion trains to the Falls to convey the King's Daughters, who played such an important part in the recent Pure Food Show. —Herald, Hamilton.

A REVIEW.

MR. GEORGE HAGUE, general manager of the Merchants Bank, Montreal, in his annual address, says :

"I may say this, however, that it is hopeless for manufacturers of any kind, in these times of keen competition, to make profit on their business unless they have the latest appliances in machinery, the most economical appliances of power, the most skilful management in production, the best adaptations of labor, and the best facilities for transportation and communication. Along with these, it is becoming more and more essential that a manufacturer shall have his specialties ; that is, that he should produce some goods which are his own, known by his name, which will be such a guarantee of goodness that the name will sell the goods, as with 'Rodgers'' cutlery or 'Horrocks'' sheetings. When a manufacturer attains a position like this, and has his arrangements to keep it, he is a long way towards permanent success and wealth. In some branches of manufacture and production we have attained this position. Certain brands of flour are well known in foreign countries, as well as certain brands of cheese, and even of deals and timber. A customer of our own has established the reputation of his brand of eggs in the English market, and enquiries are made for it by dealers there. We are exporting furniture to South Africa, agricultural implements and other articles to Australia, butter to Japan, and leather in large quantities to England ; and if attention is only paid to quality, to good make-up, and to the exact needs of the market, there is no reason why this should not develop very largely. In such matters as butter or apples it is not sufficient to have simply a good article, it must be well and tastefully packed, according to the fancies of the market it is sent to, or they can never establish themselves in general favor.

"Our apple exports of last year were frightfully injured by want of care in packing, and the trade injured to an extent it will take considerable time to recover from. Our orchards are well known to be among the best in the world, and so are our vineyards and peach gardens. I mention this for the benefit of any who may happen to read these words, to dispel the impression that Canada is a land of almost perpetual snow. I do not think we are at all obliged to the enterprising English poet who lately sung our praises as the 'Lady of the Snows.' We have snows, it is true, and exceedingly useful they are, as fertilizing the ground for the spring and summer, and enabling us to produce such fine peaches, grapes, melons and apples as we do. While on this subject I may venture to say that much harm has been done to the country by the multiplication of snow pictures. We have had altogether too many of this sort. It would, I think, be a profitable venture if an illustrated book were published showing what Canada is in summer."

THE RICE SITUATION.

English milled rice continues to be imported freely since the introduction of the new tariff, and the fact that the protection on Canadian milled rice was increased 25c. per cwt. does not seem in any way to have stopped the importation of rices milled in England. The greater variety and superior qualities in English milled rices appear to have made a lasting impression on the retail trade and it is claimed by the dealers that it will be difficult to reconcile retailers to buying the limited grades offered by the Canadian mills, notwithstanding that the protection to the latter is still of considerable importance.

Judge William Elliot sentenced Arthur Waterman to one year in the Central Prison for stealing groceries from Fitzgerald & Scandrett, London.

MANITOBA MARKETS

THE first day of the Industrial Exhibition has brought along with it "ye gentle summer rain." However, it is hoped that this will serve to cool the air and make the getting-about pleasanter than last week when the heat was so intense. Already the city is crowded with strangers from all parts of the province, and more are coming in on every train. All available hotel rooms were taken days ago, and the hotels have advertised for room in private houses to accommodate later arrivals. The arches put up for the Jubilee were left up and are now being freshly decorated and will be illuminated every night this week. There is not much done in groceries and hardware during the exhibition week, the increase of trade is more in the retail dry goods line, but still all trades benefit by the influx to the Fair, as many articles exhibited are purchased after the return home. The exhibits in all trades are good, but it is too early to write any description of, as the things will not all be in place until late to-night. Prices have scarcely varied during the week. Butter, both creamery and dairy, is a little firmer, due to the demand for construction on the Crow's Nest railway. Cheese is weaker and lower. Sugar is more active than last week, but the price is unchanged. Though new pack of fruit and vegetables are offering freely very few purchases are being made, as there is a general tendency to wait for more settled prices.

CURED MEATS—There is a decidedly firm feeling in hog products. Prices are: Hams, assorted sizes, 11 to 11½c.; breakfast bacon, bellies, 11 to 11½c.; do., backs, 9½ to 10c.; short spiced rolls, 7½ to 8c.; shoulders, 6 to 6½c.; smoked long clear, 8½ to 9c.; fancy clear, 8 to 8½c. Dry salt meats are quoted as follows: Long clear bacon, 7 to 7½c. per lb.; shoulders, 5¼ to 5¾c.; boneless shoulders, 6½ to 7c.; backs, 7¾ to 8¼c.; extra charge of ½c. for canvassed meats; barrel pork, clear mess, $13 to $13.50; short cut, $15.50 to $16; rolled shoulders, $13 to $13.50 per barrel.

BUTTER—Creamery firm and selling at 15c. f.o.b. factories. Dairy in very fair demand and firmer; prices 10 to 11c. in round lots.

EGGS—Supply just about equals demand; price paid, 10c.; price to jobbers after candling, 12 to 13c.

CHEESE—Is weaker, the price now being 6 to 6¼c. There is a feeling on the part of dealers that it will settle permanently at 6c., but if this is the case the chances are that factories will shut down, as there is nothing in it at 6c.

POULTRY—A few spring chickens are coming in and are as dear as they are tasteless after the manner of their kind. A properly managed broiler-farm would be a benefaction to the inhabitants of Winnipeg. Spring chickens sell at 35c. the pair; last summer chickens, 10c. per lb.; turkeys, 9½ to 10c., live weight.

LARD—Pure, $1.70 to $1.75 for 20-lb. pails, and $4.25 for 50-lb. pails.

CEREALS—Rolled oatmeal, 80-lb. sacks, $1.50 per sack; granulated, 98 lbs., $1 75; standard, 98 lbs., $1.75; rolled wheat, 80 lbs., $1.75; pot barley, 98 lbs., $1.75; pearl barley, 98 lbs., $3.25 per sack.

TEA—No move in this market.

COFFEE—Market unchanged. Rios, still dull at 13½c.; Javas, 28c., and Mochas, 37c.

CANNED GOODS—Strawberries, new pack offering at $1.35 to $1.45 for case. Tomatoes still ruling high at $2.25 per case; corn, $1.40 to $1.60, according to pack.

SUGAR—A little more activity than last week and market a little firmer. Granulated, 4⅞c.; yellows, 4 to 4⅛c.

DRIED FRUITS—Valencia raisins are reported as ready to ship by August 1st.

VEGETABLES—The supply both of domestic and imported is now abundant and prices are very reasonable. New potatoes are selling at 2c. lb.; lettuce and radishes are 8 to 10c. per dozen bunches; peas in pod, 3c. per lb.; cauliflower, 50c. per dozen, and cabbages, 45 to 50c. per dozen bunches.

GREEN FRUIT—New southern apples have arrived. They are better quality than new apples are generally. Bananas are good quality and are offering freely. Lemons are firm and higher. Stocks held here are small, and with the present warm weather and the influx of visitors lemons will be lemons before the week is out. California lemons are arriving and the stocks held are principally Messinas. California plums of good quality are arriving in considerable quantities. The first California Bartlett pears arrived last week and were in good condition. Oranges are all late Valencias, and as they are large oranges there is a difficulty in filling demand for small oranges. Pineapples are scarce, but this is thought to be temporary. Prices rule about as follows: California late Valencia oranges, $6 to $6.50 box; Messina lemons, $6 to $6.50; bananas, $2 to $2.75 per bunch; pineapples, $2.50 to $3 per dozen; pie plant, 1½c. per pound; tomatoes, $1.75 per crate of 4 baskets; California cherries, $1.50 to $1.75 per box; apricots, $2 per box; California plums, $2 to $2.25 box; California peaches, $2 per box; California pears, $3.50 to $4 per box; onions, $4 per 100 lbs.; cucumbers, 75 to 90c. per doz.; watermelons, $5.50 per doz.

LONDON GROCERS' PICNIC.

We are in receipt of a programme and invitation to the seventh annual outing of the Retail Grocers' Association of London, which is to be held in Queen's Park of that place on Wednesday, July 28.

Judging from the programme the committee intend making this year's affair an unprecedented success. A monster procession is to be marched to Queen's Park in the morning, and in the afternoon 20 field events will be run off.

The merchants of London, outside of the grocers, are co-operating to have all the stores closed that afternoon.

THE SELF-PROVING ACCOUNTING SYSTEM.

"TWO leading considerations are to be kept in mind when examining accounting appliances and methods. One is the relationship of each individual element to the system as a whole, and the other the convenience and efficiency of the device in itself for the special purpose for which it is intended. The first of these is determined by the system itself, or the principles upon which the system is based, and the second by the features of the devices and their adaptability to the ends in view." It is with these words that the editors, J. F. Brown, Toronto, and A. O. Kittredge, New York, commence ther work entitled "The Self-Proving Accounting System," and it is on these principles that they claim that this system is the best ever offered to the public.

The self-proving accounting system is a double entry system and may be characterized as double entry brought down to date and adapted to modern requirements. It is more than double entry, for, in addition to each transaction being represented in two accounts, one showing the debit and the other the credit, each account is twice entered, once as an individual element and once as a part of a group, or one of a number of elements taken collectively.

Another advantage of the system is its utility. According to the size of the business, one or twenty clerks may be employed in recording the different classes of transactions, and, when an error is found, the mistake may easily be rectified by comparing the books of the different employes.

The leading contention in the treatise is that the ledger of a business may be so constructed, and the accounts therein so classified and arranged, that it shall at all times be a going balance sheet of the business, not only with respect to resources and liabilities, but also in the matter of profits and losses. This is not a mere theoretical deduction, for the plan outlined in the volume is in successful use in many places at the present time.

The work is a credit to the publishers, the Self-Proving Account Book Co., who have an office in Toronto at 3 and 5 Queen street east. It contains some 328 large pages and is handsomely and substantially cloth-bound.

SEND IN BUTTER.

IN conversation with a city wholesale provision merchant this week THE GROCER was surprised to hear that the city market reports deceived a great many merchants throughout the country, or rather the merchants were deceived by them. For instance, if we say that there is no scarcity of butter, but rather that the market is supplied, the merchants in the country who have butter on hand think that it isn't safe to consign their goods and that it is better policy to retain them till a scarcity on the city market is reported. This, the consignees say, is a mistaken idea. Even if the local market is supplied the consignee's business is to dispose of all the goods that come to his charge. If he advertises himself as a wholesale provision merchant he is sure to have a number of houses in Halifax, St. John, or in any of the ports where exporting goes on, to whom he can forward his provisions with the security that the highest market price will be paid.

It is this confidence that the dealers have in the exporters that the country merchants ought to have in the dealers.

Every day, we hear, the wholesalers receive letters asking them if they can receive a consignment of butter of 50 tubs. Don't waste time and trouble by doing so. The sooner you get in your butter or any kind of provisions the fresher it will be, and the higher price it will bring. When you have 50 or 75 or 100 tubs of butter on hand don't think that it is such a large consideration to the dealer as it is to yourself. Send it along, he can handle it.

Merchants are continually sending in telegrams or letters asking for prices on their lots. It is only waste of time, money and trouble. If the dealer sends back a price, he has to reckon on his commission profit, similarly as he does on consignments. Don't try to "dicker" with the dealer. he is firm and is determined to get his regular profit.

This warning is particularly applicable at this time of year, when the hot weather is on. If your butter is good do not hold it over till October. What will bring 12c. now will bring only 9c. in October, for the present good flavor is sure to have gone by that time. It isn't even necessary to send on four or five tubs as a sample. If the butter is not below medium quality the dealer will sell it for you.

If this rule is followed, certainly a great deal of trouble and annoyance, to say nothing of money, will be saved to both merchant and consignee.

A SIGN OF BUSINESS.

The manufacturers of "Happy Thought" soap, Hamilton, have found their business increasing so rapidly that they have had to enlarge their factory and put in additional machinery. They claim that hitherto they have not had capacity enough to fill their orders.

This growth of trade is due, doubtless, to the delicate appearance of the manufactured article, resembling, as it does, Castile soap. "Happy Thought" soap is useful for any household purpose, but is particularly adapted for the bath.

Grocers might take advantage of the success of the article by handling it more freely. It retails at 5c. per cake and a good profit is obtainable.

Cheese men will do well to pay heed to the new Branding Act, which is in force since June 29. Besides branding each box "Canada," each cheese must be branded similarly. The regulation applies only to cheese for export. The penalty for neglecting to fulfil this provision is a fine of $5 per cheese. Half the fine goes to the informer.

Thomas Lawry & Son, pork packers, Wentworth street north, have laid off a number of their workmen for an indefinite period. The price of pork is said to have made its curing and packing unprofitable. It is also rumored that F. W. Fearman & Co. will reduce their working staff in the near future.—Hamilton Herald.

THE SALMON SITUATION.

Packing on the Columbia River to date, it is reported, shows a much smaller total than at this time a year ago, and it is indicated that there will be a possible shortage in some canneries. The result, however, cannot be predicted, and nothing definite can be known of the output of Columbia River fish until the season closes. That will be late this month or early in August.

The strike on the Fraser River, it is reported, has assumed serious proportions, but if it is promptly settled, and there is said to be some prospect that it may, the quantity produced may yet reach expectations. The packing season is about to commence on the Puget Sound, and it is understood that the packers are making reasonable prices. No prices have yet been named on the medium and lower grades of association fish, and it is probable that none will be made until later in the season. Enquiries of the association agents reveal the fact that the usual quota of Red Alaska is being taken; that many of the other leading brands are closely cleaned up.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

MINT ... PUFF-STRAPS

RECOGNIZING the great popularity of peppermint with the sweets-loving public, we are the first to introduce to the trade Pliable Licorice containing this flavor.

The delicious quality of our Pliable Licorice is well known; it is matchless in this respect as well as in its flavor and finish.

Our Triple Tunnel Tubes and Navy Plugs are great favorites also, and are made of the same material, although flavored differently. . . . . .

We recommend all these goods as suitable for Summer Trade; they will please the most exacting taste as wholesome, smooth and palatable confections. . . . .

Barrels vs. Sacks

True, we sell our Rolled Oats in Sacks, but although the retailer can sell his empty sacks to better advantage than he can his barrels (except in certain seasons), we yet advise him to buy in barrels. The barrels protect the Oats from mice and insects. The sacks do not. Even if nothing happens to the contents of a sack while it is on its way to you, mice will get in perhaps while it's in your store. The barrel prevents the breaking up of the Oats, while sacks are thrown about of couse in transit. However—Sacks or Barrels, as you prefer.

HOW TO OPEN A COUNTRY GROCERY STORE.

By Thomas Martindale.

AS to opening a country grocery store, let us first see what the average country grocery sometimes is. I have in my mind's eye country grocery stores which are arranged something like this: One counter, containing a cigar case, the glass of which is almost opaque from fly dirt and dust; a pair of old-fashioned scales, either the brass or tin scoop covered with a thick layer of sugar or something else that has just been weighed in it; the shelving filled with a motley lot of canned goods, with here and there a sprung can, or "swell," showing plainly that the goods are old, with a lot of lamp chimneys covered with dust and dirt; bottled pickles in the same condition and faded from exposure to light; bottles of tomato catsup, with the tops of the contents turned black; with sugar kept in open barrels on either side of the store, in summer time attracting flies by the thousands.

At the back part of the store, on a platform a foot or two high, a barrel of vinegar with a leaky spigot, a barrel of coal oil or a coal oil tank, nearby a barrel of salt pork, open; a barrel of molasses, a barrel of syrup and a half-barrel of mackerel, exposed to the dust and dirt of the store and not covered with brine; a half-barrel of salt herrings, a box of boneless codfish and a bundle, maybe, of old-fashioned codfish; a barrel of roasted coffee, opened, and a sack or two of green coffee; sacks of flour piled up, with the flour leaking from the sacks caused by the work of mice and rats; a pile of brooms, some standing on their handles and some standing on their ends; boxes of clothes pins scattered about; boxes of matches here and there; a trayful of eggs; a bin of potatoes; a lot of roll butter in a barrel for people to claw over; tubs of lard, opened; tubs of packed butter, opened; piles of empty cigar boxes on top of the shelving; piles of filled cigar boxes, some open, some closed; pails of fine-cut tobacco, open; kegs of nails; a cheese cut on top of a barrel-head, showing the marks of the dirty knife used to cut it; a barrel or two of green apples; a pile of cabbage and a crate of onions completes the picture.

This picture is not by any means either a rare one or an extreme one, but it is unfortunately too true that it is a frequent one. Now, then, how should I start a country grocery store to better or improve upon such a store as I have pictured? My experience in business has been that the less money a man starts with, providing he has money enough to pay for his fixtures and the greater portion of his stock that he starts with, the better chance he has to succeed. In other words, I think a man starting with $500 and not having his first stock paid entirely for, will have a better chance of succeeding than the man who starts with $1,000, with his stock paid for and a little money left in the bank, because the man who starts in a small way with something to work for that must be paid off will take less risks as to the giving of credit, and will work harder than the man who starts in comparative affluence and with no care upon his mind.

I am frequently asked to furnish goods for new stores, and no matter how much the man proposes to put into the business I invariably advise him to cut his stock down very much lower than he has already anticipated. For instance, a man came in a few days since and wanted to buy goods to the amount of $2,000 with which to stock a new store. I advised him that in the locality in which he proposed starting $500 would give him as much stock as he wanted, and that his chance of success with the $500 stock would be greater than if he bought $2,000. He took my advice, and when his bill was footed up it did not reach $400 and he had a good assortment of all the goods his locality required. I would advise, therefore, that $1,000 ought to be sufficient to start a man in a country town of any reasonable size. This would give him ample stock to work from, bearing in mind that he could replenish his stock at any rate within a day or two of his ordering, and he would have all the goods he needed to do an aggressive and profitable business with.

Now, first of all, I would insist upon having a place outside of the store, if possible, for keeping kerosene oil, as the odor of the coal oil has a deleterious effect upon tea, coffee, fish and other things sold in a small store. Second, I would have up-to-date scales and tea caddies. I would have proper bins for the reception of sugar, oatmeal, flour, biscuits, rice, barley, hominy, coffee, starch, beans, peas and dried fruits. I would keep the flour absolutely clear of anything in barrels opened for sale. I would have attractive tea canisters and bright show cases, kept clean. I would have the window dressed once a week and with only one article at a time and would have the windows polished with "elbow grease." I would keep the butter in a refrigerator, also the cheese. I would keep the goods on the shelves clean, taking them down and dusting them at least once in two weeks, and occasionally changing them from one part of the store to the other. By doing so it always makes the stock look newer and fresher. Having no barrels in the store to weigh from, I would have no barrels for idlers to sit upon, which is one of the curses of the country grocery store. In place of using common straw paper for wrapping, as the average country grocer does, I would use the best manila paper and the best hand-made bags. I would see to it that my stock of coffee was kept free from foreign odors of fish, coal oil, pork, smoked meats, etc. I would buy only enough of it so as to have it fresh-roasted as near as possible two or three times a week. I would educate my trade to buy bulk-roasted coffee in place of package coffee, which is almost invariably sold in country stores, from the fact that on package coffee you rarely, if ever, make a living profit, whereas on your own bulk coffee you are sure of getting a remunerative profit. I would study the blending and sale of my own blends of teas. I would see to it that the crackers and biscuits that were sold were fresh and also kept from exposure to foreign odors. I would keep anything and everything that would be asked for in a country store, and keep that anything and everything in the best and most up-to-date methods, but I would not carry a large stock of any one thing. I would keep the store scrupulously clean, and I would depend more upon the attention given to the wants of the trade, to cleanliness, politeness and the sale of goods at the proper prices to win and hold customers, rather than to carrying a large stock and furnishing a lounging place for the idle elements of the surrounding country.—Grocery World.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

Commutation Tickets.

In conversation with a retailer that keeps a store about 40 miles from Toronto I had the opportunity of learning what results the ceasing of the issue of the commutation tickets has had upon the country trade. While they were being issued people within the radius of that distance from Toronto used to come into the city as often as occasion required to do their shopping at the department stores. Now, however, the traveling expenses are too great to warrant the trip for that purpose alone, and as a consequence the country stores get more of their rightful trade. On the other hand, the merchants used to come, too, in order to pick up bargains and pointers among the wholesale warehouses. Although they do not come as frequently now, yet they do not feel the expense when large purchases have to be made, and can on that account continue to visit the city while their customers cannot. Thus, then, the thanks of these country storekeepers is due to the railway companies.

Some Ideas in Window Dressing.

There is no doubt but that window dressing is daily becoming more of an art. The window is gradually being considered the most important part of the store, as it should be. Although the art cannot be mastered in a little time and without a good deal of experience, yet I notice there are a few special principles that are worthy of a good deal of attention and which, if acted upon, will materially improve the appearance of the windows. Of course, the style and size of the windows determine to a greater or less extent the possible appearance. It is important that the window should be well lighted and that there should be more than one pane of glass in connection with it. In my opinion, mirrors at the back and sides of the window are greater factors in adding to the appearance of a dressed window than is anything else. Another tendency that must be guarded against by inexperienced window dressers is the desire to put too many goods on display. People don't stay long looking at a window, and they cannot see everything in a minute, therefore it is better to have only one or two special lines of goods for them to notice. Then, too, the window should be a place to display goods that a merchant is desirous of getting rid of, and as he is generally devoting his energies to the getting rid of one line only, the window should contain samples of that one article. But these samples should not be placed on the floor of the window, huddled together, as if they were put there out of the way, and as if the floor of the window was intended to be hidden. The goods should be scattered and hung around in a position that gives a pleasing appearance. Another necessity for a well-dressed window is some colored cloth or felt spread on the floor which, I notice, all nicely dressed windows have.

Cutting Prices.

Grocers, who are steadfast in their determination to do no cutting in prices, and who have done business on this principle for some length of time are, I find, seldom sorry that they have adopted this fixed rule and have not followed so-called up-to-date competitors. It is a frequent thing to have grocers tell me of men who have started business in their neighborhood, who have acquired a large trade by low prices, who have given 6 bars of Surprise soap for 25 cents, who were willing to handle 23 to 24 pounds of sugar for a dollar, but who have stood the pressure for only a few months or, at the outside, a year, and have then compromised. The situation has resolved itself into the certainty that no retail grocer can reduce his prices without, at least, getting in the danger of bankruptcy. It is a hard matter to intelligently answer the question: How far can a grocer cut prices without incurring this danger? There is no doubt but that on the goods he handles more profit will be made than if he did not cut prices, provided, of course, that the cutting was not done recklessly, and that his competitors did not adopt the same tactics. But there is an offset to this profit. A large volume of business causes larger expenses, and they must be considered in answering the question. Rents remain the same, but extra clerks are required, and all expenses that vary with the size of the business must increase, and most expenses vary with the volume of business and not with the profits. If a grocer could tell exactly how much he would increase his sales by cutting down his gross profits he could easily calculate how far he could reduce his prices. But he can't. In reducing prices he further runs the risk of having his competitors follow suit, and when affairs have settled the change is probably detrimental to the interests of both himself and his competitors. It's a dangerous step to take and ought to be avoided. RAMBLER.

THE BEET-SUGAR INDUSTRY.

SUGAR is a much discussed product in this country at present, but unless all signs fail the present public interest is only a sample of that which seems likely to be aroused during the next few years. The "friends of sugar," and under this may be classed those really interested in the upbuilding of a great domestic industry and those who will espouse the cause because of the political features of the movement, may be expected to rise to the occasion in a vast expenditure of ink and paper, to say nothing of vocal demonstrations in favor of this comparatively infant industry. The opportunities which have been afforded the enemies of bounty systems and of "hydra-headed trusts" to denounce these phases of sugar trade development will, no doubt, look small compared to the volume of similar outgivings that may be expected in the not distant future. It is true that the effects upon the nervous systems of the average every-day sugar consumers of the impending vigorous "campaign of education" may be serious, but the present outlook favors no escape from it.

Seriously considered, the prospects seem to favor an immense development of the American sugar industry, chiefly on the lines of sugar-beet culture, which, complicated with Hawaiian annexation, Cuban difficulties, tariff regulations at home and export bounties abroad, are likely to have far-reaching political and economic results.

Sugar-beet culture, compared with that of cane, is of comparatively modern origin. The stoppage by blockade of importations of cane sugar into France is said to have turned the attention of Napoleon to sugar-beet culture, at that time used entirely for cattle feeding, and to this the European beet-sugar culture as it is to-day owes its origin. A beet containing 6 to 8 per cent. of sugar is classed as commercially profitable in Europe, and 10 to 12 per cent. of sugar is considered a fair average, while in this country beets containing less than 12 per cent. are considered almost unmarketable. In Europe the encouragement given the beet-sugar industry has been exceptionally great. As pointed out in an article in The St. Louis Globe-Democrat recently, the raising of sugar beets and their manufacture into sugar is one of the leading agricultural industries in most of the great continental countries.

The export trade in German sugar, which last year entered so largely into this country's imports, is of very late date. In 1872 Germany exported only 14,720 tons of sugar. In 1894 the Government reports show 473,000 tons exported, and in 1895 the export exceeded 1,000,000 tons, while the total production of Germany in the same year was only 1,850,000 tons. Therefore more than one-half of their production has been exported. We thus see what progress the German industry made in twenty-five years, producing from beets more sugar to-day than the total production from tropical cane in the entire world twenty-five years ago.

To-day the influence of the sugar-growing and manufacturing interests of Germany, Austria, Italy and Russia with the Governments of those countries is very great, and the demand is for increased bounties upon exports, to the end that the foreign trade of those countries in beet sugar be so enlarged and at the same time cheapened that cane sugar will be practically driven out of markets which hitherto have been heavy consumers of the latter product. The bounty system is responsible for some peculiar features of the sugar trade. Where the American pays for granulated sugar 5c. per lb., the German citizen pays 6¼c., the Austrian 8⅜c. and the Frenchman 10c. All these Governments collect from their people an internal revenue of about 2c. per lb. for the privilege of manufacturing sugar, but on American and other exports, in order to stimulate home production, an export bounty is paid by the Government to the sugar manufacturers, more than equalizing the original paid revenue. Therefore, when the German pays 6¼c. per lb. for his granulated sugar, this same German export bounty-paid sugar can be sold in the United States for 4½c. per lb.

The possibilities of the American market as an outlet for European beet sugar have already been taken advantage of. The imports of beet sugar below No. 16 Dutch standard in the calendar year 1896 amounted to $22,903,000, and adding refined beet sugar the total amount imported was fully $25,000,000 or almost five times the amount imported in 1895. The imports from West Indian and South American countries (all cane) during 1896 fell off heavily, but the East Indian, the Philippine islands, Africa and the Hawaiian islands all sent heavily increased totals, although not anything like the gain in beet importations was shown. The world's production of beet sugar increased 78 per cent. in ten years, from 1884 to 1894, according to Mr. Herbert Myrick, while that of cane sugar increased only 41 per cent. The above statistics are merely given to illustrate the onward march of the beet-sugar industry and give point to the claims made by those interested in the beet-sugar industry that this country, with its vast area adapted to beet-sugar cultivation, should share in the profits of sugar cultivation.

Beet sugar cultivation in this country dates back to 1835, but the record of work done is merely a list of failures made owing to peculiarities of soil or treatment of product, or of insufficient capital, till the year 1879, when the first successful enterprise was started in California. Since then successful efforts have been made in Nebraska, Utah and New Mexico, and to-day the area within which sugar beets may be profitably grown covers the larger part of the United States. That there is an opening for the production and sale of beet sugar seems evident from the fact that fully $100,000,000 was paid for sugar imports in 1896, of which fully one-fourth was beet sugar. Our total exports of wheat and wheat flour last year exceeded this sum by very little, so that the money return of one only about counterbalanced our payments for the other food product. The possibilities lying in the sugar trade as a money crop for our farmers, and as a producer of by-products utilizable in cattle feeding and other directions, are certainly very great. The building up of the American tin plate industry in a few years is perhaps the most recent example of what wise legislation can do to encourage industry, and their seems to offer in the sugar industry an even better opportunity to develop by similar legislation a comparatively new American industry—that of the production of sugar from the beet.—Bradstreets.

THE MEANING OF "A REMNANT."

A WEARY-LOOKING man stood behind the counter of an American department store the other day, and seemed to regard with an almost affectionate interest the wooden partition that protected him from the surging crowd of women on the other side of the counter. They struggled with one another desperately, and as one receded two or three sprang forward to seize her place in the front row of the group that had gathered there. One woman with a fine stroke squeezed herself into a vacant space against the counter. She picked up a piece of silk, dropped it, and after having treated half-a-dozen more in the same way, seized a piece that she held in her hand longer than she had any of the others. "Lovely," she said to the clerk. "How much of it is there?" "Five yards" he said mechanically. "Oh, that's too bad," she answered, and it takes six this year for a waist. But I could get some more, I suppose, at the silk counter;" An expression of exceptional fatigue crossed the man's face, and he answered: "A remnant, ma'am, means the last of a piece." "Oh, pshaw!" was the woman's answer, as she threw the silk down and began to fumble again among the other pieces. "How much in this piece?" called out a woman next to her as she held up a blue and white check. "Is there a waist pattern?" "Only four yards in that, ma'am," the salesman answered. "But couldn't I buy some more at the silk——" "A remnant means the last of a piece, ma'am," answered the clerk, and another piece of silk dropped back on the counter. The women swarmed around the counter, picked over the silks, and some bought. They were talking, and there were murmurs of admiration or disapproval from the disturbed group. But there was one continuous, dominant tone in the talk, and that was the expressionless, invariable voice of the salesman repeating the words, "A remnant means the last of a piece, ma'am."

CATALOGUES, BOOKLETS, ETC.

A BOOK ON COLLECTIONS.

"CREDITS, Collections and Their Management" is the title of a new book edited by W. H. Preston, first president of the National Association of Credit Men. In his own experience he has studied the methods and forms in use in many of the best credit departments of the country, and he has embodied the best into a comprehensive system in successful daily operation under his supervision, which he has described.

The book is really intended for credit men, who are employed by many houses in the United States, but it contains some valuable suggestions for managers of credit businesses in any country.

Wholesale houses have for years assumed that a certain amount of losses are inevitable, and without enquiring into the causes have not understood that a large percentage could be avoided.

Mr. Preston says in his introduction: "Competition waxes strong, margins are dwindling, expenses are increasing; the losses must be materially lessened, or many must succumb." It is a system to lessen these losses that Mr. Preston describes.

THE EXPORTS OF JAPAN TEA.

RECENT intelligence from the tea-producing regions of Japan have afforded more encouragement to holders of tea on this continent. These advices seem to indicate that the tea growers in the Island Empire are more or less aware of the fact that the trade in the United States is pretty well loaded up with tea, and are acting in accordance. One letter that THE CANADIAN GROCER had access to said that it was learned from growers that the second crop was a great deal short. It is expected that the third crop will be equally so, and, as it had been decided to materially curtail the picking, the fourth crop would be nil, or nearly so. In fact, estimates are that the Japan crop will be fully twenty million pounds smaller this season than it usually is. At the same time no scarcity may be anticipated, but, owing to the above circumstances, the country people in Japan were expecting higher prices. According to mail advices of Yokohama, July 8, a liberal business had been transacted there during the previous three weeks, transactions amounting to 24,849 piculs transpiring, as against 27,164 during the corresponding period last season, the demand being best for teas suitable for the Canadian market, grading from good medium to choice. Rates ruled fairly steady during the interval, but at the close the market was in a very unsettled condition, and dealers were unwilling to make concessions in prices that would lead to a larger business being done.

Supplies came forward pretty freely, the unsold stock on the date mentioned being estimated at 8,000 piculs, consisting mostly of second crop leaf grading from good medium to finest.

At Kobe up to July 8 the settlements amounted to 27,319 piculs, making the total settlements to that date 77,616 piculs as against 70,232 piculs last year. The total settlements at Yokohama and Kobe up to July 8 were, 219,309 piculs as against 214,186 in 1896 and 266,739 in 1895.

The tea exports from Yokohama up to July 1 were as follows :

		Canada	United States

It will be seen from the above figures that the exports to the United States have increased enormously over last year, viz., 5,328,667. On the other hand, the exports to Canada of Japan tea have fallen off 414,252.

The total exports for the season 1897-98 from Yokohama and Kobe to July 1 were 18,263,604 to the United States and 1,799,034 to Canada. The same date in 1896 the exports were 10,957,466 to the United States and 2,027,127 to Canada, and, in 1895, 19,014,051 to the United States and 2,470,841 to Canada.

CALIFORNIA RAISIN CROP.

Late advices from California state that the crop of raisins will be much smaller than was originally estimated, owing to various vine diseases. The action of some commission houses in making low prices on what is claimed to be a purely speculative basis is condemned in strong terms by some of the growers. Owing to unfavorable weather, attacks of insects and the prevalence of diseases to which the grape vines are prone, it has been stated in various despatches of late from the Coast that the output this year is not likely to rise above the average. People here who are interested in raisins are inclined to accept this as final, and are disposed to wait for further reports saying that information as to the condition of affrirs in California has proved in the past to be so uncertain that it is impossible to form anything like a correct idea of the situation from the reports now being issued from that source. Several of the prominent receivers of California fruits have stated that the views expressed by growers and curers early in the season are likely to do more to hurt the trade in California fruits in both home and export markets, than all of the statements, pro and con, that may be made by Eastern handlers.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

THE RUN OF SALMON.

Advices received by brokers in Montreal this week continue as conflicting as ever regarding the run of salmon on the Coast. It is undoubted that in some of the northern rivers the catch will be smaller than last year. Whether this will be the case generally is extremely uncertain. For instance, one advice this week stated that the run on the Fraser would be smaller, and another received the same day that it would be larger.

HOW TOMATOES ARE PRESERVED IN ITALY.

IN every house and cottage the preserving of tomatoes is carried on. Terraces, balconies, and even the flat roofs of the houses, are half covered with plates containing the deep-red substance. After gathering, the tomatoes intended for preserve are spread out for some hours in the sun till the skin has somewhat shrunk. They are then passed through a sieve so that they may be freed both seeds and skins. As they contain a large proportion of water, the substance which has been passed through the sieve must be hung in bags, from which the water exudes, and soon a pool of dirty-looking water is formed beneath each bag. Strange to say, it is in no way tinged with red. The mixture which remains in the bags has the consistency of a very thick paste. It is then salted, the proportion being a little less than an ounce of salt to a pound of preserve. The process now requires that it should be spread on flat plates, exposed to the sun, and stirred from time to time with a spoon, so that the upper part may not form a crust, while underneath it remains soft. It is a picturesque sight when the women are to be seen flitting about their roofs and terraces, attending to their deep red preserve, their colored handkerchiefs flung on their heads to screen them from the rays of the burning sun when it is at its fiercest. In the evening the contents of the various plates are taken in and stirred up together, for if moistened by the night dew the whole would be spoiled. After being exposed to the sun for seven or eight days, the same process being repeated each day, the preserve is finished and placed in jars for winter use.

Though it is used by all classes of persons, it is more necessary to the poor than to the rich, for the latter can make use of the fresh tomatoes preserved in tins. Tomatoes may be tinned whole, as we know from those usually imported into England from America. But in Italy the fruit is usually passed through a sieve, the pulp being then placed in tins, which are immediately soldered down and then put into boiling water for five minutes. The original flavor is thus retained. The cost of a small tin is half a franc, so it is, as a rule, beyond the means of the poor. The price of the preserve is seldom more than 8d. a pound, and a little of it goes very far; but those who are thrifty take care to make it for themselves, the cost then being absolutely insignificant. It is chiefly used by them for flavoring their macaroni in the winter; in fact, there are very few dishes which are not improved by a little tomato preserve, and it finds favor in all classes.—Chambers' Journal.

SAMPLING.

SAMPLING by consumers is a practice much complained of in retail circles, notwithstanding that some of the department stores invite the public to taste freely of the food products on their shelves, but nowhere is the practice more general or its effects more serious than in the larger wholesale salesrooms. Imagine the consequences where a score or more boys are employed, when they and a hundred salesmen, besides numerous customers, are sampling, sampling, sampling, more or less all day long, the dried fruits, nuts, coffee berries and rice suffering the most. Sometimes goods are thus attacked when their wholesomeness is a matter of doubt. Recently one of the younger clerks in a certain wholesale house appeared in the salesroom munching a white powder. A buyer idly asked him what it was. The clerk professed ignorance, but told where he had procured it. The buyer's face immediately took on an alarmed look : "Great Scott ! man," he cried, "that's sugar of milk ; it's just like sugar of lead !" Spitting out the remains of the powder, the clerk made for the door, out of which he shot and flew to a near-by hospital at a gait that would have done credit to a speedy ball-player trying for first base on a short hit. Arriving there he gasped out an appeal for help, explaining that he had swallowed sugar of milk, but he was at once satisfied when informed that he could safely browse on the stuff, it being merely the raw material of baby food.

Samplers in retail grocers' stores chiefly attack the fresh fruits, and no doubt in the aggregate inflict considerable loss, without corresponding benefit in increased sales. The judicious distribution of samples of prepared coffee, tea, flour or other staple among visitors to the store almost always works well, and it is a good plan to open a jar of pickles or jam occasionally, so that customers can help themselves whenever it is desired to introduce new brands of such goods.—Merchants' Review.

GEN. SHERIDAN'S INTERPRETER.

While visiting the Spokanes, Gen. Philip Sheridan related to the Indians, through an Indian interpreter, the wonders of the railroad, and waited to see what effect the revelation would have upon them.

"What do they say?" he asked the interpreter.

"They say they don't believe it."

Sheridan then described the steamboat, and the interpreter repeated this.

"What do they say to that?" the General again asked, seeing the Indians' faces all impassive.

"They say they don't believe that, either."

Then the General gave an account of the telephone, and told how a man, at the end of the long wire, talked to a man on the other end of it. The interpreter remained silent.

"Well," said the General, "why don't you tell them that story?"

"Because I don't believe it myself," answered the interpreter. — Our Dumb Animals.

AN UNBUSINESSLIKE POLICY.

THE people of the United States have the reputation of being sharp business men. And the reputation is not unwarranted. But of late years, at any rate, it has applied only to their manner of dealing with one another. In regard to the arts of international trade they appear to be merely tyros.

Large as is the population of the United States, and great and varied as are the possibilities of that country, it is more or less dependent upon international trade for its development. And that need is becoming more pronounced as the nation grows older.

Back a decade or two, when unsettled portions of the country were being settled, the dependence upon the export branch of trade was necessarily much less than it is at present. Now the country is what might be termed settled : at least, there are no arable lands of any importance to be opened up.

In the meantime the manufacturing industries have developed in a manner unparalleled in history. But they have developed at such a rate that the home market has been glutted to an enormous extent for some years. And it is getting worse.

According to the last census, the products manufactured in the United States were valued at over ten billions of dollars. And a recent statistician, an American, by the way, has averred that as far back as January 1, 1893, the amount of manufactured goods in the United States for which no customers could be found was over three and a quarter billion dollars' worth, or more than 30 per cent. of the total output of 1891, the year of the last census.

These figures in regard to the unsold goods may not be even approximately correct. But there is no question in the minds of those who are at all conversant with trade matters that the factories of the United States are over-producing to an enormous extent.

We, in Canada, know it from personal experience. We know that during the past few years the United States has been flooding this market with its manufactured products. But Canada is not the only country which our neighbors have been using as a dumping ground. Into Great Britain have been sent lines of manufactured goods which five years ago would not have even been thought possible. Other countries have had a similar experience, only in a lesser degree.

In an attempt to relieve themselves of the uncomfortable excess of manufactures, the business men of the United States have been heroically engaged for some time. With this object in view they have organized associations, sent out agents to foreign countries, and organized excursions of buyers from foreign countries to the United States. Only this very month has been witnessed an excursion of business men from Central and South America ; and these guests have been taken from one end of the United States to the other and feasted and entertained.

But just as the need of a foreign market for the surplus manufactures of the United States increased so developed the ludicrous desire for hostile tariff legislation, the climax of which is to be seen in the Dingley law which received the approval of President McKinley on Saturday last.

The United States is to-day in the position of a man who, while holding in one hand a commodity which he desires to sell to another man, has in the other a sword with which he proposes to cut off the hand of the customer the moment it is extended in an offer to sell him some of his products.

As a result of this hostile and unbusinesslike policy the United States is fast becoming an Ishmaelite : its hand is against every nation and every nation's hand against it. Witness the attitude of Germany, Austria-Hungary, Japan and other nations, let alone ourselves, whom the United States appears to have taken special pains to irritate.

If a nation desires to sell it must be willing to buy. Business is still barter. And nations who have goods to sell must, like individuals, study to earn the good-will, and not the ill-will, of those whose custom they are anxious to secure.

If a merchant's stand is poor it is only natural he should fall.

IT IS THE BEST WHO SUCCEED.

IT is only the best who climb to the top in business to-day. And it is demanded that the best of to-day shall be a great deal better than were those who were thus termed yesterday. This is in keeping with the spirit of the times, which demands a higher standard of qualification for everything—except, perhaps, politics.

Best is not the gift of genius. It is the product of the will. Everyone, therefore, who has the will can earn a place in the ranks of the best.

Of course, the man who has no adaptation whatever for business can hardly be expected to qualify high for that which Nature never intended him. We are presuming that there is adaptation.

The foundation of success in whatsoever avocation a man may engage is education.

There is, first of all, the knowledge to be acquired that will enable him to read, write and figure. And then there are the elementary lessons in the business, or any other calling in which he engages, to be mastered.

The great majority of the failures in business to-day are due to the fact that there are so many engaged in it who have had no training for it. And the trouble is that a good many of those thus situated know everything. They know so much that they do not even require a trade paper.

In the sphere which it has pleased themselves to call themselves they twirl around for a while and twirl out of it again, sadder if not wiser men.

Training is needed for the shop every bit as much as it is for the bar or the surgery, and the sooner this is recognized the sooner will there be a better class of business men and a healthier business done.

It is the practical, not the theoretical, advertising which pays.

THE DINGLEY TARIFF AND CANADA.

THE Dingley tariff now lives and moves, President McKinley, by the stroke of his pen, having on Saturday last given it its being. The object of the Act, as set forth in the preamble, is to provide revenue for the Government and to encourage the industries of the United States.

If a high tariff will secure the desideratum there does not seem to be much question as to the result. According to the Senate Committee's estimate, the revenue, under the new tariff, will be $176,884,000 for the current fiscal year. Next year, with improved trade, the amount is expected by some authorities to be $220,000,000, leaving a surplus of $26,000,000.

Nothing is said in the preamble of the bill in regard to the commercial war which it inaugurates against other nations. One has to turn to the speeches of Congressmen for that. A blow has been aimed at Canada, at any rate; the increased duties which have been put on certain articles proves it, no matter what United States politicians may assert to the contrary. Canada, for instance, is the country of the white pine, and this article has been removed from the free list and made dutiable at $2 per thousand feet. Then there is coal, lead ore, hay, potatoes, horses, eggs, wood pulp and a good many other articles, on all of which the duty has been increased, in some instances enormously. Here are a few of the articles in the new tariff in which Canada is most interested :

	New Tariff	Old Tariff
Lead contained in silver ores	1½c. per lb.	¾c. per lb.
Boards of hemlock, white pine, etc.	$2 per M. feet	Free
Horses	$30 per head	20 per cent.
Eggs	5c. per dozen	3c. per dozen
Hay	$4 per ton	$2 per ton
Potatoes	25c. per bushel	15c. per bushel
Wool, class 1	11c. per lb.	Free
" " 2	12c. "	Free
" " 3, valued at not more than 12c.	4c. per lb.	Free
Wool, class 3, valued at more than 12c.	7c. per lb.	Free
Wood pulp, mechanically ground	1-12c. per lb.	10 per cent.
Coal, bituminous	67c. per ton	40c. per ton
Hides of cattle	15 per cent.	Free

Logs and round unmanufactured timber, including unground pulp-wood, are free. Upon Canada our neighbors are practically dependent for pine logs and pulp-wood; but instead of acting graciously on account thereof, they impose a high tariff upon these when advanced a stage from their raw condition. It is possible an export duty on logs and pulp-wood may put an end to their ungraciousness, or at least bring them to their senses.

Canada has every desire for closer trade relations with the United States. Upon half a dozen distinct occasions we have sent representatives to Washington as an evidence of good faith on our part; but with what result we are all acquainted. We believe that this desire is reciprocated by the great majority of the business and better classes across the border, but unfortunately there is in United States politics a predominating influence which prefers to follow a policy quite to the contrary.

We are not without hopes of a better day dawning. The business men of the United States, as well as of Canada, are gradually awakening to the fact that they are being made the lick-spittles of party politicians.

By-and-bye when a sufficient number of them awake, business principles, and not party exigencies, will prevail in both the Congress of the United States and in the Parliament of the Dominion.

In the meantime Canadians can gain nothing by turning their face towards the United States. On the contrary they must lose by so doing. The business for us to be about is that of pushing trade with the British Empire.

At any rate our trade with the United States has been gradually getting more of a one sided affair : That country's exports to Canada have for years been increasing, while ours to it have been practically stationary. In 1891 our exports to the United States were $41,138,695, and our imports from that country $53,685,657. In 1896 the figures were $44,448,410 and $58,574,024. Away back in 1882 we sold more to the United States than we do now, while the latter country has increased her sales to Canada by about ten million dollars since that year.

Of our total exports in 1896 nearly 60 per cent. was to the British Empire and less than 30 per cent. to the United States. Of our exports to the British Empire over 54 per cent. was to the Motherland alone. It is not strange in view of these facts that Canadians are not as much concerned about the going into operation of the Dingley tariff as they were seven years ago the McKinley tariff.

RAW SUGAR VERY EASY.

A FEATURE of the sugar situation lately has been the continued weakness of the market for the raw material. Prices abroad on this have declined during the past two weeks from 3d. to 4½d. and are now at the lowest point ever known in the history of the trade. This is due to the lack of speculation in futures and the prospects of an unusually large yield of beet this season. This easiness abroad on the crude has had no influence whatever on the range in the refined article either in Canada or the United States or on the raw material either at New York, for that matter, as prices have been fully maintained on crystals, with an upward tendency. For fair sized lots 3⅝ to 3¾c. have been asked while granulated there is firmly held at $4.59 per 100 lbs nett. The situation at the local refineries in Montreal is unchanged.

Demand from jobbers continues quite brisk, which emphasizes the claim made some time ago in these columns that the stocks of refined, both granulated and yellows, in second and third hands throughout the country were allowed to run down much lower than usual. Refiners, in fact, have all the orders they can attend to at present, as the most of them stipulate for prompt shipment. Car lots of granulated are held firm at 4c. at the refinery and yellows 3¼ to 3¾c.

Co-operation is not reform but the former is essential to securing the other.

REDUCTION IN PAPER BAGS.

For some time, as intimated in former issues, the paper bag trade in Canada was not in a satisfactory condition owing to the cutting of prices among the manufacturers.

Matters instead of being better are now rather worse, for one manufacturer, and an important one, too, is understood to have made a further reduction of about 5 per cent. in prices in order to meet the figures of certain of his competitors.

As paper-bag making has for some time not been returning adequate profits to those engaged in it, the opinion obtains among some with whom THE CANADIAN GROCER has conversed that this last reduction in price will eventually induce the remedy.

J. W. LANG & CO. IN TROUBLE.

THE wholesale grocery and liquor house of J. W. Lang & Co., Church and Front streets, Toronto, has been the subject of some interest in both commercial and legal circles during the past few days.

On Monday the unexpected information was given out that the business had been disposed of to Mr. F. J. Lumsden, who for some years has been the firm's chief accountant. But a still greater surprise came when it was learned that Mr. Lumsden had given a chattel mortgage for $20,000 on the stock to Mr. T. H. Steele, an Orillia lumber dealer.

Lang & Co. have been looked upon as being fairly healthy financially, but when it became known that the business had been sold and the stock subsequently covered by a chattel mortgage the creditors naturally became a little nervous, which was not at all mollified when efforts made to find Mr. Lang were futile.

On Monday afternoon an informal meeting of the creditors was held, and on Tuesday a writ for $2,378 was issued by the Canada Sugar Refining Co. This was argued before Justice MacMahon on Wednesday. An affidavit was put in from Mr. Lang, in which he stated that he had not been concealing himself from his creditors with fraudulent intent, and, except when he had been out of the city on business, was in an office in his former warehouse preparing a statement for his creditors. The affidavit also further set forth that Mr. Lang believed he was able to pay 100 cents on the dollar. The judge, however, issued an order for speedy judgment.

The Standard Bank holds $80,000 of customers' paper, and the firm's total liabilities of all kinds are said to be about $200,000, of which about $25,000 are to the trade, but in the absence of an official statement this can only be taken for what it is worth.

Numbered among the creditors are both the sugar refineries at Montreal and four or five of the leading wholesale grocers in Toronto.

THE NEW CANADIAN TARIFF.

As promised some time ago, we this issue reproduce, in alphabetical order, the new tariff of the Dominion, which contains the changes as finally made by Parliament. The commencement of it will be found on page 17.

Business men should take particular pains to preserve this issue of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

A SENSATIONAL FAILURE.

THE failure of the John Eaton Co., Limited, has developed sensational features which promise to be the subject of more than the usual nine days' talk. The character of the statement is sufficient in itself to create a sensation in business circles, but the arrest of three of the members of the company on a charge of defrauding their creditors is more so.

The fire which destroyed the company's place of business together with the stock took place on May 20th last. A few days after the fire a notice was issued to the effect that the company would rebuild, continue in business and pay one hundred cents on the dollar. The loss by the fire was placed by the company at $289,233.57, but all but $63,603 of this was covered by insurance. There was, therefore, some ground for the gratifying statement which the company made in regard to the payment of its liabilities.

Instead, however, of securing one hundred cents on the dollar the creditors may consider themselves lucky if they get 10 cents on the dollar, for it was revealed at the meeting of the creditors a few days ago that to meet the liabilities of $136,178.37 to unsecured creditors there were only available assets to the amount of $34,350.29, leaving a deficiency of $101,828.08. All the insurance policies for $225,540 and hypothecated goods valued at $9,986 had been handed over to the Bank of Toronto as security for a claim of $207,000.

Ranking as creditors to nearly the amount of $40,000 are the members of the firm and their immediate relatives, but there are other features which do not reflect creditably upon the members of the company.

At a meeting held on June 2 they voted each other, for alleged services, sums aggregating $8,000, while at another meeting the officers were authorized to pledge all the assets still unpledged. At least some of the money raised on the hypothecated goods appears to have been divided among the members of the company.

The authorized capital of the company was $100,000 in 5,000 shares of $20 each. The shareholders, with the amount subscribed and paid by each, were: R. Baker, Toronto, manager—amount subscribed, $200; amount still unpaid, $200. John Eaton, Toronto, manager—amount subscribed, $600; amount still unpaid, $540. J. H. McConnell, Toronto—amount subscribed, $20; amount still unpaid, $20. G. Noble, law student—amount subscribed, $20; amount still unpaid, $18. H. E. Ridley, solicitor—amount subscribed, $20; amount still unpaid, $18. Fully paid up: Boyce Thompson, merchant—amount subscribed, $30,000. T. Thompson, capitalist—amount subscribed, $10,000. T. C. Thompson, merchant—amount subscribed, $5,000. W. A. Thompson, merchant—amount subscribed, $35,000. Harton Walker, agent—amount subscribed, $1,100; amount still unpaid, $550. H. K. Bowden, —amount subscribed, $20; amount still unpaid, $20.

A MERCHANT FINED FOR LYING.

A lying advertiser ought to be punished. And it ought to be done now and not in the hereafter.

The difference between the ordinary liar and the advertising liar is this: The former may deceive, but there it usually ends; the latter not only deceives but he robs. That is why he should be punished while in the flesh.

In this country we have no laws against the liar of the advertising type. Probably we are too advanced in civilization. There is one country, however, which has. Tha country is Germany.

A short time ago a merchant in one of the towns there advertised that his "entire stock consisted of the finest quality of brand new goods, and that it was utterly impossible for any house in town to come up to the price or quality of goods offered."

Another merchant in the town was of a dubious turn of mind. Perhaps he had "been there himself." He purchased some of the alleged extraordinary quality goods. And so confirmed was he in his doubts that he issued an information against his competitor, with the result that the latter had to pay a fine and shoulder all the costs.

But it pays to tell the truth, even where there is no law against untruthful advertising.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, July 29, 1897.

GROCERIES.

IN many lines during the past week business has materially improved. This is particularly noticeable in sugar, both in yellow and granulated varieties, but more especially in the former brands. Canned goods are receiving more attention, and new packs are weekly being expected for shipment. Continued advices in regard to the outlook for dried fruits, etc., show that there will be no famine in this line, but that the crops will likely be larger than they were last year. The prices on imported rices and sagos have advanced. English prices show in some cases an advance of two shillings. Retail prices, however, are not materially altered. Cheap fruit, and particularly raspberries, have had an enormous effect on the consumption of a great many different lines of groceries.

CANNED GOODS.

Business in canned goods has noticeably improved during the week. The new pack promises to be in large demand, as the new goods now in are being ordered freely. Tomatoes are daily becoming scarcer and the lowest price at which they are now obtainable is 85 cents. By the time of the arrivals of the new tomatoes the stock will likely be exhausted. In canned salmon there have been no further developments during the last two weeks; canners on the Coast still do not quote for futures, so that it is to be inferred that they themselves cannot predict the results of the various things that are tending to restrain a large pack. Gallon apples are rapidly advancing in price, the price now ranging from $1.50 to $1.60 a dozen. For present delivery the market in canned salmon is firm. Orders for cherries are now being taken for shipment on August 1. Dealers claim to have had a satisfactory trade so far. Peas are not on the market yet. Corn is firm and strawberries are selling well. Canned beefs are firm. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 85c.; corn, 55 to 75c.; peas, 75c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.50 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.50 to $1.60, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $2 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 70 to 95c.; gallons, $1.50 to $1.60; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; cohoes, $1.10 to $1.25; canned mackerel, $1.20 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.70; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.25 to $1.35; 2's, $2.30 to $2.45; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

The situation in coffees has not materially changed during the last two weeks. The only thing worthy of notice is that Rios are rather firmer. Jobbers quote green in bags as follows: Rio, 9½ to 13c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

The syrup market is still quiet and featureless. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

Molasses is dull and without feature. We quote: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGARS.

Dealers here report an active trade in sugar this week. This is most likely due to the preserving and pickling season. So far retailers have been able to supply the demand from their own stocks, as quite a few of them purchased heavily before the tariff went into effect, but now this stock has to be replenished. A good many orders for carload lots are coming in. Yellows, too, are moving freely. There has been no alteration in prices, however. We quote for Toronto as follows: Granulated—St. Lawrence and Redpath's, 4 7-16c. for single barrel lots and 4⅜c. for 5-barrel lots; Acadia, 4⅜c. for single barrel lots, and

SPICES.

The heavy orders noted last week continue to flow in freely. Not only are duplicate orders arriving, but large orders are frequently received. We quote as follows: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 10c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 17c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

Trade continues to be quiet and featureless. The prices for the new crop of Tarragona almonds are not yet fixed. According to advices the crop promises to be large everywhere, and this has been largely discounted as regards shippers' ideas of price, by some shippers even too largely. If anything, prices will be higher than those now looked for. We quote as follows: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 18 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

The trade in rice continues to have a steady volume. Although we quote no changes, the dealers say that polished Patna rice has advanced in England in some cases to the extent of two shillings. What effect the change is going to have here cannot as yet be exactly estimated. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¼c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

TEAS.

The samples of Japan teas, which we mentioned last week as being on the way here, have arrived, and on being tested have shown good drawing qualities, and have proved this season's shipments as fully equal to those of last year. Dealers say that Ceylon and India teas are being largely enquired for, and it is reasonably certain that this year these brands will, to a great extent, push the China brands out of the market. Some shipments of Japan teas are coming in, and the dealers receiving them quote them at 18 to 22c. The trade in teas is as yet quiet. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The indications are now that not a pound of old fruit will be on the market when the new shipments arrive, and, as a consequence, the prices of the first two or three arrivals will be high. Reports now are to the effect that the currant crop is not going to be as large as was expected. Some advices say that the damage by rain will affect both quality and price. However, the letters received are conflicting, and the true condition of the crop cannot be guaranteed till after the drying season is past. Advice from Hancock & Wood, Patras, is to the effect that complaints are daily becoming louder of the damage done by the peronosporos, but in some districts the malady has not appeared. They express the hope that plenty of good currants will be found to supply all demand. We quote as follows: Provincials, 5½ to 5⅜c. in bbls.; ditto, half-bbls., 5½ to 5⅝c.; fine Filiatras, in bbls., 5⅝ to 5¾c.; do., half-bbls., 5⅝ to 5¾c.; Patras, 5⅞ to 6⅛c. in bbls., 5⅞ to 6⅛c. in half-bbls., and 6⅛ to 6¼c. in cases; Vostizzas, cases, 7 to 8c.

Latest advices in regard to the crop of Valencia raisins give a very satisfactory account, and if rain does not fall during the drying season a good crop and good fruit are assured. The first Valencias were shipped on the Soto, via Liverpool, on the 23rd July, and will arrive here about the 25th August. We quote: Off-stalk, 4¾ to 5½c.; fine off-stalk, 5½ to 6c.; selected, 6 to 6½c.; layers, 6½ to 7c.

In regard to Sultana raisins, a letter from C. Whittall & Co., Smyrna, gives an idea of the present outlook. They report that appearances now are the cause of hopes for a satisfactory yield. If the weather proves favorable during the drying season the quality also should be fine. They say, however, that there are reports of some vines shedding their fruit. With favorable conditions henceforward the crop will exceed last year's 38,000 tons. At present the local demand is steady, and prices are firm.

A few transactions in California loose muscatel raisins are reported, but business on the whole is dull. We quote: 3-crown, 7¼c.; 4-crown, 8 to 8¼c.

Advices from C. Whittall & Co., Smyrna, in regard to figs, are to the effect that the outlook is favorable. The weather has improved, and cool and dry winds have developed the fruit, and soundness is now assured. Present estimates are 70,000 to 75,000 loads, against 67,000 loads in '96. Figures for August and September shipment are now to be had. We quote spot goods. 10 oz., 7½c.; 10 lb., 9 to 10c.; 18 lb., 10 to 12c.; 28 lb., 11 to 13c.; taps, 3¼ to 3½c. net; natural, 4½c. in bags, and 6 to 6½c. in boxes.

The outlook for California apricots is good, and prices will likely be lower this year. As yet trade is quiet. We quote: Peaches, 7 to 10½c. per lb., according to quality; apricots, 6½ to 15c.; pears, 5½ to 10½c.; egg plums, 5½ to 11c.; silver prunes, 8½ to 13½c.

The prune trade is still very quiet, owing to the abundance of fresh fruits. Advices from Trieste re Turkish prunes advise prospects of a good crop. The outlook for California prunes is also good, and there is a probability that this year's brand will be cheaper. We quote: Bosnias, U's (110 to 113 half kilo), 6 to 6½c.; C's (85 to 90 half kilo), 7 to 7½c. per lb. California, 90 to 100's, 6½c. per lb.; 70 to 80's, 7½c.; 60 to 70's, 7½ to 8c.; 50 to 60's, 8 to 8½c.; 40 to 50's, 9½ to 10½c.; 30 to 40's, 12½ to 13c.; "Ruby" prunes, 7½ to 8c.; French, 4½ to 5c.

Dates are neglected. We quote: 5½ to 6c. for Hallowee and 5 to 5¼c. for Kadrowee.

GREEN FRUITS.

Lemons are not moving as briskly as they were, hot weather being necessary to create a heavy demand. During the week we have seen a few pickling onions on the market, but there were only a few. Nearly all fruit has dropped a few cents in price this week. Cabbage is becoming more plentiful and the demand is good. Mississippi tomatoes have been replaced by those from Illinois, and the Canadian variety will soon be in the dealers' hands. Watermelons are coming in freely and are going out just as freely. Cherries, raspberries and currants have been the principal features during the week. The crop of raspberries has been exceedingly large this year and the prices ranged low accordingly. Cherries have been selling at low prices and the quantity coming in has been larger than was at one time anticipated. Some shipments of apples from Chicago arrived this week. California fruit, especially pears, has an active demand. Oranges—Sorrentos, 200's and 300's, $4.25 to $4.50 per box; 180's, $2.75 to $3, three-quarter boxes. Lemons, $5 to $5.50 per case. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Onions, 2½ to 2¾c. per lb. for Egyptians. Bananas, $1 to $1.50. New cabbage, $1 to $1.25 per bbl. Illinois tomatoes, 80 to 90c. per case of 4 baskets. Watermelons, 22 to 35c. California peaches, $1.60 to $1.80 per box; Canadian gooseberries, 30 to 50c. per 12-quart basket; Canadian cherries, 50 to 75c. per basket; red currants, 50 to 60c. per basket; California plums, $1.50 to $1.90 box; California pears, $2.25 to $2.50 per box; muskmelons, $2 to $2.50 per crate of 2 doz.; cucumbers, 35 to 45c. per 12-quart basket; black raspberries, 5c. per quart; red do., 5c. per quart; black currants, 75c. to $1; harvest apples, $2.50 to $3.50 per barrel; Canadian tomatoes, 90c. to $1.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—The receipts of butter continue to show the effects of the hot weather. Many of the tubs in which the quality of the butter has been uniform are, when they arrive, off flavor on the top. Some butter that has recently come forward was practically in oil when received. Some of the country merchants do not seem to have acquainted themselves with the fact that the railways have placed refrigerator cars on the different lines. This service has been a great boon to a number of shippers who have availed themselves of it. The price of dairy butter is easy and very little trading is being done. Creamery is in good demand and exporters are buyers. There is no quotable change in price. We quote: Dairy—Tub, 12c. for best, and others, 7 to 9c.; pound prints, 11 to 13c. Creamery—Tubs, 16½ to 17½c.; prints, 17 to 18½c.

Are manufactured in Owen Sound.
They are "Graham Crackers" pure and grand,
McLauchlan's name's on every brand.

J. McLAUCHLAN & SONS,

Biscuit Manufacturers, - Owen Sound, Ont.

CHEESE—A very little light trading business is reported for this week. Exporters are buying sparingly, and are also particular as to quality. In some factories, where no ice has been provided, the heat has had a considerable effect on quality, and cheese has had to be rejected from some of these factories. Prices are easy at about 7½ to 7⅞c. and selling at 8½ to 8¾c.

SALT.

Trade is brisk. The hot weather has caused an increased demand in all lines. Prices are unchanged. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 60c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl. and 65c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

FISH.

The trade in fish has continued of a steady nature all week. The weather has not been so warm and the consumption has increased a little. We quote: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 6½c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

PROVISIONS.

There is still another advance in live hogs, $6 now being paid on the Toronto market. This makes the feeling in provisions very firm and higher prices prevail. An advance in some lines, particularly in heavier class of meats, which are in light supply, is quoted. The majority of the light lean cuts are now used for export, Canadian bacon being in great favor at present and at a premium.

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long clear bacon, 7½c. for carload lots, and 7¾ to 8c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 8¾c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 11½ to 12c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; hams, large, 11 to 11½c.; 12 to 12½c. for small and 12c. for medium; shoulder hams, 9c.; backs, 11 to 11½c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD—Pure Canadian, tierces, 5¾c.; tubs, 6 to 6¼c.; pails, 6¼ to 6½c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $13 to $13.50; Canadian short-cut, $16; clear shoulder mess, $12.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—We quote: Red wheat, 72c.; white, 73c.; oats, 22½ to 23½c.; peas, 45 to 47c.

FLOUR—Trade is fair. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $4.35; Manitoba strong bakers', $3.85; Ontario patents, $3.90 to $4.30; straight roller, $3.30 to $3.40, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—Trade is moderate. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.10 in bags and $3.20 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.60 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.30 to $2.40; split peas, $3 to $3.25; pot barley, $3 to $3.25.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—The quantity coming forward is not liberal, but sometimes we hear of insufficient supplies. The consumptive demand is just fair, some say it is better than it has been for years at this season. We quote 9 to 10c.

POTATOES—The supply of new potatoes has become exhausted, and the variety coming forward now is inferior. Dealers are now paying 75c. per bush. willingly and selling at 90c. per bush. Old potatoes are 20c. by the carload and 30c. a bag out of store.

HONEY—The trade in new light clover honey is active. Buckwheat is dull at about

The time is drawing near for the orders for fall stocks in oils to come in. The trade in lubricating oil is fully up to the average. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14½c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

The first arrivals of Japan teas have shown good quality.

J. A. Maclean has lately increased his cold storage facilities.

Dry salted meats have advanced ¼c. a lb., owing to the high value of live hogs.

A cable to Mr. E. Fielding from Denia, Spain, quotes fine off-stalk and selected 1s. 6d. lower for immediate shipment.

The Toronto Fruit Auction Market is receiving several cars of California fruit every two weeks and is selling them by auction.

If retailers find that they are not having their orders filled as quickly as usual by the Canadian Specialty Co. they may attribute it to repairs being made in their office.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. say that the sale of dairy butter so far this season has not been as active as past seasons. They are, however, still buying dairy, as they know that it can be better cared for in their refrigerator than in a country store. They prefer buying from the dealers who make regular shipments every week or two.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, July 29, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE week has not developed any radical change in the local situation of the grocery market. There is a fair trade doing in sugar both from first and second hands, and prices are steady here despite the pronounced easiness in raws in Europe. Molasses continue much as they were, while advices on tea from Japan are of a firmer nature and have given holders more confidence in the future. There has been no fresh news regarding dried fruit except some quotations on new crop currants for early shipment. Raisins furnished nothing either from Valencia or California. Canned goods remain much as they were.

SUGAR.

Despite continued easiness in raw material in Europe, prices there having touched the record low price, there is no symptom of decline either in New York or Canada, values both here and in the States ruling steady. Demand for refined on spot is good for all grades, from granulated to cheap yellows, an active business being transacted from second as well as from refiners' hands. Stocks in both these connections are light. We quote: Granulated steady, at 4⅛c. for 1 to 9 barrels and 4 1-16c. for 10 barrels and over, with yellows ranging from 3⅜ to 3¾c., as to quality.

SYRUPS.

There has been no change in syrups, demand continuing slow at 1⅜ to 1⅞c. per lb., as to grade.

MOLASSES.

There has been no new feature in the molasses market. Demand has been of a fair character, and quite a few good-sized lots have left first hands during the week on the basis of 20 to 21c. for Barbadoes ex wharf. In a jobbing way values are steady at 22 to 23c. for Barbadoes and Porto Rico, 29c. for fancy, 25c. for choice and 22c. for prime.

RICE.

There is a fair demand for rice, and the tone of the market is distinctly steady. We quote: Crystal Japan, $4.50 to $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $4.50 to $5; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

There has been a fair jobbing inquiry for spices. We quote as follows: Black pepper, 9c.; pure white, 14 to 17c.; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

Business in coffee remains quiet, and there is absolutely nothing to report. We quote: Maracaibo, 16 to 19c.; Santos, 12 to 15c.; Rio, 12 to 16c.; Mocha, 24c., and Java, 25c.

TEAS.

Advices regarding tea from Japan have been of a much firmer character, and holders of stock here and elsewhere on this continent believe that the situation will develop more steadiness as time passes. There was quite a fair enquiry this week for new crop Japan teas from first hands to jobbers, individual agents reporting sales of 500 packages up at a range of 16 to 20c. We quote as follows: Young Hysons, 13 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 12 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 16½ to 20c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

CANNED GOODS.

There has been little to report in canned goods during the week, business continuing quiet. Advices regarding salmon from the Coast are of a very conflicting character. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80c.; corn, 50 to 80c.; peas, 80c.; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 85 to 90c.; gallons, $1.55 to $1.65; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.40 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.35; "Lion," $1.37½ to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.30, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

There has been nothing additional to report in connection with Valencia raisins since last week. Spot prices are purely nominal at 4¼c. off-stalk, 4¾c. fine do., 5½ to 6c. selected, and 6¼ to 6½c. for layers.

The currant market is steady and first offers were made this week as follows: Vostizzas, 22s.; Patras, 18s., and Provincials, 15 to 16s., c.i.f. We quote the spot range

Cottams Seed . .

The fact that this brand is protected by six patents may not directly interest grocers, though it affects them materially. It explains why no other seed can be as good, and why, for birds, Cottams is double the value of any other. You want to sell the best. We want you to be in possession of the facts. Truth is bound to win.

HONEST BIRD FOOD cannot allow the profit of the other kind, but it pays better in the end. Customers find birds easier to keep. They don't have to buy a bird every few months. They keep more birds. They buy more seed. The grocer makes up on extra sales the legitimate reduction of profit. Makes it up twenty times over. And wonders what becomes of all the Cottams Seed he sells.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

on old crop 4 to 4¾c., as to quality and package.

California raisins have furnished nothing new during the past week. Prices on spot are nominal at 6¼ to 6¾c. for 2-crown; 7 to 7½c., for 3-crown, and 8 to 8¼c. for 4-crown.

Prunes are steady and unchanged and the same can be said of dates.

NUTS.

Business in these continues without special feature. We quote: Grenoble walnuts, 10 to 11c.; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; and cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100.

DRIED APPLES.

Remain quiet at 2 to 2½c., with evaporated 3¾ to 4¼c.

GREEN FRUIT.

There have been heavy receipts of both domestic and California fruit during the week, but prices generally are pretty steady. Lemons ruled strong owing to the warm weather, while oranges, though quiet, were steady. We quote as follows: Valencia oranges, $6 per case; bloods, $2.50 to $3 per half-box, and Messinas, $3 to $3.50 per box; lemons, $3.75 to $4.50 per box for choice, and $2.75 to $3.50 for common; bananas, $1.25 to $1.65 per bunch; Canadian cherries, 40 to 75c. per basket; apricots, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; California peaches, $1 to $1.25 per box; do plums, $1.25 per box; pineapples, 10c. each; Canadian strawberries, 7 to 10c.; raspberries, 5½ to 10c.; blueberries, $1 per box. Egyptian onions, 4c. per lb., and Bermuda ditto, 3c. per lb., and $3 per crate.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—There continues to be a good demand for eggs, and the market is fairly active and firm, with no change in prices to note. Selected near-by stock sold at 10½ to 11c.; ordinary No. 1 at 9 to 9½c., and No. 2 at 8 to 8½c. per dozen.

MAPLE PRODUCT—In maple product there is no improvement, sales being extremely slow. We quote: Maple syrup, 4¾ to 5c. per lb., and 45 to 55c. per tin; sugar, 6 to 6½c. per lb.

HONEY — The demand for honey is exceedingly slow and prices are nominal. White clover comb is offering at 10c., and dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c., and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

BEANS — Beans continue quiet, with car lots offering at 55 to 60c., and small lots at 65 to 70c.

PROVISIONS.

A fairly active business was done in provisions, and the tone of the market is firm for all lines. We quote as follows: Canadian pork, $14.50 to $15 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, at 6¾ to 7¼c., and compound refined at 5¼ to 5½c. per lb.; hams, 11 to 13c., and bacon, 11 to 12c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

In flour millers reported business active, there being a good demand from local and country buyers at firm prices. There was also considerable enquiry from abroad for Manitoba grades, but no sales were effected, as bids were not quite up to the mark. In Ontario brands dealers reported trade quiet. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $4 to $4.25; straight rollers, $3.65 to $3.80, and in bags, $1.75 to $1.85; best Manitoba strong bakers', $4; second do., $3.50, and low grades, $1.90; Hungarian patents, $4.30 to $4.40.

The demand for feed is good, but the supply of Manitoba grades is small and values are firm at $13 to $13.50 for bran, and at $14 to $14.50 for shorts per ton, including bags.

Oatmeal has ruled easier, being quiet and of a jobbing character. Rolled oats are quoted at $3.65 to $3.75 per barrel, $1.75 to $1.80 per bag; standard, $3.50 to $3.60 per barrel, and $1.70 to $1.75 per bag.

BALED HAY.

With increased receipts there has been a decline in baled hay of fully $1 per ton. We quote: No. 1, $12, and No. 2, $10.50.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

The cheese market continues to boom along in the same old groove, high prices on this side in the face of little response from the other. If all accounts are to be believed, however, the nominal prices paid at the wharf Monday morning do not represent the actual basis on which the cheese changed hands. Altogether, from 7,000 to 8,000 boxes were sold. The quality of the great bulk of the offerings was anything but desirable, as it was the output of the hot spell ten days ago, when the thermometer was at boiling point. Nominally the range was 7⅛ to 7¾c., and goods that really graded as finest easily fetched the outside figure, but there were lots that were cut pretty sharply in the warehouse; in fact, as low as 7c. was spoken of on some that showed the effects of the weather, and quite a lot were bought at 7½c. Finest Ontario cheese, 8⅜ to 8½c.; finest Townships cheese, 7⅞ to 8c.; finest Quebec cheese, 7¾ to 7⅞c.; under grades, 7⅜ to 7½c.

The butter market was quiet and unchanged to-day. Shippers who hold creamery state that they are sellers of it at 17½c., though there are further reports from the country of 17¼ to 17½c. being paid in the country. Finest creamery, 17¾ to 17½c.; seconds, 16 to 16½c.; dairy butter, 12 to 12½.

The stock of cheese in Liverpool on July 1, this year, was 40,096 boxes, against 36,607 on June 1, and 53,207 on July 1, 1896.

MONTREAL NOTES.

It appears to be undoubted that there will be a short catch in several of the Pacific Coast salmon rivers.

First offers on new crop currants were made this week. The figures will be found in the market report above.

According to mail advices received from Japan this week the second crop of new Japan tea is a great deal shorter than expected.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., July 29, 1897.

BUSINESS is beginning to be more active. The past week has been better than for some time past. This has been owing to advancing markets and the buying of fall goods rather than on account of country demands upon wholesale houses here. Tea merchants find demand dull. Samples of new teas are in from China. Quite a block of last season's China tea of particularly good value was placed with the dealers here this week. There is a growing demand for Ceylons. Our dealers are also giving more attention to blends and to teas in lead packages. Many dealers who bought rice in England since the change in duty are disappointed to find much of it was not English milled and so not entitled to the rebate in duty. Good samples of English milled rice are being offered rather lower. We are still having cool weather. The particularly interesting feature of the week has been flour, though sugar, oatmeal, oats and green fruit have been receiving attention.

OIL—There is an improved demand, though at this season both burning and lubricating are dull. Dealers are, however, beginning to give more attention to burning oil, as the time for taking fall orders is drawing near. Prices show no change. We quote: Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.

SALT—The week has been a quiet one, there being no arrivals of English salt, and further arrivals not being expected for some little time. The market, both here and through the country, is being well supplied. There continue to be the regular arrivals of Canadian salt, but there is nothing of particular interest. We quote as follows: Coarse, 44 to 47c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 90c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 to $1.05 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS—Packers are quoting full lines of futures, but are not pushing sales, and hold close to quotations. There is some little range in prices between them. A large quantity of last season's corn arrived this week. There have been arrivals of new peas and strawberries. Except in the old corn, which would seem good stock at the price paid for it, dealers are not buying as largely as last season owing to the very small profits they are able to get. In new salmon, on the whole, the market seems higher, though some packers have shaded quotations. Lobsters are very scarce, as other markets are offering canners better prices than our people are willing to pay. Haddies are rather lower. Oysters are firm and likely to be higher. There is a fair demand. Gallon apples are held rather firmer. They have been very low, and a short pack is looked for this year. We quote: Corn, 60 to 65c.; peas, 75 to 85c.; tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; gallon apples, $1.75 to $1.80; corned beef, Canadian, $2.20 to $2.30; American, 2-lb tins, $2.40 to $2.50; 1-lb tins, $1.30 to $1.50; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.25; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.25 to $2.75; salmon, $1.25 to $1.40; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1 to $1.15; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

DRIED FRUIT—California raisins have had some attention paid to them. The sharp advance from opening prices attracted the interest of the dealers, and several offers at old prices were made, but would not carry. The advance has been about ¼c. in two and three-crown and about ¾c. in fours. Cleaned loose muscatels will be quoted direct this fall. California prunes, which have opened quite low, are expected to go higher. There is little direct demand here. In Valencias prices are little different from last year. A good crop is reported, and it is said quality will be better this year. It is necessary that it should be. Our buyers are somewhat to blame in regard to the quality, as they persist in buying low-priced goods. Demand out of store in all lines is light. A SCHEDULE D — RECIPROCAL TARIFF.

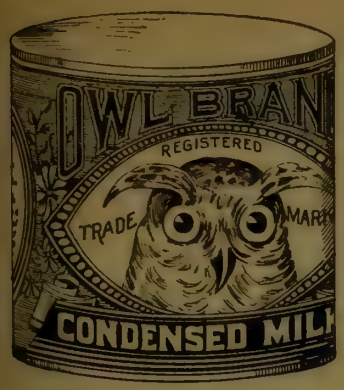
On all the products of countries entitled to the benefits of this Reciprocal Tariff, under the provisions of section sixteen, the duties mentioned in Schedule A shall be reduced as follows:

On and after the twenty-third day of April, 1897, until the thirtieth day of June, 1898, inclusive, the reduction shall in every case be one-eighth of the duty mentioned in Schedule A, and the duty to be levied, collected and paid shall be seven-eighths of the duty mentioned in Schedule A.

On and after the first day of July, 1898, the reduction shall in every case be one-fourth of the duty mentioned in Schedule A, and the duty to be levied, collected and paid shall be three-fourths of the duty mentioned in Schedule A.

Provided, however, that these reductions shall not apply to any of the following articles, and that such articles shall in all cases be subject to the duties mentioned in Schedule A, viz.: Wines, malt liquors, spirits, spirituous liquors, liquid medicines and articles containing alcohol; sugar, molasses and syrups of all kinds, the product of the sugar cane or beet root; tobacco, cigars and cigarettes.



"ONE COW'S MILK"

is often prescribed for infants, but the prescription is seldom honestly filled. Mothers and nurses are led to believe that milk delivered to them is the daily product of the same animal, but this is rarely true except in cases where one cow constitutes the whole dairy.

For infants' food there is nothing superior to "OWL BRAND" CONDENSED MILK diluted with sterilized water. It is absolutely pure full cream milk from the famous pasture lands in the highlands of Nova Scotia. To be obtained from any wholesaler or from . . . .

somewhat better enquiry is noted for dried and evaporated apples, and prices are rather firmer. Onions show a continued demand and hold their price. We quote: Raisins, Valencias, 5¼ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c.; prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples 2½ to 3c.; evaporated apples, 4¼ to 4½c.; onions, 2¾ to 3c. per lb.; cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Valencias, layers, 6 to 7c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.

GREEN FRUIT—Business is very active. Oranges are scarce and of but fair quality. Price is rather higher. In lemons prices are also higher and a good active demand characterizes the trade. Pineapples are about out of the market, good quality being difficult to get. The car of melons spoken of last week found a good sale. A car of California fruit, the first full car to arrive here, came to hand this week. These goods are having an increased sale here, particularly pears, which are one of the most active lines in fruit at present. Apples have some sale, but at this season it is small. Tomatoes are lower and native grown are beginning to come in. Strawberries are about out of the market. There are fair receipts of raspberries. We quote: Lemons, $4 to $5.50; oranges, $4 to $4.50; bananas, $1.25 to $2; pineapples, 10 to 12c.; raspberries, 10 to 12c.; green apples, $4; California peaches, $1.55 to $1.75; California plums, $1.50; melons, 30 to 40c.; California pears, $2 to $2.50.

SUGAR—The market is firmer, with better local demand. Refineries begin to find enquiry for yellows, but little for granulated, the larger holders of which through the country are supplying the wholesale demand rather under refiners' prices. They are not caring to hold their present stocks. We quote: Granulated, 4 to 4¼c.; yellows, 3¼ to 3⅜c.; Paris lump, 5¼ to 5½c.; powdered, 5 to 5¼c.

MOLASSES—A steadier tone prevails. Demand is not remarkably large, but there is a good steady sale. Porto Rico is more firmly held than Barbadoes, for which the demand is light. A small lot of very fine Demerara is offered here. Stocks all round are not heavy and holders are not, particularly in best grades, pushing sales. We quote: Barbadoes, 22 to 23c.; Porto Rico, 26 to 30c.; New Orleans, bbls., 25 to 27c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.

DAIRY PRODUCE—The movement in this line is not large. Butter is very plentiful and low in price. There is little creamery moving; in fact, the trade in this line is dull. In eggs for stock there is a steady but not large demand. In cheese, prices are rather easier. Buyers are now waiting for later cheese. Many of our factories have sold their futures for export. This will help to keep up the price. We quote: Dairy butter, 13 to 16c.; creamery, 17 to 18c.; prints, 18 to 20c.; cheese, 9½ to 9¾c.; eggs, 9½ to 10c.

FISH—Prices except in pickled fish tend rather higher. The stock of medium dry cod is at present very light. The hot weather prevents the fish from being cured. Pollock are dull. In pickled fish the only herring to hand are bay, and they are low and dull. Pickled shad while on the market show little life. In smoked herring we quote prices higher. This is on account of light stocks rather than on account of an increased demand, the price having been so low that the fishermen would not bring in catches. In fresh fish trade keeps growing smaller. A few salmon and shad still move, but halibut are, you might say, done. We quote as follows: Large cod, $2.75 to $2.85; medium, $2.80 to $3; pollock, $1 to $1.15; bay herring, $1.25 to $1.30 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 7 to 8c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50; boneless, 2½ to 8c.; Barrington, $3 per bbl.; Shelburne, $3.25 per bbl.; halibut, 9 to 10c. per lb.; salmon, 25 to 28c.; boneless, 3½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.; shad, 25c. each.

PROVISIONS—The hot weather is affecting the demand. A fair trade is being done in hams, for which the price is high. In fact, they are somewhat hard to get. These goods somewhat felt the effect of the new tariff. Thinking the duty might be lowered their sale was pushed at low prices by some dealers. When it was found the duty was not changed, the price at once began to advance. Pork and beef show no change. Lard keeps very low. We quote: Clear pork, $13 50 to $14.50; mess, $12 to $13; plate beef, $11.50 to $13; hams 13 to 13½c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; pure lard, 6¾ to 7¼c.; compound, 6¼ to 6½c.

FLOUR, MEAL AND FEED—The week has seen quite a movement in flour, the wholesale dealers buying quite freely. It is a pleasant change. It is hoped prices will hold. Dealers are firm. Oatmeal is also quoted higher, with a good demand. Oats show an improved demand, but are hard to get at buyers' prices. In cornmeal sales keep large, with prices low. Hay is rather easier, the crop prospects being better than they were a few weeks ago. This is one of the few things in which crop prospects are good. Bran is more freely offered, but middlings are scarce. The demand is not large. Beans are still in large stock. Western people do not seem to push sales. Market here shows little change. We quote as follows: Manitoba flour, $4.75 to $4.80; best Ontario, $4.45 to $4.50; medium, $4.10 to $4.25; oatmeal, $3.35 to $3.50; cornmeal, $1.80 to $1.85; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $15 to $16; bran, do, do, $13.50 to $14.50; hand-picked beans, 85 to 90c.; prime, 75 to 80c.; oats, 33 to 34c.; hay, $12.50 to $13; barley, $2.75 to $3; round peas, $1.15; split peas, $2.85 to $3; yellow eye beans, $1.50; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¾ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

these are the finest goods packed in the United States. Their pickles in kegs are particularly popular, sweet pickles being in greatest favor.

It is said 1,500 new bicycles were sold this season in Halifax.

There is a new paper in Dorchester, N.B., a weekly called The Spectator.

A. L. Goodwin received the first full car of California green fruit to come to this market. It consisted of pears, peaches and plums.

The ship chandlery partnership between S. W. Milligan and John Splaine has been dissolved. Mr. Splaine continues the business.

Few banks get the premium for their stock which the Bank of New Brunswick does. One share at auction this week sold ex dividend brought 161½ per cent. premium.

On the 20th the thermometer in Moncton stood as high as 96 in the shade. A few days previous St. Stephen reported it at 100. A little St. John fog would be in order.

Mr. Robert Noble, of Norval, Ont., the well-known miller, has been in the city this week and has placed a large quantity of his flour. Mr. Noble is represented here by I. C. Bowman.

The Maritime Pure Food Co., Woodstock, N.B., of which Wm. Green is manager, gave their friends a picnic on the factory grounds this week. The greatest interest was in the new canning factory.

H. F. Baker, Esq., of Halifax, called on THE GROCER this week. He was in the city chiefly in the interests of Crosse & Blackwell, for whom he is the Maritime representative. Messrs. Geo. Robertson & Co., wholesale grocers, handle these goods largely here.

The steamer Tiber, from Montreal, arrived here this week. This is her second trip. The venture is proving a success, as she had a full cargo this trip. Among it was upward of 3,500 bbls. of flour and 1,500 cases canned goods. She will be due again in about three weeks.

Fifteen cheese factories in Kings county, N.B., report receiving up to the last of June 1,807,500 lbs. milk, which would mean about 90 tons cheese, which, at 8½c., an average price, would mean $15,300. The Sussex factory, which is the largest included in the above, during June received 256,292 lbs. milk. One of the largest factories in P. E. Island received 24,000 lbs. in one day.

During the past week 27,000,000 superficial feet of lumber cleared from St. John, 21,000,000 for British ports. Beside this a large quantity of laths, shingles and piling has been shipped. The French demand, while not large, is larger than usual. A number of very large cargoes have been shipped, there being many over two million, and some as high as three and four. One was over four million. Other shipping points, as Hopewell, Grinstone Island, West Bay, and the Miramichi, all report extra large shipments.

THE TOBACCO TARIFF.

Under the new tariff, foreign raw leaf tobacco is subject to a Customs duty. For the convenience of the trade, Customs bonded warehouses are authorized for the storage of such tobacco, and no charge is to be made for the privilege of using as a Customs bonded warehouse any premises licensed for the manufacture of tobacco or cigars. The Minister of Customs has been authorized by order-in-council to employ excise officers to act as Customs lockers on these premises. The excise officers are to be required to perform this duty without any other or extra remuneration.

'TWAS TOO COOL.

There are various ways of getting cool and staying so for a while, says an exchange, but the plan adopted by a retail butcher and grocer in a suburb of Chicago, though efficacious, is probably the least to be commended of all. This dealer, suffering severely from heat, walked into his ice-chest, and, the spring lock snapping to, he was made a prisoner for nearly an hour. When he was released he fell in a faint, and at last accounts was confined to his bed. It is better to pour the coolness into one in the shape of certain beverages than to crawl into a place where ice is kept.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

This department has become so popular that many more notices than there is space for are received every week. In future only important items of information will be inserted. Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.]

A SHIPMENT of Phillipe, Canaud & Cie.'s sardines is in stock with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Clark's canned meats are having a heavy sale with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Noble's 1897 pack lobsters, talls and flats, are in store with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, have in stock an excellent sample of fine Sultana raisins.

S.S. Tyree is now unloading choicest Barbadoes molasses at Montreal for Laporte, Martin & Cie.

Orders are being taken for delivery during fall for "Victoria" brand canned salmon by Laporte, Martin & Cie.

"Yes, salmon is selling fast," say Lucas, Steele & Bristol. "To arrive we are moving a good quantity of 'Empire,' 'Horseshoe,' 'Seal' and 'Nimpkish.'"

Canned gallon apples, although generally scarce and firm, have been shipped in considerable quantities the past week by the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Several lots of new season's Japans have been sent out by Lucas, Steele & Bristol, and for future delivery they are offering the "Uriba" and "Kiji" brands.

T. A. Lytle & Co. have put a new brand of pickles on the market. "Sterling" is the trade mark. If they are as good as other lines made by this firm they should find ready sale.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. report that they are still having a good demand for backs, which seem to be superseding breakfast bacon. This change in favor applies particularly to the larger cities.

W. H. Gillard & Co. claim that their Seville orange marmalade is meeting with a large sale this season, due, they say, to the fact that nothing but extra standard sugar and the pure fruit is used in its manufacture.

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

[The following items arrived too late for insertion in the regular advertising space. Reading notices inserted in this column at 5c. per word.]

Some good values in Scotch sugars are offering by Lucas, Steele & Bristol. Get their prices before buying.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have in store and arriving shortly some lines of May-picked Japans, bought at advantageous prices and showing good values.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, are offering special values in "Blue Pearls" Vostizza currants in quarter-cases, which they claim are the finest goods imported.

THE SUMMER STORE.

THE summer store should present an appearance in marked contrast to the store in winter. Everything about the window displays, the counters and the stock should remind one of the season. The general effect should be to impress customers that the store is clean, cool and captivating. The stock should appeal to capricious appetites, invite indulgence in dainty delicacies and summer beverages. "It always makes me hungry to come into your store," remarked a woman to Grocer B. What greater compliment could be paid a purveyor of food?

A few handsome palms and rubber trees may be made very effective in giving the store a cool look. Keep a current of fresh air circulating in the store and in the cellar. It robs the room of that oppressive odor which comes from food kept in a close room with a high temperature, and which takes away the appetite.

Show windows should be neatly and artistically arranged with summer delicacies—olives, capers, olive oil, pickles, lime juice, sauces, sardines, lobster, clams, shrimp, pickled lambs' tongue, potted meats and poultry, curried fowl, luncheon beef, catsups and scores of other articles more in favor in July than January. Do not place maple syrup in a show window in July, for it reminds one of pancakes and winter diet. Rather have all the things which enter into salad making and such as are suggestive of dishes adapted to hot weather. Canned vegetables and fruits in the season when fresh fruits and vegetables are abundant and cheap should be made an effective background until October, when they should change places with the summer specialties.

Summer beverages ought to be in every grocer's stock. A neat display of the various summer drinks can be very effectively arranged inside the store and near the entrance. And let there be a reminder of iced tea and coffee, even if you have to serve the same free to customers as an object lesson of how much comfort can be had at trifling expense.

Cereals and crackers are in favor, the former to be served hot as a summer breakfast dish with berries or other fruits, and cold for luncheon or supper. Crackers are in request for luncheons and for outing parties, and should be prominently displayed in great variety. The stock should be kept fresh—i.e., crisp. Avoid giving prominence to sticky cakes or such sort of biscuits as are identified with oyster suppers and other winter pastimes.

Hams and tongues are in favor in July and August, and therefore they should have a special setting, such as will tend to make the observer long for a sandwich and a bottle of ginger ale or root beer. Have everything about the summer meats clean and appetizing.

The floor ought to be kept as clean and bright as the deck of a man-of-war, and the windows sparkling and spotless. Fly specks, cobwebs, sticky scales or untidy counters are appetite killers. Flies can be kept out of a store if they are persistently fought. Drive them out and keep them out, even though screen doors are required.

When the store presents a seasonable and alluring appearance, than advertise in a cool and breezy fashion. Let the colors and the type used in your circulars, billheads, cards, signs, etc., be suggestive of a cool retreat, where physical comforts are to be freely had. There are what are designated "warm" colors, such as are suggestive of a log fire, instead of an ocean breeze or a cool grove. Be fertile in hints likely to prove acceptable to summer pleasure seekers and to all who seek comfort at the table. Remember that eternal vigilance is the price of a profitable summer trade.—American Grocer.

HAMILTON GROCERS' PICNIC.

NIAGARA FALLS never wanes in popularity as a point of attraction for excursionists, and fully 3,000 people took in the annual grocers' picnic at Queen Victoria Park last week. By actual count there were 2,500 paid passengers on the excursion trains and there were about 500 children who traveled without tickets.

The excursion was on the T. H. & B. line, and it was more successful than any of its predecessors, which is saying a good deal for a grocers' outing. The arrangements at the park were excellent, and only chronic grumblers could complain about them. The checking business was conducted as well as it could possibly have been done, considering the big crowds on the trains, and the impatience of some who could not wait their turn.

Tea, coffee and milk were served with great liberality to the picnickers at the park.

The weather behaved itself till 5 o'clock, when it rained, and in consequence there was a big rush for the station. During the afternoon the Thirteenth Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster George Robinson, played numerous selections, and Miss Fraser sang "Where the Sugar Maple Grows."

The first train left the Falls about 6.30, fourteen coaches being packed with people, and about twenty minutes later another equally long train left with a big crowd. The first train was delayed a long time at the Welland Canal, owing to boats being locked through, and the second train was there some time before the first resumed its journey. The second train was held at Grassey's Corners to allow the first one to come down the mountain without any danger of a pitch-in, and while the delay caused some complaint, it was a wise thing to do. All the excursionists reached the city in safety, the last train getting in about 10.30.

Following was the committee whose efforts caused the picnic to be so successful : C. H. Peebles, chairman ; W. R. Harvey, secretary ; C. Bremner, treasurer ; John O. Carpenter, president of the Grocers' Association ; Adam Ballentine, G. Hunt, J. C. Bolligan, R. E. Wales, F. R. Close, John Ronan, D. Brown, Wm. Smye, W. Durance, T. Hazell.

CALIFORNIA PRUNE SITUATION.

ONE of the chief features in the California dried fruit market at the present time is the export demand for new crop prunes. The opening price of 2½c. for the four sizes is not looked upon as excessive by foreign buyers, who, having small crops of their own, have turned to California for supplies. It is claimed, however, that the quality of the Pacific Coast fruit has had as much to do with its increased consumption on the other side as the comparatively low prices at which it can be bought or the shortage in European crops. It is reported, but not absolutely confirmed, that within the past week or ten days some fifteen carlots of California prunes have been sold to Europe on the basis of 2½c. per pound f. o. b.

Domestic buyers, however, do not seem to have been quite so anxious to secure early supplies. Reports from the Coast as to the condition and prospects for the current crop seem to have imbued them with the idea that by holding off they may be able to do better latter on and as there seems to be little prospect of any change in an upward direction and the consuming demand is rather slow, most buyers seem inclined to wait. Latterly, reports of a heavy drop in some sections as a result of excessively hot weather have been received here, but have failed to influence the market to any extent, though for a time it was said that some sellers had withdrawn quotations or declined to guarantee early shipments. However, all reports from the Coast indicate that under such adverse conditions as may erise from this time until the end of the drying season a very full crop may be expected, owing to the large number of trees coming into bearing this year. The uncertainty as to the future has had little or no effect upon prices for spot goods, as the stock here is comparatively small, well concentrated and moving out fairly in a jobbing way.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

ANTISEPTIC FIBRE PACKAGE.

A NEW article which ought to receive great favor from this Dominion, which is striving to establish a wider trade in dairy products, is the Antiseptic Fibre Package, made for the purpose of holding butter and lard and of preserving them in all their freshness for an indefinite period. This adds one more article to the long list of manufactures of wood fibre, for it is out of this material, treated so as to render it impervious to grease and water and antiseptic, that this patented invention is made.

Its shape is similar to that of the ordinary tin lard pail that is now in use, and is, on this account, handy for shipping goods as well as for keeping them on the shelf. Moreover, the packages can be made in any size that the market may require. Their cost is much below that of the tin packages.

They are commendable to the wholesalers, too, and, therefore, to the exporters, because on the package may be printed the dealer's name and trade mark.

It has long been an unsolved problem to keep butter sweet for an indefinite time, and the importance of a solution has lately been attracting even the Canadian Government and railway companies, who have provided refrigerator service on cars and boats, so that if the package is all that its patentees claim for it, and it has been recommended by the officials of both the Federal and Ontario Governments, it certainly ought to be a boon to the dairy trade.

At present it is manufactured in Grand Rapids, Mich., but Mr. H. J. Fogg, 37 Victoria street, Toronto, tells THE GROCER that when the organization is completed the goods to supply the Canadian trade will be manufactured in Canada.

HOW THEY DIE.

According to the newspapers very few persons merely "die." The banker "passes in his checks," the cashier "goes to his last account," the mugwump "joins the great majority," the bartender "seeks the spirit land," the gambler "shuffles off," the stableman "kicks the bucket," the spiritualist "gives up the ghost," the accountant "goes to his long reckoning," the printer "joins the heavenly quire," and the editor of a daily paper "goes to claim a pair of golden scissors lying on a table near the throne."—Wyoming Tribune.

A GOOD-HEARTED DRUMMER.

A CORRESPONDENT who was interested in the anecdote related under the title, "A Charming Act," on page 140 of The Companion for March 25, 1897, sends us an account of an incident which is worthy to go on record with the other :

"From 1889 to 1893," the correspondent writes, "I was postmaster at Huntington, West Virginia. A day or two before the Christmas of 1889 a stranger appeared at the post-office and asked if we had any letters or packages which could not be forwarded for lack of proper postage.

"'Many,' I answered.

"'Bring them all out, and let us send them on their way,' said he, at the same time taking a bank note from his pocket.

"The accumulations 'held for postage' were produced, were properly stamped, and were sent to the cancelling table, the stranger paying for the necessary stamps.

"'Now,' said he, 'I will leave two dollars more in your hands to be expended for stamps, in case other matter should be deposited during the holidays with insufficient postage. You can keep a record of the amount, and we will settle when I call again.'

"'Will you leave your name?' I asked.

"'Oh, that's not necessary ; I'm only a drummer,' he answered.

"This act he repeated every year at the beginning of the season until 1893, when, being unable to reach Huntington before the holidays, he enclosed five dollars in a letter to the postmaster, asking that it be expended, if necessary, in the same way. The letter was signed 'The Crank Drummer.'

"After his second visit he was traced to a hotel, and his name learned from the register. I give it to you privately, but it is perhaps not best to reveal it. Whether he has continued his 'crank' practice I do not know."—Youths' Companion.

BUSINESS NINETY-SIX YEARS AGO

Not only was the field of business enterprise thus restricted, but the transaction of business within that field was slow and difficult. The merchant kept his own books, or, as he would have said, his own accounts, wrote all his letters with a quill, and, when they were written, let the ink dry or sprinkled it with sand. There were then no envelopes, no postage stamps, no letter boxes in the street, no collection of the mail. The letter written, the paper was carefully folded, sealed with wax or a wafer, addressed and carried to the post office, where postage was prepaid at rates which would now seem extortionate. To send a letter, which was a single sheet of paper, large or small, from Boston to New York or Philadelphia, cost eighteen and one-half cents, and to Washington twenty-five cents, and this at a time when the purchasing power of a cent was five times what it is at present. To carry a letter from Philadelphia, then the capital of the United States, to Boston and bring back an answer by return mail would have consumed from twelve to eighteen days, according to the season of the year and the weather.—Atlantic Monthly.

WHICH IS THE BEST POLICY?

THE fierceness of competition in the grocery trade to-day, due partly to a forced increase of the sales of the grocers (necessitated by the reduction of prices and profits) and partly to the introduction of a grocery department in the bazar stores and the multiplication of branch stores of cash "cutters," has caused the retailers to seek a remedy, and they have looked for it in two different directions.

Some of them have joined in the movement to regulate prices of certain goods—to try to keep them as high as possible—while others have entered into combinations for the purchase of supplies—for the purpose of keeping prices as low as possible.

Able and enterprising men can be found in both classes of dealers, yet a search in that direction for the shining lights of the business would be a waste of time. They do not travel in crowds, but "go it alone;" at least they do so as soon as they can command sufficient capital.

Buying exchanges and card systems are well enough for the common run of dealers —those with no ambition beyond a competency—but the true American spirit is hampered by such bonds, and eventually must break loose and work out its manifest destiny alone. Each system may be of use in helping the beginner to get his foot upon the bottom rounds of the ladder of success, but afterwards it may prevent him from getting any higher.

The big prizes of the mercantile world are for the bold and enterprising merchant who plays a "lone hand." —Merchants' Review.

A NEW CLOTHES WRINGER.

There is being introduced by the Dowswell Manufacturing Co., Limited, of Hamilton, something new in clothes wringers. It is known as the "New Leader," and has some special features that are not only new but are claimed to accomplish results not attainable by any other wringer in the market. The advantages claimed for this machine over others is that it is driven by an internal gear, which reduces the amount of power required by about 50 per cent. It has also a new clamping attachment that is said to be very much quicker than anything of the kind in use, and can be readily adjusted to square or round tubs.

The clamping attachments are made of malleable iron and are therefore strong and durable. The rolls are made of an extra heavy quality of rubber. The machine generally is gotten up in first-class style throughout and is guaranteed by the manufacturers.

HOW TO RUIN A TOWN.

A VERY pointed and practical article appears in The Orangeville, Ont., Advertiser, on the possible results of townspeople doing all their buying in the city. We quote it for the merchant to show it to intelligent customers, who are reasonable enough to see that city-buying, if carried out to its extreme limit, can empty a town of both trade and prosperity :

"Let us assume that a town which lacks local pride and spirit and whose inhabitants send much of their cash to departmental stores, carries the thing to its logical conclusion and buys everything away from home, and what follows? The merchants put up their shutters and quit. The main street has gone out of business. The post office and express office are the local branches of the departmental store and are busy sending off orders and handling parcels. The merchants with their families, and their clerks, scatter to the four corners of the earth. There are, perhaps, two banks in the town and one closes at once, but the other waits to see how business will be. The editor of the local paper looks over his field and peers into the future, and then removes his plant to some place far from an overshadowing city. Those who owned property along the main street find it almost valueless. One of the local lawyers moves away. One of the doctors sells out to the other. The farmers of the surrounding country rise at 3 a.m. and drive on through the village to the city to sell their produce and make their purchases. They consult a city doctor, or lawyer, or dentist, if they need advice or treatment. Their farms, once worth $100 an acre because adjacent to a living town, decline in value until they are worth only $30 or $40 an acre, because no living town and market are near. The owner of the big mill or factory, which was bonused years ago, will now hearken to the offers he gets to locate in other places, and the town having now no future, no prospect of better shipping facilities, the factory will pack up and go away. In short, the town will have no excuse for existing. The surrounding country does not need it ; it doesn't need itself ; its people might as well move away and get into the city to which they really belong. Logically, this is the outcome—a whole province with no industry or trade in it but places for tinkering and repairing in a small way ; a whole province in which only rich cities and rich men can thrive at all, all retailing passing into the hands of millionaire men and companies strong enough to practise any trick or to resort to any tyranny, and none being strong enough to resist them."

An article on these lines should appear in every local paper in Canada this summer. Merchants cannot afford to drift in this matter. They must act promptly, appealing to the common sense of property owners in a town not to set the example of buying outside. If the owners of property will not themselves buy in the place which returns them interest on their investment, of course the case is pretty hopeless. But try what can be done by some vigorous protests, and your local editors are the men to help you.

HE PUSHED GUM.

You know the well-known adage "There's a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune," says a writer in Grocery World. I have been very much struck with the truth of that, as illustrated in the case of a retail grocer who is a friend of mine. While the tide he took at the flood has not brought him a fortune by any means, it has netted him a comfortable little sum of money. When the chewing-gum fad broke loose three or four years ago, this retailer expressed to me the opinion that it was to be a fad which would last for several years. So believing, he laid in a supply, and began to push it for all he was worth. Ever since that time he has constantly added to his stock every good new thing in chewing gum which has come out, and at present has as large a stock of gum as all the other dealers in his town put together. When anybody in that place wants chewing gum they go to my friend's. A month ago he told me he had cleared in 1896 nearly $250 from chewing gum alone.

PACKAGE TEA.

IN the Connecticut correspondence of The New England Grocer, we notice the following in the matter of retail tea packages :

It seems to be the style to buy tea in packages wrapped in sheet lead and having pretty pictures on the outer paper. Several of the first-class groceries and nearly all of the fancy grocery stores sell tea in this fashion. Some of the places have tea in square tin boxes with covers that can be taken off and put on at will. The different packages hold ¼ lb., ½, 1 and 5 lbs. Selling tea in this manner is due to a demand created by the more particular class of people who desire to buy tea in individual wrappings rather than in paper bags. The object is to obtain tea that has not been exposed to the air and will not be after purchasing. This country has become such a tea drinking commonwealth that the people are becoming to discriminate as to the delicacy of flavor. In the larger cities the department stores serve free tea at certain portions of the year. As a result of the tea law which has recently gone into effect the people are drinking a better grade of tea than they used to.

We do not think package tea is in favor elsewhere, and are surprised to learn that this method of retailing has made such headway in Connecticut, There is no good reason why tea should not be sold in packages. It seems, indeed, the very article which should be handled in this way. But buyers are conservative and suspicious, and it is a most difficult matter to alter the traditions of the counter.

We remarked this a short time ago in referring to the street sales of India tea which were being tried in New York. This city is decidedly peculiar in the matter of package goods, having known practically no package coffee trade until the Arbuckle sugar fight began. Before that event hardly a single Ariosa package stayed here ; and it was only the big cut in prices and the free advertising which the daily press gave that started these and competing goods into use in New York.

Some goods, like chocolate, are not known except in packages. We are glad to see package tea coming, and we expect to see package sugar some time, for there seems to be both economy and cleanliness in handling the goods in this way.

The Retail Grocers of Montreal are to hold their annual picnic at Ste. Rose on the 29th inst. The following week we shall give a report of it.

Toronto's Greatest Celebration.

FULLY alive to the times, the management of the Toronto Exhibition, or, as the title runs this year, "Canada's Great Victorian-Era Exposition and Industrial Fair," is to be conducted on a scale, from August 30th to September 11th, that will even transcend any former effort made to promote this, the most popular, most comprehensive and most attractive annual show held on this continent. Already a sufficient number of applications for space and of notifications of entries have been received to warrant the highest expectations. The management have increased the number of medals to be awarded, and have made many improvements to the buildings and grounds, showing that they are resolved to leave nothing undone that will enhance the pleasure and comfort of both patrons and exhibitors. They have also determined on a special feature that promises to prove the greatest outdoor spectacle in the way of entertainment that Toronto or any other city has ever known, outside the world's metropolis itself. This spectacle will take the form of a reproduction of the wondrous Diamond Jubilee procession in London. Agents are now across the water hiring and buying the necessary properties and costumes, which will be an exact replica of the uniforms and costumes worn by the soldiery, the sailors, the nobility and the Yeomen of the Guard in the magnificent procession. Scenes will also be reproduced of the ceremonies at Buckingham Palace, St. Paul's Cathedral and other places along the line of route. Many interesting specialties will also be introduced, while at night the effect will be heightened and magnified by brilliant illuminations and fireworks. Not only will spectators have brought home to them the grandeur and unity of the Empire, but they will be practically taken home to Old London. While dwelling on this grand feature the material aspect of the Exhibition must not be lost sight of, therefore it is well to mention that entries of live stock, and the majority of the departments, close on Saturday, August 7th. Programmes containing all details of the attractions will be issued about the 10th of August. (advt.)

THE FISHERIES OF GEORGIAN BAY.*

IMPORTANT FISHES.

WHITEFISH.—The records of the Canadian inland fisheries show that a larger catch of whitefish has been made in the Georgian Bay than in all the Canadian waters of the remainder of the geat lakes system combined. The yield has been more constant, and, in spite of the extent of the fishery and the appliances used, it is only within the last few years that any decided decrease has been shown. The catch reached its zenith about 1890; it remained about the same up to 1892, though the amount of gear used had more than doubled. Since this last date it has fallen off steadily, though the amount of gear employed has been greatly increased. Whitefish are found all over the Georgian Bay and north channel, and they follow here the same shoreward migrations in the spring and fall that they do in the other inland waters. The fishery begins as soon as the ice is clear of the shores, generally some time in May, earlier or later as the seasons vary. During May and June the gill nets are set not far off shore in shoal water, but as the season advances the fish move into deeper water or farther offshore. The offshore fishing lasts through July and August and part of September, when the shoreward movement of the fish begins, culminating with the close of the season at the end of October. Up to 1892 the catch of whitefish was usually greater than that of trout, but since that date the whitefish have fallen off, and now more trout are being taken. Many spawning grounds are known to the fishermen among the islands and on the offshore reefs, the principal ones being about the Western Islands and Bustards and on the reefs off the Squaws. The spawning season extends through the month of November.

Trout.—The trout have certainly not decreased to anything like the same extent as the whitefish. Fishing for this species begins about the same time as for the whitefish, but during the spring and early summer the proportion of trout taken is not so great, while after September the most of the fish taken in the gill nets are trout. Fishermen claim to recognize two classes of trout, one a smaller fish caught on the offshore reefs and in the deeper water about them, the other a much larger fish always taken inshore. Trout are not as abundant in the north channel as they are south of Grand Manitoulin Islands and around the Ducks. The spawning season is everywhere said to be considerably earlier than that of the whitefish, and the offshore trout are reported to spawn earlier than the larger fish found inshore. The spawning grounds are distributed all round the shores of the bay among the islands, and on the outer reefs and shoals. Trout are mostly caught in the gill nets, comparatively few being taken in the pounds.

Wall-eyed pike.—When seines were used, the best fishing for wall-eyed pike was made early in the spring, near the mouths of the rivers; in many places this seining was done under the ice, the fish being then on their way into the rivers to spawn. An extensive fishery of this kind was carried on at the head of the Nottawasaga Bay and at the Waubashene. At the present time wall-eyed pike are mostly taken in the pounds in the north channel. These fish are rarely caught in the gill nets when fished offshore, but during the spring and fall, and particularly in the latter season, when the gill nets are being used inshore, a considerable proportion of wall-eyed pike is obtained by that means. The wall-eyed pike are distributed all along the coast, but are most abundant in the neighborhood of the large rivers which discharge into the bay and north channel. Large catches are known to have been made in the trap nets which have been fished illegally among the islands on the eastern shore of the bay. The pounds fished in the north channel take a fair amount, but not so many are caught in those set off the south shore of Manitoulin and the Ducks. The spawning season of this species is said to be during the latter part of April and the early part of May. As pound nets are not fished in the Georgian Bay proper, and the attention of the fishermen is almost entirely paid to the trout and whitefish, there is really no very extensive fishery made for the wall-eyed pike over the greater part of the bay, and no decrease in the abundance of this fish has been detected.

Lake herring.—This species is abundant all over the Georgian Bay region, but as, until quite recently, there has been no falling off in the fishery for trout and whitefish, no inducement existed to engage in the herring fishery, particularly as the herring taken in the bay are small in size, not averaging over a quarter of a pound each in weight. No fishing is done for them in the spring or summer, at which seasons they are not found inshore, but they are caught to a small extent by means of gill nets in October and November, when they are in shoal water.

Sturgeon.—In the early days sturgeon were very abundant in the Georgian Bay and north channel, particularly in the shoaler bays into which certain of the large rivers discharge. Here, as elsewhere, they had no commercial value, and were simply rolled out of the seines and destroyed as a nuisance. At present they are mostly taken at the head of Nottawasaga Bay and at Grande Batture. As far as we have been able to ascertain, the only method by which they have been taken in this region is by means of seines and pounds, gill nets and set lines never having been tried, certainly not on any large scale. The returns indicate that a great decrease in their abundance has occurred, as shown by the three annual catches given in the following table :

	Lbs.
1885	478,000
1894	90,265

Black Bass.—This game fish is not by any means abundant in the Georgian Bay region. A good deal of sport fishing is said to be carried on by summer visitors about Waubashene and among the islands north of that place, but elsewhere on the northern shores of the bay and along the north channel bass are seldom or never seen. They have never been taken in the nets fished for whitefish and trout and form no part whatever of the commercial catch.

CAUSES OF DECREASE.

For many years the Georgian Bay has been one of the principal sources of the market supply of whitefish, as already stated, and the fishery has here been carried on with more vigor and enterprise than anywhere else in Canadian fresh waters. Whitefish and trout are found over the entire area of the bay and north channel, and furnish almost the sole object of the fishery. Prior to 1885 the amount of apparatus employed had not varied much for about 20 years, and the output has been constant. As, however, the whitefish supply from other sources began to fail, increased efforts were put forth by the fishermen of the bay to meet the demand, fishing tugs were more largely employed and the amount of gill netting was greatly increased. As the result of this, we find that between 1885 and 1890 the quantity of whitefish caught was quadrupled. The fishing kept up for a couple of years after 1890, the amount of gear being steadily increased, but here, as elsewhere, the thing had been overdone, and in 1893 and 1894 we find a sudden drop in the catch. The following table shows the amount of apparatus in use at intervals of five years beginning with 1870, together with the catch of whitefish, trout, herring and wall-eyed pike at the same time :

Year.	No. of Fishing Tugs.	No. of Boats.	Gill Nets, Fathoms.	No. of Pounds.	Whitefish.	Trout.	Herring.	Wall-eyed Pike.

Reports since received show that the decrease has continued in 1895 and 1896. For several seasons back complaints have been made by all who handle Georgian Bay whitefish at market, that the fish have been undersized. This sudden and alarming decrease in the catch of whitefish has been due mainly to overfishing with gill nets. Although the returns show that 1,086,715 fathoms of gill net were licensed in 1894, it is everywhere admitted by the fishermen that much more than that quantity was being fished. The great bulk of the whitefish is caught in the bay with gill nets, fished by boats which operate from the various stations on the mainland or from the islands, about which the summer fishery is carried on. The nets are supposed to have a 4½-inch mesh.

That the depletion has been caused by the excessive use of this class of net is evident from the fact that no other method of fishing for this species has been here employed; and if the whitefish now shipped to market are undersized, as they undoubtedly are, this can only be because the mesh in use is too small. In the north channel pound nets, as well as gill nets, are fished, and the blame for the failure in this particular region must be shared by the two methods. The gill net fishery in the north channel has not been as extensive as in the bay. The decrease there evidently began about 1885, when areas were licensed without regard to the number of pounds fished or the size of their mesh. Fishermen in all parts of the region agree in saying that to the extensive and wasteful fishing by this means then carried on in the north channel, on the south side of Grand Manitoulin and at the Ducks, must be attributed the falling off in both whitefish and trout. When this system of licensing areas was abolished the number of pound nets fished was reduced, as is shown by the statistics for 1890 in the above table. The number has, however, been again increased.

As the species taken in these pounds are whitefish, trout, wall-eyed pike and sturgeon, there can be no object in using a small mesh in the pot, such as is required when the catch consists in great proportion of the smaller grades of fishes. We were present at Detour, Michigan, when various parcels of fish from some of these pounds were brought there to be marketed, and can speak of our own knowledge as to the condition of affairs existing. The following table shows the weights of four lots of whitefish :

¾ pound each. The other species represented were trout and wall-eyed pike.

Most of the Georgian Bay fishermen claim that there has been no decrease in the trout, and the returns do not show that there has been, but a much larger outfit is required to maintain the catch. The trout are taken on the same grounds as the whitefish, and generally with the same nets, though some men use a stronger and larger meshed net. The same complaints are made regarding the trout from the bay as about the whitefish, namely, that they are too small to bear transport and be handled profitably. Large quantities of undersized trout are undoubtedly being sent to market from both the Georgian Bay and north channel, and it is only by the capture of these sizes that the volume of the catch is being kept up. They are obtained to some extent in the pounds, but mainly by the gill nets.

It is well understood that some small trout are always taken in the gill nets, no matter how large the mesh may be, as they get caught by the teeth and become entangled in the net, but the proportion of fish thus taken is always small. In the case of the Georgian Bay, however, the small trout constitute an important part of the supply and are difficult to dispose of, as they invariably reach the market in poor condition. The bulk of these undersized trout are secured in the smaller meshed gill nets, fished for whitefish.

Among the minor causes to which we may attribute the failure in the whitefish and trout is the deposition of bark from the rafts of saw logs which are constantly being towed across the bay and north channel from some of the larger rivers, especially French River and Spanish River, to the milling ports on the Michigan side of Lake Huron. The grinding of the logs against each other in the booms sets free the fine inner bark which settles on the bottom, forming a thick covering. When this happens to occur on the spawning or feeding grounds of the fish there can be no doubt that a serious injury is caused.

Some of the inshore spawning grounds are said to have suffered from the the sawdast and other mill refuse which has been carried down the streams from the mills; but little injury can have been done in this way, as many of the spawning grounds are affshore or remote from the neighboroood of the mills, and of late years the regulation prohibiting the letting adrift of this refuse has been well observed. The fishermen seem to have been careful about the disposition of refuse fish and fish offal and have generally landed it on the rocks. As the shores of the bay are not extensively settled other pollutions cannot have occurred.

FISHING METHODS.

General Account—The principal methods of fishing are by means of pound nets and gill nets. Pound nets are not allowed to be fished east of a line running from Cape Hurd to Spanish River; that is to say, they are only permitted in that part of the north channel west of Spanish River, on the south side of Manitoulin Island, west of the line before mentioned, and at the Duck Islands. They are prohibited in the bay proper. This arrangement was made at the request of a large majority of the fishermen of the region. In all 62 pound nets were employed in 1894. Gill nets are fished over all parts of the bay, the quantity licensed in 1894 having been 1,086,715 fathoms, operated from 32 tugs and 345 sail boats. Seines were at one time extensively used in some of the bays and channels and near the mouths of some of the rivers, but they are now prohibited. Fyke nets, although permitted, have never been employed except to a very slight extent. Trap nets, small submerged pounds with a covered pot, are not permitted, but they have been extensively fished by poachers, and whenever found they have been confiscated. The manner in which the bay, particularly along its eastern and northern shores, is cut up with channels, inlets and deep creeks, facilitates the use of these engines and makes it difficult to detect them. Trawl line fishing and hook and line fishing are not practised.

Gill Nets—The gill nets used in Georgian Bay are similar to the trout and whitefish nets of Lake Huron, and the rigs employed are about the same. The most of them have a 4½-inch mesh, but a few of 6-inch mesh are fished at certain times for trout only.

The gill net fishery in Georgian Bay began about 1835 or 1838. It was prosecuted from canoes and small boats of not over 14-feet keel, and the man who possessed a half-dozen short home-made nets was counted rich. Nothing under a 5-inch mesh was employed; stones were used on the nets for sinkers, and thin strips of cedar for floats.

Most of the catch was whitefish, and all was salted. The traders came around in schooners supplying the fishermen with salt and barrels, and taking the fish in exchange for general supplies. During the period of the Civil War in the United States, from 1861 to 1865, there was a great demand for salted fish, and the prices then received were better than ever since. This demand, no doubt, forced the development of the fishery, as by 1868, when the first official report by the Canadian Department of Marine and Fisheries was issued, it seems to have already attained considerable proportions, the returns of that year showing that 451 men engaged in the fishery, with 144,750 fathoms of gill nets, the catch amounting to 1,884,386 pounds of whitefish, 767,400 pounds of trout and 7,800 pounds of wall-eyed pike. Gill nets continued to be, practically, the only method used until 1881, when pounds were intrroduced in the north channel, although a few seines were occasionally employed.

The following table shows the length of gill nets fished since 1870 at intervals of five years:

number increased until 32 were employed in 1894. The fishery is prosecuted mainly from Wiarton, Owen Sound, Collingwood, the vicinity of Waubashene and Midland, Killarney and Thessalon. The tugs and boats located at the Duck Islands fish entirely in Lake Huron.

In the summer, after the shore fishery falls off, the tugs from the southern and southeastern parts of the bay fish at the western islands and the Minks, and around the islands and banks lying north of Parry Sound; and at the same season the fishermen from Killarney and other mainland ports move out to Squaw Island Bank, Grand Bank and Lonely Island.

The fishery for whitefish and trout is carried on simultaneously. From the time the ice leaves, early in May, until July, the nets are set inshore, but during July and August they are moved into deeper water, and upon the banks and around the outlying islands. In September they are again brought closer to shore, where they are used until the beginning of the close season, 1st November. In the spring and summer the catch consists principally of whitefish, but in the fall more trout are caught.

Pound Nets—The pound nets are similar in construction to those used elsewhere in the great lakes. The leaders are mostly short, with the mesh 6 or 7 inches in extension. The cribs are 40 to 50 feet square, and when the fishery first began a mesh of less than 2½ inches was used, but afterwards a uniform 4-inch mesh throughout was adopted. In 1894 the Dominion Government voluntarily reduced the size, but the fishermen had not all taken advantage of this privilege at the time of our visit. There appears to have been no good reason for the change, and we consider that its effect will be disastrous to the whitefish.

Pound nets have never been fished extensively in any part of the bay, except the north channel and on the outer side of Grand Manitoulin Island. The latter region is really in Lake Huron, but as the fish caught there are shipped from Wiarton the statistics usually regard this locality in connection with Georgian Bay.

In 1894 62 pound nets were fished in this region. They were all in stands of one each, and were located in the north channel, both on the main shore and on the numerous islands, and also on the southern shore of Grand Manitoulin Island at its western end, and on the neighboring Duck Islands. The pound net fishery began at the Duck Islands about 1881, and at Indian Island and near Killarney at about the same time. After several years, however, these nets were forbidden in the region east of a line passing from Cape Hurd to Spanish River. The maximum number was reached about 1889, since which time there has been a gradual reduction. This appears to have taken place mostly on the outer side of Grand Manitoulin Island east of the Duck Islands; it is estimated that there were at one time at least 40 pounds between Massissagua Strait and Providence Bay, where there are now but 9.

The pounds are set as early as possible after the water is free from ice; the time varies with the season, being sometimes in April and sometimes even as late as May 24. The season lasts until November 1. The principal fish taken in this region is the whitefish. It is present during the entire season, but June and July witness the largest catches. Wall-eyed pike also occur throughout the year: if the nets are in early a good run may be had in the spring, but the best month is August. Trout are caught in May, June and July, and again from September to the close of the fishery. Several species of suckers, perch, grass pike and a few sturgeon are also taken.

Seines—Seines were never employed extensively for whitefish as the bottoms to which this species resort for spawning are generally so stony and rough as to prevent the use of this form of apparatus. The small amount of seining which has been carried on was mainly for sturgeon and wall-eyed pike at Waubashene, Nottawasaga Bay and Killarney. The total length of the seines used has been as follows: 1870, 440 fathoms; 1880, 137 fathoms; 1890, 2,466 fathoms. These nets are now prohibited in the bay.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

The principal fisheries in the Georgian Bay and north channel are those for whitefish and lake trout, and as the decrease in the abundance of those species has apparently been due to two causes, over-fishing and the taking of immature fish, two remedies naturally suggest themselves, namely, a reduction in the amount of fishing and such an increase in the size of the mesh employed as will prevent the capture of an undue amount of the undersized fish.

Although it is understood that the present close season during the month of November does not fully cover the spawning season of the trout, yet it is believed, as this species has not decreased to anything like the same extent as the whitefish, that a reduction in the amount of gill netting fished and an increase in the size of the mesh will afford it all the protection now necessary.

In view of the fact that the fishery with pound nets is carried on mainly for whitefish, trout, wall-eyed pike and sturgeon, it is considered important that only a large-sized mesh be allowed in the cribs. As there can be no objection to the capture of wall-eyed pike and coarse fishes in the bays and among the islands we deem it advisable to allow a limited amount of fishing with trap nets and fyke nets along the eastern shore of the bay.

We would, therefore, recommend as follows:

1. That the amount of gill netting now used for whitefish and trout be considerably reduced, and that means be taken to insure that not more than the amount licensed be fished by any tug or boat.

2. That the minimum size of gill net mesh fished for whitefish and trout be fixed at 5 inches, extension measure.

3. That the number of pound nets now fished west of the line from Cape Hurd to Spanish River be not increased; that the regulation which prohibits the use of such nets east of that line be continued; and that the minimum size of mesh in the crib of the pounds be fixed at 4 inches.

4. That a limited number of trap nets and fyke nets be licensed to be fished along the eastern and northern shores of the bay between Waubashene and Killarney.

5. That gill nets having a mesh large enough to prevent the capture of individuals less than 4 feet long, and also set lines with baited hooks, be licensed for the catching of sturgeon.

6. That all sturgeon taken under 4 feet in length be returned alive to the water.

7. That the close season during which whitefish and trout shall not be taken shall be the month of November.

8. That herring may be fished for at all seasons with gill nets having a mesh of not less than 2⅜ inches.

THE DENOUNCED TREATIES.

ON principle it was proper that Great Britain should give the year's notice necessary to the abrogation of the treaties with Germany and Belgium.

These treaties were the relic of a by-gone age—an age when the Motherland did the thinking and the law-making for the colonies—the age preceding the dawn of responsible government.

The treaty with Belgium was made in 1862, and article XV of that instrument provides that articles the produce and manufacture of Belgium shall not be subject in the British colonies to other or higher duties than those which are or may be imposed upon similar articles of British origin.

The treaty with Germany came into existence in 1865 and contained a similar provision, commonly known as the most favored nation stipulations.

Through these treaties there are more than a score of countries besides which enjoy the provisions of these favored nation clauses and which through them will also lose the privileges they impart. They are: Argentine, Austria-Hungary, Bolivia, Chili, Colombia, Corea, Costa-Rica, Denmark, Dominica, France, Liberia, Madagascar, Morocco, Muscat, Persia, Portugal, Russia, Sandwich Islands, Siam, South African Republic, Spain, Sweden and Norway, Swiss Confederation, Tunis, Uruguay and Venezuela.

This list might have been a great deal larger but for the fact that for some years Great Britain has allowed Canada to decide for herself as to whether or not she would share in the provisions of the treaties being made. The result of this is that since 1880 she has declined in twelve instances and acceded in two. The last treaty to which Canada refused to accede was that between Great Britain and Japan. The decision to do this was arrived at a few months ago, it will be remembered.

The trouble with these favored nation treatment clauses, as far as Canada is concerned, is that they in one important particular limited her power: She was denied the right of framing a Customs tariff giving a preference to imports the product of the United Kingdom. The Dominion could accord such favors to any of the other colonies and Great Britain could to Canada or any other of her possessions. But Canada was denied the right of doing unto Great Britain what she would she should do unto her.

Under the system of responsible government now obtaining in Canada it is natural that such an anomalous condition could not exist forever. The strange thing about it is that it has existed so long.

Interest in the question became active about ten or twelve years ago, when the agitation was revived for a return to the preferential trade which existed up to the time of England's adoption of free trade.

The Macdonald, the Abbott, the Thompson, the Bowell and the Tupper administrations were all in favor of the denunciation of the treaties with Germany and Belgium.

In 1892 a joint resolution from the House of Commons and the Senate was presented to the Imperial Government in regard to the matter. Two years later, at the meeting of the Colonial Conference at Ottawa, the question came in for a great deal of attention. There were representatives present from all the self-governing colonies, as well as Lord Jersey of the Imperial Government, and the outcome was the adoption, unanimously, of this resolution:

> That this conference is of opinion that any provision in existing treaties between Great Britain and any foreign power which prevents the self-governing dependencies of the Empire from entering into agreements of commercial reciprocity with each other or with Great Britain should be removed.

This resolution, being the expression of the self-governing portions of the Empire, was undoubtedly the most important deliverance which had up to that time been made. It created a great deal of talk. But still it was apparently not a strong enough aperient to move the home authorities. And probably there would have been no movement yet had not the action of the present Dominion Government placed the Imperial authorities in the peculiar position it did by its preferential tariff treatment of British goods.

The position they were thus placed in left them three alternatives: (1) Compel Canada to observe the treaties, (2) refuse to do anything, (3) denounce the treaties.

To have taken the former course would not only have been foreign to the latter-day policy of the Imperial Government toward the self-governing colonies, but would have been tantamount to chastising a child for exhibiting a natural preference for its parents. The second would have been unbecoming, and so it did the right and proper thing of denouncing the treaties.

These treaties were cords which fastened the self-governing colonies to an unsavory past.

Great Britain, by refusing, a century and a quarter ago, to relax certain commercial restrictions, lost thirteen of her North American colonies; she has just, by removing certain anomalous commercial restrictions, bound closer to her colonies which have each within themselves the possibilities of a great empire.

And a gratifying feature about it is that Canada created the instrument which was at the same time a knife to cut and a shuttle to weave.

FRAUDULENT JAPAN TEAS.

It is said that a great deal of Japan tea is being put upon the market, which, while being sold for this season's growth, is really a combination of last as well as this season's production.

THE CANADIAN GROCER'S informant is a well-known Japan tea expert, and he avers that the fraudulent practice is being carried on more extensively than ever before.

The mixing, it appears, is done in the country of production, and a good many of these manipulated teas have been sold on the Canadian market, principally, it is claimed, at from 14 to 15½c. per pound.

These teas have been highly fired in an attempt to cover up the fraud, but the mixed teas can be discerned by making a comparison, either by leaf or in the cup, with those known to be new season's production. Of course, the latter is the most reliable way of making the test. Indeed, the mixed tea cannot be missed in the cup, for the old leaf naturally brings down the quality of the new.

As no house which values its reputation would be guilty of a practice which is foolish as well as dishonest, it is obvious that as a first precaution grocers should be careful from whom they purchase their Japan teas.

Because there is perspiration on the brow of the merchant and his clerks these days, it is no reason that dust should be on the counters and shelves.

NEW DRIED FRUITS.

FURTHER offers, both on California and Valencia dried fruit, have been received in Montreal during the week. As a rule, however, sales agents of reliable brands exhibit a disinclination to be bound down to a definite price, and most of the business transacted has been on open orders. This applies both to Valencia and California fruit, the understanding being that prices will be definitely named by the 15th of the month, and that if they are not suitable the purchaser is at liberty to endorse or to cancel his order as he sees fit.

Offers so far made on Valencias have ranged all the way from 14s. 6d. to 16s. for fine off-stalk, cost and freight Montreal.

For California the prices mentioned in a previous issue have not been altered, but many packing firms will not quote at all.

Advices state that the outlook is favorable for a good crop and also for early shipment, and the probabilities are that prices will open at a slightly lower range than last year, but no reliable quotations can be made before the middle of August.

The outlook for California prunes is equally favorable at the present time, and prices will apparently rule at quite reasonable rates.

Present indications on apricots favor buyers, as the crop is good and sales agents state that prices have never been lower, genuine choice royal apricots being quoted at prices that would land them here duty paid at less than 9c. per pound.

In other goods, peaches, pears, etc., no fruit have yet been procured, and no genuine prices have yet been made.

THE SALMON PACK.

A RATHER better feeling has developed during the past few days in regard to canned salmon. This is due to the advices which have been received from the Coast.

On the Fraser, canning operations appear to be going on under favorable conditions. Up to August 2 the pack on that river was 350,000 cases. This is within about 7,000 cases of the whole of last year's pack there. The exact output on the Fraser last year was 356,984 cases.

But, while the pack on the Fraser has been good, that on the northern rivers appears to have been disappointing.

A telegraphic advice states that on the Skeena River the shortage is 80,000 cases and at Rivers Inlet 30,000 short up to August 2.

The pack at these two points last year was 100,140 and 107,468 cases respectively. A private letter received in Toronto on Tuesday, bearing date of July 27, stated that the run of salmon at Rivers Inlet and on the Skeena River was a complete failure.

It is estimated, as far as THE CANADIAN GROCER can gather, that the total pack in British Columbia will be about the same as last year. As the pack last year was the largest on record—601,570 cases—there need be no fear of a famine of canned salmon.

In London, Eng., the price of salmon has taken an upward turn, and the demand is good. An English paper of the date of July 24 is of opinion that prices there are about "as low as they can be forced." "The most interesting feature in the market at the moment," it says, "is the value offering in flat tins, and as the choicest grades of this shape are only at the price of talls, it is worth the attention of the retail trade as to whether a revision of prices would not result in a largely increased business."

In Canada there do not appear to be many transactions between packers and wholesalers, but retailers are still placing orders for futures.

HIDES ARE TOO DEAR.

Toronto dealers in hides and skins have, of late, been expressing great dissatisfaction at the existing high prices they are forced to pay and at the unhealthy condition which at present prevails in the market.

Ever since the rise of a cent in hides of a short time ago, business has not been profitable. Dealers are losing money, for they cannot get ¼c. a pound advance on the prices they are forced to pay. Tanners, too, claim that present prices are too high for the manufacture of leather. In all lines of the trade business is not healthy and is dull.

Easier prices in the near future are expected by those engaged in the trade.

CANNED VEGETABLES LATE.

THE first offers on new pack canned tomatoes and corn were made to the wholesale trade in Montreal this week. For the former from 70 to 75c. is being asked, and the latter 55c. These prices are generally considered to be very low. In fact, a canner, if he gives the farmer a fair price at all, has little or no margin when he sells tomatoes at 70c.

The above prices apply only to Ontario brands, as there have been no quotations made yet in Quebec tomatoes.

It is considered very probable that there may be an advance on the above figures. The recent rains have done a lot of damage to not only tomatoes and corn, but all other vegetables in Ontario, and it is now estimated that the pack will be quite small, as a poor crop is now considered a certainty. The pack of strawberries, for instance, is placed at under 10,000 cases for the whole of Canada, which is 30 per cent. less than the usual pack. Last week's rains have destroyed corn and tomatoes in Ontario, besides drowning what peas were left unpicked.

A Quebec packer, also, who had just got back from a driving tour through the tomato-producing districts of his own province, states that the heavy spring frosts that prevailed seriously curtailed the growth of tomatoes in the eastern province, and that what is left will be very late, fully two or three weeks.

NEW GREEN TEAS.

Toronto received its first shipment of new season's China green teas on Thursday of last week. It contained 232 packages, and were shipped by Peek Bros. & Winch, Limited.

They show good quality, and met with a ready sale. Prices are about the same as a year ago.

THE PACK OF LOBSTERS.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has called attention before to the possibility of a short pack of lobsters. The fishing season is now over for several weeks, and these expectations have been more than realized.

Besides the constantly diminishing proportions of the catch, the rough weather this spring further curtailed it, and it is estimated that the pack will be only a little over half what it was last year. It has to be borne in mind also that last year's pack was fully 50 per cent. short of that of 1895.

Despite the short pack, many of the most reliable canners were opposed to any extension of time this season. They are so, because any lobsters caught and packed after the 15th of July they do not consider fit for food. The fish after that date are commencing to cast their shells and should not be packed, especially those caught in the creeks and harbors, which are practically soft shell fish. To be plain, the opponents of the extension hold that the privilege of catching fish up to the 24th is only a benefit to the small canners who don't care very much what they put up.

As a matter of fact, if the letter of the law regarding lobsters were strictly observed there would not be a cannery in operation. As it is, people in the business state that there are altogether too many.

The Government has refused to issue any more permits for salmon fishing stands down in the Gulf and elsewhere on the Atlantic coast, because it believes that there are already too many.

The same stand is absolutely necessary in the case of lobsters if the industry is to be preserved. The constantly diminishing pack each year shows this.

It is difficult to believe, therefore, that what private letters assert is correct, namely: that the canners on the Prince Edward Island and Northumberland Strait coasts will be allowed to pack all fall.

Another point that the native Canadian canners are beginning to cogitate over is whether the American packing concerns, which are entirely alien, should be allowed by the Government to deplete our already small supply of fish.

Prices average $2 per case above those ruling last season, no talls being obtainable under $9.50, while flats are hard to get at any price, $10.50 to $11 being asked for them.

If a holiday is not a good investment do not take it. A merchant should eschew everything that does not pay.

EVILS IN HOLIDAYING.

Take a holiday, but take it right. A great many people get more harm than good from a holiday, because they have been foolish and not wise in the manner of taking it.

One of the most common things which attack merchants, as well as other people, when they go away for a holiday at the seaside, lakeside or countryside is hunger. They boast that they can "eat like a horse." And herein is where one of the chief causes of after-holiday illness is to be found.

People go holidaying, or should do so, with the object of obtaining physical and mental rest. Yet when they overfeed themselves they give their stomach more work to do than it is either accustomed to or is able to perform. And when the stomach is overworked and in trouble little benefit comes to the hand or the head from the holiday.

May as well expect an engine to work when the boiler which supplies it with steam is disabled as to expect a man to enjoy good health with his stomach disabled.

It is not the quantity of food a man eats that builds up his body; it is what he digests.

Another holidaying evil is over-indulgence in bathing. People quite unused to it will think nothing of remaining in the water for half an hour or an hour while sojourning at a watering place, when a few minutes is quite sufficient.

Take a holiday, but take care of yourself while you are taking it.

FROM GROCERIES TO MISSIONS.

On August 1 notice was given of the dissolution of the firm of MacWillie Bros., grocers, Yonge street, Toronto, Mr. John MacWillie retiring. The business will be carried on under the old style by Mr. Alex. MacWillie. It is Mr. John MacWillie's purpose to become a medical missionary, and he has been studying for some time with that object in view.

FURTHER ADVANCE IN JAPAN TEAS.

Instead of tending downward, as was anticipated by a good many, the Japan tea market is still tending upward.

Early in the week a cable was received stating that there had been a further advance of $2 per picul within the previous six or seven days.

As quotations were previously about $5 per picul above those of a year ago, this meant an additional $2 in favor of the present season. The actual gain, however, is not $7 per picul, silver being cheaper now than it was a year ago.

The actual difference in price, compared with 1896, is about two cents and a half per pound.

Shippers in Japan claim they are unable to supply low-grade leaf. If this be true, the outlook is obviously for the continuance of a strong market for Japan teas.

The market in Canada is in an unusually healthy condition in regard to Japan teas, the demand from the United States having cleaned up this market of old season's goods.

THE PEA PACK.

A special meeting of the Canadian Packers' Association was held in Toronto on Thursday. President Ferguson presided, and among those present were: A. C. Miller, W. Boulter, D. McAuley, Picton; H. I. Matthews, Lakeport; Thos. Owens, Trenton.

The object of the meeting was to receive reports regarding the pack of peas, strawberries and raspberries.

It was shown that about half a dozen of the members had each packed about seven thousand cases, and one member about 10,000 cases, while the aggregate pack was in the neighborhood of 25,000 cases less than last year.

The strawberry pack was reported to be about the same as last year.

It was the general opinion that the tomato crop was about two weeks later than usual.

The result of the report on peas was a firmer feeling as to prices. Sales had been made as low as 60c., but 65c. now appears to be the idea, although some claim to be holding at 70c. per dozen, which is the figure wholesalers are holding some brands at.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, August 5, 1897.

GROCERIES.

NOTHING particularly new has developed during the week. Business, on the whole, is fairly good, and merchants are looking for a healthier trade this fall than has been enjoyed for some years. The canned goods situation appears to be a little stronger than a week ago. This applies particularly to salmon and peas. In sugar a good trade is still being done, although the refineries are not, perhaps, experiencing as heavy a demand as a week or two ago. The feature of the tea trade is a further advance in the primary market of Japan tea. The tea business on the spot is quiet. The market has been bare of "Prince of Wales" and "Brier," but it is now a little better supplied, a shipment having been received on Friday last. Currants are still in demand and scarce.

CANNED GOODS.

In consequence of the talk of a short pack of peas a firmer feeling exists in the trade in regard to this commodity. In fact, higher prices are being asked, as a rule, by the packers. An effort is being made to create a similar condition of affairs in regard to tomatoes. Canned fruits are receiving little or no attention. There is a wide range in the value of strawberries, some of the canners quoting very low figures, but the quality is held to be inferior. Advices from the Coast indicate a good pack of salmon on the Fraser River, but on some of the northern rivers the pack has so far not been satisfactory. This latter condition has given the market a little better tone, although no actual advances have taken place. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80 to 85c.; corn, 55 to 75c.; peas, 70 to 75c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.50 to $1.80, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $2 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 70 to 95c.; gallons, $1.50 to $1.60; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; cohoes, $1.10 to $1.25; canned mackerel, $1.20 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.70; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.25 to $1.35; 2's, $2.30 to $2.45; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

The market is quiet. The Rio market is weak on account of heavy receipts. Jobbers quote green in bags as follows: Rio, 9½ to 13c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

There is plenty offering, but only an odd barrel or two is wanted. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

Advices from New Orleans state that there is a good enquiry there for molasses. Locally the market is quiet and uninteresting. We quote: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGARS.

There is still a great deal of sugar going out, although the refiners report that the demand has eased off a little temporarily. July was a decidedly heavy sugar month. The demand was chiefly for granulated, although a good many yellows are selling. Cables announce a firmer market in London, prices for Java being 1½d. dearer, while beet for August shipment gained ¾d. In New York the market is quiet. The Trust is holding off and wholesalers are only purchasing to supply present requirements. We quote for Toronto: Granulated—St. Lawrence and Redpath's, 4 7-16c. for single barrel lots and 4⅜c. for 5-barrel lots; Acadia, 4⅜c. for single barrel lots, and 4 5-16c. for 5-barrel lots; yellows, 3½ to 4⅛c. per lb.; German granulated, in 100-lb. sacks, 4⅛ to 4¼c. per lb.; Demerara crystals, 3⅞c.

follows: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 10c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 17c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

There is a steady feeling in regard to nuts on account of the expected short crop in some descriptions. Locally there is nothing of interest to note. We quote: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 18 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

A faitly good demand is to be noted for rice and prices rule steady. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

TEAS.

The feature of the market is the strength of Japan descriptions, the cable announcing a further advance of $2 per picul. Prices are now from 2½ to 3c. per lb. dearer than this time last year. In other teas there are no special features worthy of note. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

Currants are scarce on the spot, and in some descriptions wholesalers are only able to partially fill orders. The scarcity is chiefly in Filiatras and Amalias. In another week or ten days this scarcity will be relieved somewhat, as shipments are due to arrive then from Patras. The first lot of new season's currants will likely rule high on account of the bareness of the market of old fruit. Local wholesalers report a good demand for currants at firm prices. We quote as follows: Provincials, 5¾ to 6c. in bbls.; ditto, half-bbls., 5¾ to 6c.; fine Filiatras, in bbls., 5⅞ to 6c.; do., half-bbls., 5⅞ to 6⅛c.; Patras, 6¼c. in cases; Vostizzas, cases, 7 to 8c.

Valencia raisins are quiet and featureless. We quote: Off-stalk, 4¾ to 5½c.; fine off-stalk, 5½ to 6c.; selected, 6½ to 7c.; layers, 6 to 7c.

Latest mail advices regarding Malaga raisins state that the crop prospects continue good and that prices are likely to rule fully as low as last year.

In an advice bearing date of July 15 C. Whittall & Co., of Smyrna, state that their reports from several districts are not as sanguine as they were. It is the general complaint that the vines are showing poorly on account of the rainy weather of the winter and spring. The evil, they say, may not be as great as reported, but estimates of the yield are already being lowered, some people anticipating a shortage on last year's production. Ruling prices on spot are from 7½ to 10c. per lb.

California loose muscatel raisins are experiencing a better demand for export, and in consequence of this a better feeling obtains as to prices. We quote: 3-crown, 7¼c.; 4-crown, 8 to 8¼c.

Advices regarding figs continue favorable, although the ultimate result of the yield will depend a great deal upon the weather during the next few weeks. Heavy rains or a spell of abnormal heat might lead to a modification of present anticipations. We quote spot goods nominally as follows : 10 oz., 7½c. ; 10 lb., 9 to 10c.; 18 lb., 10 to 12c.; 28 lb., 11 to 13c.; taps, 3¼ to 3½c. net; natural, 4½c. in bags, and 6 to 6½c. in boxes.

Apricots are going out in good supply and the quality is good Prices will be cheaper than last year. We quote California evaporated fruits as follows : Peaches, 7 to 10½c. per lb., according to quality ; apricots, 6½ to 15c.; pears, 5½ to 10½c. ; egg plums, 5½ to 11c. ; silver prunes, 8½ to 13½c.

A cable received this week from Trieste by P. L. Mason & Co. reports the Bosnia prune crop short. California prunes have advanced about ¼c. per lb, from the opening price. Prices are, however, expected to be reasonable, as there is a good crop. We quote as follows : Bosnias, U's (110 to 113 half kilo), 6 to 6½c.; C's (85 to 90 half kilo), 7 to 7½c. per lb. California, 90 to 100's, 6½c. per lb. ; 70 to 80's, 7½c.; 60 to 70's, 7½ to 8c.; 50 to 60's, 8 to 8½c.; 40 to 50's, 9½ to 10½c.; 30 to 40's, 12½ to 13c.; "Ruby" prunes, 7½ to 8c.; French, 4½ to 5c.

Dates are dull. We quote : 5½ to 6c. for Hallowee and 5 to 5¼c. for Kadrowee.

GREEN FRUITS.

The demand for lemons has fallen off to some extent and prices are easier. Oranges are also easier than they have been. The abundance of other fruit has caused a decrease in demand for bananas and prices range low. California fruit continues to arrive and is finding quick sale. Watermelons are attracting considerable attention. Raspberries are about done, and Latton berries are taken their place ; some black raspberries are still to be had, however. Canadian tomatoes are beginning to arrive freely. Huckleberries are now the principal feature on the market ; dealers say that they are arriving in good shape. Peaches are now coming in from the Niagara district plentifully. Judging by the abundance of the early cheap fruit, this crop will likely be very heavy this year. We quote as follows : Oranges—Sorrentos, 300's, $3.50 to $4 per box ; 180's, $2.25 to $2.50 per three-quarter box. Lemons, 300's, 360's, repacked, $4.75 to $5.25 ; original packing, $4.25 to $4.50. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Onions, 2½ to 2¾c. per lb. for Egyptians. Bananas, $1 to $1.50. New cabbage, $1 to $1.25 per bbl. Watermelons, 22 to 30c. California peaches, $1.60 to $1.80 per box; Canadian gooseberries, 25 to 50c. per 12-quart basket ; Canadian cherries, 50 to 75c. per basket ; red currants, 30 to 50c. per basket ; California plums, $1.50 to $1.90 box ; California pears, $2.25 to $2.50

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—Buyers are not at all eager to take butter at present prices, owing to the large proportion of inferior quality. Owing to this fact, a number of dealers have withdrawn their buyers and the country merchant was not prepared to accept market values. He also wanted to sell his butter as a straight lot, while buyers were in favor of taking selections, for which they were paying usual prices. Lower grades were quoted at much lower prices. Best quality is worth about 11½ to 12½c.; cheaper is plentiful at 8 to 9c. Creamery continues firm and in good demand for both local and export purposes. Prices are unchanged: Tubs, 16½ to 17½c.; prints, 17 to 18½c.

CHEESE—Local trade is quiet, retailers taking only for their immediate requirements. The truth of the matter is that there is a disposition on the part of all to buy lightly, as lower prices are looked for. Prices easy at 7½ to 7⅞c. and selling at 8½ to 8¾c.

SALT.

Trade in salt fell off during the week, and dealers attribute the change to the weather. An immediate improvement is looked for. Prices are unchanged. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 60c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl. and 65c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

FISH.

The demand is not quite so steady as it was last week. Prices are unchanged. We quote: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 6½c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

PROVISIONS.

An active demand continues in all lines, and we learn of a number of lines having been sold out, among which are spiced rolls, picnic hams and backs. In other lines stocks are very light, and from continued high price of live hogs and brisk export demand it looks as if every line would be far short.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $13 to $13.50; Canadian short-cut, $16; clear shoulder mess, $12.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—We quote: Red wheat, 75c.; white, 76c.; oats, 22½ to 23½c.; peas, 43 to 45c.

FLOUR—Trade is active. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $4.75; Manitoba strong bakers', $4.30; Ontario patents, $4.40 to $4.50; straight roller, $3.80 to $3.90, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—Trade has improved slightly. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.10 in bags and $3.20 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.60 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.30 to $2.40; split peas, $3 to $3.25; pot barley, $3 to $3.25.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—There are still more eggs coming forward than are required for local consumption, and there is also a good deal of complaint about quality, so that it is necessary to divide the receipts into two classes. No. 2 are selling at 8 to 9c., and No. 1 at 9½ to 10½c.

POTATOES—The scarcity in new potatoes is over; plentiful supplies are now coming in. Dealers are paying $1.25 per bbl. and selling at $1.50. Old potatoes are firm at 30c. a bag.

HONEY—Trade in the light variety continues active. Retailers are buying freely. Buckwheat is dull at 3c. We quote light at: 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.; 5 and 10-lb. tins, 6½ to 7c.; comb, $1.50 to $1.75 per dozen.

DRIED APPLES—Requirements are much lighter than they were last week. There is no alteration in prices. The idea as to price now is 2½ to 3c. f.o.b. The local jobbing price ranges from 2¼c. upward.

EVAPORATED APPLES—The market is firmer, although there is no demand. Buyers are paying 3¾ to 4c. f.o.b. Jobbers are quoting 4½c. upward.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—Trade is quite brisk. Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3. Steerhides: 60 lbs. and up, 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS—Trade is brisk and prices are firm. No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS—We quote: Lambskins and pelts, 50c.

WOOL—The fact that there is hardly any wool coming forward is enough in itself to keep up the price. Dealers predict that as soon as trade picks up the price of wool can do nothing but drop. Price now is 19 to 20c.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

Lubricating oils are moving out lively, and illuminating oils are dull. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14½c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

Canned peas are being held higher.

Japan tea is cabled $2 per picul higher.

There is a strong tendency to easier prices in cheese.

California prunes have advanced ¼c. per lb. in the primary market.

It is expected that a small quantity of Valencia raisins will be ready for shipment by August 1.

Telegraphic advices from Turner, Beeton & Co. state that the salmon pack on the Fraser River up to August 2 was 350,000 cases.

J. F. Ramsay & Co., tea merchants, have removed from Mincing lane to the Gooderham building, where they have a suite of handsome offices on the second flat.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, August 5, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THERE has been quite an active business in heavy and staple groceries during the past week. Activity in sugar has been a dominant fact and the free purchasing by jobbers at the refineries indicates that stocks are not large. Dried fruit news is of much the same character as it was last week. First offers came to hand this week on new canned tomatoes and corn that are considered very low, in fact an advance on the opening price is confidently expected by many. Teas have shown a fair degree of activity during the week and there has been more doing in molasses.

SUGAR.

The sugar market continues active and strong on spot, while there has been an improved feeling noted also in raws abroad. Stocks generally are light, both in first and second hands here, and the active demand experienced on preserving account makes this all the more marked. Values are held firm at the refineries, who are sending out carload lots quite freely, while in a jobbing way we quote: Granulated steady, at 4⅛c. for 1 to 9 barrels and 4 1-16c. for 10 barrels and over, with yellows ranging from 3⅜ to 3¾c., as to quality.

SYRUPS.

There has been little to report in syrups since last report, and we quote as before, 1⅜ to 1⅞c. as to quality.

MOLASSES.

There has been an active inquiry for Barbadoes and other molasses since last report, and besides several round lots have changed hands, as jobbers found that their stocks were getting down altogether too low. In round lots Barbadoes has commanded 22½c. ex store, and Porto Rico, 24c. In a jobbing way values are steady at 23c. for Barbadoes and Porto Rico, 29c. for fancy, 25c. for choice and 22c. for prime.

RICE.

Business in rice is of a quiet but steady character. We quote: Crystal Japan, $4.50 to $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $4.50 to $5; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

There has been no material change in spices, business ruling fairly active. We quote as follows: Black pepper, 9c.; pure white, 14 to 17c.; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

Demand for coffee is exceedingly slow and prices would very likely be shaded in the case of a good round order. We quote: Maracaibo, 16 to 19c.; Santos, 12 to 15c.; Rio, 12 to 16c.; Mocha, 24c., and Java, 25c.

TEAS.

There has been a fair demand for tea from first hands, jobbers operating quite freely in new crop Japans during the week at a range of 15½ to 18½c. as to quality. In a jobbing way also quite a fair enquiry has been experienced for Japans, blacks, etc. We quote as follows: Young Hysons, 13 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 12 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 16½ to 20c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

CANNED GOODS.

Advices regarding new pack vegetables are of a firmer character. First offers on new pack corn and tomatoes were made to the trade here this week by Ontario packers, corn being offered at 55c. and tomatoes at 70c. These prices are considered very low, and if the intelligence this week is subsequently borne out higher prices seem assured, as the figures named leave the packers little or nothing to work on. It is also estimated that the strawberry pack will be light, and the scarcity of lobsters is now assured by all the ruling circumstances. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80c.; corn, 50 to 80c.; peas, 80c.; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 85 to 90c.; gallons, $1.55 to $1.65; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.40 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.35; "Lion," $1.37½ to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.30, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

Though further offers have been received here on Valencia raisins many agents refuse to quote a hard and fast figure, but are accepting open orders which may be endorsed or cancelled as thought proper after the middle of the present month, by which time values at primary markets will be on a definite basis. Offers so far received range all the way from 14s. 6d. to 16s. for fine off-stalk, cost and freight Montreal.

California raisins continue steady and sales agents of these also refuse to name a fixed price, but are accepting open orders for early shipments based on the prices that may be ruling on and after August 15. There is little to trade in on spot and prices are nominal.

Currants are quiet but firm here, and foreign advices continue of a very steady character.

Prunes are quiet and nominal, and dates are without feature.

NUTS.

The same as last reported. We quote: Grenoble walnuts, 10 to 11c.; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; and cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100.

DRIED APPLES.

Dried apples are quiet at 2 to 2½c., and evaporated at 3¾ to 4¼c.

GREEN FRUIT.

An active business has been transacted in green fruit during the past week. We quote: Valencia oranges, $6 per case; bloods, $2.50 to $3 per half-box, and Messinas, $3 to $3.50 per box; lemons, $3.75 to $4.50 per box for choice, and $2.75 to $3.50 for common; bananas, $1.25 to $1.65 per bunch; Canadian cherries, 40 to 75c. per basket; apricots, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; California peaches, $1 to $1.25 per box; do plums, $1.25 per box; pineapples, 10c. each; Canadian strawberries, 7 to 10c.; raspberries, 5½ to 10c.; blueberries, $1 per box. Egyptian onions, 4c. per lb., and Bermuda ditto, 3c. per lb., and $3 per crate.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—There was no change in the situation of the egg market. The demand is good and prices rule firm. Selected near-by stock sold at 10½ to 11c.; ordinary No. 1 at 9 to 9½c., and No. 2 at 8 to 8½c. per dozen.

MAPLE PRODUCT—Business in maple product shows no improvement, and values are unchanged. We quote: Maple syrup, 4¾ to 5c. per lb., and 45 to 55c. per tin; sugar, 5 to 6c. per lb.

HONEY — The demand for honey is exceedingly slow and prices are nominal. White clover comb is offering at 10c., and dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c., and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

BEANS—Are also slow of sale at this season, and car lots are offering at 55 to 60c., and small lots at 65 to 70c.

PROVISIONS.

A fairly active trade is reported in provisions, the demand being still good for smoked meats, and pork and lard are moving fairly well. Prices rule firm, with an upward tendency, owing to the steady advance in hogs of late, they selling ¼c. per lb. higher again to-day. We quote: Canadian pork, $14.50 to $15 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, at 6¾ to 7¼c., and "We believe in Cottams Seed."

We know of no grocer, wholesale or retail, whose profit on bird food has not largely increased when handling Cottams Seed. The literature in connection with this celebrated brand is a great encouragement for your customers to keep birds. It keeps up their interest in feathered pets, and induces them to keep a greater number—It keeps them on the right track in attending to their birds—Keeps their birds in health, song and beautiful plumage—And, best of all, keeps the customers running to the grocer for Cottams Seed.

We urge you to handle Cottams Seed, because it's a good thing—pays us—pays you—pays all who handle it.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

There continues to be an active demand for flour, and millers state that the volume of business is large at the full advance in prices. The demand from abroad was also good, and some large sales will likely be put through by to-morrow. The tone of the market on the whole is strong, and another advance of 25c. per barrel is expected in the near future. Sales reported were: 16 carloads strong bakers'; 1,500 bags choice Ontario straight roller, at $1.85; 500 do., at $1.90, and 500 barrels at $3.85. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $4.10 to $4.25; straight rollers, $3.75 to $3.85, and in bags, $1.80 to $1.90; best Manitoba strong bakers', $4 25; second do., $3.75, and low grades, $2.15; Hungarian patents, $4.65.

A good enquiry is experienced for Manitoba feed, but owing to the small offerings at present the volume of business is curtailed and prices are firmly held at $13 to $13.50 for bran, and at $14 to $14.50 for shorts, including bags.

The decline in prices for meal was no inducement to buyers, as holders state they offered rolled oats to-day freely at $3.50 per barrel without meeting with buyers. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.50 per barrel, $1.70 per bag; standard meal, $3.40 per barrel, and $1.65 per bag.

BALED HAY.

The easy feeling noted in hay last week continued this week, but at the present writing prices are steady. We quote: No. 1, $11.50 to $12; No. 2, $10 to $10.50, car lots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

The cheese market was without any new feature of note. There was some enquiry for finest and undergrade goods, but the volume of business was small. The tone of the market is steady in sympathy with country advices, and values show no important change. Finest Ontario cheese, 8¼ to 8½c.; finest Townships cheese, 7⅞ to 8c.; finest Quebec cheese, 7¾ to 7⅞c.; under grades, 7⅜ to 7½c.

There was some enquiry from shippers to-day for finest creamery, and a round lot was placed at 17½c. and a bid of 17¼c. was made for another lot, but the holder had not accepted it up to late in the day. Finest creamery, 17¼ to 17½c.; seconds, 16 to 16½c.; dairy butter, 12 to 12½.

MONTREAL NOTES.

Cable offers on Valencia raisins range all the way from 14s. 6d. to 16s., cost and freight Montreal.

Jobbers here have been quite active buyers of new crop Japan teas at a range of 15½ to 18½c. as to grade.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 5, 1897.

BUSINESS during the week has been rather quiet. New teas are to hand. The quantity bought is much less than last year, owing to the large quantity bought in the spring. Demand for tea is quiet. There is less life in the lumber business, the market in England having become overstocked. It is now thought quite a quantity of the lumber shippers have bought will be wintered on this side. Shipments as yet remain heavy. Markets have shown little change during the week. Flour, the active feature of last week, is firm, with Manitoba rather higher. Dry fish have shown quite an advance. In lard the price keeps low. Cheese and butter are easier. The West India steamer brought quite a little Barbadoes molasses this trip, a larger proportion than usual of which was in bbls. The price is low. Green fruit is active. There is, however, a noticeable shortage of Nova Scotia cherries, which at this season are usually very plentiful.

OIL—The demand is quiet in all lines. There is, however, a better outlook for burning oil as the days are becoming shorter. In cod oil small quantities continue to arrive. Market shows little life. It is difficult to get it good, fishermen putting dogfish oil with it. We quote: Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.

SALT—There is a fair demand, but little of real interest to report. The steamer which is to load at Liverpool with general cargo for St. John will, no doubt, bring out a quantity of coarse and factory-filled. Parties wanting to buy in the near future would do well to keep this lot in mind, as the price from the ship's side will be lower than regular market price. Canadian salt for dairy and table use is in steady demand. We quote as follows: Coarse, 44 to 47c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 90c. to $1; Canadian fine, $1 to $1.05 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz.; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS—There is little new. Dealers are anxiously waiting for new peas. They will, no doubt, be in the market before this report is read. Peas are held firm. Packers say they will soon have to advance prices owing to short pack. For the same reason packers are firm on corn. Business is not as active, either from the standpoint of buyer or seller, as last year. Salmon is offered delivered at a little lower price, owing largely to a reduction in freight. Oysters are becoming difficult to get in Balimore, and holders here are firmer. Canned meats show good steady demand at even prices. We quote: Corn, 65 to 70c.; peas, 75 to 85c.; tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; gallon apples, $1.75 to $1.80; corned beef, Canadian, $2.20 to $2.30; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.40 to $2.50; 1-lb tins, $1.30 to $1.50; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.25; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.25 to $2.75; salmon, $1.25 to $1.40; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.15 to $1.25; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

We cannot

change Advertisements in this paper after 5 o'clock p. m. Tuesday of week of issue. Advertising copy which reaches us later will have to be held over till following week.

GREEN FRUIT—There is the regular large summer business doing. The demand is for bananas and pears chiefly. Oranges are poor. Lemons are quoted rather higher. There is always at this season a large sale. Pines are about out of the market. The melon trade has been somewhat pushed owing to large arrivals. This is the active season; prices easy. California peaches and plums have a good sale. Very few native tomatoes and cucumbers yet to hand. The market is supplied from Boston. Raspberries are short crop this year. In wild berries less are being shipped than usual. Cherries, which are usually so plentiful at this season, are an entire failure. Apples and plums, particularly the latter, will be light crop. We quote as follows: Lemons, $5 to $5.50; oranges, $5 to $5.50; bananas, $1.25 to $2; pineapples, 10 to 12c.; raspberries, 10 to 12c.; new apples, $4 to $5 per bbl.; California peaches, $1.75 to $2; California plums, $1.75 to $2; California pears, $2.50 to $3; melons, 30 to 40c.; lettuce, 25 to 30c. per doz.; cucumbers, 35 to 40c. per doz.; tomatoes, $2.50 to $3.

DRIED FRUIT—Quite a few dealers have placed their orders this week for peels. In California raisins there is nothing yet doing in new. The old fruit continues to come in in small quantities to fill present needs, the market being bare. Some Valencias for early shipment have been ordered, but not in large quantities. Currants are hardly as strong, but, owing to short stock, prices are maintained. In evaporated and dried apples stocks here are not large, and prices are firmer. There are a good many dried in Nova Scotia, but it is said there will not be many new ones. In onions, those from Malta are now taking the place of the Egyptian. The price is about the same. Peanuts are rather higher. We quote: Raisins, Valencias, 5¼ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c.; prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples, 4½ to 5c.; onions, 2¾ to 3c. per lb.; cocoanuts, $2.50 to $3.50 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Valencias, layers, 6 to 7c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.

SUGAR—There is a good steady demand. Refineries are principally selling yellows here, stocks of granulated being still quite large. Prices are firm. We quote: Granulated, 4⅛ to 4¼c.; yellows, 3¼ to 3⅝c.; Paris lump, 5¼ to 5½c.; powdered, 5 to 5¼c.

MOLASSES — Quite a little Barbadoes arrived this week by steamer. There is but a fair demand. While the price keeps low, market is firmer, largely because of the short supply of Porto Rico, which is the grade now having the demand. Its price is quoted rather higher. There was a small quantity of St. Kitts molasses brought by the last steamer. This grade sells low here. We quote: Barbadoes, 22 to 24c.; Porto Rico, 26 to 30c.; New Orleans, bbls., 25 to 27c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.

FISH—There is a fair, active demand for dried cod. The stocks are small and the higher prices are firmly held, particularly medium. Even pollock is rather firmer. Smoked herring hold their advance. There is always quite a sale here, and receipts have been light of late. Pickled herring keep dull and low. Fresh fish season, except haddock and shad, is about over. The catch of shad at this season here is never large. Large catches have been made in Nova Scotia at up-bay points. In salmon, while very few are being received, prices are lower owing to western salmon coming into the American market. We quote as follows: Large cod, $3.15 to $3.25; medium, $2.90 to $3.10; pollock, $1.15 to $1.25; bay herring, $1.20 to $1.30 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 6½ to 7½c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50; boneless, 2½ to 8c.; Barrington, $3 per bbl.; Shelburne, $3.25 per bbl.; halibut, 9 to 10c. per lb.; salmon, 18 to 20c.; boneless, 3½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.; shad, 9 to 10c. each.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Cheese, of which the make in these lower provinces will be very large this season, tend lower, particularly the early made cheese. There is a fair, steady demand. Butter is dull, and coming in much too freely to please dealers.

The low price and large supply of dairy butter has so affected the sale of creamery that it hardly has a place in the market. Eggs, while stocks are not large, are dull at quotation. We quote : Dairy butter, 13 to 16c. ; creamery, 17 to 18c. ; prints, 18 to 20c. ; cheese, 9¼ to 9½c. ; eggs, 9 to 9½c.

PROVISIONS—In pork and beef, while there is but small sale, the price is well kept up to quotation. Hams are higher, but the demand is hardly as active. Lard is a little firmer, but still very low. Dealers are well supplied. We quote as follows : Clear pork, $13.50 to $14.50 ; mess, $12 to $13 ; plate beef, $12 to $13 ; hams 13 to 13½c. ; rolls, 9½ to 10c. ; pure lard, 6¾ to 7¼c. ; compound, 6¼ to 6½c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—The advance of last week in Ontario flour is maintained. In Manitoba there is a small further advance. There is a good steady demand. In oatmeal the price keeps high, and many brokers find it impossible to sell at the prices asked by the millers they represent. Oats and feed keep high. Cornmeal is not as plentiful, and there is a slight advance. The price of hay is easier, with the prospect of a fair crop. We quote : Manitoba flour, $4.85 to $4.90 ; best Ontario, $4.45 to $4.50; medium, $4.10 to $4.25; oatmeal, $3.60 to $3.70 ; cornmeal, $1.85 to $1.90; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $15 to $16 ; bran, do, do, $13.50 to $14.50; hand-picked beans, 85 to 90c. ; prime, 75 to 80c. ; oats, 33 to 34c. ; hay, $12.50 to $13 ; barley, $2.75 to $3 ; round peas, $1.15; split peas, $2.85 to $3 ; yellow eye beans, $1.50 ; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25 ; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2 ; clover, 8¾ to 9c. ; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

Str. Treasure will take Manchester and Liverpool freight for St. John direct, leaving the other side about April 10.

Mr. Fred Tippet is now offering Courtenay's Worcestershire sauce to the trade, having been appointed their agent.

It is said Mr. Harry R. M'Lellan, of this city, intends buying a tract of land and building a lumber mill in Labrador.

W. A. Porter has in his fine retail grocery store an excellent display of Heinz's pickles. These goods are becoming popular here.

Shad have been caught in large quantities at Scot's Bay, N.S. In one night upward of 40,000 were taken. This, however, was an unusually large catch.

Str. Halifax City brought a box of New Zealand apples of early varieties this trip, which had been in cold storage sixty days. They arrived in splendid condition.

Retail druggists report a noticeable increase in the demand for Robinson's patent barley, even in parts of the city where a few months ago it had really no sale.

THE GROCER regrets very much to have to report the death of Thomas H. Foster, who for so many years was on the road for the Eastern Oil Co. Few men traveling through these provinces had as many friends as he.

Dulse is having a large sale now. Some very fine is in the market. The best comes from Grand Manan. Thos. Gorman, the well-known wholesale grocer, is one of the largest handlers here. Large quantities are shipped west.

The West India steamer did not have a very large cargo this trip. It included 640 bags cocoanuts from Trinidad, 300 casks and 300 bbls. of Barbadoes molasses, 73 bbls. Barbadoes sugar, and 10 casks and 28 bbls. St. Kitts molasses.

The trade was quite surprised this week by W. C. McDonald making a further advance in the price of his tobaccos of from one to three cents. This, added to the large profit holders are making on account of the increased duty, means a big thing.

St. John lost, in the death last week of Mr. Ira Cornwall, secretary of the Board of Trade, a gentleman who has been active in all efforts to advance the city's interest, giving perhaps more time than he could afford. THE GROCER wishes to join the late Mr. Cornwall's many friends is extending to his family its sympathy in this the time of their great sorrow.

TWO BROTHERS.

IT is usually a source of gratification to a merchant when his sons express a desire and exhibit aptitude for his own particular business. His feelings are somewhat akin to those of a monarch unto whom an heir is born. Merchants, like monarchs, like to see the line of succession maintained.

The accompanying cuts are from photographs of the two sons of Mr. Joseph F. Eby, of the Eby, Blain Co., of Toronto, Limited, who have recently been advanced to important positions in the firm of which their father is the president. And no doubt Mr. Eby feels just as any other sensible parent would under the circumstances.

W. Percy Eby entered the firm's warehouse about four years ago, having come there from a year spent at the Toronto University, previous to which he had passed through Upper Canada College, the Alma Mater of so many of Canada's business men. Originally his intention was to become a lawyer, but during his year at the University he changed his mind.

W. Percy Eby.

"I have," he explained, when announcing to a relative his decision to give up Blackstone for business, "during my year at Varsity, met so many briefless lawyers that I have decided on a mercantile career."

He was then a young man of about 21, but he had to take a position at the lowest rung in the ladder. He gradually worked his way through the office, the shipping room into the sample room. In the last-named department he has been for a year or two performing various offices, until the resignation of Mr. Seyler a couple of weeks ago left vacant the management of that department, into which he was forthwith placed, under the superintendence of Mr. Joseph F. Eby, who, of course, has always been the presiding genius in the sample room.

Mr. Percy Eby is a pleasant and even-tempered young man. "During the four years he has been here I never saw him lose his temper," said one of the firm's travelers. He is in love with his work, and consequently takes a delight in doing it. He is energetic and is indefatigable in his efforts to please the customers of the firm.

Hugh Douglas Eby.

Hugh Douglas Eby, like his brother Percy, passed through Upper Canada College and put in one year at Varsity. But unlike his brother, he, from the beginning, had set mercantile pursuits as his goal, and all through his college days kept that goal in view. He, too, entered the warehouse about four years ago. In fact, he and his brother made their bow together. His sphere has been confined to the office, for which he has a special aptitude. This department is under the special supervision of Mr. Hugh Blain, the vice-president of the company, and although Douglas, as his friends call him, had to begin at the foot of the ladder, he has gradually worked his way up through the various positions until a few months ago he was made manager. How much warranted the company was in putting him into that position is proven by the results : The work has become more systematized and is done with less labor. Although he has only been in the position about six months, he has got all the accounts at his fingers' ends. "He is the best office man we have ever had," said one of the members of the company. He also possesses the qualities so essential to a man in his position : A cool head and a pleasant manner.

The two brothers are to be congratulated on their promotion, and Mr. Eby is to be congratulated upon the fact that he has sons worthy of being promoted to the positions they now fill.

Robertson, Lindsay & Wilcox have purchased the Cochrane foundry property, St. Thomas, and will open out a large department store therein. About $10,000 will be spent in remodelling. It is expected that the new premises will be ready for occupation in September.

LONDON GROCERS' PICNIC.

THE seventh annual picnic of the Retail Grocers' Association of London, was held last Thursday in Queen's Park. A large number of citizens joined the merry picnickers and spent an enjoyable day. The threatening sky, however, deterred many from turning out to witness the sports.

The main attraction of the day was the procession of decorated wagons which paraded from the Market Square at 10 a.m. along Dundas street to Queen's Park. The Musical Society Band led, and there were about twenty decorated rigs in line, followed by nearly the same number of carriages, containing the grocers and their clerks. Piper Angus was present in his Highland costume. The marshal was Mr. J. C. Trebilcock. Messrs. Thomas Gillean and W. H. Ferguson were the judges of the turnouts, and awarded prizes for the best decorated horse and rig as follows: First, F. H. Harley; second, T. A. Rowat; third, A. McCormick; fourth, N. McLeod; fifth, T. M. Shoebottom; sixth, W. T. Stenberg.

On arriving at the park a baseball match between the grocers and travelers was played. During the noon hour parties grouped in various parts of the park and lunched in true picnic style. At 2 o'clock the track events, that numbered about 20, were run off successfully.

Taking into consideration the threatening weather, which prevented a larger crowd from attending, the Managing Committee can congratulate themselves on having arranged for such an enjoyable time. This committee consisted of: F. Harley, president; R. A. Jones, vice-president; E. Sutton, secretary, and W. H. Branton, treasurer.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

This department has become so popular that many more notices than there is space for are received every week. In future only important items of information will be inserted. Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.]

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, have Montserrat lime juice in stock.

W. H. Gillard & Co. are offering cohoe salmon in flat tins at low prices.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, report a good sale for Gillard's Relish.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, report the arrival of 200 sacks green Rio coffee ex ss. Flaxman.

Another car of cheap salmon is to hand this week for the Davidson & Hay, Limited.

Cudahy's "Rex" Vienna sausage, in ½-lb. and 1-lb. tins, is in stock with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

W. H. Gillard & Co. are showing some good lines of new season's May picked Japan teas.

"Anchor" salmon to arrive, the firm's own brand, is being booked freely by the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. state that there has not been such an active demand for all lines of hog products for many years as there is at present. This is due doubtless to the great favor Canadian bacon is finding on the British market.

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

[The following items arrived too late for insertion in the regular advertising space. Reading notices inserted in this column at 5c. per word.]

T. A. Lytle & Co. have won an enviable reputation as vinegar manufacturers. White wine, malt and cider are what they make.

"'Le Roy' salt, from the celebrated salt district in northern New York, is specially adapted for table use, and we are moving it freely," say the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

"New York" ginger ale, for which W. H. Gillard & Co. are wholesale agents, is making for itself an enviable reputation in the Lower Provinces, where large shipments have been made this season.

MONTREAL GROCERS' PICNIC.

THE Grocers' Association of Montreal do not appear to be on good terms with the clerk of the weather. The date chosen for their annual picnic was July 14, but so unfavorable was the weather that it had to be postponed until July 29. The grocers, however, were equally unfortunate as regards weather on the second date. Torrents of rain fell in the early morning, and at 9 o'clock, the hour at which the excursion was to leave, it showed no sign of clearing. Notwithstanding this, a large crowd was on hand and everyone evidently intended to enjoy himself in spite of the downpour.

On the arrival at the picnic grounds of Ste. Rose, at about 11.15, the voting contest to decide who was the most popular grocer in Montreal took place. Great interest had been taken in this, and the rival candidates were kept busy canvassing their friends. Some of the aspirants to honor had issued election cards soliciting support, while others trusted to their personal charms alone. The result of the voting was as follows: 1st. Mr. V. Raby; 2nd. Mr. De Repentigny; 3rd. Mr. N. Lapointe; 4th. Mr. S. Demers; 5th. Mr. S. D. Vallieres; 6th. Mr. J. H. Howard; 7th. Mr. J. B. Vanier.

After the result had been announced the various candidates addressed their friends and created much amusement by their timely hits.

A banquet was given during the afternoon in a large tent erected on the grounds, and was well attended. President Vallieres presided and seated with him as guests of honor were: Mr. P. A. Chauvin, M.P.; Ald. Laporte; Hon. P. E. Leblanc, Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of Quebec; Dr. Ouimet, Mayor of Ste. Rose; Ald. Grothe, M.P.; Dr. Rodier, Mr. John Robertson, Ex-Ald. Thos. Gauthier, H. Dupre, M.P., Ald. Jacques, Mr. J. MacBeth Taylor and others.

In graceful language Mr. Vallieres proposed "The Queen" which was drunk with the usual honors.

Dr. Rodier proposed the health of "The Federal Government." He spoke in high terms of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and said that if French Conservatives did not agree with Laurier, they were proud of him. Mr. Chauvin responded in a neat and witty speech.

"The Local Government" was proposed by Mr. H. Dupre and was responded to by Hon. P. E. Leblanc in a happy speech. He considered grocers the most charitable of men. It was seldom that a hungry man or woman was turned away empty-handed by a grocer.

The toast of "The Mayor and City Council of Montreal" brought forth an amusing speech from Mr. John Robertson. He thought the city's law makers were much abused. They were accused of boodling, but the revenue of the city of Montreal had doubled itself ten times over in the last forty years, and he did not believe there was a dollar more boodled now than then. Replies were made by Ald. Laporte and Turner.

In a few well chosen words Mr. John Robertson proposed "Our Guests," to which Ald. Laporte made a suitable reply.

A toast to "The Grocery Clerks' Association" and "The Grocery Travelers' Association" evoked amusing speeches from Mr. H. J. Cloran, Mr. S. Demers and Mr. A. F. Hodge.

"The Wholesale Grocery Trade of Montreal" was proposed by Mr. John Robertson. In responding Mr. Laporte referred to that gentleman as one of the most popular grocers in Montreal.

Mr. Vallieres, in a pleasing speech, then proposed the health of "The Mayor and Council of Ste. Rose." A witty reply was made by Dr. Ouimet, Mayor of the town. Hon. Mr. Leblanc also spoke.

In a speech full of humor and eloquence Mr. S. Demers proposed the ever-popular toast of "The Ladies." He was followed by Mr. J. P. Dixon, who, in proposing the health of "The Press," said many nice things of the newspapers.

With the singing of the National Anthem the gathering dispersed.

The complete programme of sports was carried out in spite of wet weather and a bad track. The following are the winners in the various competitions :

100 yards race, open to book-keepers and salesmen in retail trade—G. Hamilton, 1 ; J. E. Hutton, 2 ; J. McIntyre, 3.

Potato race, 50 yards, open—W. Farrell, 1 ; P. Creamer, 2 ; W. Creamer, 3.

Quarter-mile race, open to amateurs—W. Creamer, 1 ; G. Hamilton, 2 ; W. Farrell, 3.

100 yards race, open to chairmen of committees—J. P. Dixon, 1 ; S. Demers, 2 ; J. O. Levesque, 3 ; E. Upton, 4.

One mile bicycle race, open to those connected with the wholesale or retail grocery trade—J. H. Connolly, 1 ; F. Gerard, 2 ; W. Monteith, 3.

Three-legged race, open—W. and P. Creamer, 1 ; Messrs. Franklyn and Roland, 2.

75 yards race, open to girls 12 years and under—Bertha Vallieres, 1 ; Mabel Robinson, 2 ; Grace Wray, 3.

In the chase after the greasy pig, J. Lonergan was the successful competitor.

Consolation race—W. Carter, 1 ; H. Provencher, 2 ; F. Dowse, 3.

A competition for the most popular grocery traveler or manufacturers' agent resulted in a victory for Mr. E. Massicotte, traveler for Hudon & Orsali, of Montreal.

Excellent music having been provided in the pavilion, dancing was enjoyed during the afternoon.

Over six hundred people were present and all agreed that in spite of the rain the day had been a most enjoyable one.

STALACTITIC TANNING.

ABOUT twelve months ago, not far from Streitberg, in Bavaria, during a search for minerals in ground containing stalactites, a number of skins were found which must have lain buried in the soil some thousands of years. Nothing can, of course, be ascertained as to how the skins came there, but it is more than probable that the place in which they were found was in olden times a stalactite cave, and it might have been the intention of the people dwelling near to prepare the skins for clothing. The skins were entrusted to a tanner in the neighborhood of Streitberg, who informed us in confidence of what had been discovered, and submitted one of the skins for our inspection, on the understanding that the matter should be kept secret for a time. The skins had evidently been tanned by a most peculiar process. They possessed the softness and toughness of mineral (chrome) leather, were wonderfully elastic, and on attempts to dye them being made it turned out that they were capable of receiving the finest tints. But in the dyeing process a very striking peculiarity manifested itself. On the grain surface of the skins appeared a strange kind of marking, such as is seen in the case of stalactites in the stalactite cave. It was essentially a mineral tannage, the effect, partially, of calcareous spar, and partially of aragonite. The tanner who had the custody of the skins immediately commenced a series of experiments with other skins, with the view of manufacturing leather on a large scale in a similar way. The abundance of stalactites in the neighborhood of Streitberg afforded him every opportunity of carrying out his experiments. After several failures he has now met with perfect success, and we have seen several hundred skins of this new stalactite leather, the peculiar marking and coloring of which appear to make it eminently adapted for a variety of purposes, such as upholstering work, carpets, portfolio leather, dress shoes, etc. A number of experts and capitalists have interested themselves in this novelty, and as the judgment pronounced upon it is unanimously favorable, and a great future is foreseen for it, a company with abundant capital is being formed to work it, to be called the "Stalactite Leather Company," having its seat at Frankfort-on-the-Main.

The announcement respecting stalactite leather made in our last week's number has deservedly attracted a great deal of attention, and quite a flood of enquiries has been received by us in consequence. The execution of the stalactite tanning process is, however, an unsolvable riddle for many practical people. One of the best authorities writes us that it will be impossible to carry it out without warmth as an accessory, and we are inclined to think he is right. The new company mentioned last week has, it now appears, even before it has definitely seen the light, found a competitor. We learn from Bielefeld that a "First German Stalactite Leather Company" has been formed in Delbruck. Another innovation to be worked by the syndicate is a preparation of "Polar Leather Grease." Arctic explorers have often noticed that the polar snow is soft and greasy to the touch. The reason for this is to be sought in the fact that the fatty exhalations from the carcases of seals, fish, etc., which come to their end in immense numbers every year in the Arctic regions, form a chemical combination with the snow in the upper regions, and in this state of combination return again to the earth. From this snow, by means of a peculiar process, is produced the polar leather grease, the properties of which far transcend those of degras or fish oil. The difficulties in the way of erecting works in the Arctic regions for the manufacture of this grease are naturally too great to be attempted, and therefore the raw material—the polar snow—will have to be brought here, and this is the first problem to be solved in connection with this matter. In order, therefore, to afford time for a solution of this problem, the definite constitution of the new company has been postponed to the 1st of April next year.—Kuhlow's German Trade Review.

PROFIT ON TEA.

A summary of the returns made to investors by 94 Indian and Ceylon tea companies shows a total paid-up share capital of £7,261,635, on which last year a net profit of £719,426 was made, or an average return of 9.90 per cent. The Indian companies, the teas of which last year sold at an average price of 8¾d. per pound, are represented by a capital of £4,730,523, and made last year a net profit of 9.45 per cent. The Ceylon teas, the average price of which in 1896 was 8¼d. per pound, made a return of £272,229 on a capital of £2,531,112, or 10.75 per cent. It is further noted that the cheapest of the Ceylon teas, those which sold under the average of 8¼d. per pound, were the most remunerative from the investor's point of view, giving a return of 12½ per cent. against 9.10 per cent obtained from those selling above the average price, and against 11.62 per cent. made by the best class of Indian teas—those which realized an average of over 10½d. per pound.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. H. T. Wilson, of J. L. Watt & Scott, left on Tuesday for a two-weeks' holiday tour.

TRADE CHAT.

THE Woodstock, N.B., Board of Trade are communicating with the railway authorities and with the Boards of Trade in Montreal and Toronto in regard to having the passenger rates between Woodstock and western points reduced. Now the return rate to Boston is $18, and return to Montreal is $26, although Boston is about 30 miles farther away than Montreal.

Eighty-three pounds of tobacco was seized at London last week by Officers Minhinnick and Murphy. It had been smuggled from Detroit.

Last week the Staffordville cheese factory shipped 600 boxes of cheese. The Kirby cheese factory sold 250 boxes of its June cheese at 7⅞c.

The establishment of a pork-packing business is being agitated in Guelph, Ont. It has been proposed to utilize the Laughlin-Hough establishment, but the health authorities did not favor the situation.

G. A. Deadman, the noted bee raiser, of Brussels, reported fair prospects for a good honey yield, with plenty of swarms. The largest number in one day has been fifteen. He has now over 250 colonies, or upwards of 5,000,000 bees.

Thomas Conners, a broker, of Paris, Ont., is missing and is "wanted" for about $4,800. He went to Buffalo last week, and Paris operators, who held sugar, wanted to close out and take the profits, which were about $3,500.

Gordon & Ironside, Winnipeg, are making large shipments of cattle. The grass-fed cattle are now ready for shipment, and as prices are good, many herds are being secured for export. By this firm alone, 10,000 head were exported in June.

U.S. SUGAR TARIFF.

The new tariff bill reduces the American refiners' protection on Dutch granulated and other non-bounty sugars from .281 to .139 cent, or, say, 50 per cent. reduction, and on fine German granulated the reduction is from .324 cent to .189 cent per pound, or, say, 41 per cent. reduction, and on first marks granulated the protection is reduced from .2632 cent to .189 cent per pound, or 28 per cent reduction. This statement gives the actual status of the new bill as regards refiners' protection from a strictly business standpoint, without assumptions or theories of any kind. Actual business is being put through or can be put through on the basis of the figures given. Under these circumstances it is difficult to see wherein the American refining industry has received adequate protection for the safety of its business.—Willett & Gray's Statistical.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 5, 1897.

THE Crow's Nest Pass Railway has helped to brighten things in the grocery and provision line, and the C.P.R. deserve credit for the way in which they have thrown these contracts into the hands of Winnipeg merchants. Almost every wholesale house in town has had more or less business for the new railway. In canned goods the offerings from eastern houses are very brisk, but few purchases are being made. Dealers are still shy, waiting for prices to settle. The market here is pretty well cleared out in the lines of corn, tomatoes and peas, with the exception of peas, of which two carloads, fresh pack, were received last week. Tomatoes are particularly bare; in fact, only one wholesale house has any stock on hand, and it bas become a question as to whether or no the jobbers will meet the trade until the new pack comes in. No doubt, owing to the construction west, the cured meat market is exceptionally firm and prices have advanced. Eggs have also taken a step up and the supply is not equal to the demand. Butter is about where it was last week. Prices for the week run about as follows:

CURED MEATS—Hams, 11½ to 12c.; breakfast bacon, bellies, 11½ to 12c.; backs, 10c.; shoulders, 7 to 7½c.; short spiced rolls, 8 to 8½c.; clear dry salt, 7 to 7½c.; smoked, 1c. advance, and canvassed ½c. extra. Barrel pork, clear mess, $13 to $13.50 per barrel.

EGGS—Supply more scarce; quality first-class; price, 13 to 13½c.

BUTTER—Dairy market rather dull. Some large sales have been made west, but the price is very low at 10 to 12c. for the best dairy. Creamery—The market here is firm and shows a slight advance, 15 to 15¼c. f.o.b. factories being paid. The entire product, however, is being held and not shipped.

CHEESE—The market is steady, but the price rules so low that it is becoming a question whether factories will continue making; 6¼ to 6½c. was realized last week, with 5¾c. for some off grades.

CEREALS—Have advanced slightly. We quote: Rolled oats, 80-lb. sacks, $1.55 to $1.70; granulated, $1.80 to $2; standard, $1.80 to $2; pot barley, $1.75 per sack; pearl barley, $3.50; cornmeal, $1.30 per 98-lb. sack.

TEA—Advices are to hand of the first direct shipment of both China and Japan tea. The stocks should arrive within the next few days. Both markets have been fairly favorable to purchasers. One house reports exceptional values in China tea.

COFFEE—Market very quiet and very little doing.

CANNED GOODS—As already stated, eastern manufacturers are offering futures freely. Strawberries, $1.35 to $1.40; tomatoes, 60 to 65c. per dozen; raspberries have been quoted as low as $1, and corn, 50 to 60c.

SUGAR—Market is normal, with a fair trade. Prices remain about the same. Granlated, 4⅞c., and yellows, 4 to 4½c.

DRIED FRUITS—California apricots are expected daily, and as the price is low a very fair trade should result. New Valencia raisins are expected to arrive about Sept. 1, and prices for fine off-stalk will be about as follows: 4 crown off-stalk, $1.90; fine off-stalk, $1.65. Other California fruits will not arrive for some time yet.

RICE—Owing to jobbers not being able to purchase "B" rice from the Mount Royal mills, a quantity of this product is being brought from England. Price varies according to quality. Quotations are: Equal to "B," 4¼ to 4⅜c.; No. 1 Crystal Japan, 4⅝c.; China No. 1, 4⅝c.

TOBACCO—As the T. & B. factory is now manufacturing the plugs 4 to the lb., dealers are all anxious to get rid of their 3s. The 4s. will be on the market about the 15th of this month. McDonald's "Prince of Wales" is very short in this market and jobbers are not able to obtain sufficient stock to keep them going. It is, however, anticipated that in a few days sufficient will arrive to meet the demand.

GREEN FRUITS—The stock which arrived from the south on the trains delayed by flood was in a bad condition, but has now been got rid of. An abundant supply of peaches and pears are coming, but the shipments of plums are still a little slow. Pineapples are out of the market, but blueberries are again with us. It is a fact worthy of note that 400 tons of these berries were shipped from the stations of Keewatin and Rat Portage last season. It is reported that the Minnesota crop is short this year, and as the western Ontario crop is good there will likely be some heavy shipments south. The price was high for the first, ranging at 12½ to 13c. per lb. However, that will not last long, unless the famine to the south is greater than at present reported. Lemons are very firm, both as to price and quality, the latter having improved this last week. Concord grapes are in, and selling for 75c. the small basket. Prices generally are as follows: California late Valencia oranges, $6 to $6.50 box; Messina lemons, $6 to $6.50; bananas, $1.75 to $2.50 per bunch; California lemons, $6 to $6.50; tomatoes, $1.50 to to $1.65 per crate of 4 baskets; California plums, $1.75; California Bartlett pears, $3.50 to $3.75 per box; watermelons, $5 to $5.50 per doz.

SUGAR PRODUCTION.

Willett & Gray say in their weekly circular: "The latest reliable statistics show that in the year 1896 the world produced of can sugar, 2,747,500 tons, and of beet sugar 4,900,000 tons. Of this enormous quantity the United States produced only about 275,000 tons of cane and 40,000 tons of beet sugar. The consumption of sugar in this country in 1896 was about 1,960,000 tons, of which quantity 1,670,000 tons were imported, and for which we paid to foreign countries fully $110,000,000. More than 500,000 tons of raw beet sugar were imported by the sugar refineries. It is sometimes said that beet sugar is inferior to cane, but the refined product made from raw beet sugar cannot be distinguished from that made from cane. The refineries are continually using both varieties of raw sugar, and always turn out the same quality of refined product.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

Campers' Supplies. I hear from some grocers that there is considerable summer trade going on between the Toronto retailers and Muskoka and other summer resorts. I should think that such trade could be made very valuable by a little attention, for summer campers who are going to places distant from any business locality must necessarily take a large quantity of supplies. Care must be taken, however, to have the supplies put up in baskets, open to the inspection of the railway authorities, in order that they may be taken free as baggage, these excursionists being allowed a few more privileges than are granted to the public. Last year, one grocer that I heard of packed goods bound for a camp in a barrel, but when the proprietor went to get his goods at his destination he found that freight charges were demanded, simply because his groceries were packed too nicely out of sight. "Rub it into the railway people for such rules," said this grocer to me, "it would be far more handy for both the packer and the carrier if barrels were allowable containers."

Business on Holidays. As most Civic Holidays come on Monday, it is not an easy matter for grocers who are trying to oblige their customers to refrain from opening their stores an such an occasion. Unaccustomed to looking ahead more than one day at most, the housekeeper finds it difficult on Saturday to gauge her purchases to accommodate herself till Tuesday. Again, in the hot weather people are canny about laying in a large stock of perishable goods such as vegetables and fruits, and bread that is baked on Saturday becomes hard eating about Monday evening. Often, too, people forget on Saturday that no business is to be done at the grocery store on Monday and neglect to purchase a double supply. To aid the customers' memories I noticed in one store that temporary signs had been placed in conspicuous positions in the shop with a warning of the coming holiday on each. They afforded a chance of advertising an article not well known by combining some advertisement of the article with the advice to purchase twice the amount of goods that day. Civic Holidays are not statutory holidays, and on that account they are not looked forward to with as great an interest as other holidays, and indeed, in cases, so little interest is taken that the fact of their existence is not known till a day or two before their arrival. For this reason, then, the storekeepers who have enterprise enough to put up such notices are to be commended for obliging not only themselves, but also their customers. After seeing them up, I came to the conclusion that they were a necessity to a shop that would not be opened on the holiday. For a store that has a large trade in fruit, bread and such things that need replenishing to be palatable, it would seem advisable to keep open a couple of hours at least on the holiday morning.

A Vinegar Display. A vinegar display in the window, or rather in the store, of Mr. R. Donald, King street east, Toronto, has just lately been attracting considerable attention by its unique and elaborate appearance. The window has no raised floor, and consquently a counter can be placed slanting across one-half of the store, with one end in the window and with the other in the middle of the shop. On this counter are placed seven barrels of vinegar, each of which is tapped, and on each of which is placed a piece of cardboard, which gives the name and price of the vinegar. It cannot be said that the barrels are very handsome, but the style is a departure from the usual custom, and as the demand for vinegar is heavy at this time of year, it serves to make the trade easier to handle.

Buying Large Quantities. A question of great concern among retailers in these speculative days is: Should retail grocers buy large lots? In the grocery business the large buyer has to bear the same expense that a large buyer endures in any other trade. Interest, insurance, storage and taxes must all be paid on a large stock, and these amount to such a sum that unless the buyer is a large distributor he will reap little advantage from heavy purchases. Then there are losses that are peculiar to the grocery trade. In every line of business there is some depreciation in looks and quality through the ravages of time, but in no line has the trade to reckon on a heavier percentage of loss than has the grocer. Nearly all his staple articles are put on the market fresh every year, and when the new stock is available the old variety is discounted. He has to be in the market every day and turn his goods over often or he will make no showing. The wise policy for retail grocers is to buy frequently, and, if possible, for net cash. Lately I heard of a man who keeps a store in a western Ontario town and who laid in a stock of tea that would likely be on his hands for two years and a half. Now, in an experienced man's opinion it was the extremest folly to pursue such a speculative policy in such a small business. The quality is sure to become somewhat inferior and he runs the risk of the brand going out of use entirely. In talking to a wholesaler on the subject, his advice, he said, to all retailers was to stick to the rule of buying for cash. Not only then does he feel no weight on his shoulders, but he receives discounts that are valuable—just as valuable as if he bought quantity on credit—he keeps a good reputation and he gets all the bargains and secrets the wholesalers have to give.

RAMBLER.

TOMATOES IN THE STATES.

The market on spot tomatoes is strong and advancing owing to unfavorable crop reports. Telegrams received from Baltimore this morning state that spot goods have been advanced to 60c. there, and that 57½c. net cash in the country seems to be the best that can be done on futures. The wet weather has caused a rank growth, and present indications are that the output from the vines will be small. Jersey spot have advanced in sympathy to 70 to 72½c.—N.Y. Journal of Commerce.

LIKE "Rip van Winkle"

there are many Grocers who are just waking from their 20 years' sleep. Like Rip, they are painfully crawling down the mountain side of trade to find that THINGS HAVE CHANGED in the world below and CHINA is no longer mistress of the tea table, but in place of the characterless and unsatisfying Teas of China, they find the strong, pungent, fragrant, clean, healthy, economical and profitable teas of CEYLON and INDIA in the homes of the people. Prejudices die hard, but the wise grocer rubs his eyes, throws off the apathy that has held him so long, and sells what his customers are bound to have, namely Ceylon and Indian Teas.

A GOOD BUSINESS SCHOOL.

Few fathers wish their sons to follow their own trade or profession, says Merchants' Review, probably because they magnify its difficulties and overlook the obstacles in other pursuits, but grocers and general storekeepers can afford to take a more philosophical view, for the reason that the grocery store and general merchandise emporium have proved so good a school for the business training of young men. The list of famous men, bankers, manufacturers, merchants and statesmen, who graduated from these establishments is very long, and the inference is that the training which a boy commonly receives while employed therein is the right sort of training for a career of great usefulness.

THAT GAME OF BALL.

By a Victor.

The grocers and the travelers played a jolly game of ball
At the stirring town of Cobourg on the lake,
'Twas a gala sight to see, and from far and near they came,
Watching which of them would deftly take the cake.

The fun is now over, and the travelers took a drop,
And around the city streets now may be seen
A few men with hollow eyes for whom life has lost its charms,
And who sadly muse on things that might have been.

They will seldom talk of ball, but of sugar not at all,
From this melancholy bearing you may see
That the grocers were the cause, and the man who broke the laws
Of combine great, he sells "Salada" tea.

Cheer up quickly then my boys, for all sorrows have an end,
If you'll only bear them bravely and repent;
Shake off your ragged players and just bear yourselves like men,
And from sugar quickly drop a quarter cent.

WHAT THE DRESS DEPICTS.

Too many of our young men consider themselves well-dressed nowadays with the lurid colored shirt as part of their toilette. A young man's birth, his training, his tastes, his tendencies, his thoughts, his inner character—all are depicted in his dress with unerring accuracy. Men do not look for nor expect a cold and rigid severity in a young man's attire. But they do expect a quiet effect; a costume which retreats instead of obtrudes. The colored shirt of violent color or design is not the young man's friend, it is his enemy.—Ladies' Home Journal.

THE MAN AND THE OPPORTUNITY.

HE who improves an opportunity sows a seed which will yield fruit in opportunity for himself and others. Everyone who has labored honestly in the past has aided to place knowledge and comfort within the reach of a constantly increasing number.

Avenues greater in number, wider in extent, easier of access than ever before existed, stand open to the sober, frugal, energetic and able mechanic, to the educated youth, to the office boy and to the clerk—avenues through which they can reap greater successes than ever before within the reach of these classes within the history of the world. A little while ago there were only three or four professions—now there are fifty. And of trades, where there was one there are a hundred now.

"Opportunity has hair in front," says a Latin author; "behind she is bald. If you seize her by the forelock you may hold her, but if suffered to escape not Jupiter himself can catch her again."

But what is the best opportunity to him who cannot or will not use it?

"It was my lot," said a shipmaster, "to fall in with the ill-fated steamer Central America. The night was closing in, the sea rolling high, but I hailed the crippled steamer and asked if they needed help. 'I'm in a sinking condition,' cried Captain Herndon. 'Had you not better send your passengers on board directly?' I asked. 'Will you not lay by me until morning?' replied Captain Herndon. 'I will try,' I answered; 'but had you not better send your passengers on board now?' 'Lay by me till morning,' again shouted Captain Herndon.

"I tried to lay by him, but at night, such was the heavy roll of the sea, I could not keep my position, and I never saw the steamer again. In an hour and a half after the captain said 'Lay by me till morning,' his vessel, with its living freight, went down. The captain and crew and most of the passengers found a grave in the deep."

Captain Herndon appreciated the value of the opportunity he had neglected when it was beyond his reach, but of what avail was the bitterness of his self-reproach when his last moments came? How many lives were sacrificed to his unintelligent hopefulness and indecision? Like him the feeble, the sluggish and the purposeless too often see no meaning in the happiest occasions, until too late they learn the old lesson that the mill can never grind with the water which has passed.

Such people are always a little too late or a little too early in everything they attempt. "They have three hands apiece," said John B. Gough; "a right hand, a left hand and a little behind-hand." As boys they were late at school and unpunctual in their home duties. That is the way the habit is acquired; and now, when responsibility claims them, they think that if they had only gone yesterday they would have obtained the situation, or they can probably get one to-morrow. They remember plenty of chances to make money, or know how to make it some other time than now; they see how to improve themselves or help others in the future, but perceive no opportunity in the present. They are always at the pool, but somehow when the angel troubles the water there is no one to put them in. They cannot seize their opportunity.—Pushing to the Front.

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

A Connecticut man, who was earning small wages, wanted a bicycle. He did not have enough cash on hand to pay the first instalment on a wheel, but he had credit at his grocer's. So off he went and bought a barrel of flour, some sugar and other standard articles "on tick," sold them at a discount for spot cash to a friend, and thus raised money for the initial payment on the wheel. He rides, the grocer walks. —New England Grocer.

MINT ... PUFF-STRAPS

RECOGNIZING the great popularity of peppermint with the sweets-loving public, we are the first to introduce to the trade Pliable Licorice containing this flavor.

The delicious quality of our Pliable Licorice is well known; it is matchless in this respect as well as in its flavor and finish.

Our Triple Tunnel Tubes and Navy Plugs are great favorites also, and are made of the same material, although flavored differently. . . . . .

We recommend all these goods as suitable for Summer Trade; they will please the most exacting taste as wholesome, smooth and palatable confections. . . .

PRINCIPLES IN FINANCE—VALUE.

Henry D. Parmelee, M. A., in Business.

IN the transaction of business there is great need of careful definition and a proper use of words in constant usage. Such terms as value, price and credit demand careful study and a strict observance of their proper use. It is easy to escape fine distinctions of meaning absolutely essential to an adequate understanding of terms. There are few terms which cannot have several applications. The only way to confine a term to a specific and not a general meaning is to be careful, and limit it to its proper signification.

The term value has, as a basis of meaning, a fixed standard of price as distinguished from a merely temporary phenomenon, and yet the term has many different meanings. When one says he possesses something of greater value to him than what he could sell it for, he uses value in the sense of "utility." When one says that a possession has value, not knowing what its price might be, he uses value meaning purchasing power in the abstract.

The value of a thing usually exists before barter. Barter is the act which usually fixes value. It is very necessary to keep in mind the distinction between value and price. These terms are very often misunderstood, if understood at all, by a great majority of people. Price may be considered as a fact, and value looked upon as an estimate of what that price ought to be.

Things may have two kinds of values, namely: intrinsic value and exchangeable value. While labor is usually thought of as determining value, other things may determine it also, as supply and demand create value. "A proper and legitimate price," where such price is not extortionate and unfair, is the best and most accepted definition of value.

The word "worth" corresponds to "value" in this definition. Where one practises extortion, he charges and obtains more than a thing is worth. Price is the amount of money asked, paid or offered for commodities or services. Value is the amount of money which may be properly asked, paid, or offered for commodities or services. If we deal with prices, we deal with commercial transactions in concrete. If we deal with values, we judge the advisability and moral aspect of the same transactions. In reality, ethics enter greatly into a discussion of value.

There are many different views of value, but all may be resolved under two heads: the commercial or competitive theory, and the socialistic theory.

THE COMMERCIAL THEORY.

The commercial theory of value is where price is determined and regulated by free and open competition, and not the result of special bargaining, or misrepresentations. The market price of an article represents only a temporary value; its normal price a permanent value under this view. The arguments for and against free and open competition are many and long. An exposition of them would require much space, and even if possible here, they are not essential.

THE SOCIALISTIC THEORY.

The dissenters of the commercial theory say that any possible good which free competition may do for society as a whole is overweighed by the disastrous effects it has on individual members. Very often, they say, the members of society who have the hardest work to accomplish receive the least remuneration and resultant enjoyment from their labors.

They maintain that price and expense of production should receive more careful adjustment in order to result in a fair and equitable apportionment of the world's enjoyments as rewards of labor.

Cost of production when measured in privations and labor, is a different thing than expense of production which is measured in money. Modern trade, from the socialistic standpoint, consists in buying goods for less than their value, and selling them for more than their value. The socialists contend that cost of production should regulate price, and not the usual and natural causes.

There are many undeniable facts in these assertions, for there is apparent inequality in the returns of labor. Some who do the most disagreeable work have the smallest amount of comfort to show for it.

A positive theory of value formulated upon the above claims, if carried into practice, would cause great inconsistency with our political doctrines and the opportunities of happiness granted by our existing system.

Any attempt to reward every one in proportion to his labor brings us in the presence of a grave danger; namely, the wrong things would be manufactured.

Freedom of choice under this system would result in a superfluity of musicians and actors, with a scarcity of farmers and day laborers. Government regulation as to the number who could go into a profession would be necessary. The disastrous results of such a system would far outweigh any possible advantages. A man of real ability, under the present system, can choose his field of employment. He is free to move wherever he wishes, and seek employment in the most remunerative lines. No one is forced to hold one position unless he is mentally circumscribed, and if that is the case, it is better for society that he remain where he is.

The reward for efficiency is taken away under the socialistic theory, as a man's returns depend upon how he spends his time, and not what he has done for others. There is an opportunity to waste time, as it counts for as much as time used in labor.

far-sighted investment of capital, which is a great factor under the commercial theory, if articles which can be produced with little labor or much labor, as the case may be, are paid for according to the socialistic theory. There would be an unwise application both of labor and capital, and, as has been said above, the wrong things would be done.

A motive is given a man, under the commercial theory, for efficiency in his work, aided by the most improved and economical methods. His power in the community, and his success as a business man depends on doing all he possibly can while reducing waste to a minimum. Large fortunes have been made by men in supplying just what society needed at the time it was needed, and in doing their work they learned how to economise social necessities.

In the commercial theory we find that collective efficiency is the keynote of success, and it is best maintained by the free and open competition which is the essence of that theory.

ANOTHER NEW SOAP.

Turpentine soaps, which are very popular in Austria, are, explains a contemporary, made of palm-kernel oil, with a little tallow and 20 per cent. of resin, saponified with 25-degree lye, and brought to a clear paste. From 5 to 6 per cent. of the black tar obtained by distillation in the manufacture of stearine is added and boiled therewith, the soap being salted out with strong lye or salt. After removing the lye the soap is ground with hot water to make it transparent, and 2 or 3 per cent. of oil of turpentine crutched into the cold soap in the frames. The product, which may also be filled with water-glass, has a fine, dark, almost black color, and a pleasant odor of tar or turpentine.

The Creamery Association is to be congratulated upon the good quality and large quantities of butter manufactured at this point.—Progress, Qu'Appelle, Man.

AN ANTI-CUTTING SCHEME.

AT a recent conference at Liverpool of the Federation of Grocers' Associations of the United Kingdom, Mr. Glyn-Jones, secretary of the Proprietory Articles Trade Association, unfolded to the conference the working of his anti-cutting scheme.

The idea was to have the price of articles fixed; and an assurance obtained from every dealer in them not to sell below that price. Should the rule be broken through the offender would have his supplies stopped by the wholesale houses.

In explaining the scheme, Mr. Glyn-Jones said that many of those who cut prices did so in order to induce customers to enter their shops, when an entirely different article, on which there was a good profit, was sold to them. Consequently, the cutter was the manufacturer's worst enemy. The main difficulty in its operation was the co-operative stores. Manufacturers knew that co-operative trading was co-operative manufacturing; and that when the stores could do without the manufacturer they would do so, and consequently it was the duty of the retailer and manufacturer to combine.

In reply to several questions the proposer said that the rate of profits would be decided by the Grocery Section only, and they would say whether the profit should be 10, 12½ or 20 per cent. Any discount would constitute "cutting" and the supplies would be stopped. He further pointed out that the legality of the scheme was assured on high authority, and that, therefore, there need be no fear of putting it into operation.

A resolution favoring the adoption of the scheme by the association was passed.

PESSIMISTIC TRAVELERS.

There are too many pessimists in the commercial world, even among the commercial travelers, for the peace and comfort of the individual who would like to glide through this life in a happy frame of mind. I have heard of people whose souls were so small that eight of such could dance a cotillon on the point of a cambric needle, and they rattled in their bodies as they walked. Could someone invent an inflating process to round out this class to a compass that their vision would extend beyond the selfish and sordid limits they occupy, society at large would bless the inventor.—Ohio Merchant.

A FISH STORY.

As the fish stories of the amateurs begin to drift in and render the joy of living at least a doubtful quantity, a writer in The Philadelphia Record claims attention with this one:

Quite an odd find was happened upon one day last week by Jack Lopez, who is spending the summer at Swarthmore, Penn. The house which has been taken by the family is used in the winter as a boarding school for girls, but was originally a private house. While taking a look over the place Lopez found in the cellar an old well that was boarded over and had a trapdoor, with an old-fashioned padlock. Thinking the place might be utilized as a cold storage, he tried to raise the trap, that had evidently not been touched for years. Not before breaking the lock was he able to get it open, and then he found the well too deep to see the bottom. With the aid of a rope and lantern he discovered that there was something moving in the water, and after keeping quiet for a moment saw what looked like fish swimming near the surface. As an experiment he decided to do some angling, and soon had a piece of string with a bent pin and a worm down the well. In ten minutes he had caught twenty-one fish, and then decided to go out of the dark cellar and examine his catch. They proved to be fish of the trout variety, but the oddest part of it all was that all were eyeless and snow white. How they came there and what kept them alive is a mystery that none of the residents seem able to solve, but the fish are plentiful and are good eating, so Mr. Lopez is satisfied.

COPPER IN PICKLES.

AT a recent meeting of the Society of Chemical Industry, Manchester, England, Dr. Schnuch, the president, spoke in part as follows regarding coloring of pickles with copper :

"Much discussion has of late arisen as regards the real or supposed injurious consequences of imparting to pickles and other articles of food the much admired vivid color so often seen in them. Since the points to be considered are connected more or less with the chemistry of chlorophyll, it can hardly be expected that the public in general, perhaps not even the majority of medical men, whether analysts or not, can arrive at correct conclusions on the matter. The opponents of the so-called adulteration say this : 'The bright green color so frequently seen in pickles is communicated by the addition of some salt or compound of copper. Now, copper compounds are poisonous, therefore the coloring or dyeing of vegetables by means of copper in any shape must be injurious.' To this it may be replied that copper salts taken internally are no doubt injurious, even poisonous, though probably far less so than compounds of some other metals. The practical question to be determined, however, is whether the quantity of copper actually present in the colored articles is really as injurious as has been represented. The green color seen, say in a pickled gherkin, after the addition of some compound of copper is that of a derivative of chlorophyll ; it is that of cupric phyllocyanate, the compound already referred to, which has a considerable tinctorial power. If we consider how little chlorophyll most vegetables contain, probably not 1 per cent.; that chlorophyll yields by decomposition a not very large amount of phyllocyanin, and that the cupric phyllocyanate contains, according to my determination, only 9 per cent. of copper, and when we consider moreover that the copper is contained in the cupric phyllocyanate in a form in which it cannot be detected by ordinary reagents, then I think we may arrive at the conclusion that the small quantity of copper contained in a green pickle or vegetable cannot be very injurious—it probably does not exceed the amount we are supposed to swallow daily with our food. The mischief, however, consists in this, that the pickling vinegar, containing usually an excess of copper salt, is allowed to stand in contact with the pickles, and may be consumed to some extent with the latter. If the vinegar is poured off and the vegetable washed with water, which is also poured off before adding fresh vinegar, then I feel convinced any quantity of the product may be eaten with impunity. An eminent physiological chemist, Prof. Tschirch, of Berne, who has undertaken an exhaustive examination of the subject, has arrived at a similar conclusion. From his experiments, which agree with those of others, it follows (1) that copper, or rather the salts of copper, are by no means innocuous, as has sometimes been asserted, but that a tolerably large dose is required in order to produce injurious effect ; (2) that for a human being weighing 60 kilos the quantity of copper that may with safety be taken per day amounts to 0.1 grm.; (3) that as regards the artificial green coloration of vegetables with compounds of copper 50 mgrms. of copper may be allowed to 1 kilo of vegetable without fear of any injurious consequences. These are precise and definite conclusions, derived from accurate experiments, and I cannot conceive what objection there can be in establishing in this case the exact percentage beyond which the adulteration, if it may be so called, shall go, and so avoiding the unseemly disputes which sometimes take place in courts of justice between those who maintain that cupric compounds being poisonous should on no account be permitted in the preparation of food, and those who assert that the use of such compounds may, to a certain extent, be allowed. All that need be ascertained in any doubtful case would be whether the limit in regard to the amount of copper is transgressed or not. For the information of those to whom this view of the matter is not acceptable, and who still feel anxious about copper in food, I may say that all pickles—that is pickled vegetables—that show a grass green color, however slight, certainly contain copper. I lately bought a bottle of gherkins, of a pale grass green, prepared, according to the label, by a first-class firm in London, and 'warranted free from copper' ; but, notwithstanding the assurance given, they did contain copper. Pickles, prepared in vinegar only, are always, and without exception, olive green. For my part I quite fail to understand the pleasure and satisfaction derived from the eating of a bright green article of food. An olive colored gherkin, if well prepared, is quite as toothsome as a bright green one, and I am inclined to think more so. Should a substitute be required for the copper salts hitherto employed in cooking, which shall be both bright and innocuous, I think it might easily be found among the numerous green coloring matters of artificial origin now occurring in commerce."

DON'T BE A MACHINE.

The National Advertiser is of the opinion that "there is no moral law of any decalogue that obliges a retail merchant to forego the opportunity of having the last chance at a customer. It is an advertising advantage he is rightfully entitled to. Let him use it rightfully and nobody has an equitable ground of complaint. The store is his ; the goods are his ; his whole outfit, himself included, is a standing advertisement for the goods he wants to sell. He is there to make money. He is a fool if he doesn't try to make as much as he honestly can. If he conscientiously believes goods of his own make to be 'just as good' as any other sold for the same purpose, why, in the name of common sense, shouldn't he say so ? If he doesn't believe it or doesn't know anything about it, and yet says so for the sake of a little profit, then, of course, he lies, and that certainly is immoral enough. But this business of giving a customer 'just what he calls for,' if pushed to the logical conclusion to which apparently you wish to push it, would turn every retail storekeeper into a mere sort of 'nickel-in-the-slot' machine."

CURRANTS IN NEW YORK.

Speaking of the currant situation, a prominent broker said to-day : "The quantity received at the port of New York of the crop of 1896 shows a deficiency of equal to about 12,500 barrels, as compared with the crop of 1895, and with the small stock on the spot, about one-quarter of the usual requirements, it is evident there will be an insufficient quantity to meet the demand and prices must necessarily advance, as the first new stock by direct steamer is not expected to arrive until early in October."—N.Y. TORONTO, CANADA.

THE J. W. LANG & CO. FAILURE.

MATTERS appertaining to the estate of J. W. Lang & Co., wholesale grocers, Toronto, are in a fair way of being settled.

Mr. Mitchell, of Todhunter, Mitchell & Co., to whom Mr. Lang had handed over the proceeds of the sale of the business, in payment of money borrowed by the firm, has generously come forward and offered to pay $10,000 into the hands of the assignee for the benefit of the creditors. This offer the committee appointed to investigate the estate have recommended for acceptance, provided the $500 for legal proceedings were also paid.

In regard to the sugars purchased shortly before J. W. Lang & Co. disposed of their stock and business the committee has reported as follows: "Your committee have had produced to them the sale notes of the greater part of the sugars, and these show the purchases and sales to have been bona fide, and that the sales were made at a small profit."

Another clause in the report reads: "Only such trade creditors as execute assignments of their claims by August 16 are to be paid their proportion of the sum to be distributed. As to those who decline to assign their claims their proportion is to be held by Mr. Clarkson for one month and then paid back to Mr. Mitchell unless the necessary assignments are sooner made."

Subjoined is the statement of liabilities and assets:

Where it was thought a couple of weeks ago that the creditors would get little or nothing, it is now expected that the estate will pay from 35 to 40c. on the dollar.

It will be noticed from the above statement that the firm had sustained some heavy losses in outside concerns, namely, $14,057 in the Utterson failure and $10,848 through W. W. Park, who is now in financial trouble, making from these two sources alone a loss of nearly $25,000.

THE LEFEBVRE FAILURE.

The failure of M. Lefebvre & Co., vinegar manufacturers, which transpired last week, was not entirely unexpected by the trade. The firm has been in deep water ever since the suspension of the People's Bank, and though it was hoped that they might weather the stress, it was felt that the task was too difficult for them.

So far, it is not known what the estate will pay, but the general belief is that the failure will be a bad one. The total liabilities are $175,000.

RETURNING THE COMPLIMENT.

The regular meeting of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association was held on Thursday, Aug. 5. The three most popular grocers, who won the prizes at the annual picnic, intend giving a banquet to the members of the association and the press. Photographs of these popular gentlemen are to be found elsewhere in this issue.

TORONTO GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

AN interesting and well-attended meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held in St. George's Hall Monday evening. In the words of the president, Mr. J. S. Bond, "it was the best meeting held for some years." Doubtless the large attendance was due to the successful picnic held on July 21. It is claimed that the interests of the association have never received such a stimulus for a long time.

Before the business of the association was begun, a gentleman addressed the association in the interests of a joint stock company that is to apply for a charter. He gave the members present considerable advice on the credit and cash systems and explained that his company had in view the purchase of bankrupt stocks through the country. These they would place within the retail grocers' reach in order that they might be gobbled up by these merchants who would then not have to withstand the ever-present competition from such sources.

The secretary presented his report in regard to the excursion. As far as he could learn, he said, all the attendants had thoroughly enjoyed themselves, and, with the exception of the accident that had befallen Mr. Sanderson, everything had passed off in capital style.

In regard to the financial aspect of the affair he stated that the sale of tickets had brought in $482.50, and that after all expenses had been paid $243.75 was the surplus.

Mr. Dave Clark then moved that the report be adopted and that $200 be put in a special fund and the balance in the general fund. This motion caused considerable discussion and was withdrawn. Mr. Booth then moved that $175 be placed in a special fund and the balance in the general fund. This was carried.

Mr. White, on behalf of a special committee appointed some time ago, gave a report on the steps that had been taken to have the hucksters about the Customs House removed. Mr. Bond also stated that he had been before the Property Committee twice, that the aldermen had promised to have them removed, and that now there were only two left.

Mr. Kelly moved that the secretary be authorized to write to Mr. Sanderson, thanking him for his valuable services in baseball, sympathising with him and offering to pay his doctor bill. After some discussion the president appointed a special committee of Messrs. Kelly, Marmion and Sykes to visit Mr. Sanderson and communicate to him the sense of the resolution.

Vice-president Marmion said that Mr. White had introduced an interesting subject by enquiring why the association had not been a paying concern. He himself, he said, was at sea, and would like to have the matter looked into and answered. The president said that members should have a financial statement every six months, and would suggest that this be done. After some discussion Mr. Sykes gave notice of motion that the by-laws be so amended that the annual fee be $1 instead of $2.

A sum of $25 was presented to Mr. Hawes, the secretary, for his services in connection with the picnic.

An offer from P. C. Larkin to supply the association with a carload of sugar at 4⅛c. was then discussed. The temper of the meeting was well shown by a resolution which was proposed to the effect that while the association was in favor of a fixed price on the part of the wholesalers in regard to sugar, yet the members will, as long as any discrimination is made between outside and city grocers, buy for the lowest price possible. Others did not wish to accept the offer under any circumstances, while others would not consider the consequences of acceptation. The offer was accepted and the meeting adjourned.

HIS JAW WAS BROKEN.

During the baseball match on the day of the grocers' picnic at Cobourg, Mr. J. W. Sanderson, 601 Dundas street, Toronto, was hit in the jaw by a ball thrown by the pitcher. At first he thought the injury was not serious, but he has since found that his jaw was fractured. He is, however, improving rapidly.

Mr. Sanderson is an exceedingly clever player, and feels sore at being hurt in amateur company.

MINERS' SUPPLIES.

IT is to be regretted that so many Canadians en route for the Klondyke gold fields should get their outfits in and take their passage at Seattle and other cities in the United States.

One explanation of it is probably due to the fact that the favored cities have been the centres from which have come the press despatches which have day after day for some weeks been filling column after column of the newspapers. But that is only an explanation. It is not a justification.

Victoria, Vancouver and other cities in British Columbia are quite able to provide both outfits for and transportation to the Klondyke.

Loyalty to the home market demands that Canadians going to the now-famous gold fields should patronize Canadian merchants and Canadian transportation companies.

But if that be not a sufficient reason there is another: Canadians who purchase their outfits in foreign cities will be compelled to pay a Customs tax on them when they cross the border.

A good many Canadians en route to the Klondyke probably thought that outfits could be purchased in no other places but Seattle, Tacoma and other Coast cities in the United States. And, unfortunately, business men and the press in the Canadian cities where miners' outfits are obtainable have not been as prompt in undertaking to remove the illusion as they might have been. Now they are bestirring themselves, and good results will doubtless accrue therefrom.

Miners, like other people, need to be told where and how they can get their supplies. The way to tell them is by advertising, and, judging from the announcements which are appearing in the columns of the Victoria newspapers, the business men of at least that place realize the fact.

FIRST SHIPMENT OF VALENCIAS.

The first shipment of new crop Valencia raisins was made from Denia on July 23. It goes by way of Liverpool. The fruit is fine off-stalk, and will probably sell to the trade here at about 6 to 6½c. per pound.

All authorities seem to agree that the crop will be larger than last year. J. D. Arguimbau thinks it will be 100,000 quintals larger. "It it is housed in good weather," adds the authority named, "prices are expected to be lower than last year."

Trenor & Co. state that owing to the long continued drouth the fruit will be unequal in size, but will be sound. Large fruit for fine selected will be scarce and naturally dear.

THE LAW OFFICERS' DECISION.

A DECISION has been given by the law officers of the Crown to the effect that the most favored nation clause in the Belgian and German treaties apply to Canada, and that therefore the products of these countries as well as all others enjoying favored nation treatment must be allowed to come into the Dominion under the minimum tariff accorded to Great Britain.

This decision is the result of a submission of the matter to the law officers by the Canadian Government.

When the minimum tariff was brought down on April 22 last the Government hung its case for refusing to accord its privileges to Germany, Belgium, or any other country with whom Great Britain had favored nation treaties on the fact that nothing was offered to Great Britain alone, but to any and all nations ready to comply with certain conditions.

"If," said the Finance Minister in his budget speech, "they (other nations) do not see fit to accept them (the conditions) the responsibility rests upon them and not upon Canada."

Then in another place in the same speech, he said: "We recognize that it is a question upon which we shall ultimately have to consult with Her Majesty's Government, and I need not say that any view that may be taken by Her Majesty's Government will be considered by the Government of Canada with the respect that is due to any representation that may be made upon any subject, but above all, on a question of an international character."

Most people who gave the matter consideration felt that the ground upon which the Government rested its case was doubtful. And from the remarks of the Finance Minister above quoted and from those of other Ministers which might be quoted, it is obvious that the members of the Government thought so too.

But dubious and all as people were about its legality, the move was a popular one both in Canada and Great Britain.

Although the law officers of the Crown have decided that the products of the most favored nations must enjoy the same privileges as those of the Motherland, Canada can after all congratulate herself that she did the right thing, paradoxical as it may seem to say so. For once at least the end justified the means.

For years Canada had ineffectually sought to have denounced the favored nation treaties with Belgium and Germany which bound her to conditions which were incompatible with her status as a self-governing colony. Even when her efforts had been seconded by the other colonies, vide resolution passed at the Colonial Conference at Ottawa, the results were the same. They did not wake up the English people.

What, however, years of agitation, memorials of the House of Commons and Senate and resolutions of the Colonial Conference did not, the minimum tariff of April 22 did. Daily newspapers, from the Times down, devoted columns of space to it, weekly papers and magazines dwelt upon it, while press and people declared that if the treaties with Germany and Belgium prevented Canada from giving the products of the Motherland preferential treatment, then the obstacle must be removed. Then in the midst of this acclaim the colonial premiers met in London and unanimously passed a resolution calling upon the Government to denounce the objectionable treaties. The outcome is known to all men.

But, had Canada not taken the step she did, it is unlikely notice of the abrogation of the treaties would yet have been given. It certain Canada would not have been lionized as she was at the Jubilee celebration. It is certain she would not have received the world-wide attention she has.

The nations entitled to the minimum tariff are Belgium, Germany, Argentine, Austria-Hungary, Bolivia, Chili, Colombia, Corea, Costa Rica, Denmark, Dominica, Liberia, Madagascar, Morocco, Muscat, Persia, Portugal, Russia, Sandwich Islands, Siam, South African Republic, Spain, Sweden and Norway, Swiss Confederation, Tunis, Uruguay and Venezuela.

But with a great many of these we do no business whatever, and with others, again, but very little. Germany is easily the first in importance, and our imports of dutiable goods from that country in 1896 were valued at $5,118,245. Our imports of dutiable goods from the other favored nation countries with which we do business are as follows: Belgium, $836,693; Austria, $192,677; Denmark, $1,294; Portugal, $46,563; Russia, $2,921; Sandwich Islands, $281; Norway and Sweden, $39,561; Persia, $515; Spain, $346,208; Switzerland, $326,231; Venezuela, $657. The sum total of these dutiable imports is $6,911,846, or about 10⅓ per cent. of our total dutiable imports during the year given. The amount of duty collected on these imports was $1,867,030, or about 9 per cent. of the $20,219,037 collected on the total dutiable imports.

According to the provisions of the minimum tariff, it will be remembered the rate of duty was to be, until June 30, 1898, one-eighth below that of the general tariff, and one-fourth on and after that date. So that until June 30 next these favored nation-treaty countries will have the benefit of the one-eighth reduction and of one-fourth for the month remaining before these treaties expire.

Taking into consideration the fact that the duty collected on the importations from the countries in question was less than two millions of dollars, it is obvious that the loss of revenue to Canada by the decision of the law officers of the Crown will not be more than one-third, or, at the outside, one-half, of a million dollars. And that is not, after all, a high figure to pay for being freed from a burdensome condition.

REDUCTION IN STARCH.

A reduction has been made in starch by the Canadian manufacturers. It went into effect on the 4th inst. In laundry starches the reduction is one-quarter of a cent per pound, and in culinary starch one-half cent per pound.

It is some time since a change was made in the price of starch. That previous to the present was about 16 months ago, when culinary was changed from 7¼ and 6¾c. to 6½ and 5½c., while it is something like three years since any alteration was made in the quotations on laundry starch, when figures were marked down one-quarter of a cent per pound.

THE CURRANT SITUATION.

VARIOUS reports received in Toronto this week regarding the situation of currants in Greece agree in the most important features. The crop has been progressing favorably, but will be late.

The crop itself will, it is generally believed, be at least as large as that of last year, with the probability of its being larger, while the quality is fine. Nothing but rain will now prevent the fruit from being marketed in good condition.

One letter, under date of July 27, stated that cutting had begun in Calamata on the west coast, and that by the first week in August the cutting would be general.

One report states that shipments will begin during the third week in August, while another says it is doubtful whether any general steamer, carrying a selection of various growths, can sail before the end of August or early in September.

A cable was received in Toronto within the last few days approximately maintaining the high prices recently asked for old season's Filiatra fruit, which is now selling on the Canadian market at about 6c. per pound. Local dealers, however, state that the new crop will, generally speaking, sell cheaper than the figures now ruling on the old fruit, as it will, of course, be in a great number of hands and not confined to a few, as is now the case with the little fruit of last season's growth that is still in existence.

THE FIG CROP.

The crop of figs is a good one, but importers are buying very cautiously. This is no doubt due to the abundance of domestic fruits in Canada last year, which compelled merchants to carry over figs till this spring, losing money thereby.

There is no danger, however, of short importations, as it is now the custom of certain shippers of figs to consign goods to the Canadian market, and the quantity they consign is only limited by the ability of the market to absorb.

SCARCITY OF CANADIAN PORK.

A FEATURE in the markets this summer is the scarcity of all kinds of pork products. Weekly from the first of the season THE CANADIAN GROCER has been remarking the bareness of many lines in this market, and has been predicting the continued rise in prices. Gradually the price of live hogs has continued to rise, and now dealers in Toronto are paying $6 for live weights that would bring hardly $4 in Chicago. And yet this price will not bring forward enough stock to supply the market, for every dealer in Toronto says he has to refuse orders on account of the inability to fill them. This week we hear of packers being forced to lay off some hands because pork is not coming forward in quantity sufficient to keep the employes engaged.

The reasons for this scarcity are varied. The low price of hogs early in the spring did not make the venture of raising hogs a commendable one to the Canadian farmer, and as a consequence he cannot now supply the demand. The uncertainty of the tariff last fall and winter made the matter of packing a purely speculative policy on the part of the packers, and on that account a light supply only was stored away for the summer's consumption.

But the chief cause of this scarcity is the demand for export to England. Never before have Canadian pork products found so much favor on the English market. The fact, too, that it is not every kind of pork that can be shipped there has gone far to make the matter worse. To tickle the palate of the English a light, lean cut is necessary, and, as farmers who did grow hogs made a specialty of this line, the heavier varieties are not now obtainable. The "Wiltshire sides" that are so much in favor in England take up most of the body of the hog, and dealers say that this uses up many of the other cuts, and the latter are rendered scarce.

The only way of explaining the favor of the Canadian provisions on the English market over the varieties from the United States is to consider the feed. Most Canadian hogs are fed on bran and peas, while the farmers of the States give their hogs corn, because it is cheap. Corn renders pork fat but oily, and the Englishmen would rather pay the difference in price between the hogs from Canada and the United States to get the pea-fed variety.

What effect free corn will have on the Canadian hogs is hard to determine. If it is used extensively by the Canadians their pork will be likely to lose its flavor and favor, while experts say if it is fed moderately in conjunction with bran and peas, no harm, but rather a further improvement, will be found in the quality of the provisions.

JAPAN TEA ADVANCING.

INTELLIGENCE to hand at Montreal regarding Japan tea has been of a conflicting character. In the first place, despite strong advices from primary markets, low offers have been made on Japans lately, 15c. and under being mentioned. It is not specified, however, whether the goods in question are new or old crop, but the belief prevails that they are the latter, and that they consist of lots that were unloaded on a New York house during the rush for tea in the early spring. At any rate, many of the commission men, who ought to be in a position to know, protest that they cannot sell at such a figure.

In one case, cables from reliable sources stated that the market in Japan had advanced $1 to $2 per picul, that new supplies were temporarily exhausted and that the outlook was for shorter supplies than anticipated.

Later intelligence stated that teas which graded from $14 to $17 were about $3 per picul over what they were last year, and that owing to the dry weather and low price which had ruled a decrease in the second crop was confidently expected, while no third crop might be picked at all.

This cannot be agreeable news to Canadian importers, because it is not unlikely that the supplies will be short.

It is well known that the Yankees bought up most of the higher grades, and if the second and third crops are to be short it means that there will be so much less to come to Canada.

Existing stocks in jobbers' hands throughout the country are light also, and altogether the outlook for the future is full of interesting possibilities.

CANNED GOODS.

[Contributed.]

THE canned goods trade during the last few months has manifested a marked change for the better. The season of 1896 will long be a lesson to the Canadian packers, not from causes of overproduction, but mainly from their haste in rushing into the market to sell futures before the crop had matured.

Many of the packers attempt to do too much by aiming to put up more goods than their means will warrant, and are obliged, therefore, to rush to the jobbers to seek shelter in disposing of a portion of their goods at a loss with the hope of unloading the balance at a profit on some other man later in the season. This mode of doing business has been a curse to the trade, and is bound to meet with disaster if continued.

It shakes the confidence of the wholesale trade and his customers to maintain a minimum rate of price from day to day, and places travelers in a false position in treating their customers. This state of demoralization will continue as long as the Canadian packer persists in putting up too many goods, one-third of which he has to sell at a loss with the hope of disposing of the balance at a profit later in the season.

The season of 1897 is now on, but it dawns under different auspices. The force of circumstances has helped to right matters in bringing about a short crop, coupled with the fact that the packers have had ample time to look over their bank book and console themselves with the fact that the depletion of same was caused by their own imprudence in giving their goods away and completely destroying the possibility of themselves, the wholesale trade, or the retail man making an honest, legitimate profit.

The cold and backward weather during the months of April, May and June has not been beneficial to the maturing of the crop of tomatoes, corn and peas, and has already manifested itself in peas. The pack, which is over, is upwards of 20,000 cases short of last year, the hot and parching weather of July partially destroying the crop. The same may be said of corn. In consequence of over production the year before a small acreage was planted, and owing to cold weather in the seeding time the shoots did not come up, and in many cases had to be replanted, which will mean a short crop. Tomatoes, the most staple vegetable in canned goods, is undergoing a change. Owing to the heavy rains the plants have grown at the expense of the fruit. Under the most favorable weather from now out the crop cannot but be a small one, in consequence of which the packers are not forcing sales.

The small fruits have been an abundant crop. The same may be said of peaches, pears and plums, but much will depend from now out for the successful husbanding of the crop.

THE NUT SITUATION.

A good deal of business in Tarragona almonds for direct importation has been done on the Toronto market during the past week or two. The reason is, that some exceptionally favorable offers have been made, notwithstanding that the fruit is still upon the trees, and will be for another few weeks.

No one can say whether the actual prices after the opening of the market will be as cheap as the very low figure named by some exporters, but the buyers here have acted on the principle that the prices are low enough to speculate upon.

In regard to walnuts, E. M. Dadelszan, of Bordeaux, reports the crop looking well, and showing excess over last year of about 10 per cent. This refers particularly to walnuts in the Bordeaux district.

Grenoble walnuts are reported to be a good crop.

In regard to filberts, the market has simply fluctuated within a shilling per bag, and is now at about the figure at which Canadian merchants placed their orders.

The business of the merchant who has not time to read his trade paper is likely to die of shortness of breath.

REBATE ON GERMAN GOODS.

The collectors of Customs at the various ports have been this week instructed to admit the products of Germany and Belgium under the minimum tariff of 12½ per cent. Nothing has yet been said in regard to the French treaty.

The Customs officials will be kept busy for a while fixing up the rebates which will have to be made on Belgian and German goods passed since April 22 last.

NEW SULTANA RAISINS.

SAMPLES of new season's Sultana raisins reached the Toronto market early this week. They were drawn from the first sample lot of one hundredweight which arrived at Smyrna, and are the first to put in an appearance in Canada this season.

The fruit shows good quality, although the berry is not large, which is usual with the first arrivals.

The crop of Sultana raisins will fall slightly below that of last year, according to the best estimates. Notwithstanding, however, there will be a larger quantity for exportation, as a large portion of last year's crop was rendered unfit for such purpose owing to the damage done by rain.

A copy of The Journal de Smyrne, under date of July 20, states that the vine growers entertain serious apprehensions on the subject of the peronosporos, which has been attacking the vines this year. Following the late rains, The Journal said it was the opinion that the disease will increase its ravages, and that the crop in some districts will be next to nothing.

The crop this year is estimated at 34,000, against 33,000 in 1896, and prices will be about the same as last year.

It is not believed that the first shipments for Canada can arrive before the end of August or September 1.

THE SALMON RUN.

WHILE advices this week corroborate previous reports to the effect that the run of salmon on the Fraser River is a large one and the pack extensive, the circumstance is offset to a large extent by the shortage on the Skeena, Inlet and Naas rivers. The total result, it is believed by many in the trade, will be that the aggregate output will be little if any larger than that of 1896.

There is an improved demand from Great Britain to be considered also, and some of the most conservative traders state that it will not surprise them to see an advance in prices.

The fact that salt salmon can be laid down in the east also at a cost of $10 per barrel or $5.25 per half barrel is another influence. At these low prices it is quite likely that the consumption of fish in this shape will be larger than usual.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Aug. 12, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE wholesale grocery trade does not this week exhibit any particularly new features. A nice business is, on the whole, being done, and the general tone of the market is healthy. Sugar, as far as the demand is concerned, is still the leading feature of the market, and values both at home and abroad are firm. Canned goods are in much about the same condition as a week ago, except it be that peas have gained more strength. Canned salmon is still being offered at last week's figures. Currants are cabled firm. Fair attention is being paid to Rio coffees, and there have been some fair transactions in pepper. Rice is dearer in the primary markets. Teas are dull, with Japan growths firm in price.

CANNED GOODS.

Although advices from the Coast report a better feeling there as to the price of canned salmon, yet agents here are quoting the same figures as during the past couple of weeks. As far as can be learned, with one or two exceptions, Toronto wholesalers have purchased liberally for future delivery, which may account for the fact that not many transactions between packers and jobbers are taking place. Retailers seem, however, to be fairly liberal buyers. Wholesalers are quoting red salmon for future delivery all the way from $1.15 to $1.30 per case, and cohoes at from 95c. to $1. Lobster is scarce and dear, and a good many anticipate that stocks in first hands will be exhausted by next spring. Canned meats are in good demand, and Clark, of Montreal, has advanced his prices 10c. per dozen all round. The feeling in regard to peas seems to be stronger than a week ago, some of the packers now asking 70 to 75c. per dozen. There is not much business transpiring in canned vegetables. Canned fruits are quiet and featureless. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80 to 85c.; corn, 55 to 75c.; peas, 70 to 75c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.50 to $1.80, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 70 to 95c.; gallons, $1.50 to $1.80; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; other red salmon, $1.15 upwards, according to quality and brand; cohoes, 95c. to $1; canned mackerel, $1.20 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.70; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beet, 1's, $1.25 to $1.35; 2's, $2.30 to $2.50; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

A fairly good demand is reported for green Rio coffee, but there is not much doing in other kinds. Jobbers quote green in bags as follows: Rio, 9½ to 13c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

Still quiet. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

Dull. It seems to be the opinion that present prices ruling on New Orleans molasses are likely to be at least maintained. We quote: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGARS.

The sugar market continues in a satisfactory condition. Beets for August delivery have advanced 3¾d. from the lowest point, and the figures ruling on beet are ¼d. above the parity of cane sugar. The Canadian refiners have been in New York trying to buy raws. They offered 1-16c. for centrifugals more than the recent high figures, and could not buy, importers demanding another 1-16c. Locally the demand is brisk and prices firm and unchanged. We quote for Toronto: Granulated—St. Lawrence and Redpath's, 4 7-16c. for single barrel lots and 4⅜c. for 5-barrel lots;

SPICES.

Jamaica ginger is still scarce, and some houses are unable to procure any. There has been a little more buying of pepper, chiefly of Penang. We quote as follows: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 10c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 17c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

A good deal of business has been done in Tarragona almonds for importation by direct steamer. Some exceptionably favorable offers have been made, although the crop is still on the trees, and will be for another month. We quote: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 18 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

The rice market is stronger. A local house cabled for a lot of Japan and Patna rice, but an advance of one shilling per cwt. was demanded and the house in question had to buy at the higher figure. The demand is good for rice, tapioca and sago. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

TEAS.

There is a little doing in Japan teas, but as a rule the market is dull. The brokers are practically doing nothing. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The cable announces that the currant market remains firm in Patras, and that prices being asked for new fruit are much about the same as those now obtaining on spot for old goods. The crop is progressing favorably, and will be fully as large as that of last year. We quote: Provincials, 5¾ to 6c. in bbls.; ditto, half-bbls., 5¾ to 6c.; fine Filiatras, in bbls., 5⅞ to 6c.; do., half-bbls., 5⅞ to 6⅛c.; Patras, 6¼c. in cases; Vostizzas, cases, 7 to 8c.

The first shipment of new season's Valencia raisins was made on the ss. Soto via Liverpool at the early date of July 23. They will probably sell to the trade at about 6 to 6½c. for fine off-stalk. We quote: Off-stalk, 4 to 5c.; fine off-stalk, 5 to 6c.; selected, 6½ to 7c.; layers, 5½ to 6½c.

There is nothing new to mention in regard to California loose muscatel raisins. Wholesalers quote from 7 to 8c. as the ruling figures.

Local wholesalers are placing orders for new figs cautiously, their purchases last season having exceeded the supply. We quote spot goods nominally as follows: 10 oz., 7½c.; 10 lb., 9 to 10c.; 18 lb., 10 to 12c.; 28 lb., 11 to 13c.; taps, 3¼ to 3½c. net; natural, 4½c. in bags, and 6 to 6½c. in boxes.

California evaporated fruits are without special feature. We quote California

A cable from Trieste to P. L. Mason & Co. indicates a slight change in the value of Bosnia prunes. The larger sizes are a little easier, while the smaller are a little higher than a week ago. California prunes are offering at low figures. We quote as follows : Bosnias, U's (110 to 113 half kilo), 6 to 6½c.; C's (85 to 90 half kilo), 7 to 7½c. per lb. GREEN FRUITS.

The fruit trade has been far ahead of previous years, not only in sales and receipts, but also in the quality of goods offered. The trade in lemons has been better the past week, but prices are easy at quotations. Oranges, too, are not exceedingly brisk. Bananas are moving freely and are firmer. The trade in these continues satisfactory. Watermelons are a good quality this year and are selling readily. California fruit continues to come forward and be auctioned off at firm prices, for it is arriving in good shape. All Canadian berries but the Latton berries are about out of the market ; the latter variety are still selling freely. The principal features in the market this week are the Canadian varieties of peaches, tomatoes, and apples. All are cheap this year and moving freely, and are good stock to handle. We quote as follows : Oranges—Sorrentos, 300's, $3.50 to $4 per box ; 180's, $2.25 to $2.50 per three-quarter box. Lemons, 300's, 360's, repacked, $4.75 to $5 ; original packing, $4 to $4..25. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Onions, 2½ to 2¾c. per lb. for Egyptians. Bananas, $1 to $1.75. New cabbage, $1 per bbl. Watermelons, 20 to 30c. California peaches, $1.50 to $1.75 per box; California plums, $1.50 to $2 per box ; California pears, $2.75 to $3.75 per box ; muskmelons, $2 to $2.50 per crate of 2 doz.; cucumbers, 20 to 30c. per 12-quart basket ; black currants, 75c. to $1 ; Canadian tomatoes, 50 to 60c. per basket. BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—Trade has been only fair during the week; rather small quantities have been bought for either local or export purposes. A large proportion of the butter coming forward is much off condition, and buyers are critical and select all parcels carefully. Good butter is moving freely, but poor qualities are a drug on the market. Country merchants are now holding butter, expecting dealers to buy as round lots. There is not thought to be much accumulation of stock in the city. Best quality is worth about 11½ to 12½c.; cheaper is plentiful at 8 to 9c. The outside feeling in creamery continues firm: Tubs, 17 to 17½c.; prints, 17½ to 19c.

CHEESE—Is firm and prices are a shade higher. The export demand is good, and prices have gone up from ⅛ to ¼c. Exporters do not themselves pretend to understand the advance; it seems to be largely a speculative advance. Many dealers are of the opinion that there will be a reaction. Price is 7¾ to 8¼c., and selling price is 8¾ to 9c.

SALT.

Demand has been steady. This season's business appears to be in advance of that of last year. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 60c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl. and 65c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

FISH.

Trade has been only moderate during the week. The supply is equal to the demand. We quote: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 6½c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

PROVISIONS.

A very steady demand, with steady prices, characterizes the trade. Stocks are light and some lines are completely sold out. This is principally true in regard to backs, breakfast bacon and short-cut barrel pork. All lines are in short supply, however, and in one dealer's words: "Packers would not shade prices to their brothers."

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long clear bacon, 8c. for carload lots, and 8 to 8¼c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 8¾c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 12 to 12½c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; hams, large, 11 to 11½c.; 12 to 12½c. for small and 12½c. for medium; shoulder hams, 9c.; backs, 11½ to 12c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD—Pure Canadian, tierces, 5¾c.; tubs, 6 to 6¼c.; pails, 6¼ to 6½c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $13 to $13.50; Canadian short-cut, $16; clear shoulder mess, $12.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—We quote: Wheat, No. 1 hard, 93c.; winter wheat, 83c.; oats, 22 to 23c.; peas, 43 to 44c. The market in wheat is very excited; in the other lines it is dull.

FLOUR—Although flour is dearer, yet the millers and dealers are finding that the price of wheat is advancing quicker than they can their figures. Some transactions on export account are reported this week. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $4.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $4.50; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.60; straight roller, $3.80 to $3.90, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—Trade is moderate. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.10 in bags and $3.20 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.60 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.30 to $2.40; split peas, $3 to $3.25; pot barley, $3 to $3.25.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—There has been a decided improvement in quality. Prices also are moving up. The demand far the good variety is quite brisk. We quote No. 1 selling at 10 to 11c.; No. 2 at 8 to 9c.

POTATOES—Again the scarcity of new potatoes has revealed itself. Something seems to affect the supply at times. We quote slightly higher prices than last week. Old potatoes are about out of the market. Dealers are paying 60c. per bushel for new variety and selling at 70c. a bushel.

HONEY—The new honey is not moving very actively this week. Dealers are holding firm at quotations. Buckwheat is dull at 3c. We quote light at: 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.; 5 and 10-lb. tins, 6½ to 7c.; comb, $1.50 to $1.75 per dozen.

DRIED APPLES—There have not been very many enquiries this week. Prices, however, are firm. The idea as to price now is 2½ to 3c. f.o.b. The local jobbing price ranges from 2½c. upward.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Dealers are firm at quotations, but requirements have not increased. Buyers are paying 3½ to 4c. f.o.b. Jobbers are quoting 4½c. upward.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—Business has yet the unhealthy aspect that has characterized it for some time. Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3. Steerhides: 60 lbs. and up, 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS—Trade is only moderate; prices, however, are firm. No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS—We quote: Lambskins and pelts, 50c.

WOOL—Arrivals continue to be inadequate to lessen the price. Dealers are still paying 19 to 20c.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

Lubricating oils have been in heavy demand during the whole of the week. Some larger fall orders have also arrived this

MARKET NOTES.

Japan and Patna rice is cabled 1s. per cwt. dearer.

Clark's canned meats have been advanced 10c. per dozen all round.

No difficulty is now being experienced in filling orders for tobacco, although the demand is still good.

New season's salt B.C. salmon is offering at $10 in barrels and $5.25 in half-barrels, delivered, in carload lots.

The first samples of new season's Sultana raisins to arrive in Canada were received by J. L. Watt & Scott early this week. The quality is good.

P. L. Mason & Co. are in receipt of a cable from Trieste which states that the larger sizes of Bosnia prunes are easier, while the smaller are firmer.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Aug. 12, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE week has not exhibited much change in the actual spot situation. An active business has been transacted in both granulated and yellow sugars, and values are steady. Syrups continue dull, while molasses have advanced somewhat sharply. Coffees and spices remain much the same. Primary advices on Japan tea continue of a firm character, and point to still higher prices. Dried fruit news is of an indefinite character as yet. Canned goods are generally steady with nothing new to report since last week.

SUGAR.

In sympathy with strong advices from outside markets the sugar market maintains its steady feeling, especially as the demand both for granulated and yellows has been quite active during the week. Both in London and New York the markets for raw are firmly held; in fact, prices have an upward tendency. Offers of German granulated sugar made since last report here have not met a very favorable reception as the trade do not seem to care much for it even at the reduced price. Commission men have been placing some cargo lots of raw with refiners at firm prices. We quote: Granulated, 4⅛c. for 1 to 9 barrels and 4 1-16c. for 10 barrels and over, with yellows ranging from 3⅜ to 3¾c., as to grade. At the refineries quite a few car lots of granulated have been moved forward during the week at 4c. net f.o.b. Montreal.

SYRUPS.

The syrup market continues without change, there being absolutely no movement. We quote: 1⅜ to 2c. as to quality.

MOLASSES.

There has been no actual change in the molasses market, but a firmer tone characterizes the market, and holders are confident of higher prices in the future. As a result they are not urging sales, no Barbadoes now being available under 22c. in a wholesale way, while in jobbing lots 23 to 25c. is asked for it, which is an advance of 2c. per gallon. Porto Rico ex store is held firm at 25 to 26c. for choice and 29c. for prime.

RICE.

There is no change in the rice market, business ruling quiet. We quote: Crystal Japan, $4.50 to $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $4.50 to $5; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

There has been little doing in spices during the week, with values generally unchanged. We quote: Black pepper, 9 to 10c.; pure white, 11 to 16c.; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure

Department of Aviculture

Did you know that for years there has been a Department of Aviculture in the Dominion, and that millions of bulletins have been gratuitously distributed from time to time, in which the subject of bird keeping has been set forth in a most attractive and persuasive manner; and that advice has been constantly given free of cost to all applicants? Such a department has, nevertheless, been in existence for years, working quietly, but so effectively, that to-day there are ten birds kept where one was a few years ago. The expense of this work has been defrayed entirely by Bart. Cottam & Co., and while "Cottams," from its pre-eminent and undisputed position as the best bird food, has naturally benefitted to a large extent, all handlers of bird food in any form owe more than they generally admit to the widespread educational work done by the packers of Cottams Seed. It pays to handle Cottams Seed.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

COFFEES.

The coffee market is without change. We quote: Maracaibo, 16 to 19c.; Santos, 12 to 15c.; Rio, 12 to 16c.; Mocha, 24c., and Java, 25c.

TEAS.

The failure of a commission house here has somewhat unsettled the market, but inherently the tendency of the market is steady, as supplies are light and advices from primary markets are steady to strong. We quote as follows: Young Hysons, 14 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15½ to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 17 to 20c. for mediums, and 35 to 65c. for higher grades.

CANNED GOODS.

The canned goods market generally is steady, and advices from the Coast on salmon are fairly steady, while the tendency on vegetables, especially on corn, tomatoes and other staple lines is distinctly steady. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80c.; corn, 50 to 80c.; peas, 80c.; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 85 to 90c.; gallons, $1.55 to $1.65; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.40 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.35; "Lion," $1.37½ to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.30, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

There has been a fair demand for Valencia raisins in the shape of open orders and early shipments of them via New York or Liverpool are quoted at 15s. to 16s. For the direct steamers it is impossible to quote reliable figures.

An active business for forward delivery has been transacted in California raisins, but all the orders taken are at open prices, but it is expected that 3-crown will cost about 5½c., duty paid, and 4-crown 6½c.

Reports regarding new crop currants are very conflicting, both as regards quality and price, offers on Vostizzas recently having been 22s., Filiatras 15s. 6d. to 16s. and Provincials 15s. to 15s. 6d., cost and freight Montreal. Spot quotations are purely nominal, as the above figures are for shipment via British ports. Reports also state that the quality of the crop is very doubtful.

Evaporated California apricots are much firmer in tone, and 9c. is now asked for carload lots Montreal, which is an advance on the figures quoted last week.

Advices from Smyrna on Sultana raisins state that prices will not be as low as at first expected but will be about the same as last year.

NUTS.

There has been little change in the nut market, except that Grenoble walnuts are rather firmer than they were. We quote: Grenoble walnuts, 11 to 12c.; do. shelled, 20c; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; pecans, 9 to 10c.; and cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100.

DRIED APPLES.

A new feature has been the active enquiry on country account for evaporated apples, and they have advanced ½ to ¾c. per lb., to 4 to 5c. Dried apples are unchanged at 2 to 2½c.

GREEN FRUIT.

There has been a good business in all kinds of green fruit during the week. One of the notable facts of the week was the active demand from American buyers for watermelons, which are firm in consequence. We quote: Valencia oranges, $6 per case; bloods, $2.50 to $3 per box; Messinas, do., $3 to $3.50; lemons, $3.50 to $4 per box for choice, and $2 to $3 for common; Naples lemons, $6 to $7 per chest; bananas, $1.25 to $1.65 per bunch; Canadian cherries, 40 to 75c. per basket; California apricots, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; do., peaches, $1.75 to $2, and pears, $2.75 to $3, and plums, $1.75 to $2 per box; pineapples, 10c. each; raspberries, 6 to 8c.; blueberries, $1.75 to $2 per box. Egyptian onions, 3c. per lb., and watermelons 20 to 25c. for choice and 15 to 20c. for common.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Business in eggs continues fairly active, there being a good demand, and prices are firmly held. Selected near-by stock sold at 10½ to 11c.; ordinary No. 1 at 9 to 9½c., and No. 2 at 8 to 8½c. per dozen.

MAPLE PRODUCT—In maple product there is no change to note. We quote: Maple syrup, 4¾ to 5c. per lb., and 45 to 55c. per tin; sugar, 5 to 6c. per lb.

HONEY — The demand for honey is slow and prices are unchanged. White clover comb is offering at 10c., and dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c., and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

BEANS—Beans continue slow of sale at 55 to 60c. in car lots, and 65 to 70c. in a small way.

PROVISIONS.

The feature of the provision market has been the continued strength in pork, which is 50c. per barrel higher than it was a week ago. Lard and smoked meats are in fair enquiry and steady. We quote: Canadian pork, $15 to $15.50 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, at 6¾ to 7¼c., and compound refined at 5¼ to 5½c. per lb.; hams, 11 to 13c., and bacon, 11 to 12c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

The flour market has ruled active and strong since last report, there being an extensive turnover both on export and local account, while prices are 5 to 10c. higher on Ontario and 25c. on Manitoba grades than they were a week ago. We quote as follows: Winter wheat patents, $4.15 to $4.25; straight rollers, $3.90 to $4, and in bags, $1.90 to $2; best Manitoba strong bakers', $4 50; second do., $4, and low grades, $2.40; Hungarian patents, $4.90.

We cannot change Advertisements in this paper after 5 o'clock p. m. Tuesday of week of issue. Advertising copy which reaches us later will have to be held over till following week.

Business in feed was quiet, but prices rule firm. Manitoba bran is quoted at $13 to $13.50, and shorts at $14 to $14.50 per ton, including bags.

The oatmeal market has continued easy since last report and prices are 5c. lower than they were last week. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.40 to $3.50 per barrel, $1.65 to $1.70 per bag; standard meal, $3.30 to $3.40 per barrel and $1.60 to $1.65 per bag.

BALED HAY.

There is no change in baled hay, the demand being fair at $11.50 to $12 for No. 1 and at $10 to $10.50 for No. 2 per ton in car lots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

The cheese market has developed another sharp advance during the past eight days and there has been extensive purchasing both in the country and on spot at an advance of ¼ to ½c. per pound. For instance, on Monday here receipts from the French sections were much heavier, being 9,000 boxes, an increase of 5,000, but demand was brisk and all were taken at a range of 8⅛ to 8¼c., with some special lots fetching 8⅜c. This is an advance of ⅜ to ½c. per pound on the prices paid last Monday, and is proportionately higher than what was realized in Ontario. In addition to this trading, a leading Ottawa Valley combination turned over 1,200 to 1,500 boxes at 8⅜c. On the whole, therefore, the market on this side is an active and firm one. Finest Ontario cheese, 8½ to 8¾c.; finest Townships cheese, 8⅜ to 8½c.; finest Quebec cheese, 8⅛ to 8⅜c.; under grades, 8c.

The butter market exhibited nothing special to-day. Trading was quiet and values were much the same. Finest creamery, 17 to 17¼c.; seconds, 16 to 16½c.; dairy butter, 12 to 12½c.

MONTREAL NOTES.

There have been offerings of Naples lemons on the market this week, the quality being remarkably good.

An active demand for evaporated apples on country account has led to an advance of ¼ to ½c. per lb. this week.

The easiness in oatmeal noted last week has continued and values show a further decline this week of 5c. per bbl.

A rather firmer tendency is noted in old stocks of Grenoble walnuts here, and 1c. per pound advance is asked this week.

Advices from Smyrna state that the increase in the crop of Sultana raisins over last year will only be about 1,000.

Active speculative demand throughout the country districts has advanced the price on July cheese from ¼ to ½c. per lb. on last week.

Continued strength has characterized the flour market. Ontario grades have advanced 5 to 10c. and Manitoba 25c. per bbl. on the figures ruling a week ago.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 12, 1897.

BUSINESS during the week has been but fair, the farmers being too busy at this season to buy goods. If markets will but hold firm as they now are, a good and profitable fall business is looked for. The samples of new teas, which have been received from China, show better values than the samples received last year. The teas themselves are daily expected. They are chiefly the better grades. The market is firm. The large stocks which were held here are getting worked off, and an improved movement is looked for. Cream

There's a something that fascinates about that

"Most Excellent" COFFEE

It's a Pure, High-Grade Berry, at a popular price of tartar shows little change ; if anything, prices are easier. The run of summer travel continues large. The weather has been beautiful.

TOBACCOS—There are quite large stocks still held here. The further advance made by McDonald was a surprise to the trade, and a pleasant one to the holders of stocks, on some lines of which they are now getting a clear profit of 17c. The demand for native grown tobacco is improving. The following are the 30-day prices on some of the best known brands of tobacco selling in this market : Brier, 8's, 20-lb. cads, 63c.; Index, 8's, 20-lb. cads, 60c.; Napoleon, 20-lb. cads, 65c.; Prince of Wales, 4's, 8's and 16's, 20-lb. cads, 53c.; Crown, 8's and 16's, 20-lb. cads, 61c.; Pilot, 8's, 40-lb. cads, 62c.; Myrtle Navy, 4's, 74c.; Mahogany, 8's and 16's, 62c.; Crescent, 8's, 58c.; Myrtle cut, 84c.

OIL—The receipts here of cod oil continue light, with prices still low. At Halifax better receipts are reported. In burning oil, prices show no change ; a rather better demand is noted. Contracts for fall will soon begin to be made. Lubricating oil is dull. We quote : Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.

SALT—Market is getting in better condition, both as regards stocks here and at outside points, except, perhaps, some places in Nova Scotia, where there are still ample supplies. Prices on coarse are held rather firmer, and a good demand is expected for the cargo due to arrive here about the last of the month. In Canadian salt there is nothing new to report. We quote : Coarse, 45 to 48c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 85c. to $1 ; Canadian fine, $1 to $1.05 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each ; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each ; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz ; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS—Very little for future delivery has yet been sold. Packers are firm, particularly in peas, prices of which have advanced fully 5c. per doz., and in some cases even more. New corn is held at a large figure above prices lately paid by dealers here for that packed last season. Fruits have been lightly bought as yet; prices are about as last year. In California fruits higher prices are asked, and it is said the Baltimore pack will not be as large as usual. Some Baltimore packers have withdrawn tomatoes. Salmon continues to be offered low, but sales are not up to last year ; quite a few old still here. When it is remembered that the price is 20 per cent. below last year's, and that there are no lobsters to be had, large sales during the season may be expected. We quote as follows : Corn, 65 to 70c.; peas, 75 to 85c.; tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; gallon apples, $1.75 to $1.80; corned beef, Canadian, $2.20 to $2.30; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.40 to $2.50; 1-lb tins, $1.30 to $1.50; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.25 ; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50 ; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3 ; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85 ; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25 ; pineapple, $2.25 to $2.75 ; salmon, $1.25 to $1.40; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.15 to $1.25 ; clams, $5 for 4 doz ; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz. ; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT—There continues to be large sale. Pears are perhaps the most active here. The sale of California fruit so far has been large, a second car having been received this week. Oranges are about out of the market, as are pines. Some large cases of Naples lemons have been received ; while fruit is large, our dealers prefer the other grades. Apples continue to improve in quality and they cheapen in price. Native tomatoes now supply the trade. Melons have a steady sale. Cucumbers are marked lower. There are no cherries this season. Plums, of which the crop in Nova Scotia is usually so large, are also largely a failure, and the apple crop will also be below the average. We quote as follows : Lemons, $5 to $5.50 ; oranges, $5 to $5.50; bananas, $1.50 to $2 ; Bartlett pears, per bbl., $6 to $8 ; tomatoes, 6c. per lb. ; cucumbers, 25c. per doz. ; raspberries, 10 to 12c.; new apples, $3.50 per bbl.; California peaches, $1.50 to $1.75; California plums, $1.75 to $2; California pears, $2.25 to $2.50; melons, 30 to 40c.; lettuce, 25 to 30c. per doz.

DRIED FRUIT—The market is still a quiet one. The stock of raisins is light here. Small quantities of California loose muscatels continue to arrive. While future prices are quoted no business has yet been done. Currants are also a limited stock here. At this season the demand is light, being chiefly for cleaned in 1-lb. packages. Prunes and such lines are dull. Onions have a good sale and prices are firm. Evaporated and dried apples are held higher, and further advances looked for later when demand improves. We quote as follows : Raisins, Valencias, 5¼ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2 ; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c.; prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples, 5 to 5½c.; onions, 2¾ to 3c. per lb.; cocoanuts, $2.50 to $3.50 per 100 lbs. ; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Valencias, layers, 6 to 7c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.

SUGAR—While the market keeps quite firm as regards refiners' quotations, the feeling here, in granulated at least, is still below their prices. They have had no demand from this market for some time. There is a good enquiry for yellows. Prices show no change. We quote : Granulated, 4⅛ to 4¼c.; yellows, 3¾ to 3⅞c.; Paris lump, 5¼ to 5½c.; powdered, 5 to 5¼c.

MOLASSES—Another small cargo of Porto Rico is expected here. The market on this grade is firm. Barbadoes can still be bought low. Stocks of molasses are not large. Continued firm prices are expected. We quote : Barbadoes, 22 to 24c.; Porto Rico, 26 to 30c.; New Orleans, bbls., 25 to 27c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c. ; syrup, 36 to 38c. ; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.

DAIRY PRODUCE—In speaking to a large dealer the other day he said : "If the market was as strong as the butter we would be better off." There is no doubt the market would be stronger if the butter was better quality. Receipts are large and sales dull. In eggs, the feeling is easy, a fair demand only ruling. Cheese shows little, if any, change, although prices may be a little easies. So far the factories have had a good season. All the June cheese is about sold, and July make is well sold up. We quote : Dairy butter, 13 to 16c.; creamery, 17 to 18c.; prints, 18 to 20c.; cheese, 9 to 9½c.; eggs, 9 to 9½c.

FISH—Dry cod are quoted higher. Receipts of new are hardly enough to supply the present demand. Mediums bring about the same price as large. Pollock is also quoted higher. In pickled herring demand is still dull. A few thousand smoked herring to hand this week have somewhat relieved the market, which was about bare. Prices are still low. A few salmon are still being received. Shad have been a fair catch during the week. Some present catch pickled shad are now offered. While rather higher than earlier caught fish they are much better. At this season smoked shad are a favorite fish here. We quote as follows : Large cod, $3.25 to $3.50 ; medium, $3.25 to $3.35 ; pollock, $1.25 to $1.30 ; bay herring, $1.25 to $1.30 per half-bbl. ; smoked, new, 6½ to 7½c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50 to $5; boneless, 2½ to 8c.; Barrington, $3 per bbl.; Shelburne, $3.25 per bbl.; salmon, 20 to 22c.; boneless, 3½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.; shad, 10c. each.

PROVISIONS— There is little doing, The low price of lards helps the sale. The feeling in pork is upward, and beef is held more firmly, but there is little or no change in prices. Smoked meats are firm at the higher price, but rather less attention is being paid to them. We quote as follows: Clear pork, $13 50 to $14.50; mess, $12 to $13; plate beef, $12 to $13; hams 13 to 13½c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; pure lard, 6¾ to 7¼c.; compound, 6¼ to 6½c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—The firm feeling still continues, and in some lines higher prices are asked, but buyers have been rather more backward during this week. In oatmeal and oats, the higher prices lately quoted are hardly as well maintained. Feed is dull. Beans have a rather better enquiry. Canned is quoted a little higher; it has been scarce during the week. The dealers depend largely on the two local mills, and one has been shut down on account of accident, and the other is short of corn. We quote as follows: Manitoba flour, $5 to $5.10; best Ontario, $4.60 to $4.70; medium, $4.25 to $4.35; oatmeal, $3.55 to $3.65; cornmeal, $1.90 to $2; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $15 to $16; bran, do, do, $13.50 to $14.50; hand-picked beans, 85 to 90c.; prime, 75 to 80c.; oats, 33 to 34c.; hay, $12.50 to $13; barley, $2.75 to $3; round peas, $1.15; split peas, $2.85 to $3; yellow eye beans, $1.50; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¾ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

Merritt Bros. expect a cargo of Porto Rico molasses within the next week.

The Bank of New Brunswick has reduced its rate of interest to special depositors to 3 per cent.

Returns for over $24,000 worth of cheese shipped to England have been received by the shippers in Prince Edward Island.

Customs returns for July show a decrease of $10,701, as compared with last year's, the figures for last year being $59,921, and for this year $49,220.

It is expected two pulp mills will be started in or near St. John within the near future. The outlook for successful business at this point in this line is good.

Dearborn & Co. received this past week a shipment of canned goods from New Zealand, the first to come to this market. It consisted of canned mutton, preserved rabbit and sheeps' tongues. The selling price is $4 per doz.

The new D.A.R. steamer, the Prince Edward, will soon be on between Boston and Yarmouth. She will leave Yarmouth Mondays and Thursdays in the afternoon, due in Boston by six the next morning. Returning, will leave Boston Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. Passengers will be able to make the trip from Boston to Halifax, via Yarmouth and the Annapolis Valley, in less than twenty-four hours.

Besides the competition the railways have in the direct steamer from Montreal, the bringing of flour via Boston continues; 600 barrels arrived this week. The freight trains on the C.P.R. are making much better time than formerly, the time being about 36 hours between St. John and Montreal.

Mr. L. C. Archibald, of the Canada Milk Condensing Co. Antigonish, N.S., called on THE CANADIAN GROCER this week. He is well satisfied with the reception his milk, the "Owl" brand, is receiving at the hands of the trade. It is his intention to put it up in the self-opening can, which will be found particularly convenient by those who use this excellent article.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. report a continued active demand for smoked backs. "This line continues to please," they say.

G. F. & J. Galt say that low-priced Japan teas are features in their trade just now and that they will give quotations on application.

J. A. Maclean says he can't get enough of his "C4th" brand of smoked meats to fill his orders. He quotes his lines at 1c. higher than our market quotations.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

Tax Paying.

This week I can hardly refrain from encroaching upon territory other than my own. At nearly every place in Toronto I called this week the main topic of conversation was civic matters. This shows a commendable public spirit, but it did not give me any arguments on topics in connection with the grocery trade. In some cases I was asked to discuss these municipal matters in print; indeed I was requested to take both sides of the questions. Then again I might notice their changed humor this week; this was tax paying week. One gentleman jokingly remarked that he used to be able to pay all his taxes at once, but that now he had to make partial payments. These are the days when a business man can determine without the aid of books how profitable a business he has been doing for some time past. Considering everything, I guess I ought to lodge no complaints in regard to this humor, but rather congratulate the unfortunate on the commendable manner in which they bore their [illegible] $1.[illegible] Am.

V. Raby, 1st in the grocery contest.

Grocery Brokers.

Not many years ago a person could have counted the grocery brokers of Toronto on the fingers of one hand. Now, however, there must be 30 or 40 men in this business in the city. While in conversation with a dealer of considerable experience, who watches closely gradual changes in connection with the grocery trade, either wholesale or retail, he gave me the causes which in his opinion had brought about the popularity of the brokerage business. First, he told me of an occurrence that was not uncommon, and which had happened in connection with his trade only a few days before. "A wholesale grocer," said he, "came into my establishment with a brand of green coffee, of which on being questioned he confessed to have found the market bare, and of which he had imported samples, and was now taking orders. He had not ordered any supply forward, but was in the brokerage business in this line for the time being." "It is this lack of speculative policy," continued my informant, "that is driving the wholesale grocery trade to the wall. They seem to lack the courage and the confidence in themselves and customers which are requisites for the management of a good wholesale grocery business. As a consequence some of the foreign producers and manufacturers are gradually placing their goods in brokers' hands."

Pedlar Competition.

Grocers in Toronto are recognizing this summer that there is an evil in existence on the streets of the city that is even more dangerous and harmful than the department stores; that is the competition of pedlars. For several years the numbers of these pedlars have been steadily increasing, and they have gradually been taking fruit patronage out of the grocers' hands until this summer it is an indisputable fact that the bulk of the fruit trade has been done from these pedlars' wagons and push-carts. A short time ago a deputation from the Merchants' Benefit Association waited on the civic authorities with the purpose of requesting the $10 fee to be increased, but as yet no action has been taken in the matter. It is certainly nothing but right that this license fee should be raised, for why should men who, to say nothing of the quality of the fruit they sell and the way it is handled, live just outside the city limits and pay no taxes, compete with merchants who take an interest in the welfare of the city, and who pay a heavy share of the taxes—far more than 225 or 250 licenses at $10 each will amount to?

The loss of this trade affects the grocers' interests to a great extent. Not only does fresh fruit take the place of many proprietary articles, but the sales for preserving purposes are of even greater moment. Of course the increasing trade in this line is due to the growing craze for cheapness. In the pedlar's wagon the customer does not see what he is buying, while in the grocery store he wouldn't buy cheap fruit just because he has an opportunity of seeing the better variety.

This trade cannot be stopped in the same way as the department stores can, by the refusal of the wholesalers to sell to them. The wholesale fruiters have the goods on commission and must dispose of them at any price rather than let them go to waste. The only apparent method is to have the license increased, and to have this done concerted action on the part of the grocers is necessary to elect a council that will do as requested. When this plan is carried out the grocers on the main streets of the city will not have a pedlar at each of the nearest corners on Saturday night selling berries at a cent a quart less than the storekeeper's ticket calls for.

N. Lapointe, 3rd in the grocery contest.

A shipment of fresh herrings, kippered herrings and herrings in tomato sauce is to hand with T. Kinnear & Co.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, has just received into stock a cargo of Rio coffee, direct shipment, ex ss. Flaxman.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited: "Another car lot of salmon, fine pink fish, has arrived, which we quote at tempting figures."

"'Daisy' caramels, an imported confection in 25-lb. pails, finds a ready sale with us," so say the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Robert Greig & Co. have just landed an extensive shipment of Mackay's "Kola Cafe." This preparation, combining the essence of the finest coffee with the stimulating properties of the West African kola nut, is becoming more popular in Canada every day.

A shipment of Marshall's herrings in tomato sauce, preserved bloaters and kippered herrings arrived this week for the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

"New York" ginger ale, for which W. H. Gillard & Co. are wholesale agents, is meeting with a large sale this season, over 4,000 cases having already been disposed of.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, report the arrival of a shipment of Morton's fresh herrings, herrings in tomato sauce, kippered herrings and preserved bloaters.

T. B. Escott & Co. have, en route from Japan, two carloads of "Banner" brand Japan tea. This tea is packed exclusively for their trade and is selected with a due regard to the wants of the tea consumer in Western Ontario.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, report the arrival of a shipment of fine Filiatra currants in cases, and they can now fill all orders for "Kalamos" cleaned currants.

T. B. Escott & Co.: "We have arriving in a few days a carload of new red sockeye salmon which will be the first car to arrive in this market. We have several carloads to follow week after week and ask our friends to get our prices."

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, are offering something new in canned mutton, canned rabbit and sheeps' tongues, packed in New Zealand. They claim that these are very fine, and will sell much below Canadian goods of the same character.

CLERKS' SUMMER DUTIES.

IT is quite a reasonable difficulty for clerks in a grocery store to adapt their method of work to the wants of customers and employer which vary widely with the different seasons. In some cases strict attention must be paid to the interior arrangement and management of the store, in others the waiting on customers should engross all the time of the clerk, and sometimes duties in regard to both branches of the business have to be performed alternately.

To clerks in stores whose customers are diminished in numbers during the holiday season by the general exit to summer resorts, the departure of this custom is often a signal for relaxation from strict attention to business, mainly because they do not recognize this necessity of varying their method of work. When a considerable number of the customers have, during this season, withdrawn their patronage, many spare moments are left on the hands of the clerk to be disposed of in a way very different to the one that has been employed all winter. What renders the probability of their not being put to their proper use are the increased attractions of sports.

However, if the condition of grocery stores in the summer time were pointed out to those clerks who are prone to consider all summer as a holiday, it is reasonably certain that much time, which, as far as the grocer is concerned, is now wasted, would be employed by them to advantage. Indeed, if the clerks would see what is demanded of them in these months they would soon be grateful for the custom of going to summer resorts, and for the time that is thus granted to attend to the various duties to which the hot weather gives rise.

It has been said that there are two kinds of clerks : One class comprises those who try to satisfy the wants of customers and to please them, and the other is composed of those who are careless in endeavors to make themselves pleasant. But in a summer grocery store there seems to be a far more important classification. To put clerks into two classes only, we would classify the clerks who frequently inspect the condition of the syrup barrels and keep them free from anything that flies can attack, and regularly dust both goods and shelves, as one class, and in the other we would put those clerks whose attention is not attracted to the removal of such nuisances and who may be good or bad salesmen or saleswomen.

It is in the grocery store that this classification is peculiarly necessary in the summer season. In many of these stores vegetables are handled, which means that a good deal of time has to be spent in keeping them fresh, and a good deal of attention has to be given to guard against an overstock. The sugar barrels must be covered, so as not to attract flies. Canned goods must be prevented from becoming heated too highly and provisions must be shipped often, to prevent spoiling. In fact, there are a thousand and one things which must be attended to in July that do not bother the grocer in January.

AN OBLIGING GROCER.

THE customer of a retail grocer in Toronto went into his store the other day for a small article costing ten cents.

The grocer did not have it in stock. He offered, however, to get it and send it to the boat a mile away, which left an hour later, the aforesaid customer and his family having taken up their residence for the summer on the other side of the lake.

The customer declared that he would not think of putting the grocer to so much trouble for so small an order, but, the grocer insisting, the order was taken and the goods were awaiting the buyer when he reached the boat.

The grocer in question has one of the largest retail grocery businesses in Canada, and it is no wonder. The incident above given is no doubt characteristic of his whole business career, which has been a lengthy one.

It is true the customer mentioned in connection with this incident had been dealing with the merchant for some years. But had the latter not been obliging he could easily have got out of filling the ten-cent order, particularly when the customer demurred against troubling him.

A merchant never loses anything by being obliging. The obliging business man is all the time weaving cords which not only fasten regular customers to him, but draw others to him.

Be obliging. It pays.

A DUTY FOR MERCHANTS.

The fire which destroyed one of Oshawa's chief business blocks the other day should set business men thinking in other towns whose water supply for fire purposes is obtained from tanks.

When the brigade reached the fire in question and opened the tank for the purpose of inserting the suction hose of the engine it was found that the vessel was empty, causing a delay of about forty minutes. With nothing to oppose it, the fire naturally spread rapidly until all hope of saving the block was dissipated.

Thus, through somebody's carelessness, a business block lies in ruins and the merchants affected are temporarily compelled to cease from their labors.

It is not at all improbable that Oshawa is not the only town in the country which has tanks filled with air instead of water. And in order to avoid a repetition elsewhere of the Oshawa occurrence merchants should see that not only the water tanks, but all other fire-fighting appurtenances in their several towns are in an efficient condition.

TEES, WILSON & CO.

THE wholesale trade generally, on Thursday last, learned with regret that the firm of Tees, Wilson & Co. had found it necessary to suspend payment and will be compelled to go into liquidation.

The firm did a commission business, chiefly in tea, and the sole remaining partner, Mr. D. T. Tees, has made a voluntary abandonment to the trustees appointed by the creditors, placing his services at their disposal with a view to wind up the business without loss.

Although there must be some difference of opinion as to whether Mr. Tees was justified in continuing his efforts to carry on the business when the difficulty of doing so must have been transparent, more than the usual sympathy is felt for him in view of the strenuous efforts he made to succeed, and the creditors have the satisfaction of knowing that if their money was lost it was not through any fault of their debtor aside from the business difficulties that proved too much for him.

The liabilities are in the vicinity of $22,000, and the assets are estimated to be about $9,000.

AN IMPROVEMENT IN APPLES.

R. J. Graham, Belleville, says that apples, waste and chop, are in active demand for export for shipment during October, November and December at much higher prices than were paid last year. He is open, he says, to contract for the entire Canadian pack.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. J. C. Hazard, of the T. B. Escott Co., wholesale grocers, London, was in Toronto this week.

Mr. Emila Poliwka, of the Canadian Specialty Co., is on a combined pleasure and business trip to Michigan, where he is visiting the firms for whom he is agent.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, Aug. 12, 1897.

THINGS are moving along fairly well and trade is in a healthy condition. The first shipment of Canadian butter to the Klondyke was made last week and consisted of 10,000 lbs., put up in 5,000 boxes, made on the principle of the French butter boxes for shipment to Oriental countries. The shipment was made by the Parsons Produce Co., and they guarantee every pound to retain full flavor for at least two years. Last week also saw the first shipment of flour for the same destination. In this case it was the Lake of the Woods Milling Co. who were the shippers. This enterprising firm evidently aim at having the entire world as a market, as very recently they made a heavy shipment to Australia. The appointing of Customs collectors all along the line west is having a healthy effect in checking the shipment of American produce into the mining regions, and it looks as if we would have all the market we need for our food products. There has been little or no change in grocery markets during the week and prices remain unchanged in many lines.

BUTTER—Creamery is firmer and slightly advanced. The purchasing is nearly all on speculation and the price being now paid is 15½ to 16c. f.o.b. factories where car rates can be taken advantage of. Dairy butter is bringing from 10 to 11½c. for round lots and the demand is fairly maintained.

CHEESE—This product is still low, 6¼ to 6¾c. being paid at the factories.

EGGS—Are on the upward road, and strictly fresh eggs are again 20c. per doz. retail. Dealers are paying 12c. and selling candled eggs to jobbers at 14c. The supply is not as large as could be desired.

POULTRY—Is still scarce and dear.

CURED MEATS—Market still very firm, with some shipments from the United States owing to the shortage in hams. The imported goods are all smoked.

GREEN FRUITS—This market is active and well supplied. No British Columbia fruit has yet arrived, but dealers are anticipating a supply from that province and are trusting it will arrive in better condition than last year when, owing to carelessness in packing and lack of ice, the fruit arrived here almost pulp. Washington and Oregon plums are coming in, though in plums, pears and peaches preserving fruit has not yet arrived, the stocks now shown being principally fine table fruit, rather too expensive for the housewife's canning and jam-making operations. The fruit coming in from these territories is in excellent condition. Peaches and plums run at $1.50 to $1.60 per crate, and pears, $2.50 to $3. A few Georgia grapes have arrived, and are being sold at 65c. per 10-lb. basket. Bananas run from $1.25 to $2.25 per bunch, according to size and quality. Watermelons, fancy, 24-lb. weight, are $4 per doz. New apples in barrels are 4.50 to $5, and a very good quality. Tomatoes, 75c. per 4-basket crate; these are Crystal Springs. Crab apples are in from Washington, and a very fine sample; they sell at $1 to $1.15 per crate of 30 lbs. net. Lemons, California—Very satisfactory goods are coming in, and are likely to supersede the Messinas; they sell at $6 per crate. A carload of late Valencia oranges reported to arrive this week; they are smaller, and will find ready sale at $6.

CANNED DANDELIONS.

Some time ago when The Evening Missoulian, of Montana, complained of an overproduction of dandelions in Missoula, The Independent suggested that they be canned for food. The Philipsburg Call thought the suggestion a great joke, and said: "Please pass the canned dandelions, Mr. Independent." The request of The Call was shown to Frank K. Turner, who immediately took a can of dandelions from his shelf and mailed it to the editor of The Call, with the compliments of himself and The Independent. Recently The Independent received the following telegram from The Call:

"Editor The Independent, Helena, Mont; We confess ignorance and acknowledge the dandelions.

"Lon R. Hoss."

There are several stories to account for the presence in the state of as many dandelions as are now to be found here. It is said that the pestiferous flower is not indigenous to the climate and soil, and that it owes its presence here to the industry of some one who took the trouble to send abroad for the seed and sowed it in Helena, to be forever a menace to the beauty of lawns and parks, and to be wafted by varying winds from one point to another until the surface of the entire state was covered. The canning of dandelions opens a field of usefulness for the pest, but will not lessen the general interest manifested in the story of their origin. Who can tell it? —Ex.

HE GOT HIS ANSWER.

THE Philadelphia Times relates this story of a commercial traveler who was answered, but the answer was very different from what he had expected:

As the train pulled out of Chicago, a quiet, gentlemanly-looking man entered the buffet car, and, ensconcing himself in a comfortable chair, drew out a long cigar and entered deeply into his paper. He remained so quiet and retained his seat so long that another passenger, whose bearing distinctly stamped him as a commercial traveling man, one of the kind full of chatter and curiosity, could no longer restrain himself. Addressing the quiet gentleman, he enquired, "Traveling east?"

Slowly removing his cigar, the gentleman turned and looked at his questioner with slightly elevated eyebrows, replying, "Yes." "New York?" "Yes." "Pleasure?" "Yes and no." "Great place, New York. Ever been there before?" "No." "I'm going home this trip—New York, you know."

The gentleman made no reply, but resumed his paper. After a little silence the commercial man began again:

"I'm with C. & Co.. on Broadway. If you drop in I'll show you over the city." "Thank you, it will not be necessary!" "Excuse me, but might I ask what you're going to New York for?"

By this time most of the other passengers were interested. The gentleman, who was extremely annoyed at the drummer's curiosity, laid down his paper and exclaimed: "I'm going to New York, first, because the train is taking me there; second, because I've got lots of money and can afford it, and, last, because if I like the place I intend to buy it."

The commercial man subsided amid a roar of laughter.

INDUCEMENTS.

If common sense were as common as its name implies there would be no question as to the profitableness of gift schemes in the retail branches of business, for no one would dream of leaving his or her regular dealer because some fellow up the street or around the corner was giving a china cup and saucer or a trading stamp with every pound of tea or ten cents' worth of any article sold to a consumer. But fools abound, unfortunately, and the grocers and general storekeepers, well aware of the fact, sometimes find that it pays them to use the bait of a present or prize.

It is astonishing how far a gift scheme will draw trade to retail grocers' stores. Not long ago the writer, while waiting to have his wants attended to in an up-town store, overheard a lady tell one of the clerks that she had been drawn to the store by the reputation it enjoyed for its fine china; she had come at least three miles that morning, she said, and was glad she had done so because the china was so "elegant," but she hadn't a word to say about the quality of the tea with which the cups and saucers were given —that, evidently, was a trivial point, not worth notice.

This old world will roll through many cycles of time before the class of people which gift schemes attract disappear from its surface, and as long as they exist it is natural to suppose that there will be people to trade upon their weakness and cajole them with chinaware and other "inducements."

Nevertheless, we cannot recommend the adoption of such schemes, because we have noticed that the custom best worth having relies upon old-fashioned "inducements," such as good goods, fair prices, prompt attendance and delivery, courteous treatment, etc., and the tendency usually is for gift scheme "inducements" to be substituted for the other kind, instead of being used in combination with them.—Merchants' Review.

A NEW BROOM.

The H. A. Nelson & Sons Co., Limited, have just added another line of brooms to their "Good Luck" brand. The first three varieties have proved such a success that they found the necessity of a No. 4. It is sewed with four strings; is made of fine brush, has the same kind of a handle as the numbers in the "Good Luck" brand, but has a plain finish. It retails at 20c.

DON'T GIVE UP.

JONAH was an unwilling guest. He wanted to get out. However much he may have liked fish he did not want it three times a day and all the time. So he kept up a fidget and a struggle and a turning over, and gave the whale no time to assimilate him. The man knew that if he was ever to get out he must be in perpetual motion. We know men who are so lethargic they would have given it up, and lain so quietly that in a few hours they would have gone into flukes and fish bones, blow hole and blubber.

Now we see men all around us who have been swallowed by monstrous misfortunes. Some of them sit down on a piece of whalebone and give up. They say: "No use! I will never get back my money or restore my good name or recover my health." They float out to sea and never again are heard of. Others, the moment they go down the throat of some great trouble, begin to plan for egress. They make rapid estimate of the length of the vertebrate, and come to the conclusion how far in they are. They dig up enough spermacetti out of the darkness to make a light and keep turning this way and that, till the first you know they are out.

Determination to get well has much to do with recovered invalidism. Firm will to defeat bankruptcy decides financial deliverance. Never surrender to misfortune or discouragement. You can, if you are spry enough, make it as uncomfortable for the whale as the whale can make it uncomfortable for you. There will be some place where you can brace your feet against his ribs, and some large upper tooth around which you may take hold, and he will be as glad to get rid of you for a tenant as you will be glad to get rid of him for a landlord.—Christian Herald.

COFFEE ESSENCES.

A retailer said to me the other day, says a writer in Grocery World: "It's astonishing what a fine class of people use coffee essence. You'd naturally think that such preparations would be used to cheapen the cost of coffee—as an adulterant, in other words—but such is not always the case. I serve a family able to keep their carriage and coachman, and they use it altogether. The head of the house is a German, which may account for it, but they buy it of me regularly, and say they use it all the time. I asked one of the servants the other day how they used it, and she said her orders were to add about one-fourth part to the coffee. She said the family all thought it added considerable to the flavor, even of fine Java and Mocha."

SAUSAGE RECIPES.—SALAMI DI VERONA.

Use as follows for each 100 pounds:

Thirty-six pounds lean beef free from sinews; 36 pounds lean pork free from sinews; 28 pounds back lard sliced into pieces about one-half inch thick.

For spicing use: 63.5 ounces salt, 5¾ ounces white pepper, 5 ounces fine powdered cane sugar, 2 1-5 ounces powdered potas. saltpetre, 4 ounces old French cognac.

The spicing is carefully blended together before adding to the mass.

First chop the beef, then all the meat and lard as directed, to about half a walnut size; now add the salt and spice mixture, and continue chopping and turning the mass until about the size of a pea. The knife should be frequently wiped off in order to remove particles of meat adhering which would cause inequality. Before chopping, the block should be well rubbed with five or six pieces of good garlic until the block is well permeated with the same.

Use beef middle guts or butts, to be tied after stuffing with two-threaded twine from thick to thin ends. Next treat like cervelat sausage, but do not smoke, drying the sausage instead, for from four to five weeks.—National Provisioner.

SCHOOL DAYS

will soon be here and the children all want nice fresh confectionery. Let us have your orders now. Have everything in readiness for the rush. Remember the last time the schools opened you did not have your stock of Candy just as you hoped to have it. Don't repeat the mistake. Your future trade with the little people will depend on how you begin, and remember the little people will soon be big people, and they have long memories, and are keen judges.

Vol. XI. (Published Weekly) MONTREAL AND TORONTO, AUGUST 20, 1897 ($2.00 per Year) No. 34

A SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS MAN.

MANY of the most successful business men in the United States have received their early commercial training in Canada. Thomas Martindale, of the firm of Thomas Martindale & Co., Philadelphia, is one of them, and the following reference to him in The Trade Magazine will probably interest some of his old friends in Canada and prove beneficial to those who are young either in experience or years.

Mr. Martindale is by birth an Englishman, his eyes having first opened to the light in Ling Riggs, Weardale, County Durham, England. This was on Dec. 15, 1842. While he was yet a little lad his parents removed to this country, spending first a year in Canandaigua, N.Y., and then, in 1854, removing to London, Canada. His father, although by no means rich in this world's goods, was, to use the words of his more fortunate son, "as industrious, as plucky and nervy a man as ever lived; really and truly in his sphere and in his way, a hero." His mother was a fitting wife for such a man. There were twelve children in the family, of whom Thomas was the eldest, and we may well believe that the severest economy and the most unflagging industry on the part of everyone capable of work were required to make both ends meet, when the father's wages were but a dollar and a quarter a day.

Shoes and clothing for the entire family were made at home. Vegetables raised on the little garden spot surrounding the house went far towards supplying the table. A cow and a few chickens added not only to the home bill of fare, but brought in a little income in money. The mother and daughters were able to realize something from their needles. And so, by dint of the most careful saving and continual labor, the family not only lived in comfort, but throve as well, and most of the boys and girls grew to mature years with such a fund of good common sense and vigorous health as no other childhood could have insured them.

It was a most valuable training for the subject of this sketch. He learned the necessity for economy, the importance of hard work, the value of a dollar, the healthfulness of a plain diet and the joy of a good digestion with that thoroughness that prepared him for the distinguished life that lay before him. And realizing almost from infancy the responsibility of doing what he could for the support of the family developed that sturdy independence in thought and action which is one of his most marked characteristics.

It must not be supposed that he was in any wise particularly unlike the average boy of his day. He was just as full of fun and just as much given to sport as he is at present, even now admitting the delight with which he used to watch a certain gamecock belonging to the family thrash the neighbors' roosters, while the gardening committed to his care by the elder Martindale was adjourned until the battle was over, or the father happened to observe the neglect of the work. He could never have posed as the goody-goody boy of the Sunday school books, a fact which may explain his subsequent success.

At thirteen years of age he sought and found employment as boy in a dry goods store. His initial salary was a dollar and a half a week. It did not remain at that figure very long, for he was both capable and ambitious, as well as industrious, and by the time he was twenty years of age he not only had superintending charge of the largest mercantile establishment of the kind in Canada, but was president of the Dry Goods Salesmen's Association of Toronto. Certainly this was a magnificent record to make in seven years.

How did he do it? He had no influential friends, no superior educational advantages, no social prestige. He was only one of twelve rosy youngsters who used to romp in the humble London cottage. But there he had learned common sense, tireless industry and those principles of sterling morality which, after all, are the true secrets of all enduring success. And these lessons, drilled into him through the wholesome poverty of his childhood, did more for him when once he faced life for himself than would a multitude of those advantages which young men often prize so highly.

In 1869 he abandoned the dry goods business finally. He was at that time employed in Boston, Mass., whither he had gone from Canada. His reasons were obvious. To use his own words, "I had been thirteen years in the dry goods business and was heartsick of its worriments and trials, and anxious to get out of it. My spirit rebelled against standing behind the counter space of three feet, and from morning until night answering questions for a never-ending procession of female shoppers, the greater number of whom asked for 'samples' and then passed on. And as the policy of the firm I was clerking for would not permit salesmen to attempt to influence sales by argument, the position was devoid of excitement and wearying to the utmost."

It was about this time that the velocipede craze was sweeping the country. This vehicle, it will be remembered, while crude and clumsy, beside the modern bicycle, was phenomenally popular, and men who had enough means to hire a hall and buy a few velocipedes to hire to those who desired to ride literally coined money. When, therefore, a friend proposed to Mr. Martindale that they go out west and start a "rink," he eagerly accepted the proposition and abandoned the dry goods business. Each had saved a little money. The friend remained in Boston to purchase the wheels, and Mr. Martindale started west to secure a hall in some suitable locality. Going to Pittsburg, he had no difficulty in securing the proper building in an eligible location. This done, he settled down to wait for the velocipedes. They never came. The courage of the friend weakened. He concluded not to invest, and so informed Mr. Martindale, who, after paying his expenses and the rent of the hall, found himself a good deal poorer than he had been, and, what was worse, entirely out of employment.

In this dilemma, he concluded to return to Canada. Fortunately, a friend gave him a pass to Oil City, wishing to help him that far on his way, and the journey to Canada was not completed. Those were the palmy days in that city, and Mr. Martindale, captivated by the bustle and stir which everywhere met his view, decided to remain a while and try his fortune. Seeking the most successful oil operator there, Mr. John S. Rich, he applied for work.

"What can you do?" asked Mr. Rich.

"I can do anything that any other man can do."

"Well, can you dress tools, bits and reamers?"

"No, sir."

"Can you drill?"

"No, sir."

"Can you run an engine?"

"No, sir; but I can learn to do any of these things."

"My good man, I am not hiring learners," was Mr. Rich's reply; but recognising the pluck of this new applicant for employment, he directed him to a boarding house on Charley Run, some two miles distant, promising to come up himself in a day or so and see what he could do.

He was as good as his word. He gave Mr. Martindale a pick, shovel, mattock and axe, and ordered him to cut out a road in the side of the mountain, between two wells of the Union Oil Co. Here was a little more "excitement" and lack of "monotony" than the young clerk had bargained for when he left Boston. A good many dry goods clerks under similar circumstances would have taken the first train out of Oil City. But Thomas Martindale accepted the work and the implements, and in two weeks' time had completed the road. Instead of retiring to rest after his hard day's work was done, he studied the stationary engine with the assistance of a kindly foreman, and learned it so thoroughly that by the time his road was completed he was installed as engineer at one of the wells on a salary of three dollars a day.

He, himself, has told this portion of his experience: "I boarded myself, carried my groceries and other necessaries from Oil City two miles over the mountain, did my own cooking, built a music stand with a gas jet in front of it, practised my scales, sang, laughed and gamboled across the mountains (when off 'tower') like a ten-year-old boy. I was happy, and as that is the ultima thule of all mortals, I was to be envied."

It is to be noted, however, that this happiness was not of a nature which enabled him to settle down content with three dollars a day for life. It was not long before he had accumulated a little money, which he invested in a half interest in a dingy little grocery store at Oil City. At last he was in his proper sphere of business. After buying out his partner, he proceeded to bring the store up to his ideals in such a transformation as made the eyes of the customers open with wonder. The whole establishment was brightened up. The quality of the stock was greatly improved; fair prices were affixed; a delivery system was introduced; it was only a few months until the "checkered store," so called from the fact that its front was painted in red, white and blue, was too small. The "blue store" was then rented, and by methods already adopted, supplemented by liberal and judicious advertising, it, too, was speedily outgrown. He was therefore compelled to move into a commodious brick building at the river bridge, and found himself in the "Mammoth," the leading grocery in the thriving city.

His career was one of uninterrupted prosperity; but having a fine opportunity to sell out and being desirous of doing business in a large city, he disposed of his stock, and in 1875 removed to Philadelphia, where, at the corner of Tenth and Market streets, he opened the first "California" store.

From that time to the present Thomas Martindale has been among the leaders in the retail grocery trade of the great city. This is a high compliment to pay him, but it is safe to say that he has always been among the leaders in every great interest touching the politics or the charities of Philadelphia.

This latter statement leads to a consideration of a side of his career which has not been noticed thus far. He was born with a good voice and a taste for music, both of which he found time to cultivate, in spite of the arduous labors incident to his busy life. He possesses, too, a high grade of ability as a public speaker. These gifts naturally brought him into public notice, more or less, very early in his history. Naturally broad in his views, and always interested in the great movements whose end is the uplifting of public morals or the amelioration of evil conditions in municipal government, it is not strange that he has been forced into prominence as a citizen. And certainly it reflects lasting credit upon his character that, unlike so many able business men, he has been ever willing to devote his time and talents to the public weal.

On March 23, 1891, he was the speaker at a public meeting in the Council chamber, which resulted in the organization of the Trades League of Philadelphia, and henceforth as chairman of its principal committees, he was one of the most potent leaders in accomplishing the important measures by which that organization has done so much to advance the material interests of the city. In platform addresses, in terse and vigorous newspaper articles, in strong representations before committees of the Legislature at Harrisburg or the National Congress at Washington, by all means known to an acute, resourceful, able business man, he worked for Philadelphia, and with such success, too, that it is altogether likely that if his business cares could have been laid aside to that extent, he would have been Mayor long before now.

He has been no less prominent in charitable movements, for he has a big heart as well as a level head. Of what he has done in a private way nothing need be said, for no one would deprecate public mention of such deeds more severely than he himself. It is only just, however, to state that he has been most active and liberal in those great charitable enterprises that have touched the heart of the nation. For instance, in 1881 he was chairman of the Merchandise Committee of the Irish relief movement. When news of the terrible disaster at Johnstown, Pa., was flashed over the wires he was the first man in Philadelphia to deliver a wagon-load of goods for shipment to the stricken city. He was the first man, too, to propose action for the relief of the famine sufferers in Russia, organizing the movement in Philadelphia, and leading it to most gratifying success. These are but isolated instances indicating the course which he has pursued throughout his entire career, and in conjunction with his public life seem to demonstrate that he holds his ability and his fortune in trust for the benefit of society.

Mr. Martindale insists upon taking time for recreation, and, in addition to music, of which he is passionately fond, spends much of the time in hunting. He is a fine shot and keen sportsman. He has bagged nearly every kind of game in which this country abounds, and truth compels the statement that while he is reticent as to his business success and modest about his public work, he can't help talking pretty largely about a successful hunting trip. Indeed, most of the literature from his pen, which, it is to be hoped, will some day be collected in book form, is descriptive of his various hunting excursions.

If one should ask for the secrets of the success which has been described in this little sketch, the answer is not difficult.

(1) There is native ability of a high order, developed by an early life whose privations and necessities called for its utmost exercise.

(2) There is energy, persistent industry, and ambition.

(3) There is the rigid honesty that pays cash and expects cash payment in the transaction of business.

(4) There is a good heart and a thorough relish for the brightness that there is in life.

(5) There is that broad patriotism and recognition of human brotherhood which gladly sacrifices self in the interests of others.

These qualities, exercised with the homely common sense of the man, have made Thomas Martindale what he is, and assure him of the bright future that his hosts of friends so earnestly desire in his behalf.

THE CUTTING OF PRICES.

Editor GROCER,—I have paid for your journal for quite a number of years, but do not know how long I will be able to do so if I have to make a price to suit every customer who comes in. We have about three stores in this city. Merritton and Thorold are also connected with us and they do the cutting for us. Sometimes it is sugar, fruit jars, raisins, currants and any number of other lines. I see all of the best wholesale houses of the country advertise in your journal. I think it is about time they should take time and agree that such dealers could get no goods in the regular way or any other way. Your department stores in Toronto are giving dealers quite an idea how to run business on the crooked plan.

Yours, etc.,

ARCH. WILSON.

BARGAINS ON THE TABLE.

I EMPHATICALLY endorse the bargain table idea. It is a natural outgrowth of any business, and the more sides or departments a business has the more need is there for the bargain outlet. Clean stocks are manifestly the proper stocks. Broken lots, orphan pieces, ends of varieties, the waifs and strays that must result from active selling, are things that clutter up shelves and debase regular lines. The quicker all these stragglers are cleaned out the better. They can be sold with regular goods, but never to the advantage of either.

Gathered on a bargain table, however, and conspicuously marked, they become a special attraction. If certain days are named as those on which these tempting bits will be handed out, the public soon comes to look for those occasions and to profit by them. The dullest mind can understand that the merchant wants to be rid of remnants, no matter what the kind. It is reasonable that considerably reduced prices should be put upon them. And so the bargain table becomes a magnet.

This illustrates one of the great features of any successful advertising—the statement, to be a drawing one, must be reasonable. The bright advertiser catches up every point that will appeal to the public as giving a reason for better prices or for quick coming, and the success of his work is then half assured.—Gillam in Brains.

AN IMPROVED CASH REGISTER.

The National Cash Register Co., of Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A., have just added some improvements to their No. 79 registers, which make them available in stores where it is sometimes necessary to register single transactions amounting to more than $100. The registering capacity of these machines has been increased from $99.99 to $999.99, while at the same time it is possible to keep a separate account of the sales in the different departments of the store, or to keep separate the sales of each clerk in the store. This should open up a new field for the use of the cash register.

NEW MATERIAL IN MATCHES.

IT is predicted by The Pittsburg Dispatch that paper is the coming material for matches. The prospect of the wooden match industry being appreciably affected by a new process for manufacturing matches of paper is held to be extremely probable, particularly as the best wood for this purpose is constantly growing scarcer and more costly. The new matches are considerably cheaper than the wooden product and weigh much less, which counts for much in exportation. The sticks of the matches consist of paper rolled together on the bias. The paper is rather strong and porous, and when immersed in a solution of wax, stearine and similar substances sticks well together and burns with a bright, smokeless and odorless flame.

Strips ½ inch in width are first drawn through the combustible mass and then turned by machinery into long, thin tubes, pieces of the ordinary length of wood or wax matches being cut off automatically by the machine. When the sticks are cut to size they are dipped into phosphorus, also by machinery, and the dried head easily ignites by friction on any surface. There is some talk of utilizing the new invention in the manufacture of matches on an extensive scale for export to India. The invention involves no waste whatever, and the paper is delivered in rolls like the telegraph tape and converted at one operation into match sticks, and by a second into matches that would dry without storing for a large part of the year in India. One thing, however, must be made sure of—that a wax is used which will harden at a shade temperature of 140 deg. Fahr. at least.

LONG FELT WANT MET.

EVERY grocer and dealer, large or small, has experienced the difficulty there is in keeping dried fruit open in a presentable condition and preventing it from drying up and losing its appearance, and at the same time losing in weight by evaporation. Who does not know the unattractive look of a box of raisins, especially of Valencias or Malagas, which have laid open in a warm store, or the dried-up look of prunes which seem, peculiarly susceptible in this direction?

Hitherto no satisfactory means appear to have been discovered of overcoming this difficulty. The large increase in the use of evaporated fruits, however, has resulted in the production of a case or cabinet that seems entirely to meet the want. These cabinets are so constructed that they will keep the contents in a moist and fresh condition, and they not only keep the fruit fresh and full size, but afford a perfect circulation of fresh air charged with just such a degree of moisture as is necessary to the keeping of the articles.

These cases work on the principle of evaporation, and cold water only is used, consequently no expense whatever is involved after purchasing the case. Upwards of 2,000 of these are already in use in the United States and the patent right for Canada has been acquired by the Globe Furniture Co., who are now turning out these cases, not only for dried and evaporated fruits, but also for bakers' goods, dried fish, cheese, and they manufacture a special case for tobacco and cigars.

A representative of THE CANADIAN GROCER had the pleasure of fully examining the working of one of these cases in the hands of Arthur P. Tippet & Co., the selling agents in Montreal, and the results were really remarkable. Prunes placed in the case in a sugared condition after a few days not only had assumed their original appearance of freshness but showed an actual gain in weight. The same applied to raisins, currants, etc., and while the manufacturers do not claim any virtue in the way of increasing the weight of goods, we understand from the firm above named that various fruits placed in the cabinet show varying gains of from 2 to 4 per cent. in weight, while in every case goods in a good condition when placed in the cabinet maintain their appearance. There is but little doubt these cases only need to be known to have a very large sale throughout Canada.

TOBACCO REGULATIONS AND DRAWBACKS.

THE following are the regulations just issued by order-in-council for the manufacture of tobacco, cigars and cigarettes from foreign and raw domestic leaf tobacco used in combination :

1. Such manufacture shall only be carried on in a factory specially licensed to use such leaf tobacco in combination.

2. Not less than twenty-five per cent. of both foreign and domestic raw leaf tobacco shall be used in each description of manufactured tobacco, cigars or cigarettes produced in such factory.

3. No tobacco, cigars or cigarettes, the product solely of either foreign or of domestic leaf tobacco shall be manufactured in such licensed factory.

4. All foreign raw leaf tobacco when taken for use in such tobacco manufactory, except when used in the manufacture of cigarettes, shall, in addition to the duty of Excise or of Customs paid thereon, pay as an additional Excise duty the sum of 20c. per pound actual weight.

5. All foreign raw leaf tobacco when taken for use in such licensed tobacco manufactory in the manufacture of cigarettes, shall, in addition to the duty of Excise, or of Customs duty thereon, pay as an additional duty of Excise the sum of 37½c. per pound actual weight.

6. All foreign raw leaf tobacco when taken for use in such licensed cigar manufactory, shall, in addition to the duty of Excise or of Customs paid thereon, pay as an additional duty of Excise the sum of 16c. per pound, actual weight.

7. The resultant manufactured product of factories licensed to use foreign and domestic leaf tobacco in combination, shall, in addition to the duties herein provided, be subject to an Excise duty at the same rate as imposed by the Inland Revenue Act on such articles when manufactured solely from domestic raw leaf tobacco.

8. The manufacture of cigarettes in such tobacco factory licensed to use foreign and raw leaf tobacco in combination shall be carried on in a compartment specially provided therefor, in which the whole process of manufacture shall be carried on, into which no material in a partially manufactured condition shall be received and wherein no other article than cigarettes shall be produced. All raw material shall be taken into such compartment only in the presence of an officer of Inland Revenue. In addition to the regular books of the manufactory the manufacturer shall keep in such compartment a book wherein he shall record as the transactions occur the description and quantity of foreign and domestic raw leaf tobacco brought into and taken for use therein.

9. All descriptions of manufactured goods produced in a tobacco or cigar factory licensed to use foreign and domestic raw leaf tobacco in combination shall have attached thereto an Inland Revenue stamp of a distinctive color.

10. No raw leaf tobacco which has been entered for use in a factory licensed to use foreign raw leaf tobacco only shall be brought into any factory licensed to use foreign and domestic raw leaf tobacco in combination.

Any person contravening any of the provisions of these regulations shall be liable to the penalties provided by section 102 of the Inland Revenue Act.

The regulations in regard to drawback of duty paid on foreign leaf tobacco contained in manufactured tobacco and cigars exported in bond direct from the factory where produced are as follows :

1. A drawback of 12½c. per pound shall be allowed on all foreign raw leaf tobacco which has paid the duty of Excise, contained in manufactured tobacco or cigars, wherein the stem of the leaf is not used.

2. A drawback of 10c. per pound shall be allowed on all foreign raw leaf tobacco which has paid the duty of Excise contained in manufactured tobacco wherein the stem or any portion thereof of the leaf is used.

3. No drawback shall be allowed on any manufactured tobacco containing more than 25 per cent. of stems, nor on any description of manufactured tobacco of a class not approved by the Department of Inland Revenue.

4. No claim for drawback shall be entertained until the official certificate of the receipt of the goods at the foreign port to which consigned, has been furnished the Department of Inland Revenue.

5. No refund is to be allowed on the exportation of scraps or cuttings, stems or waste.

6. Proof of the quantity of foreign raw leaf tobacco so contained in the manufactured product and of the payment of the duty thereon shall be produced by the exporter to the satisfaction of the Department of Inland Revenue.

WHY MERCHANTS FAIL.

BRADSTREET'S, than which there is no better authority on general business subjects, assigns the following causes for business failures :

	Per Cent.
Incompetence	16.4
Inexperience	6.1
Lack of capital	33.5
Unwise credits	4.7
Speculation (outside)	1.2
Neglect of business	3.2
Extravagance	1.3
Fraudulent disposition	7.4
Disaster (commercial crisis)	22.3
Failures of others	2.9
Undue competition	1.2

Few business men ascribe to the so-called little things of business the importance which seems to belong to them. From this table it appears that twelve out of every thousand fail because they speculate. They may, aside from this, be good business men, they may have good stores, but outside speculation brings twelve to the thousand.

to the dust. Thirteen out of the thousand is the proportion which fail because of extravagance—failure to look after the little leaks, to keep expenses within a reasonable limit. Forty-seven of the thousand go to the wall because of unwise credits.

There is another lesson in this table for that class of grocers who regard sharp competition as an influence against which they are hopeless. Such grocers argue that there is no use contending against hopeless odds and give up at once, where in many cases a stiff fight would have won the day. No competitor yet ever had all the good points on his side. Now, this table shows that only twelve out of a thousand fail because of undue competition, which is an exceedingly small percentage in view of the large number of merchants who look upon brisk competition as an unassailable force, meaning their own collapse as surely as night means the shadowing of day.

IT MAY WORK.

To keep out flies, suggests The Portland Oregonian, near the tops of the screen doors and window screens punch several holes from the inside with some instrument about the size of a lead pencil, thus leaving slightly funnel-shaped apertures, having a rough, jagged edge on the outside. This renders it impossible for the flies to enter through these holes, while the flies which have strayed into the house the first time they light on one of the screens crawl to the upper part, and, seeing the holes, imagine there is some place where they are not wanted on the other side, and out they go.

THE FRENCH TREATY AND THE MINIMUM TARIFF.

THE regulations which have been sent out by the Dominion Government, instructing the collectors at the various Customs ports to allow the products of France the same privileges under the minimum tariff as the products of Germany and Belgium, have set at rest a question which has been debated to a more or less extent since the recent decision of the law officers of the Crown was given out.

Briefly, the question was as to whether the French Republic was so entitled, and it is not surprising there should have been a difference of opinion thereon.

France, first of all, is not a favored treaty nation. The privileges which certain products of that country have enjoyed in Canada since 1894 are accorded by special treaty negotiated on our behalf by Sir Charles Tupper and Lord Dufferin, who were appointed plenipotentiaries by Her Majesty for the purpose; the Dominion, of course, not having the power to make treaties.

But while France is not a favored treaty nation, there is an article in the treaty between that country and Canada which reads:

> Any commercial advantage granted by Canada to any third power, especially in tariff matters, shall be enjoyed fully by France, Algeria and the French colonies.

The French treaty, it will be remembered, specified certain articles which were to be admitted into Canada at a reduced rate, ranging all the way from 30 to 50 per cent. And some people were in doubt as to whether the extract from the treaty above given was intended merely to govern the specified articles or applied to French products of any kind whatsoever.

If the clause applied only to the articles specified in the tariff, it seemed clear that the ruling of the law officers would not disturb the existing condition of affairs, for even after the discriminating duty of 25 per cent. in favor of British products came into force, the articles named in the treaty would still have an advantage of from 5 to 25 per cent. over those from any and all countries.

But if the article in question did not apply to the general imports of France before the decision of the law officers, why should it afterwards?

The article in question declares, as we have already shown, that any commercial advantage granted to any third power shall be enjoyed fully by France.

It is obvious that under the reciprocal tariff a "commercial advantage" was given a third power. But the Dominion Government time and again declared that France, like Belgium and Germany, was not entitled to share in the advantages accorded Great Britain.

Attached to the French treaty was a schedule known as Schedule B. It was really the Canadian tariff on the specified articles named in the treaty at the time that instrument was ratified, and it was at the rate of duty therein set forth that these articles were to be assessed no matter if Parliament were to subsequently increase the general tariff on them to any extent whatsoever. And this principle has been faithfully observed under the new tariff, which does levy a higher rate on one or more of the articles enumerated in the French treaty. But thus far and no farther would the Government go.

That in now going farther the Government has done the righteous thing no one will probably gainsay. At any rate, it is obvious there is no country more entitled to the minimum tariff than the French Republic. The treaty with France is of our own making, although negotiated through Great Britain. The German and Belgian treaties, on the other hand, were made and their conditions imposed upon us without our even being consulted.

Our total dutiable imports from France in 1896 were $2,487,133, on which duty to the amount of $1,020,804 was collected. Included within these amounts were goods to the value of $284,414 which came in under the provisions of the treaty, and the duty collected on this amount was $82,235.

On the basis of last year's figures, minus the duty collected on the goods specified in the treaty, Canada's loss of revenue upon French imports from April 1897 to August 1, 1898, when the treaties with Germany expire, will probably be in the neighborhood of $175,000, all but one month of the sixteen included in these dates being under the one-eighth reduction.

Taking Germany, Belgium, France, and all the nations interested, the loss of revenue will probably not much exceed five or six hundred thousand dollars.

THE CROP OF VALENCIA RAISINS.

A few orders for Valencias for prompt shipment have been placed this week. Prices are a little reduced from those for earlier shipment.

No general buying has set in owing to the fact that foreign markets are being well maintained and that even an advance is being talked of, whereas Canadian buyers have been looking for a falling market. Some dealers fear now that prices will not be nearly so low as their expectations called for.

NEW SULTANA RAISINS.

THE Smyrna mail of July 31 brought this week samples of fruit which was then on the market. These samples show a rather good, bright quality, and in point of size a slight improvement on the first sample referred to in our last issue. On this sample a price of 33s. 6d. is named, which is at least 30 per cent. above the usual price at which such goods are sold. As Canadian buyers never respond very quickly to high prices, and as there is practically no old stock on hand, the market is expected to be bare for some time.

Other advices from C. Whittall & Co., Smyrna, are to the effect that the earlier anticipations of the Sultana yield are not being borne out. The vines in many localities are suffering from disease, and though it is now certain that the production as a whole will be affected, no two estimates appear to coincide as to the probable result. The least sanguine talk of a yield of only 26,000 to 28,000 tons; others anticipate a minimum of 33,000.

Two tons of Sultanas reached Smyrna on July 30. This early lot was taken up by a shipper from Trieste at 27s. f.o.b. A sample of these shown here indicate immature fruit.

CURRANTS HIGHER.

THE first offers on new crop currants for direct shipment were made in Montreal this week. The goods were Provincials, the figure being 14s. cost and freight Montreal. This is about 4 to 5s. higher than last year, or 1 to 1¼c. per pound advance on last year's cost.

D. Pasqua, Patras, writing under date August 2nd, says: "The weather has continued to be fine and favorable to the crop. I have just returned from an inspecting tour through the principal currant districts. In some parts of Calamatta and Messina, peronosporos and hail have made sensible damage, but the greater part seems to be free from the disease, and promises a yield much superior to last year's, both in volume and quality. The Trifillian district (Filiatra, etc.), has also been affected, principally in the high grounds, and it is questionable whether the yield will be equal to last year's. In Pyrgos there are considerable complaints concerning the effects of the disease, but I expect we shall have there the same crop as the previous one. The same can be said of Campos and Amalias, where quality is satisfactory so far. In Patras the effects of the peronosporos are more evident, and a considerable falling off will result. The good prospects held out for the Vostizza and Corinthian fruit seem to wane with the progress of the maturity, and the upland quality will not equal that of the preceding year. On the whole we must reckon upon a yield similar to that of the preceding season, which has proved to have reached 154,000 tons. In Calamatta the cutting has been in progress for the past ten or twelve days, and a good deal of new fruit, principally from the high grounds, has already come upon the market. The quality is satisfactory. The vintage has also commenced in the Trifillian (Filiatra) district, and by the end of this week the cutting will be general all over the country. The wine grapes, generally, have suffered from peronosporos to a much larger extent than currants, and our wine crop this year will be the smallest on record. This will bring into consumption for wine making a good percentage of the currant grapes. Prices—The excitement for high prices is gaining ground throughout the country, and early shipments will have to yield to growers' exactions. It is to be hoped that Government, taking into consideration the bareness of stocks and the very limited new crop of currants, will not subscribe to the popular clamor for parairatissis (retention) which will become a disturbing element in the regulation of prices."

LARGE CONTRACTS IN CANNED VEGETABLES.

SOME extensive contracts for the future delivery of new canned vegetables have been one of the features of the week in Montreal. Some time ago the possibility of higher prices was intimated in these columns owing to short crops. Recent intelligence and the business under consideration bears this out. Altogether, during the past eight or ten days sales aggregating 30,000 cases have been put through, the time of delivery being spread out to some extent. One commission man was responsible for the sale of 150,000 cases of this quantity, consisting of tomatoes, corn, peas, and beans. The prices realized for tomatoes and peas show an advance of 7½ to 10c. per dozen over the opening prices last year, while corn is 5c. per dozen lower, but fully 5 to 7½c. higher than the closing prices. Another commission man closed 10,000 cases tomatoes at 70c.; corn, 55c.; peas, 67½c., and golden wax butter beans at 70c. On the whole, the market is said to be in a strong position for tomatoes, corn and peas, and values have an upward tendency. The pack of the latter will, it is claimed, be at least 25,000 cases short of last year, and some packers have already withdrawn prices from the market and refuse to sell any more at present. Several packers have also instructed brokers not to offer any more tomatoes at current prices.

Mr. A. S. Hallman, Berlin, has these good things to say of THE GROCER: "I have been a reader of your paper for the last eight or ten years and must congratulate you on the continued help it has given me and on the effort you are putting forth to keep it an up-to-date paper, which no merchant should be without." There are others.

THE ADVANCE IN CHEESE.

WHEN the month opened it was confidently predicted that there would be a sharp slump in cheese values as soon as the short contracts in July make were filled. These short contracts have been filled, yet the decline has not materialized. On the contrary, the market has pursued a directly opposite course. Two weeks ago the ruling range, according to section of production, was 8 to 8⅛c. To-day it is 8½ to 8⅞c., or ½ to ¾c. per pound higher than it was at the opening of the month. The short contracts, no doubt, were, as they have been ever since the season opened, a strong influence in sustaining prices, but there were other causes at work. It has transpired that the short selling was not, as many imagined, confined to operators on this side the water. British houses took a hand, to a large extent, and it has been developed beyond a doubt that the movement of cheese into consumption in Great Britain, owing to this and other causes, has been more rapid than in former seasons. In fact, the accumulations of cheese at distributing points across the water is not heavy, the declared stocks at Liverpool, for instance, on the 1st only being 60,000 boxes, or less than two weeks' consumption.

This condition is particularly encouraging in view of the heavy exports from Canada this year. To date they exceed those of last year by 212,000 boxes, the total to date being 964,039 boxes. This total has been poured into Great Britain at the rate of from 50,000 to 100,000 per week, and that prices have held up under this downpour shows clearly that the Englishmen have larger appetites this year than last. This is the only reasonable explanation, and it is the more acceptable in view of the fact that general trade conditions in Great Britain were never more prosperous than they are at present. This, of course, leads to a freer circulation of money. It is not cheese alone that is benefitting. Hams and bacon, wheat; in fact, all sorts of foodstuffs, are experiencing an increased demand. In the meantime the Canadian farmer is receiving an increased amount of money that will eventually go into circulation in other channels of trade. Prices this year for cheese have averaged almost 1c. per pound higher than they were last year. To date, therefore, the farmers have not only sold considerably more cheese, but they have got more money for it.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

A Window Dressing Hint.

I heard of a very suggestive method of dressing a window for the week, in which flour is a specialty. On one side of the window place a barrel of flour in a suitable position, have a part of the lid out and have the flour spilling out as much as desired. Don't waste the flour, however. It isn't necessary. On the other side of the window place a can of baking powder, and in the centre of the window have a plate of biscuits. The idea struck me as being suggestive, and is subject to the rule that ought to be followed by window dressers: Don't put too much in. A card might be hung up, too, saying that the recipe for making the biscuits will be given inside, and that flour is a specialty in that week or month, as the grocer may determine. Probably the idea is more suitable for fall windows than for those dressed just now, but as grocers are thinking of attractions for Fair time I give it. Flies, too, would be a bother in such a window.

Ruptures With Customers.

The hot weather of the summer months is often the indirect cause of a rupture between the retail grocer and his customer. This indirect cause calls for a great deal of patience and courage on the part of the grocer if he wishes to avoid making the direct cause of this rupture. During the summer months a grocer often has reported to him sales of bad goods by his customers, and accompanying each report is the demand for a substitute. These spoiled goods may be a cause of displeasure on the part of the customer, but it is not necessary that it should cut off relations between the contracting parties. Still it takes a great deal of courage and patience on the part of the grocer to accomplish the "smoothing over" that is required. The query is how is it to be done. The only way that is apparent is for the grocer to say he is sorry and give the substitute, but many a tradesman will say that the grocery trade cannot afford such a policy. My reply is that it has to and can. If a grocer will not give good value for good value he will have to drop out of the procession. For instance, the merchant may have laid in a stock of lobsters which he considered a first-class brand. However, a customer comes in the next week with the assertion that the contents of a can which she or he had purchased had turned out black. These contents will not injure a person, but yet the person does not feel safe in using them, and, accordingly, lays a complaint. The grocer may say that it is not his fault, that they were of the best brand, that he himself cannot get a substitute, and, therefore, he cannot give one. If he says this he loses his customer, and if he gives this reply every time these circumstances occur he will soon be out of business. The rules governing the dealings between the wholesaler and retailer do not necessarily govern the transactions of the consumer with the retailer. The only way open for the grocer to pursue is to either ask the customer to send the can back and to promise if he finds it bad to give a substitute or else tell him or her to throw out the contents and take another can. If this course is to be pursued take the latter, as the former method savors of distrust. Eggs, too, are frequently troublesome. Of course the merchant must know his customer and must be confident that he or she is acting honestly. But even when he is sure of his customer's honesty it is a difficult policy to pursue, but it is the wisest in the long run. It takes a long time to acquire the determination that is necessary. When this method of dealing with such difficulties is adopted, loss is not the only consequence. It holds the customer's confidence, and this brings an ample reward. But if anything will increase the carefulness in buying this will. A grocer is often tempted to buy cheap brands; they never pay. If he is of the right stamp and follows this plan he will never handle shoddy, for he will never wish to increase the number of substitutes that he gives. This is one time that it pays to be obliging.

Displaying Fruit.

The best means of showing and selling fruit is a subject upon which the views of grocers differ widely. I have before urged the desirability of displaying fruit in the window only, and I notice that the best of grocers agree with me. However, there are some who do not, and their reason for displaying fruit outside is to keep the crowd there. Many people, they say, like to look at the fruit and admire it without buying. Well, this isn't very profitable for the grocer. He doesn't please for the pleasure he obtains by doing so, he pleases in order to sell. But yet these people could look at the fruit in the window; they wouldn't have to come inside to see it. Certainly, if all who stop to look at fruit were to go into the shop, the grocer in a medium-sized store would be inconvenienced, but, if only the intending buyers entered, the merchant would not likely see any necessity of a larger store. Clerks, too, would not have so much work. Much fatigue caused by running in and out of the store would be prevented. However, circumstances alter the advisability of such procedure. If a merchant is dependent on the street traffic for a trade he would perhaps do well to take advantage of all his privileges and place some of his fruit outside. But it seems to me that such a display gives an appearance of cheapness to the place. At any rate, none of the good dealers put their fruit outside. They have a sure trade and their patronage will not buy fruit which has been exposed to catch all the dust on the street. It is a very serious question with fruiters, especially to those on streets which are dusty or on which the cars run.

RAMBLER.

EUROPEAN PRUNES HIGHER.

Indications generally point to a firm opening for all kinds of new crop prunes this season. Advices to hand this week in Montreal regarding staple sizes of Bosnia fruit quote them at 23s. 6d., cost and freight. Last year the same fruit was offered for 18s. This is a difference of 5s. 6d. per cwt., or 1¼c. per pound, in the cost of the fruit. Bordeaux letters state that there are no Imperial French plums to be had at all this year, and that French prunes are offered at 12s. 6d. to 23s., according to size, from 110's to 70's. On the smaller sizes the advance over last year is 1s. 6d. and on the others 3s. per cwt., or from ⅜ to ¾c. per pound on last year.

THE NEW BROKER.

MR. W. H. SEYLER, whom we announced a few weeks ago as being away on a business and holiday trip combined, has returned to Toronto and has taken up his quarters with Mr. Morley, the tea broker, in Room 100, Board of Trade building.

By a glance at his face one can see that his holidays were physically beneficial, and from his report regarding his business, one learns that he has been successful in his recent departure into a trade which is to be run on a brokerage and commission basis. Among the many houses that he is to represent are the following important ones: J. Lewenz & Hauser Bros., London, Eng., teas; Tellier, Rothwell & Co., Montreal, "Royal" black lead and blues; Hecker-Jones-Jewell Milling Co., New York; German Gelatine Works, Hoechst am Main, Germany. He is also in correspondence with other foreign and domestic firms, and soon he will have a general grocery line to handle.

Mr. Seyler's intellectual attainments, including his ability to converse in the French, German and Spanish languages, remove any difficulty he may find in obtaining foreign agencies, for on that account he will be able to keep thoroughly posted on the foreign market. His general popularity here will also assure him a good trade and the houses which he will represent can consider themselves fortunate in having such a reliable salesman.

His office in the Board of Trade building is on the ground floor near the southern entry, is roomy, and is very nicely fitted up. His new office furniture, presented to him by his old employers, is much to be admired.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Aug. 19, 1897.

GROCERIES.

A FIRM and healthy tone continues to prevail throughout the entire grocery trade. Sugar is yet the main article that is being shipped, but as this week is between seasons in the preserving line, the demand dropped off toward the end of the week. The St. Lawrence Sugar Refineries have advanced their prices 1-16c. all round. Canned goods have not altered much. Peas seem to have been entirely disposed of by the canners, and a yet firmer feeling prevails. There are some whispers to the effect that the supply of old corn will be inadequate to run out the season. Canners that wished to sell a little while ago refuse to do so now. Foreign rice continues firm. Currants have become very scarce, and a supply is in the hands of of a few dealers only. There has been no improvement in teas.

CANNED GOODS.

Latest advices from the Coast say that owing to the scarcity of laborers about the canning factories all along the Fraser River there is a probability that there will be quite a lengthy delay in shipping. In regard to the position here there is not much change to report. Packers are still in the market offering futures, but they are not so eager to sell as they were a couple of weeks ago. On the street this week there are rumors of a probability of a shortage in peas. Most factories have already sold out, and those that have not are advancing prices. Lobsters, too, have all gone out of the canners' hands and the supply is limited. Canned meats have taken another advance of 10 cents on lowest figures. The trade in vegetables is not exceedingly brisk. The tomato crop is not as large as was expected and canners are not anxious to sell at the present time. California fruits are this year being put up in 1 gal. cartoons. They are very attractive. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80 to 85c.; corn, 55 to 75c.; peas, 70 to 75c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.50 to $1.80, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 70 to 95c.; gallons, $1.50 to $1.80; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; other red salmon, $1.15 upwards, according to quality and brand; cohoes, 95c. to $1; canned mackerel, $1.20 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.70; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.35 to $1.40; 2's, $2.35 to $2.45; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

Trade in Rios has been quite brisk and the feeling is considerably stronger. This week a syndicate was formed in New York which bought up 400,000 bags of Rio, and has been the chief cause of this firmness. It is a matter of speculation as to whether there will be enough stock to withstand this purchase. Jobbers quote green in bags as follows: Rio, 9½ to 13c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

Quiet and featureless. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

Still continues dull. We quote as follows: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGARS.

The trade in sugars has not been so brisk this last week as it was formerly. The St. Lawrence Sugar Refineries have advanced their prices of sugars 1-16c. all round, both yellows and granulated. The agent here of the Canada Sugar Refineries has not as yet been notified of a similar action on the part of the company. This is probably due to the reasons given last week. We quote for Toronto: Granulated—St. Law-

SPICES.

Nothing new has developed during the week. Trade is brisk. We quote as follows: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 10c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 17c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

Shelled walnuts have all been sold out here. As a consequence prices are firm. Some more filberts have been taken at unchanged prices for shipment from Messina during October. We quote: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 20 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

Standard rice has dropped back into the same prices that it had before the rise. Japan and Patna, however, still continue firm at the advanced figures. The demand for all lines is good. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

TEAS.

Japan teas are the only varieties that are moving. In Japan prices have advanced, but as yet prices here have not responded. However, dealers look for higher prices here, as any quantities that are imported will have to pay the advance. The medium grades of Japans are arriving this week. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The crop of Vostizza currants is reported as progressing favorably, but it will be late. Bulk shipments for Canada will not likely be effected before the first week in September. Samples of new crop received here showed good quality. Old currants have become very scarce. Only a few houses hold stocks and they are sharing them up with friends. We quote: Provincials, 5¾ to 6c. in bbls.; ditto, half-bbls., 5¾ to 6c.; fine Filiatras, in bbls., 5⅞ to 6c.; do., half-bbls., 5⅞ to 6⅛c.; Patras, 6¾c. in cases; Vostizzas, cases, 7 to 8c.

As mentioned elsewhere, a few orders have been placed for Valencia raisins for prompt shipment. Prices are a little reduced from those set on earlier shipments, but they are as yet too high to invite a general activity in buying. However, prices are not likely to come down. Wholesalers received shipments of earliest new Valencias this week. We quote: Off-stalk, 4 to 5c.; fine off-stalk, 5 to 6c.; selected, 6½ to 7c.; layers, 5½ to 6½c.

There is nothing new to mention in regard to California loose muscatel raisins. Wholesalers quote from 7 to 8c. as the ruling figures.

Advices re crop of Eleme figs continue favorable, and shippers express the hope that the final outcome may prove satisfactory, both as regards quality and quantity.

CLEMES BROS. - TORONTO

We quote spot goods nominally : 10 oz., 7½c. ; 10 lb., 9 to 10c.; 18 lb., 10 to 12c.; 28 lb., 11 to 13c.; taps, 3¼ to 3½c. net; natural, 4½c. in bags, and 6 to 6½c. in boxes.

California fruit is without any special feature this week. Apricots will be lower than they were last year ; in fact, nearly all lines of evaporated fruit will be low-priced, and demand here should be much better on account of the smaller quantity of apples and other fruit. We quote California evaporated fruits as follows : Peaches, 7 to 10½c. per lb., according to quality ; apricots, 6½ to 15c.; pears, 5½ to 10½c. ; egg plums, 5½ to 11c. ; silver prunes, 8½ to 13½c.

A cable to P. L. Mason & Co. re Turkish prunes indicates slightly lower values for the larger sizes and a little firmer tendency for smaller sizes. We quote as follows : Bosnias, U's (110 to 113 half kilo), 6 to 6½c.; C's (85 to 90 half kilo), 7 to 7½c. per lb. California, 90 to 100's, 6½c. per lb. ; 70 to 80's, 7½c.; 60 to 70's, 7½ to 8c.; 50 to 60's, 8 to 8½c.; 40 to 50's, 9½ to 10½c.; 30 to 40's, 12½ to 13c.; "Ruby" prunes, 7½ to 8c.; French, 4½ to 5c.

Dates are dull. We quote : 5½ to 6c. for Hallowee and 5 to 5¼c. for Kadrowee.

GREEN FRUITS.

First shipments of new lemons arrived here this week. They show good quality and are selling readily. In fruits this has been rather a quiet week, owing to its being between seasons. Next week, however, good peaches and plums will be on the market and trade will be brisk. Some final auctions of California fruit, including pears, peaches and plums, were made this week. Prices were not at all high. The banana trade is brisk this week, while early apples and peaches attract strict attention. The apples coming forward seem to be of good quality. Latton berries also find ready sale, but prices are low. A few Canadian plums have been on the market, but they were not ripe and were of not much consequence. Muskmelons are also being disposed of freely. We quote : Oranges — Sorrentos, 300's, $3.50 to $4 per box; 180's, $2.25 to $2.50 per three-quarter box. Lemons, 300's, 360's, repacked, $4; choice, $4.25 to $4.50 ; new fancy, $4.75 to $5. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Onions, 2½ to 2¾c. per lb. for Egyptians. Bananas, $1 to $1.75. New cabbage, 90c. to $1 per bbl. Watermelons, 20 to 25c.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—Receipts of butter continue to increase. The quality, however, is still much unsatisfactory, although the low grades find ready sale at low prices. Although the export demand for dairy is not at all active, yet stocks are kept pretty well cleared. Consignments are not numerous, and country dealers still want dealers to buy as round lots. Best quality brings 12 to 13c., and lower grades 8 to 9c. Creamery continues firm: Tubs, 17 to 17½c.; pound prints, 18 to 19c.

CHEESE—The local market does not appear to have advanced in sympathy with outside prices. Dealers claim that prices are now too high. Local price is 8¾ to 9c. The export demand is fairly active, with prices a shade higher, 8¼ to 8½c. on nearly all boards.

SALT.

The trade in salt has not been so brisk lately as it has been, but trade is expected to be brisk very soon. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 60c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl. and 65c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

FISH.

The demand for fish is improving and now exceeds the supply. As a consequence prices are firm. We quote as follows: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6¼ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

PROVISIONS.

Demand is active and prices continue to advance as the scarcity becomes more apparent. It is difficult to advance prices in proportion to the rising price in hogs.

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long clear bacon, 8c. for carload lots, and 8 to 8¼c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 8¾c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 12 to 12½c.; rolls, 10 to 10½c.; hams, large, 11 to 11½c.; 12 to 12½c. for small and 12½c. for medium; shoulder hams, 9½c.; backs, 11½ to 12c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD — Pure Canadian, tierces, 5¾c.; tubs, 6 to 6¼c.; pails, 6¼ to 6½c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $13 to $13.50; Canadian short-cut, $16; clear shoulder mess, $12.50.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—We quote: Wheat, No. 1 hard, $1; winter wheat, 86c.; oats, 21 to 22c.; peas, 44c. The market in wheat continues to have an excited advance.

FLOUR—With the price of wheat, flour, in all lines, has had sharp advances. Several export transactions are noted also. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $5.40; Manitoba strong bakers', $5; Ontario patents, $4.90 to $5; straight roller, $4.10 to $4.20, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—All the wheat goods have advanced 25c. a barrel. Trade is fair. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.10 in bags and $3.20 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.85 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.30 to $2.40; split peas, $3 to $3.25; pot barley, $3 to $3.25.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Receipts are increasing, and the quality has also improved. New laid bring 12c., general stock 10c., and low grades, 8 to 9c.

POTATOES—Dealers are paying 50c. for new potatoes and are selling at 60c. a bushel. There are this week enough potatoes marketed to supply the demand, but prices are firm and they are not plentiful.

HONEY—There are not many enquiries for new honey yet, but a demand is expected to arise soon. We quote light at: 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.; 5 and 10-lb. tins, 6½ to 7c.; comb, $1.50 to $1.75 per dozen.

DRIED APPLES—There have not been very many enquiries this week. Prices, however, are firm. The idea as to price now is 2½ to 3c. f.o.b. The local jobbing price ranges from 2½c. upward.

EVAPORATED APPLES — Dealers are firm at quotations, but requirements have not increased. Buyers are paying 4c. f.o.b. Jobbers are quoting 4½c. upward.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—There has been no noticeable improvement during the week. Business continues dull. Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3 Steerhides: 60 lbs. and up, 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS — Trade is fair and shows no change. We quote; No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS — We quote: Lambskins and pelts, 50 to 55c.

WOOL — Trade is peculiarly regular in this trade, which is considered to be very uncertain just now. Arrivals are no more numerous than they were last week, and so prices are yet from 19 to 20c.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

Trade is only moderate. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Can-

MARKET NOTES.

A cable from Liverpool quotes rice at an advance of ⅛c.

Clark's canned meats have taken another advance of 10c. per dozen all round.

John Hallam says that if only more wool would come forward the price would soon drop.

The condition of the eggs coming forward is a considerable improvement on that of last year.

The peculiar outside upward tendency in cheese continues. Market here is not in sympathy, however.

J. L. Watt & Scott have a second sample of Sultana raisins. They are bright and an improvement in size on the first samples.

P. L. Mason & Co. received a sample of Vostizza currants this week from Messrs. Hancock & Wood, Patras. The quality is very fine indeed.

Dealers here complain that in some instances the ice is not replenished carefully in the refrigerator cars, and on that account some butter does not arrive in the proper condition.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Aug. 19, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE grocery trade does not present any material change in its situation. The volume of business in sugar is not so large as it was, as buyers here during the recent activity anticipated current and immediate future wants. Molasses is very firmly held owing to the fact that stocks in first hands are extremely light. Spices and rice are firm outside, but there is no change on spot. Coffee rules dull, while the tea market is quite buoyant in its disposition, though business is inactive in a regular jobbing sense. Canned goods are generally steady, and vegetables especially have exhibited a firmer disposition. Old corn and gallon apples are very scarce on spot. Dried fruit generally exhibits steadiness, and cables this week on currants and Austrian and French prunes report higher prices than for the opening last year.

SUGAR.

The sugar market has exhibited a fair degree of activity during the week, but the volume of business is not as great as it was last week. Buyers have been operating pretty freely of late, and have anticipated future wants. Values generally rule firm, and there are no indications of any change in the direction of decline. It is worthy of mention also that German granulated has been advanced ⅛c. per pound, and no round lots are now available under 3¾c. In London the disposition has been firm also until Monday, when it eased up a trifle to 8s. 8½d. on beet, for August and September. Cane, however, was firm, Java being held at 10s. 7½d., and fair refining, 9s. In New York, raw has ruled firm, and refined has also maintained its price. Locally we quote the jobbing range: Granulated, 4⅛c. for 1 to 9 barrels and 4 1-16c. for 10 barrels and over, with yellows ranging from 3⅜ to 3¾c., as to grade.

SYRUPS.

The syrup market is absolutely motionless and prices are nominal at a range of 1½ to 2c. as to grade.

MOLASSES.

Molasses remains much the same as it was last week. Enquiry is experienced for choice Barbadoes, but offers made here have not been high enough to suit holders' views. The latter consider that stocks in first hands on spot are very light for the season, and that all will be wanted at full prices when the demand sets in in earnest after the close of the month. Choice Barbadoes, accordingly, is firmly held at 23c. in round lots, and Porto Rico 24c. In a jobbing way we quote the former 25c. and the latter 26 to 28c.

RICE.

The rice market continues very firm abroad, but there is no change on spot. A fair average trade is doing. We quote: Crystal Japan, $4.50 to $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $4.50 to $5; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

The spice market rules extremely firm outside, but there is little change on spot. We quote as follows: Black pepper, 9 to 10c.; pure white, 11 to 16c.; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

The demand for coffee is slow, only a few lots of Maracaibo having moved during the week. We quote: Maracaibo, 16 to 19c.; Santos, 12 to 15c.; Rio, 12 to 16c.; Mocha, 24c., and Java, 25c.

TEAS.

There has been little change in the tea market in the matter of business, but a much firmer feeling prevails, and holders are looking forward to higher prices. Supplies of Japans and greens are short here. We quote as follows: Young Hysons, 14 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15½ to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 17 to 20c. for mediums, and 35 to 65c. for higher grades.

CANNED GOODS.

There has been quite a large volume of business in canned vegetables from first to second hands for future delivery, and prices realized in the majority of cases on the contracts put through were full ones. Details are given specially elsewhere. In a jobbing way the market is without feature, except that old corn is impossible to procure; old gallon apples are also very scarce. We quote: Tomatoes, 80c.; corn, 60 to 80c.; peas, 80c.; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $1.75; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.40 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.35; "Lion," $1.37½ to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.30, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

The only news in regard to dried fruit has been in relation to currants for direct shipment, offers having been made of Provincials at 14s. cost and freight Montreal, which is higher than the corresponding figures last year.

There was little new to report in Valencia raisins. Offers on stock to arrive range from 14 to 16s. for fine off-stalk.

California raisins are firmly held and no reliable quotations are yet to hand.

Advices on Bosnia prunes are firmer, offers on staple sizes for this market being 23s. 6d. No Imperial French plums are to be had, and French prunes are firm at 12s. 6d. to 23s. according to grade from 110's to 70s.

According to offers made this week, California prunes will cost 2½ to 5¾c. for 120's to 40's for the first half of October shipment.

The above figures are, of course, the net prices for straight invoice lots and are exclusive of duty.

Cause and Effect

Cause. We have placed "MINUTE TAPIOCA on the market claiming that we had the best, purest, most convenient and fastest-selling tapioca ever shown, and by judicious advertising and guaranteeing the high quality of our goods got the people to try it.

Effect. The rapidly increasing sales of the "MINUTE TAPIOCA" prove that the people know a good thing when they see it, and appreciate our efforts to help them place a delicious and nourishing menn upon their tables.

Department of Aviculture

Did you know that for years there has been a Department of Aviculture in the Dominion, and that millions of bulletins have been gratuitously distributed from time to time, in which the subject of bird keeping has been set forth in a most attractive and persuasive manner; and that advice has been constantly given free of cost to all applicants? Such a department has, nevertheless, been in existence for years, working quietly, but so effectively, that to-day there are ten birds kept where one was a few years ago. The expense of this work has been defrayed entirely by Bart Cottam & Co., and while "Cottams," from its pre-eminent and undisputed position as the best bird food, has naturally benefitted to a large extent, all handlers of bird food in any form owe more than they generally admit to the widespread educational work done by the packers of Cottams Seed. It pays to handle Cottams Seed.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

NUTS.

There has been no change in nuts We quote: Grenoble walnuts, 11 to 12c.; do. shelled, 20c; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; pecans, 9 to 10c.; and cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100.

DRIED APPLES.

The brisk enquiry for evaporated apples has continued, and prices are firmly maintained at 4 to 5c. Dried are unchanged at 2 to 2½c.

GREEN FRUIT.

Receipts of green fruit were quite heavy lately, over twelve carloads being offered on Monday also. Demand, however, was good, and prices generally are pretty well maintained. We quote: Valencia oranges, $6 per case; bloods, $2.50 to $3 per box; Messinas, do., $3 to $3.50; lemons, $3.50 to $4 per box for choice, and $2 to $3 for common; Naples lemons, $6 to $7 per chest; bananas, $1.25 to $1.65 per bunch; California peaches, $1 to $1.50, and pears, $2.75 to $3, and plums, $2 per box; pineapples, 10c. each; blueberries. $1.50 to $1.75 per box. Egyptian onions, 3c. per lb., and watermelons 20 to 25c. for choice and 15 to 20c. for common.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—In eggs an active trade continues to be done, and prices are firmly held. We quote: Selected near-by stock, 10½ to 11c.; ordinary No. 1, 9 to 9½c., and No. 2, 8 to 8½c. per dozen.

MAPLE PRODUCT—Business in maple products was dull. We quote: Maple syrup, 4¾ to 5c. per lb., and 45 to 55c. per tin; sugar, 5 to 6c. per lb.

HONEY — The demand for honey is exceedingly slow. White clover comb is offering at 10c., and dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c., and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

BEANS—Beans in car lots are offering at 55 to 60c., and in a small way at 65 to 70c.

TALLOW—Rules steady at 1½ to 2c. for rough and 3½ to 4c. for extracted.

HOPS—Continue dull but steady at 6½ to 8c. for ordinary 1896 crop.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

The strength noted in flour last week has continued, and prices are again from 10 to 25c. higher than they were, while demand continues active. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $4.40 to $4.50; straight rollers, $4.15 to $4.25 and in bags, $2.10 to $2.15; best Manitoba strong bakers', $5; second do., $4.50, and low grades, $2.65; Hungarian patents, $5.40.

Business in feed on spot continues quiet, and values rule about steady. We quote; Manitoba bran at $12.50 to $13, and shorts at $13.50 to $14 per ton, including bags. Ontario bran, in bulk, is offering at $11 per ton.

There was no change in meal, the market being quiet and sales slow. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.40 per barrel, $1.65 per bag; standard meal, $3.30 per barrel and $1.60 per bag.

PROVISIONS.

There was no change in the provision market, and a fairly active tarde is reported at firm prices. We quote: Canadian pork, $15 to $15.50 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, at 6¾ to 7¼c., and compound refined at 5¼ to 5½c. per lb.; hams, 11 to 13c., and bacon, 11 to 12c. per lb.

BALED HAY.

The demand for hay is fair, and prices are unchanged at $11.50 to $12 for No. 1, and at $10 to $10.50 for No. 2 per ton in car lots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

The cheese market has displayed continued firmness since last report, and under brisk buying prices have advanced ¼ to ½c. per pound all round. The enquiry over the cable, however, is not following the rise on this side as promptly as some traders wish. Last Saturday limits were advanced a trifle, but the advance that ensued in the country has again caused the cost on spot to run away from the increased cable limits. We quote: Finest Ontario cheese, 8¾ to 8⅞c.; finest Townships cheese, 8⅝ to 8¾c.; finest Quebec cheese, 8½c.; undergrades, 8⅛c.

The butter market exhibited a somewhat steadier feeling to-day, and exporters paid a fractional advance, finest creamery realizing 17½c. to-day. We quote: Finest creamery, 17¼ to 17½c.; seconds, 16 to 16½c.; dairy butter, 12 to 12½c.

MONTREAL NOTES.

The advancing tendency of flour continues this week and prices have scored another gain of 10 to 25c. per bbl.

Cheese has gone up another ¼ to ½c. per pound on last week under brisk buying by exporters throughout the country.

Cables from Patras quote Provincial currants at 14s. cost and freight Montreal. This is about 1 to 1¼c. per pound over the opening last year.

Advices from Barbadoes received this week state that Imperial French plums are not to be had this year. New French prunes have opened at ⅜ to ¾c. per pound higher according to grade than last year.

Old canned corn is very hard to get in Montreal and local jobbers have advanced their prices now, asking 60c. as the inside price, an advance of 10c.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 19, 1897.

AT this season there is but quiet business. The market keeps firm and dealers are hopeful. There is fair business through the country and all obligations are being met quite promptly. In some sections it has been rather wet for hay making, but crops are fully up to expectation. The strengthening of the market in canned goods has caused more enquiry from dealers. The further advance in flour and sugar is a pleasing feature. In tea the demand is still dull. The large stock here and through the country moves slowly. In cream of tartar there have ruled rather higher prices during the week. Dried apples, which have been so dull, have taken an upward turn and holders are not eager to sell. Beans also, which have been a dull feature, are held higher and stocks are in such a state that holders are not anxious to sell except at advanced prices.

OIL—There is no change in price of illuminating oil except that a better demand is noted. Dealers are preparing for fall business, and orders for later delivery will soon be the order of the day. There is a steady demand for lubricating oils. We quote: Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.

SALT—The market shows improvement, a more active demand being noted. Holders of coarse are firmer in price and are not pushing sales except at full figures. A cargo is shortly expected and buyers will do well to place orders early so as to get right prices. Factory filled keeps low. There is a good demand for Canadian grades. We quote as follows: Coarse, 45 to 48c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 85c. to $1; Canadian fine, 90c. to $1 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS — Peas are a matter of peculiar interest. Prices show an advance, and higher prices are looked for. Tomatoes have been offered at low prices by some packers this week, but others are firm and an advance is fully expected. Quantities bought, except corn, are well below last year. In peaches packers hold firmly to prices, with some range between them. Salmon are easy, with all orders for futures about placed. Canned meats are higher. Canadian goods are more largely used than ever this season. Oysters are held firm. Such lobsters as arrive here are for shipment. There are practically none held in this market. We quote: Corn, 65 to 70c.; peas, 75 to 85c.; tomatoes, 80 to 90c.; gallon apples, $1.75 to $1.80; corned beef, Canadian, $2.20 to $2.30; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.40 to $2.50; 1-lb tins, $1.30 to $1.50; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.25; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.25 to $2.75; salmon, $1.25 to $1.40; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.15 to $1.25; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT—California fruit continues to be the favorite. To the list this week is added grapes. Pears, however, have still the largest demand, and those being received this season are very fine. Other grades of pears received up to the present are but fair. The California peaches do not equal the pears in quality. In lemons prices are rather easier, and there is more range as regards quality. Melons have but fair sale. Cucumbers, now that the native ones are here, are much lower, as are also tomatoes. While bananas have large sale, pears have somewhat taken their place. A few early Malaga grapes have been received. There is but light sale of apples for best quality; price is firm. We quote as follows: Lemons, $4.50 to $5; case lemons, $6 to $7; bananas, $1.50 to $2; new apples, $3 to $4 per bbl.; California peaches, $1.75 to $2; California plums, $1.75 to $2; California pears, $2.25 to $2.50; melons, 30 to 40c.; cucumbers, $1 per 100; tomatoes, $2 to $2.10; pears, $5 to $8 per bbl.; keg grapes, $5; California grapes, $2 to $2.50.

DRIED FRUIT—Raisins attract chief attention. Present stocks are very light. New Valencias are expected shortly. Prices of early shipment always rule high. In California there are no sales for future yet reported. In fact, many packers have for the present withdrawn prices. Quality this season, it is said, will be particularly good. The present feeling is higher. Seeded raisins are quoted from the Coast this year in cartoons. Currants are in very light stock, and the market will be bare before new arrive. Evaporated apples are in light stock and higher prices are asked. Dried are quoted higher. Onions show no change. We quote: Raisins, Valencias, 5¼ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c.; prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples, 5 to 5½c.; onions, 2¾ to 3c. per lb.; cocoanuts, $2.50 to $3.50 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Valencias, layers, 6 to 7c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.

SUGAR—For some time the refineries have made but few sales here, but stocks are getting well down, particularly in yellows. Prices all round are higher and firm. There is a good demand. We quote: Granulated, 4¼ to 4⅜c.; yellows, 3 ⅜ to 3¾c.; Paris lump, 5¼ to 5½c.; powdered, 5 to 5¼c.

MOLASSES—The market continues to gain strength. The small cargo of Porto Rico spoken of last week is to hand. Stocks are, however, still light in both Porto Rico and Barbadoes, and for best grade prices are firmly held. It is but a question of time when higher prices must rule. We quote as follows: Barbadoes, 22 to 24c.; Porto Rico, 27 to 30c.; New Orleans, bbls., 25 to 27c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.

FISH—The week has been a quiet one. In fresh shad catch has been light. Salmon are out of the market. Receipts of dried have been so light and prices so high that some larger dealers have brought green cod from Quebec and cured them here. Some of the fish are very fine. Medium cod continue to keep about equal price, while large pollock hold the advance. Pickled herring are dull. Very few new are arriving. In pickled shad the fall catch, best grade, are firmly held, but quality is extra. Smoked herring are easy. There is a good demand for boneless fish. We quote as follows: Large cod, $3.25 to $3.50; medium, $3.25 to $3.30; pollock, $1.25 to $1.30; bay herring, $1.25 to $1.30 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 6½ to 7½c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50 to $5; boneless, 2½ to 8c.; Barrington, $3 per bbl.; Shelburne, $3.25 per bbl.; boneless, 3½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.; shad, 9 to 10c. each.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Cheese are firmer than was expected and outlook is good. While the make is a large one it is well sold up at good figures. Our market here is a small one, very little exporting being done and the local sale being small. Wholesale men find that the customers through the country buy from the local factories. Butter keeps dull and quality is largely poor, which is one reason for the dull market. Eggs have fair sale at quotations. We quote: Dairy butter, 12 to 15c.; creamery, 17 to 18c.; prints, 18 to 20c.; cheese, 9 to 9½c.; eggs, 9 to 9½c.

PROVISIONS—The market is firmer, with an upward tendency. A fair trade is doing in meats. Both pork and beef are slightly advanced. It is rather strange, but the Ontario houses which sell lard here sell little of the smoked meat, and the house which sells most of the hams does not, as a rule, sell the roll bacon. In lard prices keep very low, very little compound sold. We quote: Clear pork, $14 to $14.50; mess, $12.50 to $13.50; plate beef, $12.50 to $13.50; hams, 13 to 13½c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; pure lard, 6¾ to 7¼c.; compound, 6¼ to 6½c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—There is a good demand in flour, with but average stocks, and market is advancing. Our market now takes about equal quantities of Manitoba and of Ontario flour. The former shows the sharper advance. In oatmeal the price is, perhaps, a shade lower, with fair sales. Cornmeal is still scarce, and the advance is maintained. In oats there are light sales at even prices. Beans are higher but still low; stocks are being worked off and market is in better shape than for some time. Hay is rather easier on account of crops turning out better than was expected. We quote as follows: Manitoba flour, $5.35 to $5.40; best Ontario, $4.70 to $4.80; medium, $4.40 to $4.45; oatmeal, $3.50 to $3.60; cornmeal, $2 to $2.10; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $15 to $16; bran, do, do, $13.50 to $14.50; hand-picked beans, $1 to $1.10; prime, 85 to 90c.; oats, 33 to 34c.; hay, $12.50 to $13; barley, $2.75 to $3; round peas, $1.15; split peas, $2.85 to $3; yellow eye beans, $1.50; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¾ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

The outlook for the cranberry crop in Nova Scotia is said to be good.

As many as 32,000 small boxes of blueberries were forwarded to Boston from Yarmouth one day this week.

The Canadian Drug Co. received this week the first shipment of Abbey's effervescent salts to come to this market.

Visitors at St. Andrews find good fishing at the wharves. A large number of good sized pollock have been caught there.

The cornmeal milling firm of Fowler & Calhoun has been dissolved. The business will be continued by Mr. W. H. Fowler.

The steamer Tiber, on her third direct trip from Montreal, will arrive this week. She brings a large general cargo of flour, canned goods, etc.

Mr. T. J. Dillon, of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, is shipping large quantities of cheese to the English market. The steamer Campana this week took 79,500 lbs. He ships New Brunswick cheese as well as those of the Island. He has shipped, or engaged to ship, so far this season $250,000 worth. The make on the Island is large.

There is another steamer in the bay service, the Beaver, which will make weekly trips between St. John, Parrsboro, Windsor, Wolfville and Canning.

Flour dealers are much pleased at the new arrangement regarding unloading cars of flour. They are to be allowed 10 days instead of three as formerly.

Heinz's sweet mixed pickles, in kegs, which were but recently introduced into this market, are meeting with a splendid sale. C. & E. Macmichael received a shipment this week.

Mr. I. C. Bowman, one of St. John's best known brokers, is spending a well-earned holiday in Halifax. His large interests here are being looked after by his son, Mr. W. E. Bowman.

Jam has for some time been freely sold here in pail. The sale of jellies in this style of package has had up to this year little or no attention. During the last few months, however, R. J. Graham, of Belleville, has sold quite a large quantity. It is cheaper than the jam, and is splendid goods either for table or bakers' use, particularly the latter.

It is expected that the grocers' picnic this week will be a great success. There will be a band in attendance. They go to Watters Landing, on the St. John River. Two steamers, if necessary three, will be provided to take the party up the river. Handsome prizes will be given for the usual sports. A large number of the grocers will close their stores for at least a half day.

Our retail and wholesale grocery trades, at least those who have come in close contact with the matter, are somewhat excited about what they think is the very unfair action of the Government in fining dealers for selling spice not up to the standard, particularly as there was no warning of any kind. One dealer was fined $62 for selling impure mustard. Now all the mustard of commerce is a mixture. Even Keen's or Colman's best grades are admixtures. They say: "Why should a mustard sold in bulk, being an admixture, be the subject of a fine when the same style of goods in packages are not?" Another case was a similar fine imposed because a ginger was not up to standard. The dealer claims it was a pure ground ginger. The question they are asking is: When are they safe?

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, Aug. 18, 1897.

THE change in the situation here since last week is very slight indeed. Business is fair all round. Harvesting has begun in some parts of the province and will be general by the middle of next week. The crop is not phenomenal, but is a good average and will run a high grade. The frost predicted at the full of the moon did not eventuate and the danger is now considered past. The market for cured meats remains very firm with a slight rise. California evaporated fruits are coming in gradually. Apricots are offering freely, but peaches are just making an appearance. The chief feature of interest is the tendency of dealers to speculate in butter and the consequent stiffening of the price. With the exception of the shipments made to the Klondyke and a few cars sent east, butter is being held for a rise in price. Prices for the week are as follows :

CURED MEATS—Hams, 12 to 12½c. Breakfast bacon, bellies, 12 to 12½c.; backs, 10½c.; shoulders, 7½ to 8c.; short spiced rolls, 8½ to 9c.; clear dry salt, 7½ to 8c.; smoked, 1c. advance and canvassed ½c. extra.

EGGS—Supply is fair, but price is slightly advanced, being 14c. per doz.

BUTTER—Dairy market normal, with price at 12 to 12½c. Creamery has stiffened, and one firm is reported to have paid 16½c. for a choice lot. General price, however, is 15½ to 16c. f.o.b. at factories.

CHEESE—Market is fair. Stiffening of eastern market has had no appreciable result here at present ; price, 6½c.

CEREALS—Prices remain unchanged from last week and are quoted as follows : Rolled oats, 80-lb. sacks, $1.55 to $1.70 ; granulated, $1.80 to $2 ; standard, $1.80 to $2 ; pot barley, $1.75 per sack ; pearl barley, $3.50 ; cornmeal, $1.30 per 98-lb. sack.

TEA—New China tea has arrived and appears to be excellent value. Prices range from 16½ to 30c. per lb., according to quality. Japan teas have not yet arrived, but are expected daily.

COFFEE.—Market quiet but steady. Very few stocks are held, but several carloads are momentarily expected. Rios, No. 5, are worth about 13½c.

TOBACCOS—All the new sizes are now in the market, and prices remain the same as before, with the advance of 15c. per lb. additional duty.

DRIED FRUITS—Currants are now being bought by all dealers, and it is expected prices will be about the same as last year. It is anticipated that Valencia raisins will be on the market earlier this year than any previous season, but exact price will not be known for a few days yet. California evaporated fruits are arriving. Apricots are offering freely at the Coast as low as 5¾c.; peaches are just coming on the market, and plums and nectarines are not yet offering. Winnipeg is a heavy market for these goods. Contractors' supplies have weakened stocks, and those holding do not seem inclined to sacrifice their goods.

SUGAR — This market has not varied through the week; granulated, 4¾ to 4⅞c.; yellows, 4 to 4¼c.

RICE—New stock of China rice has just been received and is selling at 4⅝c., but Japan rice is very scarce.

CANNED GOODS—Tomatoes grow scarcer and are worth $2.30 per case. Corn is quiet but steady at $1.60 per case. Peas are reported scarce, although so far no difficulty has been experienced in purchasing from eastern houses ; price is $1.80. Strawberries are worth $1.35 per dozen. Raspberries are reported on the road, and will probably be $1.45 per dozen. No other lines of canned goods are yet in the market.

GREEN FRUIT—This market is well supplied with foreign fruits, but the small domestic fruits continue scarce and crops are reported very light, especially blueberries. Oregon crabs are plentiful and of good quality, and, as Ontario crabs are reported short, the Oregon fruit will, no doubt, have a large sale. The last Valencia oranges came in this week. Melons have dropped. California peaches and plums are not too plentiful yet. Prices generally are as follows : California late Valencia oranges, $6 to $6.50 per box ; bananas, per bunch, $1.75 to $2.50 ; California lemons, $6 a box ; pie plants, 1½c. per lb.; tomatoes, $1.25 per crate of 4 baskets ; California plums, $1.50 to $1.85 ; California peaches, $1.50 to $1.75 per box ; California Bartlett pears, $3 to $3.25. Washington pears, Clapp's Favorites, $3 to $3.25 per box; onions, $4 per 100 lbs.; watermelons, $3.25 to $4 per doz. ; Washington crabs, $1.75 per box of 30 lbs net ; blueberries, 8 to 10c. lb. ; apples, $3.75 to $4.50 per barrel ; nutmeg melons, $1.20 basket ; Osage melons, $2 per crate.

SULTANA CROP IN ASIA MINOR, SEASON 1897-8.

By Matteo Chrussachi, Smyrna.

THE philoxera first made its appearance in our country in the vineyards of the village of Kooklondga in the year 1884, and during the first few years following the outbreak of the disease, no very serious damage was done. However, five years ago, the philoxera made great progress and spread with alarming rapidity in all directions, until to-day, most of the districts producing Sultanas have been visited by this terrible disease, but fortunately the loss thus occasioned has been covered by the increase of the area under cultivation and especially in Magnesie, Lassalar, Axarie, Salichlie and Alacheir.

The Smyrna District.—This district has been quite ruined by the philoxera and whereas the produce was formerly as much as 85,000 cwt., to-day it is only 30,000 cwt. In some parts of the Smyrna district, as Boudga, Bournadat and Sevdikeni, the cultivation of American vines, which are not attacked by philoxera, was commenced three or four years ago; and, year by year, the cultivation of these vines is increasing.

The Nymphio District. — The philoxera has attacked more especially the vineyards of Loudjak and of the village of Nymphio, ruining one-half of the former and one-fourth of the latter vines; but, in the remainder of the districts, viz., Kridjalie, Armoutlou, Cranie, Parsa, etc., the disease is only just making its appearance, and so, up to the present, no damage has been done. The planting of American vines was begun in Loudjak two years ago, but in the other parts of the district no steps have been taken in this direction up to to-day. The decrease, which you will notice in the accompanying statistics in the production of this district, has not been caused by the philoxera, but by the anthrax, a disease fostered by the continual rains of the year. The Sultanas grown in the Nymphio district are preferred by the English buyers as they are of the best quality.

The Magnesie District.—This district has also been visited by the philoxera, but for the most part the damage has been slight and the diminution of the produce has not been occasioned by this disease but by peronosperous, which would have entirely ruined the crop if the rains had not stopped, and the north wind began to blow. Lassalar and Alacheir have not yet been touched by the philoxera, and, as you will see from the statistics, there is an increase of more than 10 per cent. on the last season's crop, due to the increased area under cultivation.

The Vourla District.—Lastro, Tchiflik, Sivrisar, Guilhacksay and Vourla have all been touched during the last years by the philoxera, which has, as yet, had but little influence on the crops, but damage has been occasioned by anthrax and peronosperous. In the Vourla they are going to commence this year replacing the destroyed vines by American plants. This season's crop will be about 40 per cent. above the last one, because the vines are loaded with fruit, whereas last year, on the contrary, they bore little fruit and some damage was occasioned by heavy dews.

The Chesme and Carabourno District.—This district has not been attacked by the philoxera, and in Chesme the crop will be above 30 per cent. in excess of last year.

Generally speaking, the cultivation of the American vines is increasing year by year, and, in our opinion, the vines will be gradually replaced by American plants, so that the crop will never be very small, or, at least, only for a year or two.

It is a very difficult matter, in a country where there are no regular statistics made, to say what the exact quantity of the crop will be, but in the figures we give below we think that we shall be very near the mark, as every district has been examined with great care and attention by a competent man.

We give also the figures of last year's crop to establish a comparison.

STATISTICS SULTANA CROP 1896-7, AND PROBABLE QUANTITY OF CROP 1897-8.

	Cwt. 1896-7	Cwt. 1897-8
Olourjak	9,570	6,600

Chesme	26,400	33,000
Total	779,020	751,300
Probable decrease in crop of 1897-8		27,720

As you will see by the foregoing report this season's crop will be very nearly equal to that of last year, say, season 1896-7, 779,020 cwt.; season 1897-8, 751,300 cwt.

This is as near as we can possibly foretell.

ADVANCE IN CIGARETTES.

A sharp advance in the price of cigarettes has been made in New York, and will be felt all over the States. The American Tobacco Co. raised the price of their principal brands from $3.80 to $4.10 a thousand. This company practically controls the cigarette market, and the increase was therefore universal.

Five cent packages are now worth 8c. and 10c. ones bring 15c.

W. H. Gillard & Co. will have arriving shortly a large shipment direct from Rio de Janeiro of Rio coffee, which will be sold at a close margin.

A full stock of Burnham's goods, including hasty jellycon, clam bouillon and clam chowder, has been received by the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

T. Kinnear & Co. report that they have new canned goods in stock, including pitted cherries, red, white and black; red raspberries and strawberries.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. advise all grocers to handle lard in 3, 5 and 10-lb. packages. These are desirable for the summer trade and are meeting with increased favor.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, call the attention of the trade to a special drive in culinary and laundry starches in this issue, which they guarantee of the best quality.

Another car of Heinz's pickles has just arrived for H. P. Eckardt & Co. This makes 14 cars inside of ten months. The sales are ever increasing for these goods.

"We have a stock of Demerara crystal sugar in sacks of about 2 cwt., which is especially adapted for fruits requiring a heavy syrup," say the Eby Blain Co., Limited.

A large consignment of new season's Japan teas will arrive early next week for the Davidson & Hay, Limited. These teas were bought early at the bottom of the market.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, report large sales during the past three weeks of canned salmon, both for spot delivery and to arrive. They are quoting close on round lots of Fraser River and sockeye, best packs.

HOW TO MANAGE A GROCER.

THERE are few people who study, ever so briefly, the daily irritating cares of a grocer's life. The large trials he bears with a quietness that approaches the calm of despair. As for the smaller ones, no one knows of them.

He does not tell the vexing cares of a cold morning, when everything that should pour remains solid and unyielding; when corks will persist in coming forth and bringing with them fluids which should stay quietly in their glass or stone bottles. When eggs, fruits and vegetables are frost-bitten or frozen into uselessness and when butter and cheese crumble to atoms under the sharpest knife-blade.

Nor does he mention the trying spring and summer days that abound in busy life, when the fly, maggot, the roach and red ant infest every article, from biscuit to molasses. Fancy how great a patience is necessary to meet and overcome these trifles and don a smiling countenance to meet customers.

There was once a boy who asked his father whether there were two or three s's in customers. "Only two" growled the father, who was a long-suffering grocer, "but if I made a dictionary it should have three, and I'd put two in the first syllable."

Grocers here in Montreal differ in their business ways quite as much as do our friends in the States. There is a shop that we frequent, because it has a flavor of independence, which is ever attractive to a Yankee.

It is kept by three brothers, great lanky sons of Tipperary, who are mild enough to contradict the fighting reputation of that celebrated county. They are quiet, respectful, and yet sufficiently self-assertive to gain the confidence of a stranger. Sometimes they are approved, quite as often they are not, but their shop is thoroughly clean, the quality of their goods even, they seem fair, and we like to trade there.

Said one brother to me:

"We don't do much speech making, but we'll give ye satisfaction if ye trade with us" and they have done so.

One morning I stepped in to order some groceries. The shop was full, and I had to wait a while. When all were served I approached the counter, and was about to give my order when in rushed a tiny, excited old Irish woman. She was clad in a black gown and blue checked apron. Her small, keen, wrinkled face had the tint and surface of an old-fashioned dried apple. Her lips were thin and well turned down at the corners, and her shrewd little blue eyes showed cleverness and the fire of a termagant. She wore a fluted lace cap inside her bonnet, and the white frame work showed her peculiarities perfectly.

She was excited, for every point of her lace frill quivered indignantly, and a small pink spot burned on each cheek. In one hand she carried an uncovered bottle of some sort of sauce—in the other a small paper bag. She swept up to the counter, and I utterly forgot my errand in the breeze of indignation she brought along with her.

"Yees call yerselves honest min," she snorted.

"Oh, come now, Mrs. Mullany," mildly protested the grocer.

"Now an' now; I want none of yere palaver. Look at that sarse." She shook it in his face. "Oi sint for Wor-ces-ter-shire sarse, and ye sint me that Canajin stuff, and said it was as good as Wor-ces-ter-shire. It is as good, is it? Ah! hah! Very well thin, yees can take the bottle back, and ate it on yere own mate. It's not fit fer me ould man nor me."

"But I can't take back an opened bottle."

"Ye can't?" Oh, the sarcasm of that tone. "Well, ye will, or I'll shtop tradin' wid yees."

She planted the bottle on the counter and drew off to watch the effect of her threat. The grocer sighed. Scenting victory she plunged her hand in the paper bag and drew forth a broken, boiled egg of antique color and superannuated flavor, adding:

"Ye might as well gimme a good egg for this while ye're about it. Me ould man an' me likes our chickens after they do be hatched"; and she chuckled as she noticed a flush on the grocer's face."

All he said was:

"All right, Mrs. Mullany; I'll fix things for you after I take this lady's order." He turned to me with a chagrined look and said, "Well, ma'am?"

I could scarcely restrain my laughter. It was as good as a comedy to see the big "roaring Tip" cowed and downed by a little human wasp. She looked triumphant and forgiving; almost humble, then, and turned her attention to me. She sniffed slightly, picked a speck off her shoulder and drew the corners of her mouth a shade farther down. Oh, the dreadful little woman!

"Have you good potatoes?" said I to the grocer.

"Yes, ma'am."

"Shure that's not the way," broke in the old woman; "Divil 'scure him, he'll chate ye. I'd not trust him. Ye must name the sort, ask the proice and luk at the pratees."

The grocer tremblingly brought up the potatoes for my scrutiny.

"He's askin' ye too much for thim. Oid not pay it," continued the little Tartar.

"Now give me two pounds of the best butter," I commanded.

"Ah, ma'am," said she of the frilled cap, "ye luk young, an' O'il jist give ye a bit of advice. Don't trust that man. He's bad." The grocer blushed like a boy. "Ask the price of the butther; thin schmell it and taste it. Thin make him take off three cints a pound. He's a chate, ma'am, an' it's the only way to aven up on him."

I thanked her as well as my choked voice would allow, paid my bill, and without an answer to the unfortunate man's protest that this would not influence his trade, made my way to the street and freedom.

A few moments later I met the same little woman coming smilingly up street.

"Look at this, ma'am," holding up her exchanges; "Oi med him gimme two eggs, a new bottle o' sarse, an' a bunch o' fat raisins fer me waste o' toime. That's the way to manage thim grocers, ma'am. Thry it!"—Elvira Floyd Froemcke, of Montreal, in N.E. Grocer.

For Price List.

From $15 to $375.

The idea is prevalent that we do not sell low-priced cash registers. On the contrary, our line embraces registers as low as $15, ranging from that figure up to $375.

We study the needs of each individual purchaser and recommend that register which will best suit his business, whether it be the $15 or the $375 register.

No. 17 Register—Price $15.

Registers amounts up to $1,000.

No. 99 National Cash Register—Price $375.

Our new total-adding, check and detail-strip printing registers will now:

1. Register and indicate, at one operation, any amount from 1 cent to $999.99.
2. Add into one total all the sales made during the day.
3. Automatically issue at the same time a paper check, on which is printed the date, consecutive number of the sale, amount of the sale, initial of the clerk who made it, and the proprietor's business card. On the back of the checks the register prints any advertisement desired.
4. Tell how many sales have been made each day.
5. Tell what time your store was opened in the morning.
6. Keep each clerk's sales or the sales in each department separate.
7. Take care in the same way of credit sales, money paid out and money received on account.
8. Print on a strip of paper inside the register, under lock, a complete detailed record of each transaction as it occurs.

With more than 90 kinds and sizes of registers, at as many different prices, we feel sure we can suit the needs of any merchant.

Send a postal card to any of the addresses named below, and one of our salesmen will call and talk the matter over with you. The National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio, U. S. A. Offices in Canada: 6 Rossin Block, King Street, W., Toronto; 1685 Notre Dame Street, Montreal, and Vancouver, British Columbia.

CURRANT STATISTICS.

THE following report, bearing date of July 31, is from Patras: "Our last report was dated the 5th ult. We append list of currant shipments, which will be our final one, as far as 1896 crop is concerned, as stocks on this side are practically exhausted, and what little remains will be shipped off with 1897 crop. Taking said list into consideration, adding 20,000 tons retained by the Government, and deducting 10,000 tons which had remained over from 1895, we have a total production of 150,000 tons for 1896, and, according to our estimate attached, coming crop is likely to reach the same figure, unless damage should accrue between this and harvest time.

"There is no doubt that the peronosperos has caused damage in several districts, but as it has been the cause of reducing what would have been an enormous crop into more manageable proportions, the malady cannot be looked upon as an unmixed evil; what its effects upon the quality will be remains to be seen, but as some districts have not suffered at all, there is no doubt that plenty of good currants will be obtainable. The crop is backward, but we think this is due more to the effects of the gradual change in the climate than to any special climatic causes. General shipments, consisting of an assortment of various growths, are not likely to commence before last week in August, although cutting has already been started in Messina and other southern provinces. Prices, owing to the smallness of stocks in all markets, are expected to rule considerably higher than during the past two or three seasons. It seems doubtful whether the Greek Government will renew the Retention Law for this year; general opinion in this country is in favor of the measure, but the Government would like to obtain the sanction of the Chamber of Deputies, whereas other considerations are adverse to the calling together of this body."

MODERN BUSINESS METHODS.

Editor GROCER,—Having read with interest your article, "It is the Best Who Succeed," I am tempted to offer you a few thoughts on the subject of success in business. Your first proposition may, perhaps, be accepted as a sound axiom. The best all round men can scarcely fail to reach the pinnacle. But, to your second proposition, I demur. While it may be true that in some respects business methods and practices have undergone a complete metamorphosis, it is not equally true that these changes have all been improvements.

Many of the changed business methods are the result of that innate love of change which is such a striking characteristic of human nature in this age, and do not represent any real advance or progress, but oftimes retrogression.

I will cite one instance of what appears to me a retrograde movement among retail grocers in cities, towns and many villages: it is the practice of sending out for orders. It has no doubt become a positive necessity in most of the larger towns, because of the universality of the practice; but I submit that the old-time custom of calling at the grocers' or butchers' and leaving the order for delivery was decidedly better, both as affording opportunity for better acquaintance between merchant and customer, and for knowing the class of stock carried by the merchant. As a country merchant I find that my business relations are very much pleasanter and more satisfactory with those customers who come personally to make purchases than with those who chiefly do so by proxy. Then it entails more or less additional expense for the extra trip to get the orders, while there is no corresponding additional profit. I will cite one other practice characteristic of modern business methods, which is generally conceded to be injurious to trade, and which is not by any means confined to the retail grocery trade. I refer to the selling of certain lines at or below cost as leaders, I presume that means to lead people to believe that you are selling all your goods on that basis. Poor deluded creature. (I don't mean the customer, but the other party). What's his competitor doing, if he has any brains, but meeting him on the same line or another line, and perhaps going him one better.

Time and space forbid that I should enumerate all the points of retrogression, but permit me to refer to the ancient custom of apprenticeship and ask, is the present system of business training (if there be such), an improvement on that custom ?

As I think of the many staunch and stable concerns that have been founded and built up under that system, and then wrecked in a few short years by those of newer ideas and more up-to-date methods, I am constrained to say with Pat: "Show me the modern house that has stood as long as the ancient ones."

If I may be allowed an opinion as to the most prevalent cause of failure in business, particularly retail, I would say that it is the lack of apprenticeship or training, and consequent ignorance of true business principles, and the substitution therefor of that fool's pastime "cutting prices." It is lowering to one's dignity and a tacit admission of lack of business tact and ability, when one resorts to price-cutting either to hold or extend his business. So long as any Tom, Dick or Harry with a few hundred dollars and a cranium full of conceit, but no business training, can get all the goods he wants from wholesalers and all the credit he wants from the bank, so long must we expect the present percentage of failures.

Yours, etc.,

J.

EGG CANDLING.

The various stages of decay of eggs are thus described :

1. Fresh eggs, which are clear, with air cell in the large end of the egg very small, the germinal spot only faintly visible.

2. Old and stale eggs, with air cell very large, yolk darker in color and the germinal spot plainly visible. These eggs are inferior in flavor and worth less than a fresh egg, but can be used for food purposes.

3. The floater, with air cell large and germinal spot encircled by a round, dark cloud. This egg may be used for food if the yolk holds together when the egg is broken and if used immediately.

4. Spot, or first stage of decay. The yolk has penetrated the white and fastened itself to the shell, showing a dark spot, which does not move when the egg is turned. The egg is worthless for food, but can be used for manufacturing purposes.

Vol. XI. (Published Weekly) MONTREAL AND TORONTO, AUGUST 27, 1897 ($2.00 per Year) No. 35

AN INDIAN TEA GARDEN.

IT is not a particularly eastern scene—according to what the home standard of what the east should be like. There are no marble palaces with flat roofs showing through a tracery of palm leaves, no minarets, no domed buildings, no fountains playing in shady courtyards. At first sight one may feel a little disappointed, and overlook the buffaloes ploughing in the foreground, the bullocks walking in line, each with a chest of tea on either side, the heavy jungle covering the hills up to the very top. Yet none of these sights are common in the west. In this hot, steamy, luxuriant quarter of the north-eastern corner of India the land is flat on my one hand and hilly on my other. The hills hereabouts are not more than two or three thousand feet high, and their precipitous sides are hidden in heavy tree jungle until they merge in the rich rice-bearing plain, where the eye travels over a waving sea of long green grass. Far away the view is stopped by a belt of bamboo forest on some river bank. Here and there dotted over the plain some clumps of bamboo, separi trees and palms give sufficient shade and shelter to the few thatched houses in their midst.

Tea is an accommodating shrub, and grows at various elevations, but a description of a garden embracing the lower slopes of the hills and extending into the rich terai at their feet will suffice for all. The tea plant was originally imported into India from China, and the old Chinese name "cha" is the one used in the vernacular. It was many years before the discovery that the plant was indigenous to India was made. Then the small China leaf began to be superseded by the larger and darker leaves borne on a plant having its home not very distant from Manipur. This, or its immediate descendants, may be claimed to be the variety commonly planted now. In the old China days the sides of hills represented to the planter the desirable land, but nowadays the rich low-lying flats are more favored. In appearance the tea shrub is not unlike an evergreen. Its size and the color of its leaves vary according to the nature of the soil and the exposure of the situation. That grown on a dark peaty soil will be darker than if grown on a higher and drier plane, and the bush itself will be larger. A tolerably damp climate is necessary for the production of tea, and in some of the districts the rainfall averages as much as 140 or more inches in the year. The maximum shade temperature according to the season runs from 63 deg. to 103 deg.

All gardens present certain similarities of appearance. In all we see the long undulating stretches of flat land, the slopes and the steeper hillsides covered with rows on rows of dark bushes. Where the slope is really acute these sides are cut into terraces, on which the tea is planted. In every garden are one or more bungalows for the European staff. To be as far out of malaria as possible they are placed on high ground. Should this not be possible the bungalow must be erected on posts. Its first storey, for there is no ground floor, is elevated some eight feet, and entrance is provided by a flight of steps. All have on one or more sides verandahs. In every garden there must be a factory, and round this the store go-downs, offices, and withering-houses are situated. The coolies are housed in rows of thatched huts known as "lines." These stand wherever well-drained ground and good water offer advantages. Every garden must have a hospital, and should a European doctor not live within a certain radius a certificated native must be kept.

The bungalows are constructed of brick, galvanized iron, or a kind of lath and plaster work with wood framing. The factory, the most important building on the estate, is generally made of galvanized sheeting ; the long black chimneys of the drying stoves projecting through the roof.

Let us start from the beginning and follow the plant to its end. About October the seed is collected from the bushes kept for the purpose, which are allowed to run up until they resemble small trees. After the outer skin has been peeled off, the seed looks like a small brown nut, and it is in this form it is sold. These little brown nuts are tested by being put into water ; those which float are rejected as inferior, and those which sink are collected, dried on trays, and afterwards buried in sand until they are required to plant out or to forward to some other garden. The good seed when wanted is taken out and put in square holes cut in the ground, in a shady spot, and a layer of seed is thrown in and covered with a layer of loose soil. This is repeated until the hole is full, when over the last layer of soil long grass or leaves are placed to keep all thoroughly moist. From time to time the grave is opened to see the progress towards germination. By and bye the seeds split, and a little tail is pushed out from between the two halves. Now is the time to take the seed up and drop each into a hole made in long beds of carefully-loosened earth. These in turn are covered with a light machan or framework to guard against the spring hailstorms. Gradually tips begin to show, and when the seedlings are from six to eighteen months old (according to opinion) they are planted out in their proper places in the garden. Five feet by five is a common planting distance, and the lines run diagonally. In this manner a greater number of plants are got into the same area than if the lines were made to run in squares. The method is called triangular planting, and it was many years before its advantages were recognized. We may leave our plant for three years, only hoeing up the soil at intervals, and not allowing grass or creepers to grow up and throttle its life. After three years it is expected to come into bearing, and may be plucked lightly until it acquires sufficient strength and sap to stand the regular routine

The garden is divided into many divisions. Each of these is plucked once in, say, seven or more days according to the system in vogue. Only the young shoots are taken. In the interval, while the other sections are being plucked, the plant in that first plucked is throwing out more buds to be ready in turn. This work is usually done by the women on an estate. In the manner of its doing, as in the quantity plucked, there is plenty of opportunity of showing individual merit. The artiste may pluck twenty, thirty or more pounds of leaf in a day while the amateur is picking five. In spite of the child slung in a fold of the sari, both hands move so fast it is impossible to follow the movements of the fingers. As the leaf is plucked it is dropped into a cloth slung as an apron, and this from time to time is emptied into the basket. Green leaf yields one quarter its weight in manufactured tea. After the day's work is over the leaf is weighed and spread evenly on trays placed in racks. The trays are made of wicker or wire netting, to admit of a free circulation of air round the leaf. In the hot season tea is frequently brought in at mid-day and weighed then as well as at night. The leaf if it remains too long in the baskets is apt to get over-heated. When it has remained on the trays until it is withered, so that a handful crushes like soft kid, none of the stalks cracking, it is ready to be rolled. The roller is a machine with a rotatory motion, which turns the mass of leaf over and over till each little leaf is only a tiny roll of green. The mass is then loosened and again placed on trays in a cool situation to ferment. Now it begins to lose the natural color, fermentation turning it from green to a coppery red. It is then ready to be fired.

The firing stoves are so constructed that the smoke is drawn off, and only the hot air passes up and through the tea. Through slots cut in the outer casing the tea is passed on trays into the current of air. Many stoves are complicated pieces of machinery, working automatically, driving the air by fans and dispensing as far as possible with manual labor. During the firing operation the tea assumes the dull black color so well known. No stage can be proceeded with while a former one remains incomplete. Thus tea, like time and tide, waits on no man, and in the season the relays of leaf keep two sets of men going day and night. It remains now to pass the tea through sieves that the fine may be separated from the coarse. Broken Pekoe, Pekoe and Souchong are three very ordinary sortings. All do not believe that any name would be good enough for a rose, so we have orange Pekoe, flowery orange Pekoe, etc. Of course, the finer the qualities you sort out the less strength will there be in the remainder. The coarser kinds are passed through a cutting machine, which cuts the leaf up into smaller pieces. That is all. Pack it up now in leaded boxes and send it off to the auctions in Calcutta or home to Mincing lane.

On the garden the labor force may be divided into three sections—the European establishment, the native and the coolies. The European establishment on an average-sized garden will consist of three—a manager, assistant and an engineer. The manager directs all the different work, and the books and money are in his charge. The assistant looks after the tea in cultivation, and sees that the manager's orders are carried out. The engineer has charge of all the machinery, and, as a rule, of the tea during manufacture. The native establishment includes one or two baboos for accounts, a doctor baboo in charge of the hospital, "sirdars" to look after the coolies while outside, "chowkidars" to watch them in the lines, peons, and perhaps one or two native "maistris" or carpenters. The coolie does all the actual manual work in connection with the estate save the carpentering, etc. The men hoe, prune, weed, fire the tea—anything and everything. The women in the season pluck the leaves, and at other times do light hoeing or pruning, as may be required. The coolie is not a native of the tea districts. The hillmen, on the one hand, will no more leave their jungle to work on an estate than the ryot in the plains will leave his crops. At odd seasons both may give some assistance, but their labor is too uncertain to depend on.

The coolie comes from the jungles round Giridah, Central and Northwest Provinces. The former are the best, and the latter only suitable for healthy districts. They are brought up usually on a three years' agreement. Wages for the men are from three annas per day upwards and for the women from two. During the busy season at task work they can earn much more. The system of recruiting these laborers is a curious one, open to many abuses, so much so that there is now on foot a scheme for restricting recruiting to one central agency. At present there are many private firms, and their arkattis go hither and thither among the villages bringing what coolies they can to the depot. At the depot they are medically inspected, and then before a magistrate the terms of agreement are explained and the statements as to name, caste, age, etc., verified. The cost of procuring these coolies and taking them to the tea districts runs from 40 rupees to over 100 rupees per head. Practically none of this reaches the coolie, and the temptation to make money by fraudulent recruiting is the chief abuse. It is not a nice trade. In the Bengal tea districts the labor is mostly free, the men going and returning at will. When the three years expire the coolie either re-engages under a local Act for one year (for this a bonus in rupees is given), or settles in coolie villages set up in the plains. Only the minority return to their country to stay, though many pay short visits and return to their villages or gardens, bringing their relatives with them.

cultivation is limited by the number of gardens. Personal influence is the usual medium for obtaining a billet. An assistant on coming out is provided with a bungalow, medical attendance and one or two servants; a horse and syce are also kept for him by the garden. The actual cost of living is little, but the Indian climate calls for many necessities which elsewhere would be reckoned luxuries. These necessitous luxuries soon mount up, and the pay unsupplemented is barely sufficient. The life for those who can stand the climate is a pleasant one.

OUTLOOK FOR CANNED GOODS.

WHEN Mr. Boulter, Mayor of Picton and head of the firm of W. Boulter & Sons, the canners of the "Lion" brand, was in the city last Friday, he was seen by THE GROCER and interrogated as to his opinion of the canning prospects for this season.

"The situation," he said, "was admirably described in an article in your issue of August 13, and the outlook has not changed much since that time."

"Last year," he continued, "we packed 15,000 cases of peas, this year not half that amount. The hot weather in July completely dried up this year's production, and we were canning only two weeks. I hear that nearly all the canners are sold out, but," with a little smile, "we disposed of only 500 cases as yet, and are now refusing 75c. We intend to make up for last year's losses, if possible. We disposed of our peas last season for 57½c.

"From the present prospects we will not be canning corn or tomatoes before September 1. Last year we were handling tomatoes full blast on August 12. As pointed out in that article of yours, the tomato vines have grown at the expense of the vegetable; now each covers from 4 to 6 feet of ground, and is loaded with small tomatoes. Unless hot weather comes, the pack will certainly be very small. We have sold no futures and will not under any circumstances. Prices will certainly advance. This is no 'peach scare.' These are the facts, and anyone who will take the trouble to drive through the country can see them," he enthusiastically remarked. "The reason of this backwardness is the fact that the pollen were prevented from being distributed by the wet weather in the spring.

"Corn, too, will be scarce," he concluded. "The spring weather was also the cause of this."

He ended his business-like conversation by saying that business in the canning line was likely to be far more satisfactory to canner, jobber and retailer on account of the high price.

THE PROSPECT FOR TRADE WITH NORWAY.

Editor GROCER,—As the time is drawing near when the wholesale grocers here will be looking around for their supply of fresh and evaporated apples, we thought it might be well to call the attention of the Canadian evaporators and exporters to the fact that the apple crop will be a failure this year in the Scandinavian countries, and that large quantities both of fresh and evaporated apples will very likely be wanted to supply the demand.

We do not omit to state at the same time that the kind of fresh apples wanted are "red Baldwins," packed in nice clean barrels, well assorted, and that only the best evaporated apples (prime and choice) packed in cases of 50 lbs. net each are salable. The duty is rather high, having been increased lately from 25 ores to 40 ores ($1 = 375 ores) per kilogramme, and is the same for both good and inferior qualities, which makes the latter come unproportionately high.

U. S. packers are introducing a new style of packing, viz.: 1-lb paper cartoons, which is well received here. We also think this a very good plan, as, with the packer's name on every cartoon, this serves to make the brand known quickly.

Of other articles which are selling here steadily, and as yet principally imported from the U.S., we will mention rolled oats, wheat flour and corn for cattle feed. During the last two years we have had regular shipments of rolled oats from the Tillson Co., of Tilsonburg, Ont., and are pleased to say that their goods are giving entire satisfaction and successfully take up the competition with the U.S. article. As a fact, we have not up to this date had a single complaint. The principal time for the rolled oats import is during the fall and winter months.

Pure Manitoba wheat flour is regarded as a superior article and would find a ready sale. We have had some shipments, which we have bought in firm account, but the mill informed us some time ago that they were so heavily engaged in filling orders for the English market, that it would be impossible for them to ship any flour to the Scandinavian countries until further notice. We would therefore like to hear from some mill desirous of having their flour permanently introduced here, and shall be pleased to receive samples with c.i.f. quotations on best patents and bakers'.

Corn for cattle feed is imported whole and ground here on account of the duty. It is only about a year ago that the import of this became of any importance, but since then it has been gaining steadily until now almost every steamer from the United States brings hundreds of sacks. We shall be pleased to hear from Canadian exporters in this line. We solicit correspondence with Canadian exporters in general.

Without anything further at this writing, we remain, Yours respectfully,

WHY HE ADOPTED THE CASH SYSTEM.

A WESTERN merchant who appreciates the advantages of the cash system has addressed the following letter to his trade :

We want your trade in our line, and propose to make prices an inducement. Beginning with the first day of June, 1897, we are going to close our books and mark all goods in the house down to a cash basis, and from that time onward do a strictly cash business. We are convinced beyond a doubt that this is the only fair way to do business, because the people then get the benefit of close prices and do not pay long profits, which must be made in order to offset bad debts in doing a credit business. We have been doing a credit business for the past 16 years, and notwithstanding the fact that we have been careful in selecting and extending a line of credit to the people, we find every now and then that a certain account is worthless. We have fought and reasoned with ourselves for several years why we should make such a radical change in our business, but finally jotted down some of the reasons that brought us to it.

1. We will save the salary of a bookkeeper and collector, which amounts to $500 per year, and by taking advantage of discounts on all bills can save money and sell goods closer.

2. Because we will save in stamps and stationery about $300 per year.

3. We will always have from $3,000 to $5,000 more merchandise in the store in place of having it on the books and in notes, and can therefore serve customers better.

4. Because we will have no bad debts and can therefore afford to sell goods much cheaper.

5. With the above savings we can save customers from 10 to 25 per cent. on every article sold.

6. Because the cash system is the only system, and quick sales and small profits is the secret of success.

7. Last, but not least, we have been in the credit business for 16 years and are sick of it.

You can readily see that all these expenses, losses and troubles can be avoided by us in doing a cash business, and a saving of a neat per cent. to the customers.

To parties indebted to us we wish to state that we are not going to crowd the collection of their accounts, but will give them a reasonable time to settle, and kindly ask them to continue their patronage, but must insist on cash payment for everything bought from said date. Coupons, which we will issue, will be considered as cash. The fact that goods will be sold close will not allow of their being charged.

THE CALIFORNIA FRUIT CROP.

MUCH has already been said in regard to the abundance of the California fruit crop. A correspondent in The Mercantile Record writes thus from California :

Southern California has never seen its like and growers are embarrassed to know what to do with the luscious fruit, it is so abundant. A little of the fruit is packed whole and shipped to outside markets and a little more is disposed of in local markets, but the greater part of it is dried where it is possible to procure the necessary help. But there is not a fruit-drying establishment in Southern California that is not running shorthanded, although the work is unskilled and much of it can be done by children.

Speaking of the apricot harvest reminds one of the harvest time for the other fruits, of which lemons and oranges are the most bountiful in this section of the state. The harvest time for lemons is all the time, one might say, but the principal times for gathering them are during the months of March and September.

Contrary to the general belief among eastern people lemons do not have to get ripe to be picked. They must attain a certain size—2½ inches in diameter is the standard—and then, whether green or ripe, they are cut from the boughs and stored in a dark room until they assume a feeling to the touch somewhat akin to that of a piece of kid leather. They are then supposed to be properly cured and suitable for shipment. From four to six weeks is required for the curing process, the green lemons taking on the characteristic lemon hue during that period.

Lemon-growers usually go over their orchards about every 40 days, gathering such as have approximated the standard size. In winter nearly all of the lemons plucked have already assumed their yellow color, but in summer the reverse obtains, and the harvester gathers the fruit when it is as green as the foliage which surrounds it. This is due to the fact that there is a free flow of sap in the summer, while the flow is small in the winter.

TO THE WHOLESALE TRADE IN GENERAL VIA THE CANADIAN GROCER.

GENTLEMEN, — Is it possible that the wholesale trade cannot place us merchants on a level with those department stores who advertise and sell Dodds' Pills for 30c. and Chase's Pills for 12½c. when they cost us more money. Why, the best of our trade is handicapped so that we cannot do a profitable business just because the wholesale trade is selling at cut rates to those who are slowly doing away with the retail trader. The wholesale trade is driving a nail into its own coffin. Do the manufacturers make those cut rates to large wholesalers and do the small wholesalers pay an advance price? Where are the following who catered for the cut-throat trade, viz., Samson, Kennedy & Co., McMaster & Co., R. Linton & Co., J. W. Lang & Co. and many others who within the last few years have had to step out and let the assignee wind up their estate?

THE CUBAN WAR AND BANANAS.

ONE curious result of the Cuban war is the complete revolution of the banana industry. Three years ago one could feel reasonably certain that a banana seen in the United States was grown in Cuba. Now we do not get a single bunch from the island. Cuba formerly sent us over 2,000,000 bunches of the rich tropical fruit every season. The principal firms engaged in the importation of bananas had great plantations of thousands of acres in extent and eastern Cuba was rapidly becoming one huge banana farm. In fact, the raising of bananas had grown to be one of Cuba's most important industries. Twenty vessels were continually occupied in carrying the fruit to the United States. During 1895 the crop was not seriously affected, but last year banana traders found it impossible to load their vessels in Cuba. During the season a large part of the plantations was destroyed, and now nothing grows where once was the most fertile and highly productive spot in Cuba.

The destruction of the banana plantations has incidentally involved the loss of considerable American capital, but the trade itself has not been allowed to languish, although it is almost true that not a banana comes out of Cuba to-day. The amount of this fruit used in America this season will be more than double what it was in the year before the Cuban war. Cuba, the great banana raiser, has disappeared from this line of work, but her place has been taken by Jamaica, Porto Rico and surrounding islands, Mexico and Central America. Natives, blacks and American planters have gone into the business in all these places, and the result is that bananas are now cheaper than ever, and the supply is large enough to meet the rapid increase in demand. This increase has been very remarkable during the past few seasons. It is probable that this year between 15,000,000 and 20,000,000 bunches will be brought into this country. Of this amount nearly one-half comes by way of New Orleans, one-third by New York and the remainder through other ports.

It is only within the past few years that the handling of bananas has been worthy the name of a distinct trade. Previously it was only a part of the fruit trade, and like most kinds of fruit, the banana was counted on as good for its season. The banana season was "on" when apples, berries and other native fruits were "off." As time went on, however, and greater familiarity with the banana taught people that it was the most excellent and adaptable of fruits, a steady demand grew up which persists the year around. Physicians took up the banana and recommended it for its healthful and nourishing qualities, and altogether the banana has come into high favor. That is briefly why the people of the United States will eat this year some 20,000,000 bunches of bananas, or roughly one bunch, averaging 200 bananas, to every family in the country.

The great bulk of bananas brought into this country are the yellow kind, but a good many of the red variety from Lower California and Central America are also used. There is no other kind of fruit that can be served in so many different ways as the banana, and this in great measure accounts for its growth in popularity and the great ncrease in its use.—Commercial Appeal.

MAKING COFFEE.

ALMOST everybody makes coffee, or at least they think they do, but the connoisseur is scarcely willing to admit that the beverage which passes under the name of coffee has any right to such a title. The world is full of poor coffee—exceedingly poor—and while there is unquestionably a great deal of trash that is called coffee put upon the market, the cook is largely responsible for it, because, as everybody knows, the very finest grade of this article may be spoiled in the making.

Expert coffee makers sometimes roast their own coffee. This is easily done with the regular roaster, which works very much on the same principle as the peanut roaster one sees on the vendor's stand. It is extremely easy to manage, and the wonder is why more housekeepers do not make use of it. If may be placed on the kitchen range immediately over the coals, the coffee put in and slowly and steadily turned until it smokes. A few times trying will teach the operator just the proper point to which the roasting should be carried.

Unroasted coffee keeps longer than that which is cooked, and when it is desirable to purchase in large quantities the roaster has a manifest advantage. A pound or so of coffee may be done at one time, and if, as many people think, the coffee is better when freshly roasted, the gain is apparent.

It is customary in some households to make coffee with egg. This process is somewhat more troublesome than the drip, but it has the advantage that it can be made in any ordinary vessel, while the drip must have a special pot for this purpose. One of the very best coffee makers, however, prepares what he calls drip coffee by putting the ground coffee into a small bag of cheesecloth, tieing it closely and hanging it from a string held in place by the cover of the coffee pot. The bag is let down into the water several times, then raised and held up by the string as described.

Whatever may be the process of coffeemaking a few things are absolutely necessary. The vessel must be thoroughly clean and free from all flavor of any other article; the water must be boiling and the coffee must be ground very finely. Few housekeepers realize that they waste half their coffee by coarse grinding. The particles must be as fine as the best granulated cornmeal. It will make at least one-third difference in the strength of drip coffee whether the particles are fine or coarse. The flavor of the pulverized berry is much better than when it is merely cracked into large pieces.

It seems strange, with as much discussion as there is in public and private on the subject of coffeemaking, that the majority of families should place such an inferior beverage on their tables.—N. Y. Ledger.

"All selling nicely, thanks."

A FAVORABLE OUTLOOK.

THE farming community are the fundamental basis of the economic structure in Canada. Accordingly, when the farmers are prosperous, it is obvious that the conditions should favor prosperity in all other branches of business. If there ever was a year when fortune smiled on the agriculturist the present is one, and for this reason the business outlook is considered very bright. In almost every branch of produce in which the farmer is interested, high prices are the rule. He is getting more for his cattle, for the produce of these same cattle, for the fruits of the earth, in fact, everything that he markets.

Live stock and their produce are perhaps; apart from the growing of grain, the most important department of farming in Canada; to the provinces of Ontario and Quebec the most important. Take the production of dairy produce, a leading subdivision, and it is found that the year is a record one. The exports of cheese since the first of May from Montreal exceed those of last year by 212,000 boxes. In other words, the farmers have marketed so far this year 964,000 boxes of cheese which at the average price, 8½c., returned them $5.95 per box, or $5,754,800. Last year, during the same time, they exported 751,000 boxes at an average price of 7½c., or $5.25 per box, and realized $3,942,750. They have, therefore, increased their earnings this year by $1,812,000 in this one item alone. Butter has the same favorable showing. The exports this season from Montreal since the 1st of May exceed those of last year by 18,264 packages, and the average price has been 1¼c. per lb. higher. Butter has returned to the farmer, for the four months of the present year, about $586,700, the average price being 17c. per lb., against an average price last year of 15½c. and a return of $356,964. On cheese and butter alone, therefore, the farmers of Ontario and Quebec have made in four months $6,1345,00, or almost $2,000,000 more than for the same four months of 1896.

These figures are certainly very encouraging, and all the more so as they are strongly supplemented by favorable conditions in other directions. For instance, Ontario red wheat sold at 95c. for export the other day in Montreal, whereas it was offering freely for 50c. and less a year ago. Flour is almost $2 per barrel higher than it was this time last year. Oats realize 28¼c. to-day against 26c. a year ago. Eggs 11c., against 9c., and so on throughout the list.

In other directions signs of revival are not wanting. The bank statement for the past month is an illustration of this. The statement for July presents the rather unusual condition of a large increase in circulation being accompanied by a reduction in the volume of loans to the public. This can only be accounted for on the supposition that the shortening of credits in many lines of wholesale trade, and the more general adoption of the cash system in retail business, has caused more ready cash and less banking accommodation to be called for in the transaction of the country's business. The circulation has this year reached the highest figure since the year 1893, when it stood at $33,573,468, against $32,709,475 for the present year.

Another striking feature about the bank statement is the continued increase in deposits. This movement in the accumulation of deposits has been peculiar, inasmuch as it has steadily progressed ever since the year 1890. Each month of the year since that time has witnessed an increase over the corresponding month of the preceding one. They now show a total of $205,108,185, a growth of over $18,000,000 in the twelve months. Another sign of confidence is the increase in the amount of balances due from foreign countries from $16,713,630 a year ago to $22,745,589. There are also heavier balances due from Great Britain by $3,312,174 than a year ago.

MOLASSES POINTING HIGHER.

OPERATORS in molasses in Montreal are figuring on the possibility of a shortage during the present fall and winter. It is well known that the consumption of molasses in the province of Quebec is largely confined to Barbadoes; the French-Canadian habitant, being accustomed to this, will have nothing else. This is not what was expected during the spring and early summer, for owing to the very heavy receipts of Barbadoes stock it was expected that a large quantity would have to be carried over. The receipts this season, however, graded very high under testing, and made the molasses a profitable purchase for the sugar refiners, who, as noted from time to time, were heavy buyers in the Montreal market as well as at the Islands. The result of this condition of affairs has been a decided improvement in prices and a strong possibility of their going still higher. This is all the more likely as advices state that there is no more to be had at the Islands, and now it is doubtful if a buyer could even secure a round lot from first hands in Montreal even at 23c. which is fully 3c. higher than what the goods were offering at less than a fortnight ago.

MERCHANTS AND INFLUENCE.

The force of example in a merchant no one can measure, for upon what manner of man he is will largely depend what manner of men the clerks are he turns out.

It does not necessarily follow that because a certain merchant is dishonest in his methods of doing business his clerks will be likewise afflicted, but his influence will certainly tend to make them such.

It does not necessarily follow that because a merchant's business methods are bad his clerks will become bad business men, but his influence will tend to make them such.

It does not follow that because a merchant is lazy his clerks shall become so, but his influence will tend to make them such.

A thing molded takes the shape of the mold in which it is cast, and the clerk the form and shape to which he is fashioned by his employer.

Merchants, be careful of your influence.

CHINA TEAS.

THERE is nothing in which the trade has seen a greater change in the Victorian era than in the item of tea. China teas have reigned supreme during most of the period. In the early part of the age tea was a luxury, but with the progress of the world came cheaper transportation, and a greater consumption, so that now tea is almost a necessity. But it is no longer China tea that is the necessity as it was a few years ago. The herbs from India, Ceylon and Japan bid fair to exclude the Chinese products from the market altogether. This fact is more noticeable this year than ever. The public favor appears to have materially changed.

The Chinese, it would seem, are making some effort to regain their ascendency, but we are afraid the attempts will be futile. The producers of the teas that have taken their place will never be found napping as the Chinese were.

Last year was particularly disastrous to the Chinese exporters, for losses resulted from transactions both in Europe and Australia, where the bulk of their tea has been consumed. The losses to the native tea men are estimated at $1,500,000. With many the retirement from business is necessary, their funds and their credit being exhausted, while others would retire from the business if it were not for the hope that is held out from the attempts being made to improve the quality of the tea.

For some years past the Chinese have been recommended to abandon their system of curing in favor of that practised in Indian gardens, but they are naturally conservative and could not be induced to mend their ways. It has long been evident that Chinese-cured tea was growing into disfavor in Great Britain and Australia, and that unless something was done the trade would dwindle into insignificance.

The seriousness of the outlook, and the recognition of the impossibility of inducing the native growers to introduce a reformation into their methods of curing, gave the necessary impulse to a body of foreign merchants to form themselves into a company, to acquaint themselves with the details of the Indian processes, and to import some machinery to do curing under similar treatment. Last fall some shipments were made by this company, and the experiment proved so successful with the third or fourth crop leaf that it is anticipated with the first crop leaf complete satisfaction will be given this year.

Difficulties, however, will be encountered for some time at least that will prevent the Chinese tea from regaining its former ascendancy. Prejudices are sure to be aroused by the introduction of machinery, even if tea-firing is carried on by only the better class of Cantonese. If such prejudices do spring up it is to be hoped that the officials will recognize the seriousness of the situation and will do nothing to prevent the resuscitation of the tea trade. The other obstacles—over-taxation and want of communication—are even more dangerous, and cannot be removed without a complete revolution. Those two things keep the Chinese in the same state both in regard to individual intellectuality and to system of government and prevent their sharing in the universal progress.

PRICES WITHDRAWN ON CALIFORNIA RAISINS.

Advices to hand this week regarding new California raisins are much firmer. Orders wired this week to the Coast on the basis of 4c. f.o.b. on the cars there for 3-crown fruit, October shipment, have been turned down by shippers. The latter state that they will fill only original orders at the price, and have instructed their agents in Montreal not to enter into any new negotiations pending further instructions. Eight or ten days ago offers from the same shippers were made on the basis of 3½ to 3¾c. f.o.b. Coast, but the conditions have evidently changed since then. This higher tendency has been apparent ever since the first prices were quoted. These were very low, being fully 1c. below what is being asked to-day, but the generally bullish tendency in all lines of produce and fruits was too strong to be resisted and there has been a steady appreciation in the price of fruit as well as in other foodstuffs on the Coast. As a matter of fact mail advices state that prices are very unsettled owing to the fact that the growers and packers generally can't make up their minds what their goods are really worth. This applies not only to raisins, but to other kinds of fruit, as brokers have tried to get quotations on standard brands of California prunes and have been unable to do so.

TOMATO PRICES WITHDRAWN.

LAST week reference was made to some extensive contracts in canned vegetables, especially peas, corn and tomatoes. This week packers, if advices to hand are a fair criterion, would be just as well satisfied if they had not been in so great a hurry. At any rate, some of them would not be averse to cancelling any existing contracts for new pack tomatoes, if not in other lines. One packer wrote his agent in Montreal this week to withdraw all offers. Instead of his usual pack of 26,000 cases he would feel satisfied if his output amounted to 6,000. The vines looked healthy enough, but the trouble was that they had no fruit on them. It is, of course, natural under these circumstances that all sorts of fancy prices are being predicted, some talking of $1 tomatoes as well as $1 wheat, but it is worthy of note that jobbers do not appear to be very anxious buyers. "Once bit, twice shy," applies to their case. They have loaded up often before at high prices, and then had to carry these high-priced goods over. They are disposed to go slow this year, following a very conservative policy, although they do not doubt the possibility of high prices.

A COMPLAINT AGAINST CANADA.

A gentleman with the elaborate name of Arthur de Noe Walker has a letter in The London Chronicle of August 4, in which he sets forth a not very high opinion of Canada.

Mr. Arthur de Noe Walker, be it known, is writing about something regarding which he possesseth knowledge: He has two sons in Canada, one at Calgary and another at Vancouver.

But so meagre are the resources of this Dominion of ours that Mr. Arthur de Noe Walker's two offspring would not be able to live were it not for the financial aid they receive from "at home."

Here are his exact words: "I may remark that neither of them could live out there without a yearly sum sent out to them."

Poor little dears! Papa should call them home.

What Canada wants more than anything else is population, but we could well afford to give Mr. Arthur de Noe Walker back his two sons. The trouble is not with the country but with them.

Canada is no place for "remittancers" pure and simple. We want men with brawn and muscle, men with energy and enterprise. If in addition to these qualities they bring money they are still more welcome. But we do not court those who are rich in money and poor in brains and brawn. They are hindrances rather than helps to the development of the country.

If it were possible to place an order with the Creator to make us another Dominion of Canada we could scarcely ask Him to make it different from what it is.

We have untold wealth of sea, lake and stream, of forest, field, and mine.

Generally speaking, no country is more richly blessed in those natural resources necessary to the foundation of a great country, and the man who cannot make his living here is either an idiot or an idler.

THE APPRENTICESHIP SYSTEM.

A correspondent, signing himself "J.," expressed the opinion in last week's issue that the most prevalent cause of failure in business was lack of apprenticeship. THE CANADIAN GROCER is quite prepared to endorse this opinion.

There was a time within the memory of those of middle age when apprenticeships to such businesses as groceries, hardware and dry goods were the rule. But to-day we seldom if ever hear of such a thing.

There is no virtue in the mere indenturing of a youth for a term of years to a certain business. The virtue lieth in the fact that a training in the particular business to which one is indentured is assured.

A boy who decides upon following a certain line of business for a livelihood may obtain proficiency without being apprenticed to anyone, but the likelihood of obtaining the proficiency by being apprenticed is greater.

Apprenticeship is really only a synonym for training, and it does not matter by whatsoever name the factor is called so long as it obtains the desideratum.

Unfortunately there are all the time men going into business who have had no prior experience. It is an unpleasant thing to say this, but it is true, nevertheless. And the proof of it is to be seen in the incapacity with which one meets only too often.

If a man does not understand his business he cannot be expected to succeed. In order to know his business he must have training. And the most reliable way in which to secure a proper training is through the apprenticeship system.

A good many people do not favor an apprenticeship because it keeps in subjection their desire to jump around from pillar to post; but these are the very ones who, above all others, should be apprenticed to the business which they propose to follow.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

Signs.

For two or three months I have seen the following sign printed on a strip of cotton about 16x4 hung up over the windows of a shop on one of the main streets of Toronto: "Here's the place to buy your ——— and all goods manufactured here." What nonsense! If it had been there on Nov. 1 only I would have guessed at the reason of its existence for the time being, but its presence on the front of the shop for a couple of months seems to indicate that it was purposely hung by the proprietor of the place. Although there are not many signs that are so nonsensical, there are a great many that are no more attractive or suggestive.

Another Hint.

As I was passing along the street one day this week I espied a window that did not appear to me to be very nicely dressed; in fact, it rather jarred on my powers of appreciation, so I stopped to see just what was the matter with it. I don't think that anyone but myself would have stopped. The window consisted of three or four large bags of sugar and a similar number of sheets of "Tanglefoot." Unless it was dressed to advertise the latter, the window was of no account, and even in that case it did not fulfil its purpose, for it was nigh impossible for the paper to gather all the flies. This is why I objected to the window: Because the bags of sugar showed that the grocer sold German sugar—an inferior variety; because the sugar melted somewhat with the heat, and gave the window a dirty appearance; because flies were attracted by the sugar; fly paper was thus necessitated, and this gave the worst possible appearance; and because the window is no store room, but should rather be a place of display. Some merchants don't seem to know even this last rudiment in the principles of modern business.

A Model Window.

Some of the nicest and most striking grocery windows in Toronto are to be seen in the store of Mr. D. Bradshaw, King street east. He has had a very nice display of canned goods just lately that seemed to me to be very artistic. It is rather difficult to describe how a window such as that, and to say just why, it is rendered striking, but a few of the precautions that were taken in dressing it are visible. First of all the background of cases of goods serves to set off the display. In the forepart of the window are several varieties of canned goods, piled up into different shapes, and do not give that monotonous appearance common to most grocery windows. One reason for this is that the goods are not huddled together so as to appear as if they could not bear examination, nor do the piles of cans gradually diminish in size from the back to the front of the window. They are different in size, but are so arranged that all can be easily seen, and the view is not wearisome. It requires a person with an eye for the beautiful to dress such a window. There may be others in Toronto just as good, but I take this one as a type. It illustrates some important ideas.

Ruptures With Customers.

Continuing my remarks of last week on this subject it seems to be worth while to consider the payment of bills as another frequent indirect cause of rupture between the retailer and his customer. This is a subject of great concern to grocers who do business on either the credit or so-called cash basis, for all grocers must at least run monthly accounts. The matter under consideration is, then, how must a grocer act and what must he say to a customer who comes in with a bill which the grocer has sent out feeling sure that it hadn't been settled, but which the customer is as firmly convinced that he has paid? It is a delicate position for the merchant, for there is nothing that can hurt a person's feelings more than to have his or her word doubted or to think that he or she has to pay for a thing thice. The worst position he can take in the matter then is to be firm in his opinion that the account had not been settled and to insist on payment. He is just as liable to be mistaken as his customer—in fact more so, if his customer is honest. Mistakes of that nature must be frequent in a store where so many accounts are run, and the dealer or clerk cannot rely on his memory. The payment or non-payment of an account is always more forcible to the memory of a customer than to the dealer, and allowances should be made for this fact by the latter, He may think he is right, but to retain his customer's patronage, which is generally more valuable than the amount of the bill concerned, he must "crawl" out of the difficulty second best, attributing the mistake to forgetfulness or carelessness upon his own or his clerk's part. It is very annoying, too, to have this customer bring down a receipted bill the day after the merchant had insisted that it wasn't paid for.

Talking to an experienced grocer on the subject, he told me that he once lost the confidence of a good customer by insisting on the payment of a 20c. bill. He said that he was yet sure that the amount had not been paid, but he was also certain that his actions then cost him a good deal. Such a method of treatment is difficult to have instilled into a person's every-day actions, but in these days of keen competition, many merchants do not need any hints in this line, and if their competitors do not see fit to adopt the same tactics, they may consider they are not fit for to-day's business life.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Aug. 26, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE firm feeling that has governed prices in all groceries generally has broken out in a sharp advance, more particularly in primary markets. Dealers consider this due to the rapidly-increasing quotations on wheat and other staples, and say that most lines which have not yet felt the heightening influence will soon do so unless there are counterbalancing forces in action. The trade in sugar is good, and ⅛c. of an advance has taken place this week, making an increase of 3-16c. a pound in the last ten days In canned goods canners have withdrawn all quotations on the three staples, corn, tomatoes and peas. In California evaporated fruit prices are bullish in the primary market. Foreign quotations on tapioca and sago have advanced sharply. New currants are quoted 1s. 6d. higher for new shipment, and Valencias have advanced 2s. Cable advices from Colombo are to the effect that Ceylon teas have risen ¼d. in price.

CANNED GOODS.

The new pack of salmon will arrive in a few days. Although canners as a general rule are not taking orders for futures, yet nearly all the houses will be supplied with the first shipments. In vegetables, too, canners have ceased taking large orders. They will supply their regular customers, but will not make any large contracts. Peas are already hardly obtainable; the stock is in very few hands, and canners refuse 75c. for them. The lobster shortage is also quite a feature in the market. California fruits are moving well, but Canadian vegetables are rather dull. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80 to 85c.; corn, 55 to 75c.; peas, 75 to 80c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.25 to $1.40; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.50 to $1.80, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 70 to 95c.; gallons, $1.50 to $1.80; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; other red salmon, $1.15 upwards, according to quality and brand; cohoes, 95c. to $1; canned mackerel, $1.20 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.70; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.35 to $1.40; 2's, $2.35 to $2.45; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

A fair trade has been doing in coffees this week and the feeling continues quite firm in Rios. Advices from Brazil say that dealers there are holding stocks in anticipation of higher prices. New York dealers are jubilant over the difference in prices between green and roasted. Jobbers quote green in bags as follows: Rio, 9½ to 13c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

Are still quite quiet. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

There is a little firmer feeling in Barbadoes on account of a scarcity, but there is no marked advance. We quote as follows: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGARS.

A good business has been done this week. Several large orders have been received. Within the last ten days sugar has advanced 3-16c. per lb. On Wednesday, Redpath's was quoted at ⅛c. of an advance on the quotations of the week before. The feeling is quite firm. We quote as follows for Toronto: Granulated—St. Lawrence and Redpath's, 4 9-16c. for single barrel lots and 4½c. for 5-barrel lots; Acadia, 4⅜c. for single barrel lots, and 4 5-16c. for 5-barrel lots; yellows, 3½ to 4⅛c. per lb.; German granulated, in 100-lb. sacks, 4⅛ to 4¼c. per lb.; Demerara crystals, 3⅞c.

SPICES.

Another sharp advance in pepper is noted in New York; in fact, the quotations there have advanced over ½c. per lb. in the last few days. Cloves are higher, too. The prices here for the ground varieties are not yet materially changed. Trade is quite brisk. We quote: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 10c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 17c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

The situation in nuts has not materially altered during the week. We quote: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 20 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

Advices from primary markets show that tapioca and sago have advanced from 6d. to 9d, according to quality. Business has improved slightly. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

TEAS.

Rumors on the street are to the effect that prices in Colombo have advanced the equivalent of 4c. a lb. on Ceylon teas. Indian teas are also higher. Congous are arriving freely. Japan teas are considerably higher this week, but it is doubtful if the advance will hold, as the low-priced India and Ceylon teas are gradually driving them out of the market. Young Hysons are also coming on now, and they will also have a similar effect. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

There is not much new to report in regard to the new crop of currants. In about a week intelligence re shipments to Patras will be received; meanwhile we await the doings of the weather. New currants for shipment are this week quoted 1s. 6d. higher. This may be on account of a foreboding of some spoiling of new fruit. Old currants continue very scarce. We quote: Provincials, 5¾ to 6c. in bbls.; ditto, half-bbls., 5¾ to 6c.; fine Filiatras, in bbls., 5⅞ to 6c.; do., half-bbls., 5⅞ to 6⅛c.; Patras, 6¾c. in cases; Vostizzas, cases, 7 to 8c.

The supplies of Valencia raisins have been coming into Denia very slowly since the early shipments were effected and cables are to the effect that the market is temporarily bare. It is expected, however, that before long supplies will be coming in. New Valencias have advanced 2s. One large shipper has withdrawn all offers on account of the uncertainty of saving the crops in good condition. We quote: Off-stalk, 4 to 5c.; fine off-stalk, 5 to 6c.; selected, 6½ to 7c.; layers, 5½ to 6½c.

Advices from California state that prices there are rapidly advancing and that all futures that were made in raisins have shown a loss on present quotations. The crop has suffered considerably in many districts, and will likely be about the same size as it was last year. Wholesalers quote from 7 to 8c. as the ruling figures.

CLEMES BROS. - TORONTO

No further advices in regard to figs have been received this week. Trade is quiet. We quote spot goods nominally : 10 oz., 7½c.; 10 lb., 9 to 10c.; 18 lb., 10 to 12c.; 28 lb., 11 to 13c.; taps, 3¼ to 3½c. net; natural, 4½c. in bags, and 6 to 6½c. in boxes.

Since our last issue a great boom has set in in California and in many varieties of dried goods prices are advancing, so that it is doubtful if the expected low prices will be realized. We quote California evaporated fruits as follows : Peaches, 7 to 10½c. per lb., according to quality; apricots, 6½ to 15c.; pears, 5½ to 10½c.; egg plums, 5½ to 11c.; silver prunes, 8½ to 13½c.

Cables received this week giving opening quotations on Sultana raisins indicate a high range of prices. It is difficult at present to say whether these will be maintained, but there is no doubt but that much higher prices will rule this year than last.

Prunes are quiet, with no further advices re new crop this week. We quote as follows : Bosnias, U's (110 to 113 half kilo), 6 to 6½c.; C's (85 to 90 half kilo), 7 to 7½c. per lb. California, 90 to 100's, 6½c. per lb.; 70 to 80's, 7½c.; 60 to 70's, 7½ to 8c.; 50 to 60's, 8 to 8½c.; 40 to 50's, 9½ to 10½c.; 30 to 40's, 12½ to 13c.; "Ruby" prunes, 7½ to 8c.; French, 4½ to 5c.

Dates are dull. We quote : 5½ to 6c. for Hallowee and 5 to 5¼c. for Kadrowee.

GREEN FRUITS.

The new Messina lemons are showing extra good quality. Oranges are dull. Bananas are selling exceedingly freely; in fact the way trade in this line has been sustained all summer is a revelation. Watermelons are moving freely and are not dragging to any extent. The last shipments of California fruit are arriving, and prices are now ranging considerably lower. This fruit has arrived in good shape this year and dealers are well satisfied. Canadian tomatoes are not so plentiful this year, but still the Niagara district is furnishing a considerable quantity. The huckleberry market is difficult to gauge; whether the last of the supply is coming forward now cannot be ascertained. Some shipments came in this week and brought good figures. Peaches and plums are now about to be the main features on the market, and the crop of both appears to be plentiful. Good qualities are now coming in of both fruits. We quote : Oranges — Sorren-

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—Dairy; any good quality of butter that is coming in brings outside prices and sells readily. The poorer qualities are slow sale and still continue to accumulate. Best quality sells at 12 to 13½c.; low-grade brings 8 to 10c. Creamery is active, and the export demand is brisk. Although there is a good trade for pound prints locally, yet recently the market has been overdone. Sales are consequently a little more difficult to effect at former prices. Tubs are worth 18c. and prints 19 to 19½c.

CHEESE — The local market is much firmer in sympathy with higher export prices. Very few local houses seem to be holding any stocks, and not many are able to speculate in the advance; 9¾ to 10c. is the ruling price, while jobbers pay from 9½ to 9¾c.

SALT.

The rise in the price of salt in Toronto does not seem to have affected the trade materially. It is still moving freely although not briskly. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 65c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl. and 70c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

FISH.

The demand for fish is improving and now exceeds the supply. As a consequence prices are firm. We quote as follows: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

PROVISIONS.

A very active demand still characterizes this trade. There is no cessation in the numerous orders that arrive. No matter what the price is people will take the goods. Long clear has taken a sharp advance, 9c. being now asked and obtained. The demand in this line for lumbermen's requirements is particularly active this season. Pure lard is firmer this week. Although there is no quotable advance, yet dealers are looking for higher prices.

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long clear bacon, 8½ to 9c. for carload lots, and 8 to 8¼c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 9½c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 12½ to 13c.; rolls, 10 to 10½c.; hams, large, 11 to 11½c.; 12 to 13c. for small and 12½c. for medium; shoulder hams, 9½ to 10c.; backs, 12 to 12½c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD — Pure Canadian, tierces, 5¾c.; tubs, 6 to 6¼c.; pails, 6¼ to 6½c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $13 to $13.50; Canadian short-cut, $16; clear shoulder mess, $12.50.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—We quote: Wheat, No. 1 hard, $1.10; winter wheat, 93c.; oats, 21 to 22c.; peas, 44c. The market in wheat continues to have an excited advance.

FLOUR—With the price of wheat, flour, in all lines, has had sharp advances. Several export transactions are noted also. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $5.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $5.50; Ontario patents, $5 to $5.25; straight roller, $4.60 to $4.70, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—Trade is fair. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.10 in bags and $3.20 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.85 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.30 to $2.40; split peas, $3 to $3.25; pot barley, $3 to $3.25.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Continue firm for best qualities, 11 to 12c. being obtainable. No. 2 brings about 8 to 9c., and checks 7c. Receipts are large and stock is unusually good.

POTATOES—Dealers are paying 50c. for new potatoes and are selling at 60c. a bushel. There are this week enough potatoes marketed to supply the demand, but prices are firm and they are not plentiful.

HONEY—There are not many enquiries for new honey yet, but a demand is expected to arise soon. We quote light at: 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.; 5 and 10-lb. tins, 6½ to 7c.; comb, $1.50 to $1.75 per dozen.

DRIED APPLES — Enquiries are not numerous, but prices are very firm. Local price runs from 3 to 3½c. f.o.b., and jobbing price ranges about 3½c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Requirements are no heavier, but prices are advancing. Buyers are paying 4c. f.o.b. Jobbers are quoting 4½ to 5c.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—There has been no noticeable improvement during the week. Business continues dull. Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3 Steerhides: 60 lbs. and up, 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS — Trade is fair and shows no change. We quote; No. 1 veal, 8 lbs.

SHEEPSKINS — We quote: Lambskins and pelts, 55 to 60c.

WOOL — Prices are unexpectedly firming up, but there is no quotable alteration. Dealers are paying from 19 to 20c.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

Trade is only moderate. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14½c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

Wool is slightly firmer.

Currants are advancing.

The rice market abroad is firm.

Smoked meats have advanced again.

The new pack of salmon arrives in a week.

Tarragona almonds have advanced a shilling abroad.

Young Hysons are the latest arrival on the tea market.

Canners have withdrawn quotations on all canned vegetables.

D. Gunn, Brothers & Co. are making extensive changes in their office.

China green teas are opening up about 25 per cent. dearer this year. Blacks are about 40 per cent. short of last year's production.

Grenoble walnuts are this year quoted at ½c. a pound advance on last year's quotations.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Aug. 26, 1897.

GROCERIES.

BUSINESS in the grocery market has not been particularly active during the past week. Trading has been mostly confined to small lots for actual wants, and there is no general disposition manifested either by jobbers or retailers to operate for future wants just now despite the fact that values in many staple lines point to a higher level. Sugar remains much as it was, though refiners are asking a fraction more for round lots. Molasses continue very firm in tone. Rice, spices and coffee remain as last reported, while there has been rather more enquiry for low-grade teas, which continue very scarce. Canners' agents have in several instances withdrawn quotations on tomatoes, and there is a generally unsettled feeling regarding values on staple lines of these at present. But though values point higher buyers are not very urgent. They also exhibit the same disposition in regard to dried fruit, though offers made both on Valencia and California hint at an advance in the near future.

SUGAR.

There has been little change in the sugar market, business continuing quiet on the whole. Refiners are asking 1-16c. more for granulated and yellows, but there has been no change in jobbing prices, as the demand is not quite as brisk as it was, retailers having supplied their wants pretty well for the time being. Foreign advices on the raw material exhibit very little change, and we quote prices locally unchanged as follows: Granulated, 4⅛c. for 1 to 9 barrels and 4 1-16c. for 10 barrels and over, with yellows 3⅜ to 3¾c., as to grade.

SYRUPS.

Entirely without motion, and prices nominal at 1⅝ to 2c. as to grade.

MOLASSES.

Molasses is assuming a stronger position each week as stocks in first and second hands are being rapidly reduced. Values as a result are very firm, and no round lots of Barbadoes are now available under 23c., while Porto Rico is held firm at 25 to 26c. in round lots. In a jobbing way we quote choice Barbadoes 25c. and Porto Rico 26 to 28c.

RICE.

There has been no change in the rice market, which rules quiet and steady. We quote: Crystal Japan, $4.50 to $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $4.50 to $5; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

Trade is moderately brisk in spices and there is no change to report. We quote as follows: Black pepper, 9 to 10c.; pure white, 11 to 16c.; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

Business in coffee continues quiet and the market generally steady. We quote: Maracaibo, 16 to 19c.; Santos, 12 to 15c.; Rio, 12 to 16c.; Mocha, 24c., and Java, 25c.

TEAS.

There has been more enquiry for teas during the past eight days and buyers are exhibiting more disposition to operate, though the volume of business is still small. Enquiry is chiefly for low-grade Japan Pingsueys and blacks, the latter being very scarce. Advices from primary points on all descriptions also continue steady in their character. We quote: Young Hysons, 14 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15½ to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 17 to 20c. for mediums, and 35 to 65c. for higher grades.

CANNED GOODS.

Business in canned goods has been of decreased volume for the reason that canners' agents are withdrawing offers for forward delivery, having been instructed to do so. This applies especially to tomatoes and corn, in which it now seems pretty certain that the Ontario crops will be short. Prices are very firmly held in consequence and may go higher before the week is out. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80c.; corn, 60 to 80c.; peas, 80c.; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $1.75; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.40 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.35; "Lion," $1.37½ to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.30, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

Currants have not furnished anything special during the week. Advices regarding new crop continue of a conflicting character, and neither buyers nor sales agents of reliable brands appear in a hurry to operate ahead. Cable advices from Patras this week quoted market 6d. easier.

In Valencia raisins offers are on the basis of 14s. to 14s. 6d. for fine off-stalk, cost and freight Montreal. This is rather lower than last year, but it may be remarked that sellers will not contract ahead at these prices, but only for prompt shipment.

California raisins are very strong in tone on the Coast, and some shippers there have entirely withdrawn quotations. In one case we know where bids of 4c. f.o.b. Coast for 3-crown were turned down because the seller was not sure of the market for October shipment For 4-crown 5c. is asked and 2-crown, 3¼c. f.o.b. Coast.

There has been nothing new to report in regard to French or Austrian prunes this week, and as regards California no prices are obtainable as yet on the Coast.

Department of Aviculture

Did you know that for years there has been a Department of Aviculture in the Dominion, and that millions of bulletins have been gratuitously distributed from time to time, in which the subject of bird keeping has been set forth in a most attractive and persuasive manner; and that advice has been constantly given free of cost to all applicants? Such a department has, nevertheless, been in existence for years, working quietly, but so effectively, that to-day there are ten birds kept where one was a few years ago. The expense of this work has been defrayed entirely by Bart. Cottam & Co., and while "Cottams," from its pre-eminent and undisputed position as the best bird food, has naturally benefitted to a large extent, all handlers of bird food in any form owe more than they generally admit to the widespread educational work done by the packers of Cottams Seed. It pays to handle Cottams Seed.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

California evaporated peaches are offered at the equivalent of 10 to 10½c. laid down here in car lots, and a few contracts have been put through at this cost. Jobbing prices on them are not yet quotable.

NUTS.

There has been no change in nuts, business ruling quiet. We quote as follows: Grenoble walnuts, 11 to 12c.; do. shelled, 20c; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; pecans, 9 to 10c.; and cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100.

DRIED APPLES.

Evaporated apples continue firm at 4 to 5c., while dried are dull and nominal at 2 to 2½c.

GREEN FRUIT.

The green fruit market has been fairly active and prices generally are steady. We quote as follows: Valencia oranges, $6 per case; bloods, $2.50 to $3 per box; Messinas, do., $3 to $3.50; lemons, $3.50 to $4 per box for choice, and $2 to $3 for common; Naples lemons, $6 to $7 per chest; bananas, $1.25 to $1.65 per bunch; California peaches, $1 to $1.50, and pears, $2.75 to $3, and plums, $2 per box; pineapples, 10c. each; blueberries. $1.50 to $1.75 per box. Egyptian onions, 3c. per lb., and watermelons 20 to 25c. for choice and 15 to 20c. for common.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—The demand for eggs continues good, and the market rules active and ½c. higher. We quote: Selected near-by stock, 11 to 11½c.; ordinary No. 1, 9½ to 10c., and No. 2, 8½ to 9c. per dozen.

MAPLE PRODUCT—The market for maple products is dull and without change. We quote: Maple syrup, 4¾ to 5c. per lb., and 45 to 55c. per tin; sugar, 5c. per lb.

HONEY — There is no change in honey, sales being slow. White clover comb is offering at 10c., and dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c., and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

BEANS—The demand for beans is almost nil at 55 to 60c. in car lots, and at 65 to 70c. in a small way.

HOPS—Rule steady to firm at 7 to 8c. for 1896 crop.

TALLOW—Quiet and firm at 1½ to 2c. for rough, and 3½ to 4c. for rendered.

PROVISIONS.

The tone of the provision market is firm, and under a good demand for the season a fairly active trade is doing. We quote: Canadian pork, $15 to $15.50 per bbl.; pure

FLOUR AND MEAL.

The advancing tendency in flour noted last week continues and prices are firm at 25 to 75c. higher than they were a week ago, while demand continues active at the rise. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $5 to $5.25; straight rollers, $4.85 to $5, and in bags, $2.25 to $2.35; best Manitoba strong bakers', $5.50; second do., $5, and low grades, $3.15; Hungarian patents, $5.90.

There was no change in feed, business being quiet at steady prices. We quote: Manitoba bran at $12.50 to $13, and shorts at $13.50 to $14 per ton, including bags. Ontario bran, in bulk, is offering at $11 per ton.

The feature of the meal market was the decline in prices of 10c. per barrel in spite of the advance in oats. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.30 per barrel, $1.60 per bag; standard meal, $3.20 per barrel and $1.55 per bag.

BALED HAY.

A fair trade continues to be done in hay, and prices are unchanged at $11.50 to $12 for No. 1, and at $10 to $10.50 for No. 2 per ton in car lots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

The boom in cheese continues, high prices again being paid at country points to-day. On spot also 9½c. was freely made, and some holders refused that price, asking 9¾c. for finest western cheese. We quote: Finest Ontario cheese, 9¾ to 9⅞c.; finest Townships cheese, 9⅝ to 9¾c.; finest Quebec cheese, 9¼ to 9⅜c.; under grades, 8½c.

The activity in butter continues, and reports to-day indicated still higher prices, as very fancy figures were reported. In fact it is claimed that more than 19½ to 20c. has been paid for August creamery at country points and that one or two exporters are scooping in all the butter they can lay their hands on. Stocks of butter, it may be remarked also, are not heavy. We quote: Finest creamery, 19½ to 20c.; seconds, 18½c.; dairy butter, 12 to 12½c.

MONTREAL NOTES.

Jobbers have marked up the price of flour 25 to 50c. per bbl. on the prices ruling a week ago.

Finest grocery butter has been advanced 1½c. per lb. in this market and it now costs 20c. in car lots.

Brokers here report that they find it impossible to get a quotation on California prunes for forward shipment.

Canners' agents here in several instances have withdrawn their prices on tomatoes. Their principals state that the pack is going to be a severe disappointment this season.

Cables from Patras quote the currant market 6d. easier than it was a week ago, but no business is being transacted.

First quotations on California evaporated peaches were made this week and the fruit costs 10 to 10½c. in car lots laid down in Montreal.

Advices from the Coast on California raisins are very firm and shippers are refusing to accept ruling prices, demanding an advance.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 26, 1897.

MARKETS are still moving up, and the outlook, from the standpoint of the wholesale grocer, for a good fall business is particularly good. Dealers are not speculating to any great extent. Perhaps the reason is they have been disappointed so many times in the near past. Buying on the part of dealers has not been as free this week, as prices are moving up rather too quickly. Our market is not a large one, and only so many goods can be turned over where the profit is large enough to allow the paying of freight to outside points. This is a principal reason why our people do not buy more freely on an advancing market. Reports from the country are not as good as could be wished for in regard to money matters. The chief interest during the week has been in regard to flour, though canned goods, sugars, etc., have had considerable attention. A marked feature is the advance in evaporated apples, which are in light stock and not replaceable except at much higher prices.

OIL—In linseed oil the price is quoted rather higher. Turpentine, which has ruled low, is held firmer. In cod oil receipts here are rather larger and prices low, there being no American demand. The price there is too low to allow for the high duty now charged. In lubricating oil the demand is but fair. At best it is inclined to be a hand-to-mouth business. Burning oil, while there is no change in price and no particular firmness, is, owing to season, much improved in demand, and many orders for later shipment have been taken. We quote: Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.

SALT—There is but a fair demand and present stock is fully ample. A cargo from Liverpool is expected shortly. Landing prices should be rather easier. Of cheese salt the supply is very light, but other Canadian grades are in good supply. We quote: Coarse, 45 to 48c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 90c. to $1; Canadian fine, 90c. to $1 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS—There is still a good deal of interest in this line. Prices are moving upward; in fact, one large packer has withdrawn prices for the present. Stocks are not large, but there is enough for present needs. At present prices of corn the market is higher than at this time last season. In new goods, peas still have considerable enquiry. At present, the stock of tomatoes is very light, and full prices are asked. In corned beef we advance prices about 20c. In other lines there is little or no change, except in, perhaps, salmon, which tends easier. We quote as follows: Corn, 65 to 70c.; peas, 75 to 85c.; tomatoes, 80 to 90c.; gallon apples, $1.80 to $1.85; corned beef, Canadian, $2.40 to $2.50; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.60 to $2.70; 1-lb tins, $1.40 to $1.50; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.20; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.50 to $2.75; salmon, $1.25 to $1.40; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.15 to $1.25; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT— Business continues very active. Apples are now having more attention paid to them. New Brunswick apples, which are the first native fruit to come to this market, are being quite freely received. A few Nova Scotia apples have been here, but the quality is poor. The chief berry business is the shipping to the States of wild raspberries and blueberries, of which quite large quanties have gone forward. California fruit is in active demand. The peaches this week are particularly fine. In pears rather higher prices are asked. Plums have good sale. Grapes are freely received. Lemons show wide range in quality. We quote as follows: Lemons, $4.50 to $5.50; oranges, $4 to $4.50; bananas, $1.50 to $2; Bartlett pears, per bbl. $4 to $6; tomatoes, $2 per crate; cucumbers, 18c. per doz.; apples, $4 to $4.50 per bbl.; California peaches, $1.60 to $1.95; California plums, $1.75 to $2; California pears, $3.25 to $3.50; melons, 40 to 45c.; grapes, $2.50 to $3 per crate.

DRIED FRUIT—Valencias are daily expected. The stock will be light and the new variety will come on a bare market; so high prices will rule. Reports from Denia show an advance there. In California raisins shipments are earlier this year than last, but for September shipment prices are too high for this market. It is expected that October prices will rule lower. If these can be bought at fair prices they will affect the import of Valencias this season more than ever. In evaporated apples the supply is light and prices must go higher; new will rule high compared with the spring price. In peels, orange and lemon are offered at about last year's prices. Citron is rather higher. We quote as follows: Raisins, Valencias, old, 5¼ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c.; prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples, 5½ to 6c.; onions, 2¾ to 3c. per lb.; cocoanuts, $2.50 to $3.50 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Valencias, layers, old, 6 to 7c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.; new Valencias, about 7 to 7½c.; do. layers, 8 to 8½c.

There's a something that fascinates about that

"Most Excellent" COFFEE

It's a Pure, High-Grade Berry, at a popular price

SUGAR—This line is not having so much attention paid to it. The market, however, tends higher and improves from week to week as the stocks are getting worked off. We quote: Granulated, 4¼ to 4⅜c.; yellows, 3⅜ to 3¾c.; Paris lump, 5¼ to 5½c.; powdered, 5 to 5¼c.

MOLASSES—The market is stronger, though prices show little change. Barbadoes can still be bought low. There is a shortage of upward of 6,000 packages in the imports this year as compared with last in St. John and Halifax. All signs point to higher prices—certainly in regard to better grades. We quote: Barbadoes, 22 to 24c.; Porto Rico, 27 to 30c.; New Orleans, bbls., 25 to 27c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.

DAIRY PRODUCE—There has been an increased interest in cheese during the week. Merchants are on the lookout for little lots and are more inclined to meet holders' prices. No feature of the upward market means so much to these provinces in general as this. In butter the supply keeps large and the old cry of poor quality is heard. Prices are still low. Eggs are firmer, with receipts not large. Care needs to be taken in regard to quality. We quote: Dairy butter, 12 to 15c.; creamery, 17 to 18c.; prints, 18 to 20c.; cheese, 9 to 9½c.; eggs, 9½ to 10c.

FISH—In dry fish the feeling is rather easier, chiefly owing to the arrival of some bank fish from Yarmouth, which, while not equal in quality to our own, tend to ease the market. Shad have been a very poor catch, and in pickled the price is firmly held. Pickled herring, particularly the best qualities, are firm but dull. Smoked show no change. We quote as follows: Large cod, $3.25 to $3.50; medium, $3.15 to $3.25; pollock, $1.25 to $1.30; bay herring, $1.25 to $1.30 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 6 to 7c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50 to $5; boneless, 2½ to 8c.; Barrington, $3 per bbl.; Shelburne, $3.25 per bbl.; boneless, 3½ to 4c.; cod, 6 to 6½c.; shad, 12c. each.

PROVISIONS — The whole market is firmer. We mark barrelled meats up half a dollar. Hams, which did seem easier, have again advanced. While lard is still quoted low, prices are firm. We quote: Clear pork, $14.50 to $15; mess, $12.50 to $13; plate beef, $13 to $13 50; hams, 13 to 13½c.; rolls, 9½ to 10c.; pure lard, 6½ to 7c.; compound, 6¼ to 6½c.

FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL—The market in flour is excited. Prices have advanced quickly and much more than was expected. Outlook is firm. Some landing shows a profit since bought and it was shipped promptly. Dealers are backward about buying at present prices, they having bought quite freely during the advance. Beans are arousing more interest than for some time. Prices are higher and a further advance is looked for. Good stocks are still held. Cornmeal has also moved upward a little, though it is still low. Split and blue peas tend higher. Feed is given but little attention. We quote: Manitoba flour, $5.75 to $5.90; best Ontario, $5 to $5.10; medium, $4.75 to $4.85; oatmeal, $3.60 to $3.65; cornmeal, $2.10 to $2.15; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $15 to $16; bran, do, do, $13.50 to $14.50; hand-picked beans, $1 to $1.10; prime, 85 to 90c.; oats, 33 to 34c.; hay, $12.50 to $13; barley, $2.75 to $3; round peas, $1.15; split peas, $2.95 to $3.10; yellow eye beans, $1.50; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¾ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

Exports of canned lobsters continue. A late steamer took 13,000 cases from Halifax.

Bank of New Brunswick stock sold this week as high as 168½ per cent. premium.

New teas are arriving quite freely. Upward of 4,000 packages arrived one day during the past week.

Mr. Frank O. Allison has been appointed secretary of the St. John Board of Trade in the place of the late Mr. Ira Cornwall.

Messrs. C. & E. Macmichael and Thos. Gorman received this week shipments of Sutton's Worcestershire sauce. No better value has ever been offered here.

The Sussex Dairying Co. are shipping large quantities of cheese. Within the past two weeks three carloads have been forwarded to the English market.

Quite large quantities of flour are being received by water, some 1,700 barrels arriving by schooner via Boston, and over 2,000 barrels by the steamer from Montreal. Besides flour, the steamer Tiber brought two cars canned goods and a lot of general cargo.

The Quoddy Fish Co., of White Head, Grand Manan, intend to store in their cold-storage warehouse from a million to a million-and-a-half herring during the fall. This will ensure an ample supply of bait during the winter and spring.

The particular attention of the collectors of Customs has been drawn by the Department to the fact that no lobsters can be exported without the Government label being attached to the cases. Any without are liable to be seized and the owner fined forty dollars.

The grocers' picnic proved a great success. In matter of arrangement it was much ahead of the first one, which was held last year. The retail grocers were very largely represented, they closing their stores for a half day. The wholesale grocers in most cases closed up for the full day.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, Aug. 25, 1897.

TRADE is very brisk in almost all lines, and stocks have been so closely cleaned up in some lines that there is a shortage. The brightening of trade is due to a variety of causes. The harvest is now well on with every indication that it will be a large one, harvested in first-class condition; the Crow's Nest Pass Railway construction is being pushed forward rapidly and this has created a great demand for supplies; and parties are going to the Klondyke by the Edmonton route, and considerable quantities of goods are being shipped up to that point; so that altogether there is a good deal of business going. Prices are higher in a number of lines, with indications of still further advances.

BUTTER—In dairy there is not much movement. The market is nominal; 10 and 11c. are being paid for round lots of dairy, but all purchases are going into storage. In creamery the market has made a further advance. Buyers are making purchases at from 15 to 16½c. f.o.b. at factories, and 17c. is known to have been paid for some choice lots, where the balance of the season's make is bargained for.

CHEESE—This product has also advanced a little, the price now being 7 and 7¼c. for choice new made. The indications are that the market will be short in this line. The very low price in the early part of the season no doubt accounts for this.

EGGS—This product is bringing 12 to 12½c. per dozen, and selling from 14 to 14½c. after candling. The supply is not equal to the demand.

FRESH FRUIT—This market is lively and is well supplied. Prices are fair. Peaches are arriving more freely and bring from $1.25 to $1.50 for the 20-lb. crate of California Freestones. In plums the Washington and Oregon stocks are arriving in excellent condition, and are ruling at $1.25 to $1.50 per crate of 20 lbs. Very fine pears are now on the market. These generally arrive in 40-lb. crates, and sell at from $1.50 to $2 per crate. Oranges, late Valencias, are quite scarce. The price is $6 to $6.50 per crate. California lemons, very choice stock, bring $5.50 to $6. The first Tokay and Muscat grapes are now in and are selling at $4 per crate of 20 lbs. South Ives bring 55c. for the 8-lb. basket. The South Concords are in transit and will arrive here next week. The market is very bare of tomatoes, but a fresh supply will probably arrive in the early part of the week. The price is $1.50 per 25-lb. crate. Bananas have been scarce for a few days, but a shipment will arrive next week. The price is higher, $2.25 to $3 per bunch, according to size and quality, being asked. Blueberries are very scarce; not half enough will be received to fill orders. The price is correspondingly high, being from 8 to 10c. per lb.

APPLES—Are arriving in large quantities, and the quality is exceptionally good. Prices range from $3.25 to $4.25 per bbl., according to variety.

CURED MEATS—This market has again stiffened and advanced, and it looks as if next week might see a still further increase of price. Shoulders are particularly hard to obtain. Some large shipments of these products are being brought in from the American markets. Prices rule ½c. higher all round and now stand: Hams, assorted, 12 to 12½c. per lb.; bellies, 12 to 12½c.; do, backs, 10 to 10½c.; short spiced rolls, 8 to 8½c.; shoulders, 7 to 7½c.; smoked, long clear, 8½ to 9c.; fancy clear, 9 to 9½c.; canvassed meats, ½c. advance.

CANNED GOODS—Tomatoes are extremely firm, prices from the east being stiff at 80c. per doz., and until the new pack comes in, which is being quoted at 65 to 70c., there is no likelihood of the price being any less, in fact it will in all probability touch $2.50 per case. At present the prices are $2.30 to $2.35. Corn commands a good figure. A good deal of the pack is of indifferent quality, still good prices are being obtained. We quote $1.60 per case. Peas do not appear to be a heavy pack, and the indications point to good prices being maintained, although it is difficult in this market to get accurate and reliable information as to the actual amount of the pack. Present prices are $1.75 to $1.85. In peaches and pears and plums the market is unsteady. The new pack of beans, stringless and wax, will arrive this week, and the price will be about $1.60.

EVAPORATED FRUITS—In all lines show a sharp advance from the Coast. Apricots and peaches are 1c. higher; plums and prunes are not yet quoted, but from present indications supply will be fully up to the demand.

DRIED FRUITS—Currants are now selling at 18s. 4d. f.o.b. New York or Montreal. This is slightly higher than the quotations at which the market opened last year. The market is almost bare of this article and higher prices have been, and will be, paid until the new pack comes in.

RAISINS—New Valencia will arrive here earlier this season than ever before. A few shipments are expected within the next two weeks; the price will run about $1.85 per box.

TOBACCOS — Fours are selling almost altogether now, though a small stock of 3's remains, and dealers are trying to get rid of it. Enough of Macdonald's "Prince of Wales" has arrived to meet the demands of the market.

SUGAR—Prices are unchanged and market about the same. Advices have reached here, however, that the Vancouver refineries are now quoting for delivery east of Regina and this may make some slight change. We quote: Granulated, 4 to 4¾c.; yellows, 4 to 4⅜c.

CEREALS — This product has advanced sharply. This, no doubt, is due to the rumored shortage of the oat crop. We quote: Rolled oats, $1.60 to $1.75; granulated, $1.85 to $2.05; standard, ditto.; pot barley, $1.75; pearl barley, $3.50; cornmeal, $1.40.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

This department has become so popular that many more notices than there is space for are received every week. In future only important items of information will be inserted. Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

W. H. GILLARD & CO. have in stock some exceptional values in Japan teas to retail at 25c. The market in Japans is rapidly stiffening, and teas of this description are short crop and hard to get.

Burnham's Hasty Jellycon is selling rapidly with the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, report good demand for Buffalo corn starch.

Pure codfish in 1-lb. blocks are in stock with T. Kinnear & Co.

New codfish and scaled herring are in stock with the Davidson & Hay, Limited.

T. Kinnear & Co. have boneless fish, quail-on-toast and scale herrings now in stock.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, are showing good values in Nagasaki, Japan, teas.

T. Kinnear & Co. say that they will have new pack of "Horseshoe" salmon in stock in a few days.

A shipment of "La Vierge" and "Grapes" castile soap arrived this week for the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. report that butter rules about 1c. lower this week, and eggs about 1c. higher.

"New Valencia raisins are having a large sale with us," so said one of the firm of the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

Rogers' and Trenor's raisins, which Lucas, Steele & Bristol made delivery of last week, have proven very satisfactory.

Jams, jellies and marmalade have kept selling in greater quantities than usual during the summer season. So say T. A. Lytle & Co.

The counter spice bottles which Lucas, Steele & Bristol are giving away are very attractive and much appreciated by their friends.

D. Gunn, Bros. & Co. report that their shipments of long clear bacon, barrel pork and lard have been larger than for years past.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, are receiving this week a large consignment of Congou teas, which they offer at very low figures.

Chas. Southwell & Co., London, England, write their agents, Frank Magor & Co., Montreal: "There has already been an advance in strawberry and raspberry jam, owing to scarcity of fruit, and prices have advanced. We are holding a reserve stock for export and hope our friends will order without delay."

"We are keeping the wires busy with car orders for 'Windsor' salt, for which we make special delivery arrangements," say the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, are in receipt of a large number of orders for starch as the result of the drive advertised by them in last week's GROCER.

A large shipment of molasses in barrels and half-barrels has just been received by W. H. Gillard & Co. Being purchased at a low figure they are enabled to sell at a bargain price.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, report big sales of Batger's drained lemon peel in casks. They claim that this is the most economical peel on the market, as there is no loss on account of excessive sugar.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have some good Valencia raisins which are being sold at a snap price, as their stock is too heavy. The retailer requiring Valencias will do well to communicate with this firm.

"A gratifying proof to us of the estimation in which 'Kolona' Ceylon tea is held by the trade is the number of complimentary references accompanying re-orders which reach us unsolicited," say the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

A shipment of new season's Southwell's strawberry, raspberry, greengage and apricot jams, just in per ss. Ormiston from London for Frank Magor & Co., Montreal, the Canadian agents. The reports from England say that all fruits for jam were scarce this season, especially strawberry and raspberry.

OPENED WITH PRAYER.

At the dinner recently given by the Authors' Club to the poet, Richard Henry Stoddard, ex-Judge Henry E. Howland, president of the Century Club, who spoke for that club, set the diners howling by telling this story at Mr. Stoddard's expense:

"Stoddard," said Judge Howland, "was opening a can of tomatoes one night. Sounds that came from the kitchen convinced Mrs. Stoddard that her husband was not accomplishing his task without a struggle. Finally she called to him:

"'What are you doing, dear?'

"'Opening this can of tomatoes,' came the rather gruff answer.

"'What are you opening it with?'

"'With a knife. Did you think I was using my teeth?'

"'Not at all, dear,' came the answer. 'I thought from your language you were opening it with prayer.'"

RETAIL ADVERTISING.

IT IS due to the enterprise of the advertising packer and the retail grocer, more especially that of the grocer, that the mass of the population of this country is not still feeding upon cornmeal, salt pork, dried codfish, molasses and a few other staples, as they were feeding several generations ago in many parts. How long would it have taken if the course of events had been governed by the average grocer, whose ads., if he advertises at all, merely enumerate in stereotyped terms certain staples which everybody knows that he keeps in stock? Or how long if some of the more enterprising dealers had been given the helm—those dealers who advertise with more judgment and use the bait of modern prices, but who also fight shy of the novelties? Such dealers as advertise a list like that which follows, and which is clipped from a bona fide ad.:

Coal oil, per gallon	8c.
Three-pound bucket lard	20c.
Coffee, per pound	12c.
Corn starch, per pound	4c.
Buttermilk soap, three boxes	5c.
Granulated sugar, per pound	5c.
Cornmeal, per pound	1c.
Rival condensed milk, two cans	15c.
Oatmeal, two-pound package	6c.
Mustard sardines	6c.
Hires' root beer	15c.
Best broom in town	8c.
Pure pepper, per pound	15c.
Cincinnati Oleine soap	4c.
Lenox soap (3 bars)	10c.
Good corn, per can	5c.
Still have some fine tea, a pound	20c.
Soapine, only	3½c.
Sugar-cured shoulders, per pound	8c.
Rumford's yeast powder (large size)	10c.

We have seen much worse selections than the foregoing—on the other hand, we have seen much better ones, selections which do not include sugar, coal oil, cornmeal and soap, but which appeal with more force to the public for the simple reason that these staples are missing.

The mention of mustard sardines shows a regard for the proprieties, that is to say, the article is seasonable and so is the root beer, and smoked shoulders, too, perhaps, and the tea and coffee, but why waste time and paper and ink on sugar, soap and cornmeal, when olives, olive oil, salad dressing, jams, pates de foie gras, potted meats, etc., are in season.

The public don't use them in our vicinity, we hear the grocer say. Of course not, the average consumer never will use them if you don't give him a chance to read about them and see the labels and packages.

Keep harping on sugar, soap and cornmeal in your ads., and you will always have a sugar, soap and cornmeal patronage, and you know that sugar, soap and cornmeal do

LITTLE THINGS.

In business it is the little things that count. The loss of a small discount on a bill is in itself a little thing, but the sums total of these little losses reach large sums.

The giving of a fraction overweight is a small loss in itself, but the daily transactions of the store are numerous and the little overweight soon makes a big loss.

The loss of a single customer is, perhaps, viewed as a single loss, unimportant, but the influence of the lost customer exerted against the store will cause the loss of other customers.

The failure to deliver an order at the time specified is a little thing, but the customer's plans may have been upset by the delay, and a seed of dissatisfaction sown that may result in the loss of a customer.

The failure to fill an order correctly or the omission of a single article may be a little thing, but the unused article may have been the most needed and an angry customer is the result.

Little losses and little errors should be avoided —Grocers' Review.

THE COFFEE SITUATION.

IT perhaps has been fortunate for the warning coffee roasters that the Brazilian supply of the berry has been very large of late and the price of the article very low, but it has also been unfortunate for the grocers. It has been easy to cut the price of roasted package coffee when the price of the green article has been steadily sinking, but the fall of the values of East India kinds and the better grades of South and Central America having been much less than the decline in Brazils, has helped to give the proprietary brands a wider sale and restricted the output of the private blends of the retail and wholesale grocers. A year ago the price of No. 7 Rio was almost double what it is to-day, but Java coffee has hardly changed a fraction. Consider what this means in view of the fact that the brands of the "cutting" roasters are largely composed of coffee of about the grade of No. 7 Rio.

This advantage of the big roasters comes at a time when it is desirable that retail grocers push their own blends of coffee in self-defence, yet it will not do for them to attempt to take advantage of the low prices of Brazil grades, as the big roasters have done, because no permanent family trade of much value can be built that way, for it is plain that no retail grocer can compete with big corporations. The only hope of the latter is to offer a better article than the established proprietary brands. This is what many of them have done, but their task is rendered harder by the big discrepancy between the values of Javas and Brazils.—Merchants' Review.

NO PRIZES WITH TOBACCO.

The New Tariff Act of the United States, as applied to tobacco, cigars and cigarettes, makes a new definition of cigars and cigarettes. The latter, which have been called "all tobacco cigarettes," are now designated as cigars. The tax on cigarettes weighing not more than three pounds per 1,000 is double the old rate. Manufacturers will not be allowed to remove from the factory cigarettes which are not properly stamped under the new law. The new law says :

None of the packages of smoking tobacco and fine cut chewing tobacco and cigarettes prescribed by law shall be permitted to have packed in, or attached to, or connected with them, any article or thing whatsoever, other than the manufacturers' wrappers and labels, the internal revenue stamp and the tobacco or cigarettes, respectively, put up therein, on which tax is required to be paid under the internal revenue laws ; nor shall there be affixed to, or branded, stamped, marked, written, or printed upon, said packages, or their contents, any promise or offer of, or any order or certificate for, any gift, prize, premium, payment, or reward.

The Department gives warning that they will seize tobacco or cigars found on the market contrary to the provisions of this clause.

OTHERS ARE HAVING TROUBLE.

It will be seen by the following from The Retail Grocers' Advocate, that unpleasant results are following the introduction of schemes in other cities besides Toronto :

"The fight between the Brooklyn grocers and the trading stamp concern has already begun and one grocer has been sued for damages. The wording of the contract will have a good deal to do with the outcome. If the contract is too tight, the only defence will be that unlawful methods, such as misrepresentations, were used in getting the signatures, and, if that fails, that amount of damages may be disputed. It will be difficult enough to find out the proper damages and the real amount will be very small ; in fact, it will be in proportion to the loss of profits sustained by the trading stamp concern from not giving out the stamps, and the grocer's books would show what amount of stamps he might have given out with his sales. On the other hand, cannot the grocer, in some cases, prove damages sustained by the use of the system, and if the contract was the result of misrepresentation would not the grocer be entitled to the damages sustained ?

"A contract containing the clause that verbal agreements shall not be recognized, may hold good against verbal misrepresentation, but if the contract was the result of verbal misrepresentation, which can be proven by witnesses, would not the grocer be entitled to damages for any loss arising from entering into such a contract ?

"Vinegar which one gets for nothing is sweeter than honey."—Nothing in a trade way pleases a woman more than to think that she is getting a bargain—something desirable at less than its full value.

From $15 to $375.

The idea is prevalent that we do not sell low-priced cash registers. On the contrary, our line embraces registers as low as $15, ranging from that figure up to $375.

We study the needs of each individual purchaser and recommend that register which will best suit his business, whether it be the $15 or the $375 register.

No. 17 Register—Price $15.

Registers amounts up to $1,000.

No. 99 National Cash Register—Price $375.

Our new total-adding, check and detail-strip printing registers will now:

1. Register and indicate, at one operation, any amount from 1 cent to $999.99.
2. Add into one total all the sales made during the day.
3. Automatically issue at the same time a paper check, on which is printed the date, consecutive number of the sale, amount of the sale, initial of the clerk who made it, and the proprietor's business card. On the back of the checks the register prints any advertisement desired.
4. Tell how many sales have been made each day.
5. Tell what time your store was opened in the morning.

ARTHUR P. TIPPET & CO., MONTREAL

ST. JOHN GROCERS' PICNIC.

THE grocers had a gala day at Watters' Landing on Aug. 17. Last year under most auspicious circumstances they inaugurated their outing, and on that day the anniversary of that most pleasant event they duplicated. Early in the morning the weather was not of the most inviting kind for a day in the country, and consequently it was not until the afternoon that the big crowd went to the scene of the festivities. The steamer Aberdeen was crowded and the Hampstead was called to carry the goodly number who could not board the regular steamer. The David Weston, after her arrival from Fredericton, took a good crowd up to the picnic grounds, and between the two steamers the return was made in good time.

At the grounds everything was well arranged and well looked after. The weather was all that could be asked for and the sports provided well contested.

The ladies' archery was won by Mrs. Davis, with Mrs. W. S. Power second. Gents' archery, S. M. Sewell, 1st; S. McCormick, 2nd. Air gun, O. E. Hughes, 1st; James Galey, 2nd. 100 yards dash (12 entries), J. O'Neill, 1st; Fred Shannon, 2nd. 220 yards dash, J. O'Neill, 1st; J. Sullivan, 2nd. Three-legged race, O'Neill and Shannon, 1st; Irvine and Rutter, 2nd. Fat man's race, D. Speight, 1st; D. Connolly, 2nd. Sack race, Fred Shannon, 1st; J. O'Neill, 2nd. Excelsior game, J. Galey, 1st; Sandy Martin, 2nd. Putting shot, W. S. Potts, 1st; C. H. Elliott, 2nd.

The baseball match between the Roses and St. Johns was the star attraction of the day, and was witnessed by nearly everybody present, and was an excellent game, considering the grounds. The score by innings was as follows:

Roses	1	0	2	0	0	2	—	5
St. Johns	0	1	1	0	1	1	—	4

JAPAN TEAS.

Lucas, Steele and Bristol are believers in high-priced Japan tea this year, and this is their reason: The first crop of Japan tea was of fairly good quality, but, owing to duty agitation, prices advanced very much. Later on, when the market eased off a little, growers became careless and did not give the amount of attention to the second crop they should have given. Prices for the low grades are thus abnormally high. The balance of the crop to be picked in Japan this month will be considerably less than was anticipated, as high cost labor makes tea-growing unprofitable. Orders for desirable teas for this country cannot be duplicated either in same quality or in same price.

CANADA'S GREAT FAIR.

As the time approaches for the opening of the Victorian-Era Exposition and Industrial Fair at Toronto next week, interest in its success throughout the country increases and it is safe to say that the attendance will be greater than ever. The great Diamond Jubilee Procession, and the numerous other incidents connected therewith, will prove a great attraction. All the paintings, uniforms, costumes and state paraphernalia have arrived from England, and every preparation has been made even to the cream-colored horses which are to draw Her Majesty's carriage. Such a grand spectacle and opportunity to see the soldiers of the British Empire has never before been placed before the people of Canada, and should not be missed. Cheap excursions will be run the first week as well as the second, and everything will be complete both weeks of the Fair.

When Visiting CANADA'S GREAT FAIR during the next two weeks

don't Forget to ask for a cup of delicious CEYLON and INDIA Tea.

Every Tea Booth of any importance will demonstrate the superiority of Ceylon and Indian Teas over all other teas in the world.

FOR SELLING KNOX'S GELATINE.

The grocers or grocers' clerks who intend sending in the coupons or labels in the contest in connection with Knox's gelatine should attend to the matter at once. There are to be 301 cameras and 5 high-grade grocers' wagons given away to those who push this gelatine. Besides this inducement the manufacturers are willing to refund all money paid for unsatisfactory gelatine of their manufacture. In the last contest nearly all the contestants were prize-winners. It's no humbug. Enquire from C. B. Knox, Johnstown, N. Y. Contest closes June 1, 1898.

CANADIAN CHEESE IN ENGLAND.

THIS paragraph from The Grocers' Journal under the title "The Branding of Cheese" shows why our cheese trade with Britain is increasing so rapidly.

One of our daily contemporaries remarks that while considering the claims of meat to be marked, the House of Commons Committee have not forgotten cheese, which ought to be marked in order to demonstrate the superiority of the home product and save the immense profits now going into the pocket of the retailer. This is of a piece with all the information on trade subjects which the ill-informed daily press occasionally inflicts on its unfortunate readers. It may be true that many besides the consumer would like to see all produce marked ; but the assumption that great profits are made by retailers through selling as English cheese made in the colonies and abroad is entirely unwarranted by the facts, and indeed is quite contrary to the truth. The trade here, both wholesale and retail, are not unfavorable to the marking of whole cheeses or of whole sides of bacon. What they object to is the idiotic demand that every chunk of cheese and rasher of bacon should bear a certificate of origin. As a matter of fact, most foreign and colonial cheese does bear a brand, either on the box or on the cheese itself, and the trade here have been active in an endeavor to get senders to brand their produce on the cheese itself. As Canada is the chief country sending this necessity to us, Canada it must be which is chiefly aimed at in the endeavor to get branding, and she must be meant when allusions are made to "foreign" cheese being sold as English. Nothing could be more contrary to fact, or against the evidence which anyone's eyes can daily afford them, if they care to open them in a market thoroughfare. As to the substitution for English, Canadian has got such a name amongst both trade and public that the former have found a genuine demand for it from the latter, and while none would attempt to substitute, many announce the fact that they sell Canadian cheese, and ticket it so, and it is a fact that once a customer has bought Canadian cheese by name he comes back for that particular cheese again. The truth is there is no real call in any quarter for the marking about which we hear so much. A little party can make a great noise. And in the event of that little party —as so often happens—gaining their way, would those whose interests they profess to desire to serve be benefited ? Probably they would reap no benefit at all. On the contrary, loss would most likely be their portion. Australian butter proves this. With no Act to enforce it, grocers sold Australian by name. Consumers bought it because it was cheap. They found it was good and bought again, and so the great Australasian trade was built up. It would be the same with cheese. Indeed, it promises to be the case ere long without any special way.

A WINNIPEG OUTING.

Winnipeg can justly claim to be the banner city of the Dominion in regard to successfully managing and attending picnics. Last Thursday the caterers of that city held their annual picnic this year at Portage la Prairie. The four trains that left Winnipeg that day carried 3,500 people to the ideal picnic town. Needless to say it was the largest excursion that ever left the city.

It was an ideal trip in an ideal season, the principal feature being the sight of the broad fields of grain which are being rapidly garnered. Nature seemed to have assumed her most gracious aspect for the occasion.

It is reported that the caterers of the Portage managed to feed the thousands of excursionists, but how they did so is a mystery. They deserve credit for their accomplishment.

In the afternoon Island Park was the sporting ground. Here the people were entertained, not only by the various athletic and speeding contests, but music was supplied by several bands, and dancing was also indulged in.

The principal sport of the afternoon was the lacrosse match between the two city clubs, Winnipegs and Victorias, and, after an extended struggle, was won by the former by 4 goals to 3.

The committee who made this the most successful picnic yet held by the caterers was : B. H. Holman, president ; H. G. Spurgeon, vice-president ; E. Tugwell, secretary ; K. J. Johnston, treasurer ; and J. W. Horne, marshall. They were all the right men for the several positions.

THOSE STORES VS. SCHEMES.

An ingenious Chicago salesman, says The Grocery World, has suggested that the best way to deal with department stores would be to have local ordinances passed prohibiting the transaction of retail business above the ground floor. The ostensible reason for this regulation would be the protection of life from accidents such as would occur in case of a fire in one of these many-floored warehouses while crowded with clerks and purchasers ; but incidentally it is anticipated that on account of the high value of ground rents in central positions the retail business would naturally spread itself over a much-increased area and the combination now found in these central establishments would then be no longer possible.

PRINCIPLES IN FINANCE—MONEY.

Henry Douglas Parmelee, in Business.

IN attempting to give in a narrow scope an adequate idea of the essence, forms, functions, laws, and different theories in regard to money, one is faced with many difficulties. The different theories in regard to what really constitutes money, and what laws should regulate the world's circulations, make it impossible to confine the subject to a short article and give a thorough presentation.

It is not intended to attempt anything beyond a mere statement of fundamental principles. There is much literature upon the subject, and many works which give very fully the history and laws of money. It will only be necessary in this article to suggest lines of thought to the reader and encourage a desire upon his part to further investigation. If the article serves its purpose in inspiring such investigation, the writer will consider that his object has been fully accomplished.

THE ESSENCE OF MONEY.

We saw, as the commerce of the world began to increase and extend, that the use of a basis for obligations in commercial transactions became necessary. In order to bring producers and consumers together there was need of an agent, and the agent used was called "money." In barter it was very difficult to do away with the double coincidence of wants and possessions, and in order to facilitate transactions a medium of exchange was necessary.

In defining money, economists have expressed widely different views. All fallacies in relation to monetary systems and currency schemes have risen from an inadequate understanding of the real essence of money. The definition which the writer wishes to quote, and one which he believes will clear up many discussions, is the following: "Money is best defined as a thing which, by common consent of the business community, is used as a basis of commercial obligations."

The value of money depends upon the number of other commodities which can be bought by a unit of money. This may be best illustrated by saying that when prices are exceedingly high, it takes a larger number of units to purchase commodities, and the purchasing power of money is said to be low. When prices are exceedingly low, more things can be purchased by the same unit of money, and hence we say the purchasing power of money is high. As value in almost all things is determined, so the value of money is determined by its supply and its demand. The different schemes for determining the general price level ought really to be taken up here, but it will be impossible to deal with them in the space to which this article is confined.

DIFFERENT FORMS OF MONEY.

We know that at a certain period in the history of the world, wood, iron, and lead were used as media of exchange. They had a value then just as gold and silver have to-day. To depart from the older forms of money and adopt those which more fully accomplish the work has always been the tendency demanded by the increasing interests of the world.

In our own country tobacco, wampum, nails, and skins were used as money, but all these things have given way to the larger needs of advancing civilization.

Jevons enumerates the necessary qualifications of a medium of exchange as being: Indestructibility, homogeneity, stability of value, cognizability, portability, divisibility, utility, and value.

METALS.

Gold and silver have been chosen alone for their higher intrinsic value, and gold to-day is the real measure of value and standard of deferred payments.

It is necessary to distinguish what rightly constitutes money. Many believe, and among them a well-known economist, that "whatever does the money work is the money thing." This view is rejected by the majority, however. Money is a commodity, and as such it is governed by the same laws as other commodities, and in like manner its value is determined by supply and demand. It is not always the quantity of money in circulation that determines its value, but the surplus over and above what is actually needed for the transaction of business. A careful distinction should be made between "money" and "currency." Media of exchange have two classifications, the commodity, money, and its representative, currency, always based upon the commodity for its value. The distinction between the commodity and its representatives, which are always certificates of that money being held in deposit, is often lost sight of, and the result is that many misapprehensions arise.

The immense amount of transactions which are carried on yearly by the nations of the world without money being transferred in any way, is simply enormous. Those transactions, amounting to millions of dollars, are often settled by the payment of a small balance. The fact that this balance is always paid in gold is the strongest proof of the universality of that metal as the standard of value.

No government nor group of people can give value to currency, and here are meant promises to pay money. It is possible for a government to decree that certain media of exchange be used as money, and to that end we have created legal tenders, but outside of the domains of the Government these legal tenders may be of no value, unless those to whom they are offered place reliance and faith in the integrity, honesty, and ability of the Government which issues them, to accept them as equivalent to money.

The old expression, "a thing and a pro-

All live grocers sell it. Do you?

KURMA

Ceylon Tea

The Finest Package Tea in Canada.

THE DAVIDSON & HAY, LIMITED Wholesale Agents Toronto

mise to pay a thing," really defines the difference between money and currency. Government notes, treasury certificates, bank notes, bills of exchange and cheques are all forms of currency, but their value rests wholly upon credit, and they are called "credit instruments." Because they do "the money work" is not a sufficient reason why they should be called the "money thing."

All money is currency, but all currency is by no means money. The complex currency system of our country containing, as it does, different forms of media of exchange, has given rise to great apprehension upon the part of the business men of the nation. It is made up of many forms of promises to pay. Stable business conditions cannot be expected until the system is simplified. No laws nor enactments can increase the credit of our country, which is now as good as any in the world, but they can take away the liability of periodic disturbances caused mainly by apprehensions in regard to the Government's ability to redeem its pledges.

MONEY OF ACCOUNT.

Many transactions are settled by what is known as "money of account." This simply means that commodities are used in settlements which are not universally used as money. Long-time contracts are very often made payable in the cereals, because it is maintained that the value of the cereals from century to century fluctuates very little. It is almost impossible to have a universal famine. Pestilences which destroy the cereals are not world wide, and for that reason the quantity of grain produced in the world varies but little from year to year. The suggestion that long-time contracts can be made to advantage to the contracting parties provided the settlement of such contracts was made in grain, is a good one. There are, however, more chances of temporary fluctuations in grain than in gold, so that much trouble might arise owing to the fluctuations.

Stability of value, in the long run, is found to lie in wheat to a greater extent than in gold. The world's production of the latter very often fluctuates owing to the discovery of large deposits.

In the international settlements gold bullion is often used instead of coin. This is done to prevent melting coin, especially if its bullion value is a trifle higher in one country than in another.

THE NATURAL LAW OF MONEY.

Sir Thomas Gresham (1519-1579) noticed that the circulation of England contained large volumes of chipped and abraded coins and that the new products of the mints were fast disappearing from circulation. He accounted for this in such a way as to have had his observation become a law. Gresham's Law, briefly stated, is that "bad money always drives out good money." As soon as currencies become debased through abrasion or wilful demolition of coins, the bullion value is very much reduced, and the currency immediately depreciates. The crime of abrading coins is very severely punished whenever detected, and governments throughout the world have taken every precaution to prevent the practice. The milled edges and raised surfaces of well-made coins prevent their being debased to a great extent.

CURRENCY.

In order to facilitate exchange and as a matter of convenience in the settlement of large balances, credit instruments play a most important part. Most forms of credit instruments take their value from their redeemable qualities in coin, and this is usually understood to mean gold. It has been demonstrated very often during the past four years that the least suspicion or distrust in regard to the ability of our Government to keep its promises and redeem its pledges created disastrous disturbances in the business community. A great deal has been said about patriotism, and about true Americans trusting in the integrity of the Government's promise, but at the same time, sentiment does not seem to rule very strongly when the depletion of the treasury reserve excites fears little short of panics. None but the ignorant conceive intrinsic value in a promise to pay: the value of such promises lies solely in the amount of confidence which one places in the promiser.

FORMS OF CREDIT INSTRUMENTS.

There are five forms of credit instruments in use in United States' currency. They are, the Notes, commonly called "greenbacks," Gold Certificates, Silver Certificates, and Treasury Notes.

The fifth form of currency used is the national bank note. The national banks of the country, under an Act of 1863, were allowed to issue their own notes up to 90 per cent. of the face value of Government bonds, which were bought by it and deposited with the Government as a trust and a firm basis of the circulating notes. These bonds were issued in order to raise money to carry on the war. The Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Chase, conceived the plan of creating a market for the United States bonds in the form of the national banks. The history of the national banks of the United States is very interesting.

The laws at the present time are not favorable to an increase of national bank circulation. There are those who believe that the Government should be taken out of the banking business and should no longer issue its own notes to be used for circulation. The argument is based mainly upon the so-called "endless chain" in reference to the continuous redemption of the United States notes. Those who believe that the Government should be taken out of the banking business are the advocates of a circulation created by the national banks. They desire to accomplish their ends by having more advantageous laws passed, and they promise a more elastic currency, or in other words, a currency which will expand to local needs more rapidly than our present currency.

of the "greenbacks" say that no individual or private institution could supply the demand for gold in times of stringency as well as the Government, and they point to the crisis of 1893, when the banks refused to pay out gold. There are many arguments upon both sides, and opinion at the present time seems to be pretty evenly divided.

It is not essential to go into detailed discussions in reference to the gold standard on the one hand and free silver coinage on the other. The subject is receiving daily attention by the best financial journals in the country.

It is upon such subjects as these that the future of our currency depends. Their careful study is necessary in order to minimize the periodic disturbances which have caused great distress in our country. It is needless to refer to the efforts of the present administration toward currency reform. What can be said is little, to be sure, but that public opinion is loudly demanding reform of our cumbersome system is without question.

In 1867 the International Monetary Conference, which was held at Paris, decided almost unanimously to adopt an international coinage such as would be sufficient to transact international business and pass as legal tender in all countries. In seeking a basis for ulterior negotiations, the members of the conference chose the 5-franc gold piece as a common denominator and favored the coinage of a 25-franc gold piece for larger transactions. The proposal was to be put before the different governments represented and the power of reconvening was left with France. Owing to the fall of the Second Empire, the matter was never taken up again. If the efforts which are now being uselessly expended in trying to bring about international agreements, which recent developments have rendered ridiculous, would only be put in an attempt to bring about what the conference of 1867 formulated, the objects now being sought would be put aside as entirely unworthy further serious consideration.

In attempting to give a few of the fundamentals in regard to money and currency, the writer must apologize for falling far short of what he really would wish to accomplish.

BIBLIOGRAPHY.

Much has been written upon the subject of money, both of a controversial and a scientific character. The works of to-day are apt to be written to excite rather than to enlighten the masses upon the complex subject. An unprejudiced opinion is what should be sought for, and this is to be found in very few works.

CALIFORNIA CURED FRUITS.

THE California Fruit Grower reviews the situation in cured fruits on the Coast on August 21 as follows: "Market active and prices firm. Some lines show an advance in prices over last week. Cured peaches are higher and in good demand owing to the expected shortage of peaches for curing. The crop of peaches will fall far below early estimates, and the extra good demand and prices in the Eastern States for fresh California peaches have induced heavy shipments. This will naturally reduce the output of cured peaches. In addition to these natural conditions several early short sellers have been on the market buying to cover their short sales, hence the activity and excitement in the peach market. Apricots are more or less neglected, but prices are steady for good stock. Pitted plums are being offered quite freely, but buyers are not anxious. Pears are coming in and samples are being shown, but prices have not been established. Apples are not plentiful yet, and prices continue firm. The output of Vina Chinese peaches is placed at 45 to 50 cars, when with a full crop there should be upwards of a hundred cars. The eastern trade that is looking for choice peaches to retail at 10c. per pound will be disappointed this season. Spot stocks are so light that trade is entirely confined to local wants: hence we have decided to discontinue the publication of quotations on old fruits and have substituted our new revised price list, which will be completed as fast as new goods come to hand and prices are made.

ARTIFICIAL TAPIOCA.

The fecula of the potato at various times has come into the market as artificial arrowroot or tapioca. The French, at least, sold it openly under the name of "native tapioca," and the manner of preparation made it a comparatively expensive product, costing perhaps two-thirds of the price of a good quality of the real thing. Copper plates heated to a high temperature were used to dry it, and the artificial tapioca often contained traces of this metal. The so-called tapioca prepared from potato fecula is in round, almost regular, fragments with an ungranulated structure. It is whiter, less opaque and easier to break within the teeth than real tapioca, and it is much more insipid when prepared as a food. The copper, of course, can be very easily detected by chemical means. The reasonable price of true tapioca inclines us to think that this adulteration is very uncommon in England, but it is more common in France, where there is a greater difference in price between the native and the exotic products. Indeed cases have been known where dealers in "native tapioca" have gone one step further and even adulterated the potato fecula with such inert and weighty bodies as chalk, plaster and pipeclay.—Grocers' Monthly, London.

WOULDN'T BE SWINDLED.

A lady who closely watches "bargain sales" at a department store was recently attracted to the fruit department, and, in seeing California cherries marked thirteen cents per half pound, yelled out: "It's an outrage! The idea of charging thirteen cents for one-half pound." "Under the circumstances, madam," said the floorwalker, who had been attracted to the counter, "we will make it two pounds for fifty cents." "Ah!" she said, as she opened her pocketbook, "that's more like it."

SALMON FISHING ON THE FRASER.

IN the report of the Joint Commission relative to the preservation of the fisheries in waters contiguous to Canada and the United States, the following reference to the salmon fisheries on the Fraser will doubtless prove interesting, particularly at this time of the year.

Commercial fishing for salmon on the Fraser River has been carried on more or less extensively during about 20 years. It is restricted by law to tidal waters, the upper limit of which is placed at Whonnock Creek, some 40 miles above the mouth of the river. Drift gill nets are the only form of net permitted to be used for that purpose both here and elsewhere throughout British Columbia, with two exceptions, seines being allowed in one of the small northern rivers and trap nets in the Canadian part of Boundary Bay. Above the influence of the tide the Indians may take salmon for their own use by means of spears and dip nets, and hooks and lines may be employed.

The length of the drift nets is restricted to 150 fathoms. Two sizes of mesh are recognized. The larger, intended especially for the quinnat salmon, measures 7¾ inches in extension, and may be used from March 1 to September 15. The smaller, designed for the sockeye, silver salmon, etc., measures 5⅞ inches, and may legally be employed from July 1 to August 25, and again from September 25 to October 31. In 1894, owing to the lateness of the run of sockeye, the open season for the small-meshed nets was extended to September 1. Between September 15 and 25, and between November 1 and March 1, all salmon fishing with nets is prohibited.

Drift net fishing is actually carried on only to a limited extent above the town of New Westminster, which is situated about fourteen miles from the mouth of the river. This is especially the case with respect to the sockeye, for which species only a small proportion of the nets are set above that place, to a distance of three or four miles, nearly all of the fishing being conducted in the lower part of the river and in the adjacent open waters. The outside grounds which have been much resorted to during the past two or three years extend from Point Grey, at the north, to the international boundary line at the south, and offshore a distance of five miles or more.

Until 1891, inclusive, the number of drift nets employed was limited to 500. Since then, however, licenses have been issued to all bona fide fishermen, British citizens and residents, who make application. The canneries and other establishments dealing in salmon are allowed several nets apiece, but each independent fisherman is entitled to only a single net. The number of drift net licenses issued and the total length of the nets employed each year since 1891 has been as follows :—

Year.	Number of Nets.	Total Length of Nets.
1892	702	123,250 fathoms.
1893	1,072	176,000 "
1894	1,666	250,000 "
1895	1,733	260,000 "

The licenses do not define the ground which each fisherman may occupy, but it is provided that the nets shall be kept at least 250 yards apart, and shall not be used so as to obstruct more than one-third the width of the river. Fishing is carried on both day and night, the highly discolored water which prevails throughout the fishing season serving to obscure the presence of the nets in the day-time.

We could obtain no definite information respecting the rate of movement of the sockeye up the Fraser River. A weekly close season is observed from six o'clock Saturday morning until six o'clock Sunday evening, immediately following which better fishing, as a rule, is obtained in the neighborhood of New Westminster than at other times of the week. This fact would seem to indicate that fish are able to cover the distance from the mouth of the river in considerable numbers during the 36 hours of uninterrupted passage.

STOCKS OF BUTTER AND EGGS.

THE Chicago Daily Trade Bulletin presents its third annual report of the stocks of butter and eggs in cold storage in the west, and also at some of the principal points in the east, where the stocks could be obtained.

Inquiries were sent out to some 400 points and replies were received from the majority of the places, but as the quantities at some points were too small to be used, and others reported no stocks at all, the report comprises only about 132 points.

The storing of butter and eggs at the leading markets, instead of the smaller towns, is becoming more general and quite a number of points which in former years had some of these commodities stored are not receiving any now. One reason for this is that the holders of the goods are able to make quicker sales and take advantage of any favorable turn in the market sooner, with their goods at a regular trading market, than if they were hundreds of miles away. Another reason is that some of the smaller places which have ice-cooling facilities do not always give as good satisfaction as those where the latter and more improved methods are used.

One thing holders of storage butter will have to offer this season is probably the finest butter put away at any time for years past. Merchants claim the quality on the whole has seldom averaged as well, and the fancy grades are simply perfect. This will be a great inducement for buyers next fall and winter, and will certainly be an incentive to draw orders from all quarters, and may be instrumental in continuing and maintaining the demand which has sprung up between this and foreign countries.

For comparison we publish the prices paid for extras in creameries in this market during the months when the bulk of the storage butter is bought :

	1897.	1896.	1895.	1894.

A recapitulation of the stocks of butter at the points given makes the following exhibit:

Totals	827,725	777,940	628,600

Regarding eggs the outlook just now is not quite so favorable. The supply put away is a large one, larger than in past seasons, and high prices are not expected. It was fortunate that the eggs were put away at low figures, so that merchants can afford to place them on the market at reasonable prices—no doubt the stock will have to be pushed on close margins this year. The eggs this season were put into storage probably at an average cost of 1c. per dozen less than last year. Cold and stormy weather, and snow, blizzards, etc., help to advance prices. But irrespective of severe winter weather, it is expected that with low prices ruling a larger quantity of eggs will be used, especially as meats this year are higher than last year.

A recapitulation of the stocks of eggs at the points given makes the following showing :

	1897.	1896.	1895.
Illinois	457,050	378,000	389,500

THE NEW TOBACCO REGULATIONS.

The regulations recently issued by the Government for controlling the manufacture of tobacco are giving rise to comment on the part of those engaged in that industry. Mr. J. M. Fortier said a few days ago that it would be impossible to do business under these regulations, and he looked upon it as most unreasonable that the Government should dictate how much foreign and how much domestic leaf should be used in manufacturing cigars, cigarettes, etc., whilst a further injustice was that the manufacture of these products should be carried on in separate compartments. Each manufacturer, Mr. Fortier pointed out, had his special brands of cigars, and to have to comply with a hard and fast blending regulation would prove a most serious matter, whilst the fitting up of separate compartments would involve a very large expenditure of capital. Then, there was the per lb. tax, in addition to the excise duty, which on cigarette leaf is 35½c., and on other leaf 16c. Mr. Fortier considers that a uniform tax on all leaf would be much better, and holds that when that tax and the excise duty have been paid a manufacturer should be at liberty to take the leaf to his factory and put it to what uses he thinks best. If an inland revenue duty is wanted, in addition, it could be easily levied.

CATALOGUES, BOOKLETS, ETC.

PAMPHLET OF SPECIALTIES.

Robert Greig & Co., St. Paul street, Montreal, have issued a handsome little pamphlet of specialties for grocers and confectioners. It contains full price lists on flavoring extracts, essential oils, French mustard, nuts, etc., in fact, all the extensive list of articles the firm handles ; so extensive that it takes 46 pages to catalogue all of them. The whole is bound in a tasty lithograph cover. These will be sent on application.

FACSIMILES OF CANNED GOODS.

W. Clark, Amherst street, Montreal, has got up some tasty japanned tin facsimiles of the packages of canned goods which he puts up. "Partridge Pate," "Potted Chicken," "Tomato Soup" and "Corned Beef" are among the lot. They are handy advertising devices for a retailer to have in his store, descriptive of these goods. They are now being distributed to the trade.

NEW PRICE LIST.

About two years ago the Canadian Specialty Co. issued a price list of grocers' and druggists' supplies. Just lately this enterprising firm has had another pamphlet printed for the same purpose. This is intended, however, to go only to the druggists directly, but still it is a handy book of reference for grocers, containing, as it does, quotations in many staple lines of the grocer's stock. It is intended to issue in the near future a price list of the grocers' supplies handled by this firm. The new book is a very handsome one, and is quite handy for reference. Prices on many new lines have been added, while a few articles are no longer quoted. One may be had on application to the firm.

EPPS'S COCOA.

FEW readers of THE CANADIAN GROCER have not enjoyed a refreshing cup of Epps's cocoa. And if there are any the Messrs. Epps are determined that they shall not long live in ignorance of the the pleasure they are missing. To obviate this the firm's Canadian agent, C. E. Colson, 22 St. John street, Montreal, is now placing with the retail trade handy sample packages for distribution among consumers. There is enough in each packet for a cup or so, and if the recipients, after they have partaken of it, do not become regular consumers it will be because they do not know a good thing when they get it. C. E. Colson, jr., has just returned to Montreal from a tour through Ontario. He found business very good everywhere. Mr. Colson, sr., will make a trip during September. A handsome souvenir that the Eppses are giving to their friends through Mr. Colson is a neat Jubilee medal in aluminum. It bears the usual legends referring to Her Majesty, as well as her portrait, and, of course, does not forget Epps's cocoa.

ones, quarters, remarkably delicate fish, say the Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

The Davidson & Hay, Limited, expect arrival, next Monday or earlier, of second shipment new f. o. s. Valencia raisins.

The Canadian Specialty Co. have this week added another new line of gums to their already large variety. This is the "Tiger" pepsin gum, and is put up by Frank H. Fleer & Co., Philadelphia. The only difference between this and the more [illegible] time during the season, according to authorities, will prices be as low as at the present time. W. H. Gillard & Co. are showing a very fine range to retail at 25 and 40c., which, they state, will make money for the retailer.

LATE ADVERTISEMENTS.

[The following items arrived too late for insertion in the regular advertising space. Reading notices inserted in this column at 5c. per word.]

"We have caught the attention of the trade with our special values in laundry and of last week's sales for immediate shipment, and has been exacting fairly high prices. Sales have been reported at 208dr. per 1,000 litres f.o.b. in bags, being equal to mks. 22.50 pr 100 kgr. c.i.f. Trieste, or 11/6 in cases f.o.b. Calamatta.

Retention.—The Government has not yet taken any decision respecting these dues, and it is possible that it will wait the meeting of the Chamber, and submit the question to its decision. The Chamber will meet after the preliminaries of peace have been signed by the great powers.

BETTER TIMES.

BETTER times are with us. There is no question about it. Some people of a rather pessimistic turn of mind will admit that the outlook has improved a great deal, but they are not so ready to admit that business itself is better. The point of view from which the pessimistically inclined, as a rule, look at the situation is prices. Unquestionably profits are and have been unsatisfactory for several years, but it by no means follows that because they are not what they used to be good times are not upon us.

When times are good profits are undoubtedly better than they are when times are bad, but we fear that if we are to judge whether times are good or no by the percentage of profits which ruled a decade ago good times we shall never have.

In a good many instances the profits of ten or more years ago will never be experienced again. The rapidity with which the factories now produce and the number of merchants there are to cater for the order of every consumer precludes it.

We are in a new era of economical conditions. That era means small profits and quick returns. And he only who is able to do business under these conditions will be successful—will have good times.

For the manufacturer or merchant who is up to date, who is ready to conform to the conditions, the prospect is pleasing.

We at the moment see what we were told we should never see again, namely, "dollar wheat." And what is most gratifying is the fact that Canada has an excellent wheat crop as well as the prospect of a good price. Ontario has eleven million bushels more wheat than last year, and Manitoba has something like half that quantity more.

In Ontario the yield of fall wheat is estimated by the Department of Agriculture at 25.5 bushels per acre, and the quantity 24,268,158 bushels, against 17.2 and 15,078,441, respectively, last year, and of spring wheat 17 bushels per acre, and the quantity 5,489,821 bushels, against 13.8 and 3,519,322 respectively in 1896. Barley, both in regard to acreage and yield per acre, is slightly less than a year ago. In oats and rye there is an increase all round. In peas there is a decrease in both acreage and yield per acre. Beans, while smaller in acreage, show a larger yield per acre. Hay, as everyone knows, is an abundant crop. Although the acreage is smaller the total yield is estimated at 3,811,518 tons, or per acre, 1.63 tons, compared with .93 in 1896 and an average of 1.35 tons per acre for the period from 1882 to 1896.

All told, it is estimated that the receipts of the farmers of Ontario and Manitoba from their cereal crops will be something like twenty million dollars more than last year.

According to the report of the Government, just issued, it is expected the yield of wheat in Manitoba will be in the neighborhood of 21,284,274 bushels, or about 16½ to the acre. The yield of oats is 12,517,112 bushels, and of barley 3,644,788 bushels.

In the Northwest Territories the crop conditions are also good.

Besides the good crops and the better prices that are likely to be obtained for them, there are the dairying and mining industries to be taken into account. They were never in the flourishing condition they are to-day, and both promise further material expansion.

Then further gratifying features in the trade situation are to be found in the steadily increasing railway earnings and the clearing house returns.

The condition of the lumber industry is not, on the whole, satisfactory, although some of the loss of trade which we are likely to experience through the Dingley tariff promises to be made up by the improved trade with Great Britain.

Canada has indeed entered upon another cycle of prosperity, and he must be a pessimist who fails to recognize it.

BUYING AWAY FROM HOME.

THE practice which has become so common of residents of villages and smaller towns throughout the country getting various supplies from the departmental stores, etc., of the large commercial centres is an undoubted evil.

But lamentations or appeals to the loyalty of the residents who thus offend will not bring about a remedy.

The big stores in the large cities get the business chiefly because (1) they advertise attractively and (2) because they do business on the principle of small profits and quick returns.

Some of us may hold different views, both as to the efficacy of advertising and as to the wisdom of "small profits and quick returns," but there will scarcely be any difference of opinion as to the influence of those factors in drawing trade to the big departmental stores.

Not long since THE CANADIAN GROCER was conversing with a well-known retailer in regard to the evil effects of the departmental stores, when the latter remarked with some warmth: "The trouble with the beggars is that they do so much advertising." This same retailer, as far as we know, does no advertising. But he nevertheless paid a high tribute to advertising as a business getter.

And what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. Lamentations and appeals for loyalty to home merchants may do nothing; but judicious advertising and up-to-date business methods will do a great deal.

Country merchants, do what they may, will not be able to turn aside into their own stores all the trade of local customers which now goes elsewhere, but if they go about it in the right way they undoubtedly can so turn a great deal of it.

People in outside villages and towns do not spend their money with city departmental stores because of any particular love for these stores: They do so because, rightly or wrongly, they believe they can there get better value for their money. Disabuse their minds of this, and the local and not the city merchants will get their trade. And to this task each merchant in each country town should apply himself.

In applying himself to this task it is no forlorn hope either that the country merchant is entering upon. If he will sell his goods under the same cash conditions he can, as a rule, part with his goods just as cheaply as can the city departmental store man. He, too, can pick up bargain lots to be utilized as leaders.

In advertising, give prices; and adopt the same course in regard to goods in the window. It is one of the most effective ways in which one can advertise. Figures, like a worm on a hook, attract.

A great many merchants, it is true, are averse to giving figures. It gives a cue to competitors, it is urged. This, it seems to us, is a narrow way of looking at the matter. The fact that they attract customers should outweigh all concern regarding their effects upon competitors.

There are too many merchants, in the city as well as in the country, whose carelessness in regard to up-to-date business methods is surprising. They pay little or no attention to window dressing, advertising, or anything else that attracts customers. They are more dead than alive.

The merchants who are to-day successfully competing with the departmental stores are the merchants who advertise and advertise prices, who secure and offer bargains, who devote attention to their window displays, and who hustle persistently for business. And what one merchant does another can do.

SHARP DECLINE IN MATCHES.

A reduction equal to fifty cents per case has been made in the price of all sulphur matches by the E. B. Eddy Co., Limited.

As far as THE CANADIAN GROCER can learn, the reduction has been made with a view to meeting the competition of certain cheap matches which are upon the market.

"Telegraph" matches are now under quoted at $3 to $3.20 in 5 and 1 case lots, respectively; "Telephone" at $2.80 to $3; and "Tiger" at $2.65 to $2.85.

The new prices went into operation on the 1st inst., and their effect on the market will be watched with interest.

VALENCIAS HIGHER.

Cables from Denia received in Montreal and Toronto this week stated that Valencia raisins had advanced 1s. and that the market was firm at the advance.

CUTTING IN SUGAR.

THE jobbing scale on granulated sugar was marked up ⅛c. by the Montreal Wholesale Grocers' Guild on Thursday last, the basis now being 4¼c. up to 10 bbls. and for larger quantities 4 3-16c. Despite this decision, there is no doubt at all that sugar is being sold for less money.

The trouble lies with firms outside the Guild, who, it is reported, are offering granulated for less than the refiners are selling it at, viz., $4.05 per 100 lbs., whereas the refiners' price to-day is 4⅛c., which is a little more than $4.12 per 100 lbs. It is claimed also that the people who have been cutting are not confining themselves to the local market, but have been offering to deliver sugar at Ontario points at the same figure. This has aroused the ire of western houses, and they threaten to carry the war into Italy and sell sugar in Montreal at even less money. So far they have not done so, and it is to be hoped that matters will modify themselves between the two factions without the necessity of actual warfare, as it would only mean serious losses on both sides.

It might be well for buyers to bear in mind also, in the case of low offers on sugar, that there is some German granulated knocking around the market. It is far from being equal to our fine domestic granulated, being altogether a coarser and more inferior article Buyers who are tempted by any offers below the regular scale cannot be blamed if in view of the low price they make sure that it is not some of this inferior German sugar that is being unloaded on them.

An evidence of the celerity with which the Canadian Government statistics are compiled is the fact that reports for July business have not yet been published.

INDIA AND CEYLON TEAS.

Last week Toronto brokers of India and Ceylon teas received notice to the effect that Ceylon teas had taken a marked advance. At first the intelligence was incredible, but this week the reports have been confirmed and holders are now asking an advance of 2 to 4c. per lb. over the prices of ten days ago. Lower grades have gone up 1d. and the market is firm, while higher grades have advanced 2d. per lb.

The market is strong. One dealer in Toronto sold over 400 chests at 14½c., which showed exceptional value. Good sound teas about this price are exceedingly scarce, and anything below that figure is held to be poor quality.

The cause of this advance is the damage done to the herb in Ceylon by the earthquake of a short time ago.

Some holders of Ceylon tea have withdrawn samples altogether, and London houses refuse to sell all Ceylon teas unless at an advance of from 1d. to 2d. per lb.

If the anticipations of certain people are verified the Klondike will be rich in deaths as well as in gold the coming winter.

WORK WELL, BUT REST.

It is overwork and not hard work that kills. Every man, whatsoever his business or profession, is justified in working hard. Work keeps the body in health as well as the wolf from the door. But no man is justified in over-working and under-resting himself.

Over-working and under-resting are to-day common experiences. And the concomitant is broken down, debilitated and prematurely old men

Man, like a piece of machinery, can be over-worked, and, like a piece of machinery, he must pay the penalty therefor.

It is often not until a piece of machinery has collapsed that the injury done by overwork has been realized. It is the same with the over-worked man.

He is a deluded man who imagines he can over-strain his brain and his muscle for fifty weeks in a year and then recuperate in the two remaining weeks.

It is an excellent thing for a man to take a few weeks' respite every year from business or professional cares; but it is better still for him to daily take that rest which nature demands he should.

He is a foolish engineer who is so sparing in the use of oil upon his engine that its bearings are not properly lubricated. And he is an unwise man who robs his body of that recreation and rest which are necessary to keep it from rusting and breaking down.

Work well, but rest well.

COLD STORAGE FOR FRUIT EXPORTS.

THE steamship Castalia, to Glasgow, and the Numidian, to London, took forward from Montreal experimental shipments of early Canadian fruits, the results of which on the other side will be awaited with keen interest.

It is the first time that fruit shippers have taken advantage of the cold storage accommodation that is now provided on most of the Montreal boats for the transportation of perishable freight.

If the experiment gives even the slightest encouragement fruit operators in Montreal state that it means the inception of a big export business.

At present Canada grows more early fruit than she knows exactly what to do with, and if it can only be laid down in the British markets in anything like the condition in which it arrives in Montreal the advantages and opportunities for development of the new outlet for our early fruit are almost incalculable.

It is just possible indeed that our exports of fall apples will be equalled by those of the earlier varieties, while our delicious pears, peaches and plums will demonstrate to the British palate in the most unmistakable way that "Our Lady of the Snow" grows as delicate fruit as even sunny Italy or Spain, despite her much maligned climate.

Mr. G. E. Fisher, of Burlington, Ont., is the enterprising shipper who is exploiting the London market, his shipment on the Numidian comprising Canadian pears, plums and tomatoes. The fruit is neatly packed in square fifty-pound boxes.

The Castalia's shipment to Glasgow consists of 300 barrels of our rosy Canadian apples of the early varieties, such as Fameuse and St. Lawrence. These apples have been so delicate that they could not stand ocean transportation, but it is hoped that the cold storage compartment will obviate this difficulty. That they will prove palatable if they arrive in condition is a certainty. They are the equal of any table food in the world for delicacy and flavor.

WHOLESALE GROCERS ORGANIZE.

What is in effect a National Association of Wholesale Grocers was lately organized in New York. It comprises the territory east of the Rocky Mountains, and is in form a national executive committee composed of representatives from the various state organizations.

It is not definitely known what the purposes of the association are; indeed, it is not certain that the minor associations will enter the arrangement. The object of the establishment of an executive committee was said to be to promote in general the interests of the wholesale grocery trade, and that the various factors' agreements now employed in the grocery trade will be important matters for consideration. It was reported that prices on sugar and coffee would be advanced, but the report was not confirmed.

Heretofore similar attempts have been unsuccessful, but the National Association hopes to overcome former difficulties of state organizations.

JAPAN TEAS.

We are in receipt of a letter from a firm of tea merchants which criticises our Montreal market report of last week, but which besides contains some valuable information. It reads as follows:

DEAR SIR,—We read in your paper of 27th inst., under heading "Teas," "advices from primary points on all descriptions continue steady." We think you will find on further enquiry that all advices from Japan for the past three weeks have been of a steady advance in prices there with a quick falling off in the quality of offerings. Many Canadian buyers still say that they expect a drop of 1d. to 2d. in teas, but where this is to come from those in close touch with Japan fail to see. The probability is that those jobbers who have bought have done better than others can. Canada may have a full supply of low-grade, poor drawing teas from all countries on account of the new law in the States, though of good drawing Japan teas to retail at 25c. (the great demand in Canada), we think the Canadian trade will later find that the scarcity is greater than has been known for years.

WHOLESALERS AND DEPARTMENT STORES.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER: "A Merchant" writes to THE CANADIAN GROCER of 27th inst. re complaints of the wholesale trade selling department stores. As an instance of this he gives the names of several firms who have presumably collapsed from this cause. He might further add the names of about half the wholesale grocery trade to his list. I mean those who are selling department stores. You know, there are many wholesale grocers to-day that are directly selling department stores and are keeping it dark from their retail customers. In proof of this I could mention a prominent grocery house in Hamilton which claims to be pure from the taint of department stores and yet is selling goods pell-mell to a department store in our own little Guelph. It may surprise "A Merchant" to know that the very house he is doing business with is selling department stores as well. I cannot verify this for him beyond the fact that I have lived to learn that the houses that are not selling department stores are as far apart as white crows.

Yours, etc.,

ANOTHER UNFORTUNATE GROCER.

Guelph, Aug. 31, '97.

LATE MR. HUDON.

THE death occurred at 9 o'clock Friday evening of Mr. Firmin Hudon, of the wholesale grocery firm of Hudon & Orsali, St. Paul street, Montreal, at his residence, 90 Cherrier street. The deceased gentleman was widely known in business circles, and was highly respected for his integrity. His ability in commercial pursuits was of a high order, and enabled him to build up a successful business. He was held in high esteem by those who enjoyed his acquaintance for many good qualities of head and heart, and his family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends and acquaintances in Montreal and throughout the province. The deceased was born on April 27, 1840, and was one of the first students at the Jesuits' College, then at the corner of Dorchester and Alexander streets. At an early age he entered upon commercial pursuits with the firm of V. & E. Hudon, subsequently entering into partnership with his father, under the firm name of E. Hudon & Fils. In 1869 he went into the wine and grocery business with Messrs. Alphonse and Charles Boyer, under the firm name of Boyer & Hudon. In 1875 he founded the firm of Hudon & Orsali, whose business he conducted up till recently. In the year 1864 he was married to the eldest daughter of the late Dr. d'Orsonnens, formerly president of Victoria University, in Montreal, and by this marriage 16 children were born, 12 of whom are still living. Mrs. Hudon also survives her husband. The deceased had been in poor health for eight or nine months past, being confined to his bed for a long time before his demise.

It takes a great deal of hard work to build up a business, but a little carelessness will cause it to tumble.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Sept. 2, 1897.

GROCERIES.

ALTHOUGH, as a general rule, trade is not exceedingly brisk, yet the tendency continues towards higher prices. Several houses are making special drives in their various lines for Exhibition week and have been very busy in preparation for the reception of their customers. The feeling in canned goods continues to gain strength and peas this week advanced 5c. Packers of tomatoes and corn have withdrawn quotations altogether. The principal feature of the week was the firm advance in Ceylon teas; from 2 to 4c. a pound is the increase. All California fruits have advanced 2s. 6d. a hundredweight, or nearly ¼c. a pound. A very firm feeling characterizes the sugar market. Great improvements have been made in the process of milling in connection with the Royal Rice Mills, Montreal, and it is hoped that Canadian milled rice will improve in quality.

CANNED GOODS.

A fairly brisk trade has been done during the past week, but the fall activity has not yet appeared. The new pack of salmon is not on this market yet, but a car will be here in about a week. This first shipment will be divided among the different Toronto houses. The canners of vegetables have withdrawn all quotations, and will not now sell futures of tomatoes and corn to even their regular customers. The shortage in lobsters continues. California fruits remain fairly active. Canadian canned meats are very firm in price. The strong feeling in canned peas has developed into an advance of 5c. this week, and the market is very strong at the present quotations. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80 to 85c.; corn, 60 to 75c.; peas, 75 to 80c. for ordinary; sifted select, 90 to $1; extra sifted, $1.10 to $1.25; beans, 65 to 95c;. peaches, $2.50 to $3 for 3's, $1.65 to $2 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.80; strawberries, $1.50 to $1.80, according to brand and quality; blackberries, $1.40 to $1.70; cherries, $1.75 to $2.25; apples, 3's, 75 to 95c.; gallons, $1.40 to $2; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.50; ditto, new season's, to arrive, $1.25 in 5-case lots and $1.30 in less quantities; other red salmon, $1.15 upwards, according to quality and brand; cohoes, 95c. to $1; canned mackerel, $1.25 to $1.30; lobsters, $2.40 to $2.50 for tall tins; 1-lb. flats, $2.70; ½-lb. flats, $1.60 to $1.70; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.35 to $1.40; 2's, $2.35 to $2.45; 6's, $7.75 to $8.25; 14's, $15 to $16.

COFFEES.

The coffee situation remains in about the same condition as it was a week ago. Business is rather steady, and enquiries for Rio are frequent. The New York market is also firm. Jobbers quote green in bags as follows: Rio, 9½ to 13c., according to grade; East Indian, 27 to 30c.; South American, 21 to 23c.; Santos, 19 to 22½c.; Java, 30 to 33c.; Mocha, 27½ to 30c.; Maracaibo, 18 to 20c.; Jamaica, 19 to 22c.

SYRUPS.

The trade is quite dull. We quote: Dark, 23 to 25c.; medium, 28 to 35c.; bright, 32 to 42c.; corn syrup, 3 to 3¼c. per lb.

MOLASSES.

There has been no change in the market this week. We quote as follows: New Orleans, barrels, 23 to 35c.; ditto, half-barrels, 25 to 37c.; ditto, fancy, 50 to 55c., in barrels and half-barrels; Barbadoes, 31 to 35c.; half-barrels, 33 to 35c.

SUGARS.

The Toronto agents of the Montreal refineries report very firm prices, and that the refiners will not accept any offers. The volume of business increased slightly this week. We quote as follows for Toronto: Granulated—St. Lawrence and Redpath's, 4 9-16c. for single barrel lots and 4½c. for 5-barrel lots; Acadia, 4⅜c. for single barrel lots, and 4 5-16c. for 5-barrel lots; yellows, 3½ to 4⅜c. per lb.; German granulated, in 100-lb. sacks, 4⅛ to 4¼c. per lb.; Demerara crystals, 3⅞c.

SPICES.

Black pepper is still strong in New York, and consequently here. The trade in spice continues of fair dimensions. We quote: Pure Singapore black pepper, ground, 11c. in kegs, pails and boxes, and 13c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 11 to 12c. per lb.; pure white pepper, ground, 18c. in kegs, pails and boxes and 20c. in 5-lb. cans; ditto, whole, 15 to 20c., according to quality; pure Jamaica ginger, 23 to 25c.; cloves, 15 to 20c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 23 to 25c.; do. best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 13 to 16c.; cassia, 20 to 25c. per lb. for ground and 40c. for Saigon.

NUTS.

No new features have developed this week with the exception that Tarragona almonds have advanced 1s. per bag. We quote: Brazil nuts, 11 to 12½c.; Valencia shelled almonds, 20 to 22c.; Tarragona almonds, 9½ to 11c.; peanuts, 10 to 12c. for roasted and 7 to 10c. for green; cocoanuts, $4.50 to $5 per sack; Grenoble walnuts, 12½c.; Marbot walnuts, 9½ to 11c.; Bordeax walnuts, 8 to 9c.: Sicily filberts, 10c. for sacks and 10½ to 11c. for small lots; Naples filberts, 11c.; pecans, 12 to 12½c.

RICE, TAPIOCA, ETC.

In the primary markets tapioca, as well as sago, has advanced 6d. in sympathy with all other cereals, and is now at least ⅜c. a pound higher than a month ago. The Royal Mills, of Montreal, have at length received supplies of raw material, and are now prepared to give a good quality of their own milled rice in bags of 250 lbs. During their shut-down they have added new machinery, and can now produce a polished and glace rice. When the required raw material can be obtained several more new lines will be added to their list of varieties. We quote: Standard "B," broken lots, 3⅞c.; 1 to 5 sacks, 3¾c., and 5 sacks and over, 3⅝c. per lb.; Japan, 5c.; Patna, 4¾ to 5¾c.; tapioca, 3¼ to 4½c.; sago, 3½ to 4½c.

TEAS.

Both Indian and Ceylon teas have advanced; low grades have risen 1d., and higher varieties about 2d. The market is now very firm here at an advance of from 2 to 4c. a pound. Good sound teas are very scarce also, and bring good figures. The demand is more active than it has been for six weeks. Arrivals of new Indian teas are very light, and the quality is not good compared with last autumn's teas. Some holders of Ceylon teas have withdrawn samples altogether, and London houses have withdrawn all Ceylon teas unless sold at an advance of from 1d. to 2d. per lb. There are many enquiries for Young Hysons. The supply is scarce. In Congous the values are very fine, and the style is good; they look like the cheapest in the market. Ruling prices on the Toronto market to retailers are: Young Hyson, 18 to 21c. for low grades, 24 to 27c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15 to 20c. for mediums, 28 to 35c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 18 to 22c. for mediums, and 30 to 65c. for high grades.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

A further advance of 6d has been cabled in currants, which brings the price of new, to arrive, ⅛c. above the price last paid for old at the highest point of the market. We quote: Provincials, 5¾ to 6c. in bbls.; ditto, half-bbls., 5¾ to 6c.; fine Filiatras, in bbls., 5⅞ to 6c.; do., half-bbls., 5⅞ to 6⅛c.; Patras, 6¾c. in cases; Vostizzas, cases, 7 to 8c.

A cable received this week re Valencia raisins advises that the crop prospects are only fair, and that in view of an expected improved demand the market is very firm. Fruit is arriving in very moderate quantities The prices of Valencias continue upward. Considerable business has been done at an advance of 2s. per 100 lbs. There has been some difficulty in getting Spanish houses to make firm offers, owing to the scarcity of fruit in Denia. We quote: Off-stalk, 4 to 5c.; fine off-stalk, 5 to 6c.; selected, 6½ to 7c. layers, 5½ to 6½c.

Sultana raisins continue high, and there does not seem to be much indication of a decline. The stocks in the United Kingdom and on the continent being almost exhausted and the prospects for the season's production being unfavorable, it is certain that the level of prices this year will be high. The old fruit in this market has advanced fully 1c. a pound already.

There has been considerable difficulty experienced by dealers here in having the California raisin packers hold to their agreements made before the advance took place. If they follow up their contracts they will sustain a very heavy loss by it.

Figs are very quiet. We quote spot goods nominally: 10 oz., 7½c.; 10 lb., 9 to 10c.; 18 lb., 10 to 12c.; 28 lb., 11 to 13c.; taps, 3¼ to 3½c. net; natural, 4½c. in bags, and 6 to 6½c. in boxes.

All California fruits have advanced 2s. 6d. a hundredweight. This means nearly ¼c. a pound. Those who are in touch with the market say that lower prices need not be looked for. We quote California evaporated fruits as follows: Peaches, 7 to 10½c. per lb., according to quality; apricots, 6½ to 15c.; pears, 5½ to 10½c.; egg plums, 5½ to 11c.; silver prunes, 8½ to 13½c.

Quotations have been received on Bosnia prunes, but owing to their high price little attention has been paid to them. We quote as follows: Bosnias, U's (110 to 113 half kilo), 6 to 6½c.; C's (85 to 90 half kilo), 7 to 7½c. per lb. California, 90 to 100's, 6½c. per lb.; 70 to 80's, 7½c.; 60 to 70's, 7½ to 8c.; 50 to 60's, 8 to 8½c.; 40 to 50's, 9½ to 10½c.; 30 to 40's, 12½ to 13c.; "Ruby" prunes, 7½ to 8c.; French, 4½ to 5c.

Dates are quiet. We quote: 5½ to 6c. for Hallowee and 5 to 5¼c. for Kadrowee.

GREEN FRUITS.

The market is exceedingly busy this week and the activity is in sharp contrast to the rather quiet feeling of last week. The reason for this is the arrival of the season for some of the staple fruits and the hanging on to the market of some others. The briskness of the trade in other lines does not seem to materially weaken the demand for bananas. The trade in this fruit is very satisfactory. Watermelons are coming forward in large quantity and are finding rather a ready sale. California fruit is about out of seeson and pears are the only California fruit on the market. Canadian muskmelons are to be had now and are very cheap. Tomatoes are cheapening. Some large shipments of huckleberries changed hands this week at rather lower figures. Some cheap peaches are still coming forward, but the Crawfords are gradually displacing them. They give promise of being very cheap this year. Plums are coming forward in exceedingly large quantities already and dealers say they will likely become as cheap as 15c. a basket. We quote: Oranges — Sorrentos, 300's, $3.50 to $4 per box; 180's, $2.25 to $2.50 per three-quarter box. Lemons, $2.50 to $3.50 per box. Cocoanuts, $4.50 a sack and 60c. per doz. Onions, 2 to 2½c. per lb. for Egyptians. Bananas, $1 to $1.75. New cabbage, 90c. to $1 per bbl. Watermelons, 20 to 25c. California pears, $2.65 to $3 per box; muskmelons, Canadian, 60c. to $1 per large crate; cucumbers, 15 to 20c. per 12-quart basket; Canadian tomatoes, 20 to 30c. per basket. Latton berries, 5 to 6c. per quart; huckleberries, 90 to $1 per basket; Canadian peaches, 30 to 40c. per 10 and 12-quart basket; Crawford peaches, 60 to 90c. per basket; Canadian apples, $2 to $2.50 per barrel and 25 to 30c. per basket; pickling onions, 75c. per basket; Canadian plums, 25 to 50c.; Spanish onions, 85c. to $1 per case, according to quantity taken. Blue grapes, 25 to 30c. per 10-lb. basket.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER—Receipts continue fairly liberal, but there has not been much improvement in quality. Good butter is selling readily, while inferior grades are accumulating and are difficult to move. Best quality sells at 12 to 13½c.; low-grade brings 8 to 10c. Creamery is not quite so active, and is easing off in export demand. There is no special change in last week's quotations. Tubs are worth 18c. and prints 19c.

CHEESE—An easier feeling prevails this week. The larger exporters are not following the advance, which they consider too rapid and unwarranted. Sales could not be effected within ¼ to ½c. of the price at which some factories sold last week; 9¾ to 10c. is the ruling price, while jobbers pay 9½ to 9¾c.

SALT.

The fall trade in salt is beginning to appear, but as yet business is not brisk. Quoted at Toronto, carload lots go at $1 per bbl. and 65c. per sack; less than carload lots, $1.05 per bbl. and 70c. per sack. At the wells we quote: F.O.B. barrels, 70c.; sacks 50c. for points west of Toronto, and 45c. for Toronto and points east of Toronto.

FISH.

The supply is not yet equal to the demand, and the feeling is quite firm. We quote as follows: Pickerel, 6c. per lb.; pike, 5½c. per lb.; whitefish, 7c.; trout, 6½c.; perch, 3c. per lb., fresh herring, 3½c. per lb.; haddies, 7½c. per lb.; Labrador herring, $3 to $4 per bbl. and $2.25 per half-bbl.; split herring, $4.50 per bbl. and $2.50 per half-bbl.; boneless fish, 3½ to 4c. per lb.; pure cod, 6½ to 6¾c. per lb.; fresh water herring (heads off), $2.50 per keg.

PROVISIONS.

The active trade and higher prices still continue. A number of lines are sold out, and dealers find them difficult to replace owing to the light delivery of hogs. Some packers fear that they will be compelled to import some United States goods to fill requirements. Lard has advanced from ¼ to ½c. all round. This is due to a shortage of stocks. Prices are now on an export basis. Another advance is looked for in the near future.

DRY SALTED MEATS—Long clear bacon, 8½ to 9c. for carload lots, and 8 to 8¼c. per lb. for ton lots and cases; backs, 9½c.

SMOKED MEATS—Breakfast bacon, 12½ to 13c.; rolls, 10 to 10½c.; hams, large, 11 to 11½c.; 12 to 13c. for small and 12½c. for medium; shoulder hams, 9½ to 10c.; backs, 12 to 12½c.; all meats out of pickle, 1c. less than above.

LARD — Pure Canadian, tierces, 6c.; tubs, 6¾ to 7c.; pails, 7¼c.

BARREL PORK—Canadian heavy mess, $13 to $13.50; Canadian short-cut, $16; clear shoulder mess, $12.50.

GRAIN, FLOUR, BREAKFAST FOODS.

GRAIN—We quote: Wheat, No. 1 hard, $1.10; winter wheat, 93c.; new winter, 85c.; oats, 26 to 29c.; peas, 46c.

FLOUR—With the price of wheat, flour, in all lines, has had sharp advances. Several export transactions are noted also. We quote in carloads on track, Toronto: Manitoba patents, $5.90; Manitoba strong bakers', $5.50; Ontario patents, $4.75 to $5; straight roller, $4.45 to $4.55, Toronto freights.

BREAKFAST FOODS—Trade is fair. We quote as follows: Standard oatmeal and rolled oats, $3.10 in bags and $3.20 in bbls.; rolled wheat, $2.85 in 100-lb. bbls.; cornmeal, $2.30 to $2.40; split peas, $3 to $3.25; pot barley, $3 to $3.25.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Receipts continue sufficient for requirements, and some dealers are receiving more than they can job, while, on the other hand, others are not getting enough. Any surplus stock is going into cold storage. Prices remain firm. For choice stock, 11 to 13c.; No. 2, 8 to 10c.

POTATOES — The prices of potatoes are varying from day to day as the quantities brought forward vary. The quality is not exceedingly good and the quantity is not large. Dealers are paying 30 to 35c. a bag and are selling at 40 to 45c.

HONEY — Trade is picking up considerably, but is not brisk. We quote light at: 60-lb. tins, 6 to 6½c.; 5 and 10-lb. tins, 6½ to 7c.; comb, $1.50 to $1.75 per dozen.

DRIED APPLES — There is really nothing doing just now. Prices, however, are firm in anticipation of a short crop. Local price runs from 3 to 3½c. f.o.b., and jobbing price ranges about 3½c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Requirements are no heavier. Buyers are paying 4c. f.o.b. Jobbers are quoting 4½ to 5c.

HIDES, SKINS AND WOOL.

HIDES—There has been no noticeable improvement during the week. Business continues dull. Cowhides: Dealers pay 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

Steerhides: 60 lbs. and up, 8½c. for No. 1, 7½c. for No. 2 and 6½c. for No. 3.

CALFSKINS — Trade is fair and shows no change. We quote; No. 1 veal, 8 lbs. and up, 10c. lb.; No. 2, 8c.; Dekins, from 30 to 35c.; culls, 15 to 20c. each.

SHEEPSKINS — We quote: Lambskins and pelts, 55 to 60c.

WOOL—The demand from local factories is increasing slightly and is giving a better feeling to the market. The quantity of wool in the country is increasing; in fact, from the natural course of events an improvement in the condition of affairs cannot long be postponed. Dealers are still paying 19 to 20c.

PETROLEUM, ETC.

The demand is fair and improving slightly. We quote in 1 to 10 bbl. lots, imperial gallon, Toronto: Canadian, 14½c.; carbon, safety, 16½c.; Canadian water white, 17c.; American water white, 17½c.; Pratt's astral, 17c. in bulk.

MARKET NOTES.

Rice is ¼c. per lb. higher in the primary markets.

The E. B. Eddy Co. have reduced the price of their sulphur matches 50c. per case.

J. L. Watt & Scott received some quotations on Bosnia prunes. The figures were too high to attract attention.

L. S. Mason & Co. are advised from Montreal of arrivals ex ss. Labrador and ss. Carthaginian of Arguimbau Valencia raisins.

Lard has advanced from ¼ to ½c. a pound. It was feared that there would be an over-production, but a shortage is now predicted.

It is feared that some provisions will have to be imported from the United States to meet the requirements of the local trade in smoked meats, etc. There is a duty of 2c. a pound on these products.

McWilliam & Everist have secured the sole Toronto agency for Boulters' canned goods. All of this pack that are sold to either the retailer or wholesaler in Toronto must now pass through this firm's hands.

The scarcity of canary seed has caused the New York quotations to advance ½c. What effect this appreciation will have on the local prices will depend on quality and mixture. Some effect will be evidenced, however.

CALIFORNIA CANNED GOODS.

Advices from California report a strong and advancing market on canned fruits, sellers being unwilling to go ahead on the basis of present prices. Peaches especially are said to be in small stock, and the crop is decreasing. A shortage in canned apricots is reported, as on account of the low prices obtainable in past seasons, packers took little stock in this fruit this year.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 2, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE week, though contributing no general change in the grocery situation, has been of more interest than the previous one. In the first place, both the refiners' and jobbers' price on granulated sugar has been advanced ⅛c. per lb. and the staple has experienced more demand. Molasses maintain their firm feeling and prices point upward, if anything. Spices and rice rule quiet and steady, while buyers of tea are evidently convinced that the market is going higher, for they exhibit considerable nervousness regarding future supplies, all the more so as the stocks in hand are much lighter than usual. Canned goods rule firm, especially vegetables, and dried fruits give many indications of firmness, California shippers, for instance, withdrawing their quotations on raisins this week. Advices have been received regarding new Grenoble walnuts and they state that the new crop will be an unusually fine one. In domestic green fruit, receipts from Ontario have been very heavy, but the

"I never use Tapioca"

was a common expression among housekeepers before

"MINUTE TAPIOCA"

was put on the market. The tedious soaking necessary and the low quality of a great deal of the tapioca sold kept it in the background as a food article.

The introduction of "Minute Tapioca" changed all this, and people everywhere who would not touch the old tapioca are our most enthusiastic customers. "Minute Tapioca" requires no soaking, is absolutely pure and very delicious.

Department of Aviculture

Did you know that for years there has been a Department of Aviculture in the Dominion, and that millions of bulletins have been gratuitously distributed from time to time, in which the subject of bird keeping has been set forth in a most attractive and persuasive manner; and that advice has been constantly given free of cost to all applicants? Such a department has, nevertheless, been in existence for years, working quietly, but so effectively that to-day there are ten birds kept where one was a few years ago. The expense of this work has been defrayed entirely by Bart Cottam & Co., and while "Cottams," from its pre-eminent and undisputed position as the best bird food, has naturally benefitted to a large extent, all handlers of bird food in any form owe more than they generally admit to the widespread educational work done by the packers of Cottams Seed. It pays to handle Cottams Seed.

Cottams Seed is sold by all wholesalers.

SUGAR.

The sugar market has furnished rather more activity during the past week, and prices are ⅛c. higher than they were last reported, as the Wholesale Guild put up the price on granulated that much last Thursday. This advance is a result of a similar rise in the price at the refineries, their inside price now being 4⅛c. Notwithstanding this rise, however, cutting is reported by jobbers outside the Guild, who, it is reported, are offering granulated for less than the refiners' price. This does not apply to the general run of traders, who stick to the new prices, which are: 4¼c. up to 10 barrels of granulated, and 4 3-16c. for larger quantities than that, while yellows range from 3½ to 3¾c. Outside markets continue firm, and it is worthy of remark that the New York level on granulated is fully ¾c. per pound above ours.

SYRUPS.

There has been little change in syrups during the week, and prices are purely nominal at 1⅝ to 2⅛c. as to grade.

MOLASSES.

The firm feeling already reported in regard to Barbadoes molasses is accentuated, if anything, and round lots have sold at 23c. We quote Barbadoes, 25c., and Porto Rico, 25 to 27c.

RICE.

There is little change in rice, business continuing quiet. We quote: Crystal Japan, $4.50 to $5; standard B, $3.50 to $3.75; Patna, $4.50 to $5; Carolina, $6.75 to $7.75; choice Burmah, $4 to $4.25, and Java kinds, $4.25 to $4.50.

SPICES.

There is no change in the local market, but outside advices are of a firm character, especially on pepper. We quote as follows: Black pepper, 9 to 10c.; pure white, 11 to 16c.; pure Jamaica ginger, 20 to 25c.; cloves, 15c.; pure mixed spice, 25 to 30c.; cream of tartar, French, 25 to 27c.; do., best, 28 to 30c. per lb.; allspice, 12 to 14c.; nutmegs, 50 to 90c.

COFFEES.

The coffee market continues quiet, and there is no change in price. We quote: Maracaibo, 16 to 19c.; Santos, 12 to 15c.; Rio, 12 to 16c.; Mocha, 24c., and Java, 25c.

TEAS.

that fresh supplies are going to cost more money than they expected, and are freer buyers as a result. All advices from primary markets confirm intelligence previously given in these columns, that teas at points of production were going to be higher. In fact, the situation all round is very strong, and some holders are getting really nervous about the question of future supplies. We quote: Young Hysons, 14 to 18c. for low grades, 25 to 28c. for mediums, and 30 to 45c. for high grades; China Congous, 14 to 18c. for mediums, and 25 to 55c. for high grades; Japans, 15½ to 21c. for mediums, and 28 to 40c. for high grades; Indians and Ceylons, 17 to 20c. for mediums, and 35 to 65c. for higher grades.

CANNED GOODS.

There is nothing new or striking in canned goods since last week, when canners withdrew prices on staple lines of vegetables. We quote as follows: Tomatoes, 80c.; corn, 60 to 80c.; peas, 80c.; peaches, $1.75 to $1.90 for 2's; raspberries, $1.40 to $1.90; strawberries, $1.75 to $2, according to brand and quality; cherries, $2.30; apples, 3's, 95c.; gallons, $1.65 to $1.75; pumpkins, 75 to 85c.; salmon, "Horseshoe," $1.40 to $1.45; "Clover Leaf," $1.35; "Lion," $1.37½ to $1.40; Lowe Inlet, $1.30, in tall tins; canned mackerel, $1.25; Canadian canned beef, 1's, $1.20 to $1.25; 2's, $2.15 to $2.30; lobsters, $11 per case; French sardines, $10.25 to $11 extra brands; ordinary brands, $8 to $9; Canadian brands, $4.25.

DRIED FRUIT.

The currant market continues firm, and first supplies will cost a good deal more this fall than in 1896. Late quotations on provincials are 15s. 3d., which is about equal to 4¾c. laid down here. Patras are offered at 19s. and Filiatras at 15s. 9d. No quotations have yet been named on Vostizzas for direct shipment.

In Valencia raisins prices are very firmly held, and on Californias packers have withdrawn prices this week, as there is too much difference between their ideas and growers' at present to quote for early shipment. Four-crown raisins promise to be scarce and high compared with other grades.

Offers were made this week for October shipment on California prunes. They will cost the importers about 7 to 9c., according to size, laid down in Montreal in car lots.

NUTS.

There has been little change in nuts. Advices from Grenoble state that the new crop of walnuts appears to be very plentiful and shippers believe that the fruit will be of an unusually good quality. First offers quote a range of 74 francs to 75 francs f. o. b. Havre. We quote as follows: Grenoble walnuts, 11 to 12c.; do. shelled, 20c; Brazils, 11c.; almonds, 10 to 10½c.; do shelled, 17 to 18c.; filberts, 8½ to 9c.; peanuts, 7 to 9c.; pecans, 9 to 10c.; and cocoanuts, $3.50 to $3.75 per 100.

DRIED APPLES.

The enquiry for evaporated apples has been fair and prices are steady at 4 to 5c., with dried 2 to 2½c.

APPLES.

Receipts of early apples have been fair during the week and prices have an easy tendency, Duchess selling at $1.50 to $1.80 and Red Astrakans at $1.35 to $1.60.

GREEN FRUIT.

The chief feature of the week has been the exceptionally heavy receipts of new Canadian green fruit, peaches, pears, grapes and plums, especially the latter, which have amounted to as much as 4,000 baskets of plums per day. The market has absorbed this downpour remarkably well, however, though, of course, prices were more or less affected. We quote: Oranges—Valencia, $6 per case; Messinas, $3 to $3.50 per box; lemons, $2.50 to $3 per box; Naples lemons, $6 to $7 per chest; bananas, $1 to $1.25. California fruit—peaches, $1 to $1.25; pears, $2 to $2.50, and plums, $1 to $1.50 per box; pineapples, 10c. each; blueberries. $1.20 to $1.50 per box. Canadian fruit—Crawford freestone peaches, 50 to 60c.; clingstone, do., 30 to 40c.; plums, 35 to 50c.; grapes, 10-lb. baskets, 30 to 40c.; 5-lb. do., 20 to 25c., and Bartlett pears, $3 to $4 per bbl., and 35 to 50c. per basket; Egyptian onions, 3c. per lb., and Spanish, $2.50 per case; watermelons, 20 to 25c. each, for good to choice.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—An active business continues to be done in eggs, there being a good demand from local and foreign buyers, and prices are firmly held, with an upward tendency. New-laid eggs sold at 12c., No. 1 at 11c., and No. 2 at 9½c. per dozen.

BEANS—There is a firmer feeling in the bean market and prices have an upward tendency, owing to an improved demand. Car lots are quoted at 65 to 80c.

POTATOES—The demand for potatoes is only moderate at 80c. per bbl.

HONEY—The honey market is without change. White clover comb is offering at 10c., and dark at 7c.; bright extracted at 6½ to 7c., and dark at 4 to 5c. per lb.

PROVISIONS.

A fair trade continues to be done in provisions, and the market is moderately active and firm. We quote: Canadian pork, $15 to $15.50 per bbl.; pure Canadian lard, in pails, at 6¾ to 7¼c., and compound refined at 5¼ to 5½c. per lb.; hams, 11 to 13c., and bacon, 11 to 12c. per lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL.

The flour market was without any new feature. The demand for Ontario grades was somewhat slow, but Manitoba brands continue to be well enquired for at full prices. There were a good many enquiries received from the Maritime Provinces, and some fair sized lots were placed. The stock at present is said to be the smallest ever known in the history of the trade. On the whole, the tone of the market is firm. We quote: Winter wheat patents, $5 to $5.25; straight rollers, $4.85 to $5, and in bags, $2.25 to $2.35; best Manitoba strong bakers', $5.50; second do., $5, and low grades, $3.15; Hungarian patents, $5.90.

The tone of the market for feed is weak, and prices have declined fully $1 per ton. The demand is slow and trade is quiet. We quote: Manitoba bran at $11 to $11.50, and shorts at $12 to $12.50 per ton, including bags. Ontario bran, in bulk, is offering at $10.

The demand for meal continues slow, and prices are unchanged. We quote: Rolled oats, $3.30 per barrel, $1.60 per bag; standard meal, $3.20 per barrel and $1.55 per bag.

BALED HAY.

The tone of the market for baled hay is weaker, and prices have declined 50c. to $1 per ton owing to larger receipts, for which there is only a fair demand. We quote: No. 1, $11 to $12 and No. 2, $9 to $10 per ton in car lots on track.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.

Cheese has lost some of the buoyancy that it displayed last week, and though the level of prices is higher than a week ago, the market has not the same snap. The general impression seems to be that the market should let off a little steam or the pressure will reach the danger point, with the accompanying result of a disastrous slump. That this disposition should rule after the recent bull turn is quite natural, and in the meantime business is very moderate. There is no actual decline in quotations, however, and a buyer could not secure finest Ontario under 9¾c., while Quebec goods are held around 9½c. At the wharf Monday morning 3,500 boxes were offered and the range was from 9¼ to 9⅜c., the outside being the ruling, while one pet combination got a ⅛c. premium on the highest point. We quote: Finest Ontario cheese, 9¾ to 9⅞c.; finest Townships cheese, 9⅝c.; finest Quebec cheese, 9⅜ to 9½c.

There was little change to the butter market to-day. Business was less active, buyers not being as keen purchasers as last week, but prices were unchanged for finest creamery. The Liverpool cable quoted

MONTREAL NOTES.

Receipts of Canadian plums have been as high as 4,000 baskets per day, but the demand absorbs all offerings with a fair promptitude.

First offers on new crop Grenoble walnuts are 74 to 75 francs f.o.b., Havre, while the crop promises to be an unusually fine one.

There have been no quotations yet received here on new Vostizza currants, but the general expectation is for a much higher opening than last season.

California packers withdrew their quotations on California raisins this week, and now refuse to name any quotation. Fourcrown promise to be very scarce and difficult to obtain.

Both the refiners and the Wholesale Grocers' Guild price on granulated sugar has been advanced ½c. per pound on last week.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE CANADIAN GROCER.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Sept. 2, 1897.

A FAIR business for the week is reported. The firm markets continue. The offering on this market of American hams is something new; it seems they can be landed duty paid somewhat below the price of Canadian. Our lumber interests, which are so important to our city, are not as brilliant a feature as in the spring. The business seems to have been overdone. Outside markets show no demand, and many mills are closing down. There are, however, a number of fortunate ones who have sold ahead, first for the English market and afterward for that of South America. Those who held back are disappointed. In tea the demand is rather better, but the market has not yet recovered from its overstock of the spring. Rice is quoted higher by English houses. Stock here is light. In spice prices keep low. Many dealers find they can buy to better advantage in the American market than in the English.

OIL—The market in cod oil continues very flat and the outlook is not very hopeful. Lubricating is rather dull. Orders for winter supply are now being taken to be shipped before the close of navigation. Prices on burning oil in the city are lower than at outside points. We quote: Best American burning oil, 17½ to 18½c.; Canadian water white, 16 to 17c.; Canadian, prime, 14 to 15c.; cod oil, 22 to 24c.

SALT—Stocks are quite light in coarse, and higher prices are asked. There is, however, a cargo about due, when prices will again fall off. It is noticeable how the price of fine in the last few years has declined, while there is but little change in coarse. The large sales of Canadian have no doubt been one cause of this. Cheese salt, of which for a few days the market was bare, is again in supply. We quote: Coarse, 47 to 50c.; Liverpool factory-filled, 90c. to $1; Canadian fine, 90c. to $1 per bag.; 5-lb. bags, in bbls., $3 to $3.25; 10-lb. bags, in bbls., $2.85 to $3; butter and cheese salt, bulk, $2.50 per bbl.; 20-lb. wood boxes, 20c. each; 10-lb. wood boxes, 12c. each; cartoons, $2 per case of 2 doz; rock salt, $5 to $6 per ton.

CANNED GOODS—The market has quieted down. The outlook for a profit this year is good. There is hardly a packer but has withdrawn his prices on vegetables. In baked beans quite a few American packed are seen in the retail stores. They are being packed in tomato sauce. There are very few tomatoes in this market, and prices are firm. Salmon is easy. Lobsters are almost impossible to get. We quote as follows: Corn, 65 to 70c.; peas, 75 to 85c.; tomatoes, 85 to 90c.; gallon apples, $1.80 to $1.85; corned beef, Canadian, $2.40 to $2.50; American, 2-lb. tins, $2.60 to $2.70; 1-lb tins, $1.40 to $1.60; oysters, 2's, $2.10 to $2.20; 1's, $1.40 to $1.50; peaches, 3's, Canadian, $2.75 to $3; 2's, $1.75 to $1.85; American, 3's, $2 to $2.25; pineapple, $2.50 to $2.75; salmon, $1.25 to $1.40; lobsters, $2.50 to $2.60; haddies, $1.15 to $1.25; clams, $5 for 4 doz; chowder, $2.60 to $2.75 for 2 doz.; scallops, $5.50 for 4 doz.; Digby chickens, $1 per doz.; kippered herring, $1.10 per doz.

GREEN FRUIT — Business is very active. Apples are beginning to share in the chief attention. In apples, some very nice New Brunswicks have been on the market and brought full prices. Ontario apples are having a fair sale. Those which arrive from Nova Scotia are as yet poor. California fruit continues to arrive, sales reaching two cars a week. Plums are very fine. Grapes have but fair sale. Melons are quiet. Cucumbers are very low. A few West India oranges were received by the last steamer. We quote: Rhodi oranges, $5 per box; lemons, $4.50 to $5; case lemons, $6 to $7; bananas, $1.50 to $2; new apples, $2 to $4 per bbl.; California peaches, $1 to $1.25; California plums, $1 to $1.25; California pears, $2.50 to $2.75; melons, 35 to 40c.; cucumbers, $1.25 per bbl.; tomatoes, $1.50 to $1.70; pears, $4 to $6 per bbl.; California grapes, $2 to $2.50.

DRIED FRUIT—A few new Valencias are to hand. From the present outlook it would almost seem as if our people would have to buy more of this grade than they expected, as Californian are keeping so high. It is thought, however, that by the time the Californias are ready to be shipped they will be lower. A few Malaga loose muscatels were sold here last year and if the Californias should continue to hold high more of these may be brought here. Currants are higher; orders for two cars from here were turned down owing to the sharp advance. In evaporated apples stocks are getting low and higher prices are expected. This will help the sale of Nova Scotia dried which have been very dull. Very little is yet doing in prunes. Prices are higher than they were last year, particularly French. We quote: Raisins, Valencias, old, 5¼ to 6c.; California L. M. 3-crown, 7 to 7¼c.; London layers, $1.75 to $2; currants, cases, 5¾ to 6c.; bbls., 5¼ to 5½c.; cartoons, cleaned, 7¾ to 8c.; bulk, cleaned, 6½ to 7c., prunes, boxes, 5 to 10c.; dates, 4½ to 5c.; dried apples 3½ to 4c.; evaporated apples; 5½ to 6c.; onions, $3.50 to $3.75 per bbl.; cocoanuts, $2.50 to $3.50 per 100 lbs.; figs, 10 to 12c.; Sultana raisins, 7½ to 9c.; Valencias, layers, old, 6 to 7c.; Malaga loose muscatels, 6 to 6½c.; 4-crown L. M. Californias, 7¾ to 8c.; seeded muscatels, 1-lb. cartoons, 12 to 13c.; new Valencias, about 7 to 7½c.; do. layers, 8 to 8½c.

SUGAR—There is no change. Business with the refineries is still light. Many have not had to buy owing to large stocks, which are not yet worked off, and those who have had to buy have, in most cases, found that they could buy lower from dealers here than from refineries. We quote: Granulated, 4¼ to 4⅜c.; yellows, 3⅜ to 3¾c.; Paris lump, 5¼ to 5½c.; powdered, 5 to 5¼c.

MOLASSES—Stocks here are light and prices are more firmly held. The first sales of New Orleans for the season are reported. We quote: Barbadoes, 22 to 24c.; Porto Rico, 27 to 30c.; New Orleans, bbls., 25 to 27c.; Antigua, 22 to 23c.; syrup, 36 to 38c.; St. Croix, 20 to 22c.; Demerara, 33 to 34c.

FISH — Business is quiet. The usual quantity of dry cod is moving. Owing to quite large arrivals of new fish, prices are rather lower. Bay herrings are scarce. This and the fact that there are no eastern herring has caused a firmer market. Fall shad, pickled, are firmly held. There are still a few fresh coming in. We quote as follows: Large cod, $3.10 to $3.25; medium, $3 to $3.10; pollock, $1.20 to $1.25; bay herring, $1.35 to $1.40 per half-bbl.; smoked, new, 6 to 7c.; shad, half-bbl., $4.50 to $5; boneless, 2½ to 8c.; shad, 12c. each.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Butter is very dull. Good is difficult to get, but even it will not bring much advanced price over quotations. Cheese is tending higher, but there is not much change in the local market. Factories are finding it difficult to get box stuff. Eggs are quite scarce and higher prices are asked. We quote: Dairy butter, 12 to 15c.; creamery, 17 to 18c.; prints, 18 to 20c.; cheese, 9 to 9½c.; eggs, 10½ to 11c.

PROVISIONS—There is in clear pork quite a range in price, as some old is still offered. In mess, the market is about bare. In hams, some American are being sold here, prices even after duty is paid being less than Canadian. Lard keeps very low, but an FLOUR, FEED AND MEAL — The flour market is quieter and somewhat uncertain. Stocks are light. Oatmeal shows no change in price here, but tends higher. Oats are somewhat hard to get, and rather higher prices are asked. In feed, while sales are light it is difficult to fill orders. Cornmeal is rather higher and there is a good demand. In barley, quite a few sales have been made. The market shows strength and prices have been advanced. Peas are hard to get, both split and blue. Beans are also moving up. We quote: Manitoba flour, $6.25 to $6.30; best Ontario, $5.50 to $5.60; medium, $5.10 to $5.25; oatmeal, $3.60 to $3.65; cornmeal, $2.10 to $2.15; middlings, car lots, in bulk, $15 to $16; bran, do, do, $13.50 to $14.50; hand-picked beans, $1.10 to $1.20; prime, 95c. to $1; oats, 34 to 36c.; hay, $12.50 to $13; barley, $3 to $3.10; round peas, $1.25; split peas, $3 to $3.25; yellow eye beans, $1.50; timothy seed, Canadian, $2 to $2.25; do. do., American, $1.75 to $2; clover, 8¼ to 9c.; alsike, 8½ to 9c.

ST. JOHN NOTES.

A farmer was lately fined $35 for selling watered milk to a Kings County cheese factory.

Mr. W. D. Shipley, representing the H. J. Heinz Co., of Pittsburg, has been doing the trade here in company with the local representative, J. Hunter White. Mr. Shipley has been through Western Canada and to Halifax, and reports a very large increase in the sales of his house.

The price of biscuits and cake has been advanced 1c. per lb., following the advance in flour.

Mr. J. B. Myers, who succeeded Mr. Derby as American consul here, will enter upon his duties Sept. 1.

Lumbermen are beginning to buy their supplies. They find quite a difference in prices as compared with last year owing to recent advances.

THE GROCER wishes to extend its congratulations to Mr. Joseph Merritt, senior member of the firm of Merritt Bros. & Co., who was married this week to Miss Oaks, of Digby.

A large party of Eastern Township newspaper men and women have been in our city, on their way through these lower provinces. They appeared particularly well pleased with their trip.

THE GROCER regrets to report the death of Mr. T. B. Barker, for many years the active head of the large wholesale drug house of T. B. Barker & Sons. He will be particularly missed by the older citizens, among whom he had many friends of long standing.

NEW VINEGAR INDUSTRY.

We call the attention of the Canadian grocers to the advertisement, in another column, of the Grape Wine Vinegar Co., 25 Front street west, Toronto. This company is the only concern in America manufacturing the pure grape wine vinegar which obtained highest awards at the World's Fair, Chicago, 1893, Cologne, 1889, and Berlin, Germany, 1896, for absolutely pure vinegar. The vinegar has the special merit of being free from all foreign or metal acids and alcohol, and contains nothing of acid but what is produced by natural fermentation.

The Concentrated grape wine vinegar is put up in demijohns of 4 1-6 gallons Imp. and will produce, with the addition of water, 100 Imp. gallons of XXX vinegar, and purchasers in this form can readily see what an enormous saving of freight is made—to say nothing of extra charges for barrels, packages, and the trouble and annoyance usually had with empties. The analysis of Dr. A. R. Pyne speaks for itself and is a reliable recommendation of absolute purity and safety. Though but lately introduced into Canada, this vinegar is already meeting with excellent acceptation, and the leading grocers speak highly of it. Another and one of its greatest virtues is that it can be shipped with absolute safety during the winter months, and grocers buying the Concentrated vinegar need not lay in a large stock before the frost sets in. It is simple, safe, absolutely pure and economical, and every thinking grocer will readily see the advantages of handling same. For full particulars we refer to the advertisement.

AMONG THE RETAILERS.

An Up-to-date Window.

The People's Supply Co., King street east, Toronto, had an attractive, seasonable and up-to-date window this week. The only articles in the window were samples of a new blend of Ceylon tea, on each package of which the firm's name was printed. The red paper binding on each package harmonizes nicely with the leaden covering on the tea, and the two colors give an appropriate "blending." However, the coloring wasn't so nice but that artistic taste was needed to make the window as attractive as it at present appears. The floor of the window is entirely covered with packages of this tea, and in the centre is built a mound, about 1½ feet each way, which reaches from the back of the window half way to the front; this is capped by a suitable, differently arranged pile of packages. From each of the four corners of the mound runs another lower pile of packages to the nearest corner. The front rows are straight, the rear ones are in the form of a semi-circle. This is only a brief outline of the plan of the window; merchants can introduce many fancy arrangements. The dresser showed remarkably good taste and knowledge of that science with which few have much acquaintance. It certainly will give that tea a good advertisement, and it will pay all who can to see it. Use it not only for tea; other things can be used in a similar way. The grocer has a great many articles that permit piling; soap is one of them. By the way, some dealers will put boxes of soap in the window. Now those boxes don't, in my opinion, look exceedingly pretty. It is an easy method of filling a window, but surely merchants know by this time that care should be taken. If a grocer hasn't time to arrange his window carefully or hasn't enough clerks to have it done, it would pay him to advertise under "Help wanted."

"The Day is Done."

With the advent of better times and the development of the long visible favorable outlook, there are some attending changes that grocers should impress on their minds, and according to which they should act. One of these is the disappearance of the desire for cheapness. A few years ago the one recommendation of an article to the middle classes, who are mostly affected by such changes, was the cheapness of it. Now, however, quality is the first consideration. This is no mere theory; the evidences are visible in every trade, including the grocery, too. The department stores are, and have been, recognizing this fact, and have been gradually working off their cheap stock and laying in better grades of goods, until now a person can obtain there as expensive an article in any line as he may require. One man told me this week that the danger from the department stores had disappeared. If a department store now handles cheap goods it cannot exist; if a higher grade of goods comes into demand there will be no evil that it can commit.

Some grocers, I see, are still advertising those startling bargains, and it is to them that this warning is particularly applicable. People now do not want that grade of sugar of which a merchant can advertise at 25 pounds for a dollar and on which he can still make profit; hams at 13c a pound, even though advertised as the best brand, will not find ready sale. Indeed, people know that that grocer is "manufacturing facts" when he advertises so. One wholesale dealer with whom I am acquainted says that he charges a cent a pound more for his smoked meats than anybody else and that yet he cannot supply his demand. And this is not the only convincing proof of the exact condition of affairs; it is but a sample. If a customer now goes into a store to purchase some of that "best" sugar at 25 pounds for a dollar, she will recognize that she is duped and withdraw her custom. Formerly, she was prepared for cheapness and was willing to put up with it, now she won't. A grocer

Advice at Home.

When advice is given to whomsoever seems to need it, it is an invariable custom to quote the advice of some distinguished man. How often have we heard of the number of hours in a day that Edison or Darwin has spent over his work, and how frequently have we heard of the honesty of Bright and Cobden? It seems to me, however, that more impressive lessons in business can be drawn from successful men whom we know. Aged people, too, are not required in order that advice may be reasonable. Not many days ago I was in conversation with a young business man when he suddenly branched off to talk on his methods of business, and while in conversation with him he told me that while in business he had never lost half a day's attendance at his store since he had opened up for himself. Well, I was surprised, for I knew he was quite a sport and took a great interest in sports. "No," he said. "I don't believe in this careless way of doing business. We close up every holiday and every grocer's excursion day. We don't leave half our staff behind to do twice their usual work and thus fail to give the usual amount of attention to our customers. If our store is open, all our staff is there. We close at eight o'clock in the evening, and whatever fun we get we get between eight o'clock and bed-time. We run our business systematically and our customers can depend on us. We never do business in a half-hearted sort of fashion. Our motto is: What's worth doing is worth doing well. It pays." There is a great deal of sound argument in what he said and a great deal more practical advice than is contained in the fairy tales about Edison, etc. I might add that this gentleman belongs to the Retail Grocers' Association, and some grocers might take advice from this business man and attend the meetings of their local association and co-operate with the members in promoting the grocers' interests.

JAPAN TEA SHIPMENTS.

Mail advices received from Yokohama report the shipments of tea from May 7 to July 30 inclusive as follows: To New York, 7,328,267; do. via Suez Canal, 1,240,311; San Francisco, 3,315,872; Chicago and West, 10,605,740; Canada, 4,209,770; total, 26,699,960; last year the total for the same period was 19,731,628, and in 1895, 26,676,819.

HEAVY LOSSES ON LEMONS.

New York importers of lemons are decidedly dissatisfied over the conditions prevailing in their business during the past few weeks. The delay and inconvenience attributed to the assessment of the duty on fruit by weight, as provided for in the new tariff, have already been mentioned in these columns. Aside from this inconvenience many importers claim that the new duty has caused heavy actual losses. The new rate is 1c. per pound, which would mean about 80c. per box for Sicily fruit and 95c. to $1.15 per box for Sorrento lemons, the latter being put up in larger packages.

The old duty, which was based upon measurement, varied from about 20 to 30c. Notwithstanding this material advance in the duty, however, the first sale under the new tariff showed a decline of from 25 to 50c. per box, as compared with the previous sales, so that the whole amount of the duty, it is argued, came out of the importer or the shipper. In subsequent sales there were further declines. As a result importers claim that there is almost nothing left for the grower after expenses and duty are paid.

MANITOBA MARKETS

WINNIPEG, Sept. 1, 1897.

GROCERIES.

THE whole trade is brisk, with prices on the advance. About three-fourths of the harvest is now cut, and the quality and quantity are alike good. Some reports have been sent out, by parties interested in depreciating the yield, to the effect that the crop is not good, but this is wrong. We have our information from the most reliable source in the province, and the crop is in first-class condition, with every indication that it will be so harvested. From this time on it will be possible to furnish brief but accurate accounts of the grain market here, which will, no doubt, be interesting to eastern wholesale houses. The only crop likely to be short is the oat crop, and this will, no doubt, raise the price of oatmeal a little, but as the crop in Ontario is abundant, it will be easy to import any shortage from that province. Prices for the week run about as follows:

CURED MEATS—Market is stiff and very active. Hams, assorted, 13c per lb.; breakfast bacon, 12 to 12½c.; do, backs, 10 to 10½c.; shoulders, 8½c.; short spiced rolls, 9c.; dry salted, long clear bacon, 8½c.; do, smoked, 9½c.; square cut shoulders, 8c.; backs, 8½c. Half-cent extra for canvassed goods.

BUTTER—In dairy there is little or no change. Prices are purely nominal, being 11 to 12c. delivered at Winnipeg, for round lots. Creamery—The market is very active. Factory men are holding at 18c. f.o.b. factories; 35,000 lbs. of Northwest Government creamery was purchased the other day by one Winnipeg house, but the exact figure remains a secret, though it is understood the price was extremely satisfactory.

CHEESE—In sympathy with the Montreal market, the price of this product has increased and dealers are paying from 7½ to 8c. for late July and August make.

EGGS—Receipts are very light. Jobbers are purchasing at 13c. and selling candled at 14½c. On the city market this morning the retail price was 21c.

CEREALS—Are a little higher and the market is firm. Rolled oats, 80-lb. sacks, $1.65 to $1.70; granulated, $2; Standard, $1.90; pot barley, $1.75 per sack; pearl barley, $3.50. Cornmeal market, slightly advanced, though jobbers' price to retailers is still $1.30 per 98-lb. sacks.

DRIED AND EVAPORATED FRUITS—The first Valencia raisins have been received. This arrival is fully one month in advance of any previous year. Fine off-stalk will sell at $2 per box. Apricots were offered so freely and so cheaply in the first of the season that there was a rush to buy and a consequent stiffening of the price. The price has advanced 1c. this week, and they are now selling at 10c. Peaches are arriving, but so far in small quantities. This will be an exceptionally heavy market for these goods this year.

RICE—Japan rice is very scarce; in fact, there are not ten sacks in the city. The price would be 5¼c. if there was any on the market. China rice is still selling at 4⅝c.

CANNED GOODS — Tomatoes are still scarce; in fact, there is likely to be a stringency in this market until it is definitely known what the pack will be, though it is now thought that the price will not exceed the present figure, $2.30 per case. Peas are selling at $1.75. This is a slight drop, but in this line also the pack is short. Beans are about the same as last year, $1.60 per case. Raspberries also appear to be a small pack and the price is still $1.45.

SUGAR—Has advanced ⅛c., and as the preserving season is now in full swing, the market is active.

GREEN FRUIT — The fruit from British Columbia did not arrive in satisfactory condition, whether due to indifferent packing or to the large amount of moisture in the fruit is not yet definitely known. Fruit from Ontario is very little better, and it seems as if we will have to depend on Uncle Sam for fruit. Winnipeg is a great market for fruit and also a critical one. Peaches and plums are coming in freely, and the price remains at $1.25 to $1.40 for 20-lb. crates. Pears are also the same as last week, $2 to $2.25 for 40-lb. crates, though a drop is expected in this fruit. Bananas are growing daily scarcer and are selling for $1.75 to $2.50 per bunch, according to size. Lemons are unchanged. Tomatoes—The market is for the moment bare; nominally the price is $1.50 for 20-lb. crates. Watermelons are $3 per doz. Oranges are nearly cleared up; late Valencias, $6 to $6.50. Apples—All southern stock is in fine condition; prices, $3.75 to $4.25, according to condition and variety. There is a heavy demand for crab apples. The Washington and Oregon supplies found ready sale, but for a week none have been on the market. Another car, this time from Montana, is expected in about a week or ten days.

DOES GENEROSITY PAY?

I HAVE caught myself wondering during the last few weeks whether it pays to be charitable or not. It is a question of getting the respect or affection of your neighbors, as against a certain percentage of this world's goods.

To illustrate my meaning I will cite two cases. In a small town which I have visited at least once in two months for 15 years, there are two grocers, both of whom are middle-aged men, and have been in business there for a term of years commencing before I started to go there.

If you search the country over you won't find two men more absolutely different than those. They are the antipodes of each other in every respect—personal appearance, personal traits, business methods and also in financial standing. The fact that they are both grocers is about the only point of resemblance they have.

One of these grocers we'll call Smith and the other Jones. Smith is a deacon in a Baptist church, a member of several of the organizations in the town, and a good and valued citizen, yet he has few, if any, friends. He is an intensely close man, and has never been known to give anything in charity. Whenever he gives anything away—but as a matter of fact, he never does give anything away; if he allows anything to leave the store without a cash equivalent, there has got to be some equivalent for it, direct or indirect, in the case somewhere. Nobody goes to Smith for a contribution for a church festival. No poor woman in need of food goes to him for a loaf of bread or an egg or two. Smith has never been known to do any such foolish things. Neither he nor his wife would think of calling at a house where a person lay sick, or of sending around or leaving any little delicacies. Why, if Smith were seen committing any such indiscretions the whole town would be aroused and his sanity would at once be questioned. He is a cold, narrow, uncharitable man. If a family has lost its only breadwinner by death, and they owe Smith a bill, the fact of their destitute circumstances won't weigh in the least with him. His bill goes in, and if it isn't paid pretty soon he'll call at the house and sternly enquire why. This is no romancing. I've known him to do it. Everything is straight, cold business with Smith. There must be no sentiment in your dealings with him. Like Shylock, he wants his pound of flesh, and neither death nor disaster can stop his efforts to get it.

Now, let us see what recompenses there are in Smith's case. I said he had probably been in business 17 or 18 years. I happen to know that when he started he had nothing. He even opened his store on borrowed capital. To-day Smith owns the store he trades in, the house he lives in and six or eight houses besides. In addition, he is accredited with owning about $8,000 worth of Pennsylvania Railroad stock, which nets him a comfortable little dividend every few months. Smith is well fixed. He has made money by being stingy and uncharitable, but he has made it—and every cent of it out of his business.

Now, take Jones. As I said, Jones is Smith's perfect opposite. He is probably about the same age—say 55 years. He has been a grocer in that town for maybe 20 years, and is just about as well known as Smith. Yet he isn't worth a cent. He does a fair trade, probably 75 per cent. as large as that done by Smith, and it would seem as if he ought to have saved something out of it. But he hasn't. I know that he even has to hustle at times to get the money he owes his wholesale grocer.

Jones is a born philanthropist. He is what the flippant call "easy." I'll guarantee that any tramp on earth can go into that man's store, and even the flimsiest tale of hard luck will elicit crackers and cheese, and often something better. Poor people short of money go there and get their groceries, and very often Jones never thinks of sending them a bill. They bless him fervently, but families are not easily raised on naked blessings. Not a person in that town gets sick that Jones, if he hears of it, don't happen to drop in "as he was passing," to see how they are. More often than not he carries a box or two of especially choice strawberries, or a jar of jam, or something else to tempt the sick appetite.

Jones is a good fellow—to everybody but Jones. His clothes never fit him and he always needs a new suit. So does his wife, as a rule. But that makes no difference. He is just as happy, and so is his wife. There are no people in that town more popular than the Joneses. Everybody likes them, and everybody depends on them, after a fashion. And yet Smith is worth probably $30,000, while Jones owns barely enough to keep his head above water.

Now, there are the two cases. Here's Jones, with nothing to show after a lifetime of labor but an always uncertain living and hosts of friends, who are all right in their way, but who are neither bread nor butter.

Ask anybody in that place, man or woman, what they think of him, and every one of them will praise him. But he's worth nothing.

Take Smith, without a real warm friend —a man with neither charity nor generosity in his nature—a man whom needy women shun and church solicitors pass by. And yet he owns probably $30,000—a fortune for a country town. Which, after all, is to be most envied?—The Stroller, in Grocery World.

Only two Barrels required—One for light concentrated (light color grapes)—One for dark concentrated (dark grapes). No empty barrels to return and make claims for. Put up for shelf trade in 16-oz., 8-oz. and 4-oz. bottles. Each will make respectively 2 Gallons, 1 Gallon and ½ Gallon. Less work for the Grocer. More time to think over ordering our concentrated.

READ WHAT THE DOMINION ANALYST SAYS:

This is to certify that on analysis of the above-named GRAPE WINE VINEGAR, I found it a purely concentrated Wine Vinegar, made from the Grape fruit, free from mineral acids, metallic substance and alcohol. After dilution with pure water it should prove a most wholesome and palatable commodity, either for table or pickling purposes. A very important thing not to be lost sight of in using this article is, that by procuring the vinegar in the concentrated form in bottles, it ensures perfect cleanliness and a regular standard strength.

ARTHUR P. TIPPET & CO., MONTREAL

DEATH OF MR. GEO. PALMER.

MR. GEORGE PALMER, of the firm of Messrs. Huntley and Palmers, the famous biscuit makers, died on August 19th, at the age of seventy-nine. He was, says The Daily Mail, London, England, the son of the late Mr. William Palmer, a Somersetshire yeoman. It was his staunch adherence to Quaker principles, added to undoubted genius and remarkable business capacity, that made George Palmer the great merchant, manufacturer and inventor that he was. It was he who invented and perfected not only the first machine ever used in the making of biscuits, but most of the machinery now in use at Reading.

His cousin and partner, Thomas Huntley, regarded this machine as the most dangerous of innovations. "George will ruin us!" he exclaimed; and lived to see more money come to his till in twelve months than he had hoped to amass in a lifetime.

George, as the oldest and most gifted of the brothers, was chosen to represent the Palmer politics is Parliament. These were somewhat peculiar. The Quaker ideal forbade the striving for the usual goal of coronet or Ulster badge, which is the ambition of most millionaire manufacturers.

No one more keenly understood the power of money than they did; nor did any one less realise that money cannot purchase taste or wisdom of a sort superior to that required for conducting a marvellous biscuit-baking business. Holding themselves aloof in this way from peers and people, from the artistic and literary as from the fashionable and frivolous worlds, they came to form a clique of their own, despising and despised, which is remarkable in having no parallel. George, like his brothers, gave liberally, if cautiously, of his abundance.

Their principle was to give only if asked. For the most part they gave to the folk of the town to which they had brought prosperity: as its public parks, hospital, municipal buildings, and so forth, stand to prove. But they gave something, however small—a half-crown was the unit of their charity—to whosoever asked. Hence Reading has been for decades the Mecca of vagabondage; there must be few tramps in England who have not made a periodical return to its red-brick suburbs. For this charity George Palmer, at least, has had some tangible reward in the erection during his lifetime of a statue to his honor in the main street of the place, a distinction seldom accorded to a commoner. Nor has that other reward, the esteem and confidence and, indeed, the affection, of his fellow-townsmen been lacking. In Parliament he was always a silent member, and, despite his riches, but one of his eight children married into Debrett. His eldest son, Mr. George William Palmer, represented Reading as a Gladstonian from 1892-95.

They were admired and loved by their employes, as they were respected by the Berks and Oxon farmers from whom they bought their grain, and whom in bad seasons they were never unwilling to help with substantial advances for the purchase of seed corn and manure. Many a prosperous tradesman and man of business owes his present position to the assistance and advice which, once assured of his sobriety and integrity, they were only too willing to bestow on the man whose lack of capital was the only drawback to his success in life.

The postal service of the United States costs $9,000,000 a year above receipts, while that of Great Britain yields a profit of over $14,000,000, that of France nearly $10,000,000, that of Germany $6,000,000, that of Russia $8,000,000, and those of even India and Japan $1,500,000.

THINGS THAT COUNT.

Promptness counts. Most clerks are boys, and most boys like to fool, and when a customer comes in there is sometimes delay—customers should never be called upon to wait unless there is very evident reason.

Accuracy counts. A system that insures prompt and accurate delivery makes friends of customers—and that counts a good deal—inaccurate charges count the other way.

Nothing counts more in retaining the good-will of customers and solving whatever difficulties may present themselves than uniform and unvarying good nature.—From But—.

MINT ... PUFF-STRAPS

RECOGNIZING the great popularity of peppermint with the sweets-loving public, we are the first to introduce to the trade Pliable Licorice containing this flavor.

The delicious quality of our Pliable Licorice is well known; it is matchless in this respect as well as in its flavor and finish.

Our Triple Tunnel Tubes and Navy Plugs are great favorites also, and are made of the same material, although flavored differently. . . . . .
